CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

1961

OFFICIAL RECORD

FOREWORD

By formal action of the Convention, the editors of the Official Record were directed to combine the daily action journal and the verbatim proceedings into a single publication in the interests of effective presentation and economy. This directive necessitated certain modifications in the traditional practice of presenting the proceedings and the journal as separate publications.

In compiling, interpolating and editing the material presented herein as the Official Record of the 1961 Constitutional Convention of the State of Michigan it was necessary to establish and follow definite procedures to minimize duplicate printings of documents, clarify and complete convention actions, and insure the inclusion of all essential information as well as provide easy identification of documents, actions and similar information.

Duplicate printings of documents (committee proposals, delegate proposals, exclusion reports and resolutions) have been avoided by the following procedure:

a. Delegate proposals, when introduced, have been included by title only because they were delegate suggestions only and lost their identity upon referral to committee. For the full text of delegate proposals the researcher is referred to the separate file thereof deposited in the archives of the Michigan Historical Commission, with the Michigan State Library and the library of each of the 4-year colleges and universities in Michigan.

b. Resolutions appear in full when they are offered.

c. Committee proposals and exclusion reports (and minority reports thereto), with supporting reasons, appear in full when taken up for detailed consideration.

When documents are read by title only, as on introduction, reference thereto is made as follows:

For Committee Proposal 1, see below, page 197.

When documents have been amended and adopted, they appear in full, including the amendments, at the point they were adopted.

To clarify and complete convention actions, explanations are enclosed in bold-face brackets, as follows:

[Whereupon, at 6:05 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 9:30 o'clock a.m., Tuesday, January 9, 1962.]

Materials 'considered read' and ordered printed in the journal have been interpolated at the appropriate point as follows:

Following is the communication:

Ladies and Gentlemen of the Convention:
Today we are, etc. etc.

All quoted materials, if more than 3 lines in length, have been set off by indentation from each margin.

To assure inclusion of all essential information and provide ease of identification relative to documents and actions, official documents have been identified by generic name and specific number by the use of bold-face type (Committee Proposal 1, Resolution 4, etc.), and the several official orders of business also have been set in bold-face type where there has been business taken up thereunder (Roll call, motions and resolutions, etc.). For the full list of orders of business, see Rule 42, page 132 below.

The complete Official Record of the 1961 Constitutional Convention of the State of Michigan is presented herein without substantive change.

STATE OF MICHIGAN

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

CIVIC CENTER, LANSING, MICHIGAN

FIRST DAY

Tuesday, October 3, 1961, 12:00 o'clock noon.

PROCEEDINGS

[In conformity with the requirements of article XVII, section 4 of the Constitution of the State of Michigan, the constitutional convention delegates elect, elected under the provisions of Act 125 of the Public Acts of 1960, as amended by Acts 8 and 230 of the Public Acts of 1961, assembled in the main auditorium in the civic center at Lansing this day (being the first Tuesday in October next succeeding the election of April, 1961), at 12:00 o'clock noon, and were called to order by the Honorable James M. Hare, Secretary of State.

Secretary of State Hare designated Mr. Fred I. Chase, Secretary of the Senate, as temporary secretary; Mr. Norman E. Philleo, Clerk of the House of Representatives, as temporary parliamentarian; and Mrs. Margery Archer as temporary reporter.]

CHAIRMAN HARE: May I have your attention, please? Will all the delegates elect take their seats?

By authority vested in me as secretary of state by the constitution and statutes of the state of Michigan, I hereby call this Constitutional Convention of 1961 to order.

The Reverend Canon Malcolm Gray Dade, Rector of St. Cyprian's Protestant Episcopal Church of Detroit and a delegate elect to this convention from the fourth representative district of Wayne, will offer the invocation.

Father Dade, will you please come forward?

MR. DADE: Almighty God, if ever we needed Thy guidance and Thy wisdom, it is now as we begin this first meeting of the Constitutional Convention of the State of Michigan in the year of our Lord 1961.

We pray that Thy good spirit may guide and sustain us as we carry the grave responsibilities, accept the challenges ever before us, meet the opportunities afforded us to do a mighty work as delegate representatives of all the people of this great state.

Grant that in all our deliberations and discussions we may do that which is well pleasing in Thy sight. May we be big when we are tempted to be little and petty, dedicated and selfless when we want to be undedicated and selfish, for we shall remember that Thou art concerned in all that we do here, so that our conscience before God and man will be clean. For what we say here will not long be remembered, but what we do in this place we pray will meet the needs and stand the test of the years to come.

Bless each one of us. Bless the homes from which we come, bless the land in which we dwell and bless those to whom leadership shall be entrusted by this convention. Deal graciously with them and hold them and us in strict accountability to Thy judgment and Thy authority. This is our prayer, Almighty God. Amen.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Thank you, Father Dade.

This day is a significant one for the people of Michigan. It is a day which offers a challenge to each of us. For me it marks the fruition of a long dream. It is only by the accident of statute and the fact that I am secretary of state that I hold this gavel in my hand here today. Long before the concept of a constitutional convention was accepted by the Michigan people as a device for building a better state, there were many of us convinced that only through the deliberations of a convention such as this, could this state keep in stride with the headlong thrust of this era.

We now live in a world filled with space vehicles, atomic energy and with miracle medicines. We have an electronic way of life, a way of life far different than we had in the beginning of this century when the Michigan constitution was last revised. The technical tools we now have will make this Constitutional Convention of 1961 a markedly different one than that of 1908.

Television, photo transmission machines, radio, and other electronic devices will carry your words and action into every home in Michigan. Step by step the people will watch the debate on the issues and problems which you in this convention face. They can become knowledgeable constituents, and it is my hope they will also become articulate constituents, letting you know from time to time how they feel about specific sections of the document which you will be building during the significant days ahead.

In fact, I've contended from the beginning that the educational values inherent in a convention such as this could easily be as valuable as the final document itself. I suppose it is the political science teacher in me but I am always optimistic about the public's capacity and interest in learning and growing. And I firmly believe that a knowledgeable electorate which has watched you forge a vital and forward looking constitution in tune with our times will accept and cherish the final document you submit for their approval.

The governor's constitutional convention preparatory commission has done everything possible to insure that your deliberations get off to a smooth beginning. We hope that the facilities of constitution hall, where you will be in session tomorrow, will help you do a better job under workable conditions and aided with the finest available tools. We have set up in constitution hall a united nations seating pattern which will enable delegates to see one another as issues are debated. Equally important — and our television audience will know whereof I speak in the days to come — we have protected the people's right to know by setting up television, radio, and press facilities so that your words and your actions can become part of every citizen's experience.

The research staff has published the first studies which should make your work a great deal easier during the forthcoming weeks. Others which will provide you with many of the facts, the outlines, and the references you will require to do your work will be issued in the next few days.

The governor's constitutional convention preparatory commission has, by swinging into action 10 weeks ago, succeeded in saving you thousands of hours of time and research effort and, equally important, has saved the taxpayers of Michigan hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Yours is a great challenge and a deep responsibility. I can do no better than to re-echo the words Dr. Alfred Kelly uses to close his research study on The Meaning of Constitutional Government:

> It is an awesome and magnificent tradition within which the Michigan convention finds itself a part. The task confronting the delegates, defined in the largest sense, is the preservation and implementation of the American heritage of constitutional government; so that the institutions of free men may continue to enjoy that vitality and strength which has contributed so much to the rise both of our state and the American republic to their present position of greatness.

The people of Michigan have charged you with a great responsibility. We believe that you will write a constitution worthy of this great state, a constitution which will serve as an example to our 49 sister states, and which will be the instrument which brings about greater progress, prosperity and a better way of life for all of us.

Now, I think I should introduce you to some of the people who face you here on the platform. I want to make sure you know the people who worked so long and hard on the preparatory commission. Can I ask you to simply stand as I call your names?

First of all, the chairman of the preparatory commission, Howard Stoddard. Next, Dean William Combs from Michigan State University, Dr. Charles Joiner from the University of Michigan, and Dr. Alfred Kelly from Wayne State University. I do want you to know a man I stole from our own office who has been tremendously valuable in setting up this convention, Mr. Bernard Apol.

Thank you very much.

Now I should like you to know that we have 2 men sitting here in front of me who were certainly very valuable in the past and in the help and advice and counsel they have given me: Mr. Chase who is acting as the temporary secretary of the convention—will you stand?—and Mr. Philleo who is acting as temporary parliamentarian.

I want you to hear from the man who, 3 months ago, began to think about what should be done to prepare for the convention. The need of a preparatory commission became obvious and he considered that need and, indeed, talked with the members of the Kellogg foundation staff. Out of that came a fine grant from the Kellogg foundation of $85,000 to help set that up. The man who implemented this preparatory commission is our governor, John B. Swainson, and he is here to give greeting and welcome to the delegates.

Governor Swainson.

GOVERNOR SWAINSON: Jim Hare, our secretary of state, Governor Brucker, Chief Justice Dethmers, Mayor Bowerman, ladies and gentlemen of the Michigan constitutional convention and their guests, it is with a great deal of pride that I accept this opportunity to extend official welcome and to offer, as the governor, my most sincere greetings to the delegates here assembled to inaugurate Michigan's fifth constitutional convention.

This is an historic moment in the annals of our state. The eyes of every Michigan citizen are focused on this hall. And centered here, too, are his hopes.

In the days and months to come your deliberations will be watched eagerly and anxiously. Each word uttered here will be significant, each debate will be followed very carefully, and every action will be submitted to scrutiny by a citizenry which has vested you with tremendous responsibility.

The great tasks you face have been lightened at the outset by the work of the convention preparatory commission and the study committees appointed by this administration. Physical preparations have been made, a staff has been assembled, and research materials have been compiled and made available. I know that you join me in commending these most valuable efforts.

In addition, directives have gone to the administrative principals of every state department, every bureau, every agency, instructing each to make himself and the facilities of his division available in the service of this constitutional convention. The doors of the executive office are open to you at any time.

All of us in state government stand ready to assist you. In our agencies you will find a fountainhead of sound counsel and information, experienced leadership, and capable acquaintanceship with current problems.

Many of the delegates seated here are embarking on their very first tour of elective office. You may find that the necessities of interaction in any deliberative body will test your ideals. You may find that the requirements of democratic action seem to counter singleminded purpose. To each of you, I would like to offer the encouragement that you need not surrender your individual goals if your efforts are toward the greatest public good.

If your work is to be fruitful, no cause can be greater than that of serving the public good. It transcends partisanship and it overpowers personal, sectional or any other special interest.

It is unnecessary to retell here the course of events which has brought this convention into being. Each of you is fully aware of the successive steps which were necessary antecedents to this auspicious occasion.

It is our common good fortune that Michigan is a great and growing state. This growth has been in numbers of people, in economic wealth, and in diversity of enterprise.

When our forefathers last convened more than half a century ago to write the constitution which has been our basic law since 1908, they met in an environment that was much different than today's. Agriculture was our dominant pursuit. Industry was insular. The mode of life was far less complex.

Although we have interspersed our constitution with frequent amendments since 1909, a great many of our citizens are now agreed that time has come to review the document in its entirety and to recast it, where deemed necessary, in terms more fitting to the last half of the twentieth century than to the first half.

The challenges you face in this task are manifold.

There is the difficult problem of government finance through taxation. There is urgent necessity for fresh guide lines to be laid down so that equitable and adequate funds can be raised in support of government endeavors at all levels.

Your tasks also will include reappraisal of all executive functions and the requirement that fulfillment of such responsibilities be flexible to meet changing conditions.

Review also must be made of the entire legislative process, from town hall meeting to state legislative assembly, to make it most responsive to democratic principles.

There is the challenge, also, to reevaluate our judicial fabric and to keep this all important machinery able to guarantee justice, to adjudicate injustice, and to temper government with wisdom and fairness.

Another of your heavy responsibilities will be review of our constitutional declaration of rights. As that part of our constitution that guarantees the civil and political integrity, the freedom and independence of our citizens, the bill of rights is the bedrock upon which all else in the constitution may be built.

These are but skeletal outlines of the tasks awaiting you. Into your hands the people of Michigan have entrusted much. Never before, perhaps, have so many pressing problems of constitutional government been imposed on a like body of delegates.

It is fitting at the opening of this constitutional convention to remind ourselves of the great political heritage that this meeting represents. You meet here as duly elected representatives of a free people to establish in free discussion and open debate an instrument of government by which this state shall rule itself and order its affairs.

As delegates to this convention, you are participants in a process which from the beginnings of this nation to this time has been the chief guarantee of our American liberties and the foundation of our system of government.

At the outset we must, I believe, remind ourselves of the importance of this convention. We must remind ourselves that we live in one of the few nations of the world in which men may meet to determine how they shall be governed, one of the few nations in which men may still exercise free choice over their own destinies.

The majority of the nations in our world—and I need not list them for you—live under governments which do not dare to trust their citizens with the authority which the voters of Michigan have given you. The greater part of the people who inhabit this earth live under political systems in which they have no voice, for whose future they have no responsibility, and in which a meeting such as this one is both unthinkable and impossible.

Thomas Jefferson once said that the great genius of the American system rested in the fact that it could modify its government "by assembling the wise men of the state instead of assembling armies", and his statement still rings true. Where else, beyond the iron curtain of Europe or the bamboo curtain of the Orient, could men and women meet as you do here, to decide how they shall be governed? What happens here then, I believe, has a larger relevance and a wider meaning than we may at first realize.

The idea of constitutional government lies at the heart of our way of life. The belief that men can gather in peace and good faith to establish a contract by which they rule themselves and those they represent, is a belief uniquely and distinctively our own. It is the most powerful of all political ideas, the most effective means of governing a free and independent people that any men have ever found.

We have fought great wars to protect this belief and millions of Americans have given their lives to guarantee that it will endure. For the constitutions of our American states are, as Woodrow Wilson once wrote, "living proofs to the world that men are human, reasoning creatures, capable of directing and ruling themselves by pledging their honor and faith to their ideals." The language of constitutions may change—as the needs of the people change—but the principle of constitutional government remains as the vital center of our political system.

This convention, therefore, bears a great responsibility. It is no doubt the heaviest political responsibility that most of you will ever be called upon to assume, for what you decide here will determine for many years how the people of Michigan will live, and what that manner of life shall be. I know that you will discharge your task with wisdom and statesmanship and I know that I speak for the people of the state in wishing you well.

Into your conscientious hands we now place our highest hopes. From your deliberations the people of Michigan will expect a document forthrightly reaffirming our faith in democracy, a document broad in vision, wise in words, clear in phrase; a constitution which will reflect the dedicated determination of the people to govern themselves with justice and equality.

I wish you all Godspeed in this great task.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Thank you very much, Governor Swainson, for those words which I think will give courage to the delegates for the task ahead.

Since we meet in the civic center, this beautiful building here in Lansing, it is only fitting and proper that we should hear from the mayor of this city, and let me say that in the beginning, when the preparatory commission first began its work and the question came up "How shall we find a place to work in?", the man who stepped forth and gave us the help we had to have at that point was the mayor of Lansing, Willard I. Bowerman. He will give you his greeting for the city of Lansing.

Mayor Bowerman.

MAYOR BOWERMAN: Governor Swainson, Governor Brucker, Justice Dethmers, Secretary Hare, members of the constitutional convention, and guests, on behalf of the people of the city of Lansing I extend to you our most cordial greetings and wishes for a very productive convention. The people of Lansing have anticipated this day since last April when the people of Michigan called for this convention.

About four months ago, I appointed a committee of outstanding citizens of Lansing to be known as the mayor's constitutional convention cooperation commission. It was designed to see that Lansing received the utmost consideration as the site for the convention and that the best facilities be available for the delegates to permit you to write the best constitutional draft possible and to make your stay in Lansing a most delightful one. The mayor's commission is a continuing one while you are in session and it is designed to administer to your every need. I might say that this afternoon the delegates and their wives are invited to a civic reception at the Jack Tar hotel at 4:00 o'clock. Further, when the delegates are very busy Wednesday afternoon, there is a tea at the Riverside Manor motel for the delegates' wives and, also for them, a style show at the J. W. Knapp company the following morning.

Since taking office last April, members of the city council and I have visited many cities throughout Michigan in search of information and ideas that will help Lansing become the second home town for every resident of the state of Michigan. Naturally, being delegates, you are pillars of your own community. Please do us a favor and visit my office and give us the benefit of your experiences on the local level.

I want to say again that I am delighted to greet you, many of whom are friends from my partisan days in the state legislature. If there is anything we can do to make your stay in Lansing a pleasant one, consider us at your service.

Thank you.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Thank you, Mayor Bowerman. Now we shall follow the statute, and I shall ask the secretary of the convention, Mr. Fred Chase, to read the certified list of the delegates elect.

TEMPORARY SECRETARY CHASE:

Michigan Department of State,
Lansing, October 2, 1961.

Constitutional Convention
Civic Center
Lansing, Michigan

Attached is a certified list of the delegates elect to the constitutional convention convening on October 3, 1961, as shown by the returns of the clerks of the several counties in this state, and now on file in this office.

Very respectfully,
James M. Hare,
Secretary of State.

TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS SHALL COME

I, James M. Hare, Secretary of State of the State of Michigan and Custodian of the Great Seal thereof, Do Hereby Certify that Attached hereto is a list of the delegates-elect to the Constitutional Convention for the year 1961, as shown by the returns from the clerks of the several counties in this State, now on file in this office.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the Great Seal of the State at the Capitol, in the City of Lansing, this 2nd day of October A.D. 1961.

[SEAL]

James M. Hare,
Secretary of State.

Mr. Chairman, 144 delegates elect, a quorum, are present. There are no absentees.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Thank you, Mr. Chase. The convention is well in order.

I should like to pause here to make one more introduction. We have invited all living former governors to be with us here. Two of them are out of the country; G. Mennen Williams is in Africa and Murray D. Van Wagoner is in Europe. One of them, Harry F. Kelly, is conducting business in the supreme court. But I do have the pleasure of recognizing the dean of Michigan governors, and the man who was once the youngest of Michigan governors, Mr. Wilber M. Brucker. Will you stand, Governor Brucker? Thank you very much.

We now come to that point where you must take your oath of office. You have before you on your desks an oath. After the oath has been administered, will you sign both copies, and at that time will you simply leave them on your desks and we will have the pages collect them?

Here today to swear you in, administer the oath, we have the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, John R. Dethmers.

Justice Dethmers, will you take over?

JUSTICE DETHMERS: The persons certified as elected to be the delegates to the Michigan constitutional convention will now please rise, raise your right hands, and take the constitutional oath of office qualifying you to be such delegates.

Do you solemnly swear that you will support the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Michigan, and that you will faithfully discharge the duties of the office of delegate to the constitutional convention according to the best of your abilities, so help you God?

DELEGATES ELECT (en masse): I do.

JUSTICE DETHMERS: You may be seated. Now, for the first time, you are the duly qualified delegates. As the secretary of state has indicated, there are before you 2 copies of the constitutional oath of office. Will you sign them both? They will be gathered, and thereafter I shall sign them to evidence your having taken that oath of office. Thereafter, that there may be a record of your having qualified as delegates, one copy will be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and the other, I understand, will be returned to you as a memento.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Thank you, Justice Dethmers.

Now we come to that part of the opening day ceremonies which is so meaningful, the election of a permanent president of this organization. I think those of you who have read the newspapers realize we have had some slight legal problems involved. The statutes setting up the constitutional convention, which were passed by the 1961 legislature, indicated that the vote for president should be by secret ballot. However, Paul Adams, the Attorney General of the State of Michigan, advises me that yours is an autonomous body, and that you can decide on the method of vote.

The Chair is ready at this point to entertain a motion. What is your pleasure?

Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: The delegate from Wayne, Miss Hart, and I join in offering a resolution which is on the secretary's desk and which the secretary will read and after its reading, I move its adoption.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Mr. Chase, will you read the resolution?

TEMPORARY SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Hart and Mr. Hutchinson offer

Resolution 1, Resolved by the constitutional convention,

That the election of the president and other officers to be elected by this convention shall be by roll call vote. Nominating speeches shall be limited to 5 minutes. As soon as all nominations have been made, the presiding officer shall declare the nominations closed and the temporary secretary shall call the roll of delegates arranged alphabetically according to surname. Each delegate shall state the candidate for whom he votes as his name is called. In the election of a secretary, the roll shall be called by the temporary parliamentarian. Seventy-three votes, being a majority of the delegates, shall be requisite for election. If no candidate receives such majority, succeeding ballots shall be cast in the same manner unless the convention shall otherwise direct.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Miss Hart.

MISS HART: Mr. Chairman, I second the motion.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Miss Hart seconds the motion. The delegates have heard the resolution. Is there any discussion? If not, will all those in favor of the resolution just read by the secretary of the convention respond by saying aye? Those opposed by responding nay? The ayes have it.

The resolution is adopted.

We shall proceed to the election of the president. The Chair is open for nominations for the office of permanent president of the constitutional convention. Is there a nominee?

Mr. Prettie.

MR. PRETTIE: Mr. Chairman, Governor Swainson, Governor Brucker, distinguished guests, my fellow delegates, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, and citizens of the state of Michigan everywhere, I rise to place before you the name of Stephen S. Nisbet, delegate from Fremont, Michigan, as a candidate for the office of president of this constitutional convention. I pray the indulgence of this audience in a few remarks dealing with the qualifications of this man for this high office.

Thousands of citizens know this man, but for those who do not, may I present a thumbnail biography? Mr. Nisbet is a native of Michigan and a veteran of world war I. His formal education includes a bachelor of arts degree from Alma College and a master's degree from the University of Michigan. In 1920, after his stint in the navy, he entered his chosen profession as an educator in the Fremont, Michigan, school system which he served for a quarter of a century and most of this time as its superintendent. He served 18 years on the state board of education of Michigan, and 12 years as its chairman. In this office he demonstrated his bipartisan approach to problems. He is no stranger to business either, having served 15 years as vice president of an industrial company in charge of public relations. He is versed in matters of finance with experience as a director and officer of a bank. His activities in community affairs have endeared him to his neighbors in western Michigan. He is a fine Christian gentleman.

Many delegates, in considering the qualifications required for the president of this august body, have felt that the one chosen to this office must have prestige, objectivity, fairness, ability, strength, leadership, nonpartisanship—or, perhaps better, bipartisanship. In the person of the 144 delegates seated here, chosen by the electors of this state, there reposes a tremendous reservoir of ability. Scores of men and women among us possess in high measure the qualifications I have mentioned but upon some one man there must repose the awesome responsibility of presiding over our deliberations.

I submit, fellow delegates, that no one among us possesses all of these requisites to a greater degree than does Mr. Nisbet. His selection will demonstrate at the very opening of this convention the ability of these delegates to think and to act on their own and with only the best interests of the people of the state of Michigan as their governing concern.

It has been pointed out that, after our work is done, it must still receive the approval of the people whom we represent. Mr. Nisbet has the time and the talent to inspire the voters of this state to an acceptance of the product of our labors. We have an opportunity to put a capstone on a lifetime of service to Michigan by honoring this man with the leadership of this convention.

Ladies and gentlemen, it has been my privilege and an honor to place in nomination as president of this convention, Michigan's native son and distinguished citizen, Stephen S. Nisbet.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Thank you, Mr. Prettie. Is there a second?

Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Elliott from the fifth District in Oakland. It is my extreme pleasure to support the nomination of Stephen S. Nisbet for president.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Thank you, sir.

Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. Chairman, James Farnsworth from Allegan county. I would like to second Mr. Prettie's nomination of Stephen Nisbet.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Thank you, sir. Mr. Farnsworth seconds the nomination.

Mr. Goebel.

MR. GOEBEL: Mr. Goebel of the sixteenth senatorial district of Grand Rapids. I am very proud to second the nomination of Stephen Nisbet for president of this convention.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Mr. Goebel seconds the nomination. Are there any other nominations?

Mr. Lundgren.

MR. LUNDGREN: Delegate Lundgren of the upper peninsula of Michigan. It is a pleasure to support the nomination of Mr. Nisbet.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Thank you very much, Mr. Lundgren. Are there any other nominations?

Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, in view of the fact that there are no other nominations, I move that the nominations be closed, that the rule of this convention be suspended requiring a roll call vote, and that the secretary be instructed to cast the unanimous ballot of this convention for the election of Stephen S. Nisbet as president of the convention.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Thank you, Mr. Martin

Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. Chairman, Delegate Marshall, twenty-first senatorial district, Wayne county. I am extremely pleased and happy at the demonstration of cooperation that has existed among the delegates here assembled in the preconvention discussions that we have had. I am also happy with the display of bipartisanship that has been existing, and I am sure that, if this spirit continues, we will draft a document that will be acceptable to the citizens of the state of Michigan, and that will move our great state forward in the twentieth century, and in that spirit I am happy at this time to second the motion made by Delegate Martin to suspend the rules and elect Stephen Nisbet president of the convention by acclamation. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Thank you, Delegate Marshall.

You have heard the motion. Is there any discussion? If there is no discussion, all delegates in favor of the motion as so stated, respond by saying aye. Those opposed, nay.

The motion prevails.

TEMPORARY SECRETARY CHASE: The temporary secretary is pleased to cast 143 votes of the delegates for Mr. Stephen S. Nisbet as president of the constitutional convention.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Gentlemen, we are not quite through yet.

Judge Pugsley, you have the floor.

MR. PUGSLEY: I wish to move at this time that a committee of 3 be appointed to escort Stephen S. Nisbet, president elect of this convention, to the platform.

CHAIRMAN HARE: I will ask for a second.

Mr. Beaman.

MR. BEAMAN: Mr. Chairman, Berry Beaman of the tenth senatorial district. I am very happy to second that motion.

CHAIRMAN HARE: Thank you, sir. You have heard the motion. Is there any discussion? If there is no discussion, will all the delegates in favor respond by saying aye? Opposed, nay.

The motion prevails and I shall appoint a 3 man committee to escort the president elect to the platform. I shall appoint Mr. John Hannah, Mr. James Pollock and Mr. Sidney Barthwell. Will you 3 delegates join with the president elect and escort him to the platform?

Gentlemen, will you come forward?

[Whereupon, president elect Nisbet was escorted to the platform by Messrs. John Hannah, Pollock and Barthwell.]

CHAIRMAN HARE: Stephen Nisbet of Fremont, the delegates assembled here have conferred high honor and great distinction on you, and as I transfer to you these 2 gavels, I am transferring the authority as president of this convention. It is with great pleasure that I make this transference. I am sure you will be a good president, and many good things will come out of this convention.

Steve Nisbet, I hereby make of you the new permanent President of the Constitutional Convention of 1961. I am sure the delegates here will want to hear from you immediately.

My congratulations.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Chairman Hare, Governor Swainson, Governor Brucker, Mr. Stoddard and members of your preparatory commission, members of the press, radio and television, delegates to this constitutional convention, ladies and gentlemen:

We, all of us, are fortunate to be citizens of our great state of Michigan, land of opportunity, with its great industry, its varied agriculture, its excellent natural resources, its resourceful and efficient people. Michigan through its history has climbed to leadership in our country. Time and again it has proved its right to this position by its achievements in cases of emergency, and in quieter times it is just as noble and constructive. Great in industry, in agriculture, in education, remembered for its achievements in this and other fields, Michigan, through the ability of its people, stands high in every category of our national life. Now, today, the delegates to this 1961 Constitutional Convention are accepting the challenge to an even greater stature in our state.

We have heard a lot about the mandates given the delegates to this convention. To me, there is only one mandate that has been given us, 144 delegates elected from 144 districts because the citizens of those districts said, "We believe you are the best to accomplish the big task before you, the construction of a firm, stable foundation for our state and local government." I think I hear them say,

> We expect and anticipate that you will be statesmen in your work, that you will consider the welfare of all Michigan, that you will put your state above personal ambitions, above sectional interests, above small or selfish motives, believing that if you will develop a constructive program for the welfare of Michigan, it will also serve all the other ends.

I think they expect us to do this as people of good will who will work together even though we know before we start that we will not and probably should not agree on every issue that needs to be discussed, with the expectance that we will do this in a spirit of good will and compromise, in a spirit that will engender confidence in the work that we do. And when we disagree, they expect us to do it, not in a spirit of personalities or bitterness, but in a spirit of constructive thinking, bringing to the fore all viewpoints on the various issues.

Delegates of this convention, I accept the honor accorded me to be your presiding officer. I accept it in a spirit of humility, knowing that only as I can lead you in this spirit of cooperation and constructive thinking can we accomplish our task.

I would like to express for you our appreciation to Governor Swainson, the legislature, the preparatory commission, and all of the people who worked with them, to Secretary Hare and his staff, to Mayor Bowerman and the city of Lansing, for their careful preparation made for this convention. It is going to enable us to get at our work with greater speed and efficiency. I would also like to express our appreciation to the members of the press, radio and television for what they have already done to acquaint the people of our state with the importance of this convention, and I am going to ask them for their further help and assistance, as they report our deliberations, to develop a feeling of confidence and hope in the minds of our citizens that our work will be beneficial to them and to our state. It is a great task and we need the help of everyone.

Tomorrow is the start of the world series. Many of us interested in baseball have watched with interest as Roger Maris endeavored to break the record of home runs made by the immortal Babe Ruth. He shook the pinnacle to its very foundation but the Babe's record still stands. In my own mind I don't know whether I regret that he did not break the record or that I hoped that he would. For, you see, in baseball Babe Ruth's record stands for more than 60 home runs. It stands for the Babe himself and for his contribution to his game, his work.

May I tell you a story? A little boy was born in the city of Baltimore. For many years he lived in the shadow of the orphanage where the Babe grew up. And because he had heard of the Babe and of his feats in baseball, he, too, wanted to be a baseball player. They had not many parks in the city of Baltimore at that time and they played their games in the street. One day this lad was struck by a truck, his leg was broken, and he probably would not be able to play baseball again. But still he loved the game—he dreamed of the game. The Babe even visited him on one occasion. He read everything he could about him. One night he dreamed that Babe Ruth came, and he said something like this to him:

> It's a team game, Jimmie, and it's ours. It's come out of the heart of America. That's why we are so hard to lick when the chips are down, because whenever we get into a jam, we play it like a team instead of every man for himself. A soldier or sailor or marine will back up his buddy because he has learned somewhere, on a sandlot or in some stadium, that a pitcher can pitch his heart out but you have got to go out and spear those liners or take those drives off the fence and then go out and get some runs or it doesn't do any good. Jimmie, it's like you are all brothers, or a family, working together.

So today we start as a family of 144 devoted, sincere, hard-working delegates. I am confident we will give every ounce of our ability to this work, but even that will not be sufficient. Will you pray with me to our heavenly Father for divine strength and guidance in our task?

Our kind, gracious, heavenly Father, we delegates to this convention come to Thee today in a spirit of humility, recognizing our inability to do this great work alone. We ask for divine guidance as we approach this task. We place ourselves in Thy hands. Give us ears that we may use them to hear Thy Word, and strength to direct our thoughts and energies so that out of this convention will come a document that will be of material assistance in building a greater state of Michigan and one that will be of mutual benefit to all its citizens. In a spirit of hope and optimism we ask that Thou wilt be with us every step of the way. We do this because we believe our greatest strength can come only from Thee. In our heavenly Father's name. Amen.

And now may we proceed with diligence and dedication to the work before us?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President—and may I, sir, add my personal pleasure to be the first of our delegates to so address you?—I have a resolution, a copy of which is at the desk of the temporary secretary, which will provide for the election of a permanent secretary to the convention, the adoption of which would in effect mean that other officers of the convention be deferred insofar as their election is concerned until permanent rules of the convention are adopted. Following the reading of this resolution by the temporary secretary, I move its adoption.

TEMPORARY SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Bentley offers Resolution 2, Resolved, That the convention proceed to the election of a secretary.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Shanahan to second the motion.

MR. SHANAHAN: Ed Shanahan of Charlevoix. I second the motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: You have heard the motion and its second. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor of the adoption of the resolution, please say aye. Opposed, nay.

The resolution is adopted.

The Chair recognizes, for the purpose of making a nomination, Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, and our guests, I place in nomination for the office of secretary of this convention, Fred I. Chase, for many years secretary of the senate of this state, and for one who has had the opportunity to serve in that august body for 8 years there can scarcely be a greater pleasure than to nominate Fred Chase.

Many of us in this convention might go quite a way, might be quite useful with just good intentions, a desire to be right, but there is one person in the convention who must be right, who must know the answers, and that person is the secretary.

Fred Chase started with an apprenticeship here in Michigan under the guidance of a very distinguished parliamentarian. He followed that with service in the house of representatives at Washington with no less a parliamentarian and leader than Nick Longworth as speaker of that house, came back here, and for some 26 years has been secretary of our senate. He knows the answers. His decisions are not only right, but they are quick. He moves the procedure forward rapidly. His voice, as you have just witnessed, is strong and clear. You can understand what he says. He has to be an administrator, too. We are going to have a very sizable staff in this convention. They will need to be guided and directed. He knows how. It is a privilege to present his name and we are fortunate that there is such a man available for us. I place in nomination Fred I. Chase.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Hubbs for the purpose of seconding the nomination.

MR. HUBBS: I second the nomination of Fred I. Chase.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Are there any other nominations for the office of secretary?

Mr. Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. President, Weldon Yeager, eighteenth senatorial district, Wayne county. Since there are no further nominations, I move that the nominations be closed, the rules be suspended, and the acting temporary secretary be directed to cast a unanimous ballot for Mr. Fred I. Chase as secretary of this convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. DeVries for the purpose of seconding the motion.

MR. DeVRIES: I second the motion made by Delegate Yeager.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Ladies and gentlemen, you have heard the motion and its support. All those in favor say aye. Opposed, nay.

The motion prevails.

TEMPORARY PARLIAMENTARIAN PHILLEO: The temporary acting secretary would like to cast the votes of the 144 delegates for Mr. Fred I. Chase as permanent secretary to the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Chase, you are our new secretary.

SECRETARY CHASE: All of my adult life, I have had the happy privilege of working with a group of winners. They had to be winners, or they didn't get there.

I served in the senate of Michigan for 8 years, and the house in Washington for 3, and, as has already been stated, a number of years here. I have been one man in Michigan recently with 36 bosses—34 senators, the lieutenant governor, and the little gal that accepted my invitation to become Mrs. Chase a number of years ago. Today you have paid me the greatest honor in my career of promoting and graduating me to a position where I now have 144 bosses. I just hope that I can meet your expectations and do the job in the way that you want it done. Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Chase. I think all 144 delegates now feel a little safer in their deliberations.

The Chair now recognizes Mr. Allen for the purpose of making a motion.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. President, in order that the convention may set up a permanent organization and rules, I have a resolution which I would like to offer. I shall read it.

Resolution 3, A resolution establishing a committee on permanent organization and rules.

Resolved, That a committee on permanent organization and rules be appointed by the president, to consist of 10 members of the majority and 5 members of the minority, with a request that the committee report as soon as practicable a proposed permanent organization and rules for the convention.

Mr. President, I move the adoption of the resolution.

PRESIDENT NISBET: You have heard the motion. I recognize Mr. Ford for the purpose of seconding the motion.

MR. FORD: William Ford, nineteenth representative district, Wayne county. I second the motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: You have heard the motion and support. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor of the resolution please say aye. Opposed, nay.

The resolution is adopted.

The Chair recognizes Mr. Danhof for the purpose of a resolution.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. President, while a great deal has been said here today, I think it is only fitting that a formal resolution be offered at this time to those persons who have contributed greatly to the opening of this convention. Therefore, I offer the following resolution:

Resolution 4, A resolution of thanks of the convention.

Whereas, It is obvious to all who are gathered here that considerable time, effort and expense have been put forth by various organizations and individuals, in order to insure the success of this constitutional convention; and

Whereas, The efforts of these organizations and individuals have contributed greatly to the personal comforts of each delegate; and

Whereas, Without the efforts of these organizations and individuals the convention would have been forced to expend considerable time and money in making preparatory arrangements; and

Whereas, The work of these various organizations and individuals has been officially completed and will be long remembered by the delegates to this convention; now therefore be it

Resolved, That this convention of constitutional delegates does hereby commend and extend its sincere appreciation to the following organizations and individuals:

The Honorable John B. Swainson, Governor of the State of Michigan, and his staff, for the foresight displayed in appointing the capable preparatory commission and the various committees of active and experienced citizens who have diligently reviewed the many facets of our government and whose reports will be of countless value to the delegates;

The Honorable James M. Hare, Secretary of State of the State of Michigan, and his staff, for the work they have done in preparing the facilities and in the preliminary organizational work that will enable us to proceed with the monumental task ahead;

To the Legislature of the State of Michigan for its cooperation and generous appropriation which will enable this convention to secure the necessary tools to adequately complete its task;

To the City of Lansing and its fine mayor, Willard I. Bowerman, for the generous hospitality and warm greeting which has been extended to the delegates of this convention;

To the civic center board and management and to the various labor organizations for the services rendered in preparation for this convention;

To the W. K. Kellogg foundation for its generous gift without which the outstanding work of the preparatory commission could not have been accomplished; and

To the constitutional convention preparatory commission, Mr. Howard J. Stoddard, its chairman, its members and its staff, for the outstanding work which the commission has performed in securing the physical facilities in which we are now meeting; the preparation and dissemination of vital information and for the excellent reports and studies which have been prepared in order to assist and guide this convention in its deliberations. The conduct of the preparatory commission, its members, and its staff have been of the highest caliber and have been beyond reproach and for this they are to be commended and congratulated.

I move the adoption of this resolution and request that the secretary of the convention be instructed to forward copies of the same to the appropriate organizations and persons. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mrs. Hatcher for the purpose of seconding the motion.

MRS. HATCHER: It is my honor and privilege to rise at this time to second the motion offered by the previous speaker.

PRESIDENT NISBET: You have heard the resolution and its support. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor of the resolution say aye. Opposed, nay.

The resolution is adopted.

Acting on your instructions to name a committee on permanent organization and rules, the president appoints the following people:

Richard Van Dusen
Edward Hutchinson
Miss Adelaide Hart
Alvin Bentley
Kent Lundgren
Peter Buback
Arthur Iverson
Mrs. Dorothy Judd
Richard Austin
John Martin
Glenn Allen
Melvin Nord
William Pellow
Robert Danhof
Miss Ann Donnelly

I am a little tempted to ask the committee to meet this afternoon to go to work but this is a special day, so will the committee please meet tomorrow morning at 9:00 o'clock in convention hall, and will you make every effort to have at least a partial report for our meeting tomorrow afternoon?

I would ask now for a motion to approve this committee.

Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: I so move.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is it supported?

A DELEGATE: Supported.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you. It is moved and supported that the committee appointments be approved. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

The Chair now recognizes Mr. Bonisteel.

MR. BONISTEEL: Mr. President, I offer the following resolution and move its adoption:

Resolution 5, Resolved, That when the convention adjourns today, it stand adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m. tomorrow, at which time it shall convene in constitution hall, civic center, Lansing, Michigan.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Upton.

MR. UPTON: It is a pleasure to second that motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: You have all heard the motion and its support. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The resolution is adopted.

May I have your attention for just a minute? May I read this announcement, please, from Mr. Starr Hull? Due to the short timing of the opening session, it is impossible to get sufficient drivers to complete the motorcade. This will not cause any change in plans of the civic reception which will be held in honor of Michigan constitutional convention delegates at the Jack Tar hotel at 4:00 p.m. as scheduled.

There is one more announcement.

SECRETARY CHASE: I have the following telephone call for Mr. Albert Forbes. Please call your home.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Do I have a motion to adjourn? Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: I move that we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Balcer.

MR. BALCER: I support that motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: It has been moved and seconded that we adjourn. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. We are adjourned.

[Whereupon, and in pursuance of the order previously made, at 1:30 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m. Wednesday, October 4, 1961.]

SECOND DAY

Wednesday, October 4, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order. The invocation will be given by the Reverend Charles Matthews, president of Great Lakes Bible College, Lansing.

REVEREND MATTHEWS: Our eternal God, we thank Thee for this day. We thank Thee for Thy interest in every phase of our activities including our government. We ask Thy blessings be upon this assembly in their deliberations that they may promote justice, mercy, peace and good will among all the citizens of this state. We ask it in the name of our Lord. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary.

SECRETARY CHASE: May I have your attention, please? This is the first for me, as it is for you, in the operation of this voting machine. Will every one present please vote yes on your voting machine. Is everyone registered? When you have all registered, we will lock the machine so it cannot be changed. Is everyone registered, please? All right. Push down the white button on these microphones when you wish recognition. When you have been recognized by the Chair, the green light will come on at your mike.

Roll call shows no absentees. A quorum is present, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Since we are still a little bit informal and learning to work the voting machine — you may take it from what I said yesterday that I am a little interested in athletics — the score happens to be 2 to nothing in favor of the Yankees at the present time; and that noise you heard is the Yankees rumbling, I am afraid.

The first order of business this afternoon is the report of the committee on permanent organization and rules, Mr. Van Dusen, chairman. Mr. Van Dusen, I wonder if you would come up here, please, and make your report?

Mr. Van Dusen is here now, to make his report.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, delegates, I apologize for being slightly out of breath. The committee on permanent organization and rules met until almost 1:00 o'clock, and the chairman has been readying its report since then.

Mr. President, the committee met this morning. All its members were present. It has a number of recommendations for this convention.

First, the committee recommends the adoption, as temporary rules of procedure, of Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

It is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The second recommendation of the committee on permanent organization is as follows: The committee recommends that the convention adopt, as the order of business for this second session of the convention, the proposed order of business which has been furnished to each delegate in writing and which I will now ask the secretary to read.

SECRETARY CHASE: The proposed order of business for the second session today:

1. The call to order
2. The invocation
3. Roll call
4. Report of the committee on permanent organization and rules in reference to
   - a—adoption of Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure

Previously concurred in. See above.

   - b—the proposed order of business
   - c—the permanent site of the convention
   - d—seating arrangement for delegates
   - e—the number and method of election of vice presidents
5. The election of vice presidents
6. Continuation of report of the committee on permanent organization and rules in regard to
   - f—establishment of standing committees
   - g—method of appointment of committees
   - h—method of selection of sergeant at arms
   - i—the continuation of temporary employees
   - j—the time of daily sessions
   - k—the date of the next session
7. Announcements, and
8. Adjournment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in recommendation b. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

It is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, now that we have adopted the proposed order of business, the next recommendation of the committee on permanent organization is item c under 4, which deals with the permanent site of the convention. The committee recommends that the permanent site of the convention be the city of Lansing, and that all general sessions of the convention and all committee meetings be held in constitution hall in the civic center in Lansing unless otherwise authorized by the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in recommendation c. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The next recommendation of the committee on permanent organization, Mr. President, deals with the seating arrangement for delegates. The committee recommends that the delegates be seated alphabetically in constitution hall, from left to right in row 1, from right to left in row 2, and so on until all delegates are seated.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in recommendation d. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

It is concurred in.

Mr. Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. President, I believe they are now left to right, and left to right. Is there a change intended?

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, in response to Mr. Brown's question, no change was intended. I had not realized that that was the current arrangement. We took it directly from the procedural manual. Mr. President, I would move that the recommendation be construed to adopt the present pattern of seating.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unless there is objection, it is so ordered.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, the next recommendation of the committee on permanent organization deals with the number of vice presidents and the method of their election. The committee recommends that there be 3 vice presidents of this convention, of whom 2 shall represent the majority party and 1 shall represent the minority party, said vice presidents to be elected in accordance with the procedure for the election of officers embodied in Resolution 1 which we adopted at the first session of this convention yesterday.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in recommendation e. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, this completes the portion of the report of the committee on permanent organization called for to the present point in the order of business and, if I may, I will retire to my seat for the moment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question now is on the nominations for and election of vice presidents.

Mr. Millard.

MR. MILLARD: Mr. President, it is my honor and privilege to place in nomination the 2 nominees for the majority party. I would like to present the names of Edward Hutchinson and George Romney as the nominees for those 2 positions.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there a second to the nomination?

Judge Dehnke.

MR. DEHNKE: It is my pleasure to second the nomination just made by Mr. Millard.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you.

Mr. Plank.

MR. PLANK: Mr. President, I would like to second the same nominations.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Norris.

MR. NORRIS: I should like to second the nomination of Mr. George Romney.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you.

Mr. Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Mr. President, I should like to second the nomination of Mr. Hutchinson.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you.

Miss McGowan.

MISS McGOWAN: It is my honor and privilege to nominate for vice president Mr. Tom Downs, delegate from Wayne county.

Because of the importance of this high office I ask your indulgence while I give you a sketch of Mr. Downs' background. He is an attorney and was graduated from the University of Michigan law school. He is a member of the Michigan employment security commission, having been appointed by the Honorable G. Mennen Williams and reappointed by the Honorable John Swainson. He served as a member of Governor Swainson's constitutional convention committee on the judiciary. He was an attorney for Michigan AFL-CIO. He is a member of the state bar committee on administrative law. He is a member of the Michigan united fund executive committee. He is past chairman of the missions and budget committee of the Michigan united fund. Mr. Downs is a man of integrity, ability and intelligence and has a genuine belief in the dignity of man. It is a real privilege for me to nominate Mr. Downs for vice president.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you. Is there a second to the nomination?

Mr. Iverson.

MR. IVERSON: It is my pleasure to second the nomination of Tom Downs.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you. Are there any other seconds?

Mr. McAllister.

MR. McALLISTER: If there are no other nominations, I should like to move that the nominations be closed and the entire vote of the convention be cast for the nominees.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The motion has been made by Mr. McAllister that the nominations be closed, the rules be suspended, and the secretary cast a unanimous ballot for Mr. Hutchinson, Mr. Romney and Mr. Downs for the vice presidents of this convention. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary is pleased to cast the unanimous ballot of this convention for the 3 vice presidents designated as nominated from the floor, 143 votes for each.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Downs, Mr. Hutchinson, and Mr. Romney are declared elected vice presidents of this convention.

Mr. Leppien.

MR. LEPPIEN: I believe we have 144 present.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Leppien, I might say I found out yesterday when I was elected by that same vote, that Mr. Chase was a very wise and understanding man and he kept me from voting for myself. I think that's how he got the 143 for the other delegates.

We have some time this afternoon, and I am sure you would like to see and hear briefly from our 3 vice presidents. Mr. Hutchinson, would you like to come up?

Ladies and gentlemen, Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Thank you, Mr. President. Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I accept your election as one of your vice presidents with a great deal of humility and appreciation and I assure you that my every effort in this convention will be to the end that a document will be produced which will win the approval of the people of Michigan and to that end I will serve in every detail and in any capacity the president chooses to assign to me. Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Downs, also elected vice president.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, fellow delegates, it is of course, a real honor and I hope as the convention continues history will show I have proven worthy of this splendid responsibility. I, too, am dedicated to working with the delegates and the people of the state of Michigan so we can develop a document that will improve conditions for all the people of the state. Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT NISBET: I am very happy to present to the convention the third vice president, Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I want to express my appreciation for this high honor and for the opportunity to participate in this historic convention. I hope that I can serve unstintingly in helping each delegate to play his full part in this effort.

We have a devout president. He is a God fearing man, and I think this is a good thing, and it could be a decisive factor in connection with this convention. I want him to know that he will have my full support and assistance in his desire to provide effective leadership for us in this great effort, and I just hope that when we finish up I can feel in my heart and my mind that I have done what I could to help us get a new constitution that is absolutely sound and also adequate, that will bless the people of this state, and be a pattern for the whole nation. Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Romney, Mr. Downs, and Mr. Hutchinson.

The next order of business is the continuance of the report of the committee on permanent organization and rules.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, the next item in the report of the committee on permanent organization and rules deals with the establishment of standing committees. The committee recommends the establishment of the following standing committees of this convention. First I will list 9 substantive committees and the number of members of each, recommended by this committee.

1. Committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections, 15 members.
2. Committee on legislative organization, 21 members.
3. Committee on legislative powers, 15 members.
4. Committee on executive branch, 21 members.
5. Committee on judicial branch, 21 members.
6. Committee on finance and taxation, 21 members.
7. Committee on local government, 27 members.
8. Committee on education, 21 members.
9. Committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule, 15 members.

These are the substantive committees recommended by the committee on permanent organization.

The committee on permanent organization also recommends 4 operational committees as standing committees of this convention.

10. Committee on style and drafting, 15 members.
11. Committee on administration, 15 members.
12. Committee on public information, 21 members.
13. Committee on rules and resolutions, 15 members.

Mr. President, the committee on permanent organization further recommends, with respect to the establishment of these committees, that each delegate, except the president, shall be appointed to at least 1 substantive committee and not more than 2 standing committees, that the membership of each committee be appointed so as to reflect as nearly as possible the percentage of representation of the political parties in the convention as a whole.

The committee makes a specific recommendation with respect to the function of the committee on administration for the reason that that committee should become operative as soon as possible. It is the recommendation of the committee on permanent organization that the committee on administration shall generally oversee the administrative and business affairs of the convention, including finances, personnel, printing, distribution of reports, physical arrangements for the convention, including the press and television and related matters. It shall also provide guidance to the secretary, sergeant at arms, and the director of research in the discharge of their duties.

Mr. President, that is the report and recommendation of the committee on permanent organization and rules with respect to the establishment of standing committees of this convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: You have heard the recommendation. Is there any discussion?

Mr. Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: Joe Snyder from the second representative district, Macomb. I rise on a point of procedure not only in reference to the committees we are about to act upon, but as a request to have the Chair outline to me a little bit more clearly the procedure to be used in laying out the chain of command on the various vice presidents that were selected by this convention.

I was very fortunate to have read the newspapers prior to attending the session today and I found that we were to have 3 vice presidents instead of the 2 proposed vice presidents. Two were nominated by one person, and the third was nominated by an additional person. It is not clear in my mind yet, and it is possibly not clear in the minds of some of the other delegates, what the priority or what the chain of command will be in these particular areas. There is also the question in my mind, have we by the creation of an additional vice president shelved temporarily, only for this particular office, the 2 to 1 ratio? Because obviously now we have a 3 to 1 ratio on the question of the top officers of this convention.

I feel also that while I am on my feet I should caution not only the officers of this convention but also the delegates assembled here that we must begin to more actively as delegates participate in some of the decisions that are brought upon us. I feel it is wonderful to have unanimity amongst the delegates up to a point but I feel that somewhere down the line we must discuss more thoroughly and more deliberately the matters we have before us. Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Snyder, I might comment briefly in response, and hope that it may be helpful to all of the delegates.

The functions of the 3 vice presidents are, in part, the subject of the next order of business, item 6-g, which deals with the method of appointment of committees, and that order of business will be the only place in the report of the committee on permanent organization in which the responsibilities of the vice presidents are touched upon today. It may be that in the consideration of additional rules of the convention which the committee will undertake in the succeeding days, these functions and responsibilities will be spelled out in more detail, but until this point it has been the feeling of the committee on permanent organization that we simply wish to propose for your adoption — and you have done so — 3 vice presidents of equal rank, and we will propose as a part of item 6-g this afternoon certain of the functions of these 3 vice presidents. That is as far as the committee on permanent organization is prepared to go at this time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there any other discussion? The question is on concurring in recommendation f. All those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: We now come to item g, the method of appointment of committees. I am grateful to the sergeant for having handed me the balance of my report. I had gotten a little ahead of it. The recommendation of the committee on permanent organization with respect to the appointment of the standing committees and committees generally is as follows: The committee recommends that the president, after consultation with the vice presidents, shall nominate for convention approval the membership of all committees except where the convention shall otherwise order. This is the recommendation of the committee, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in recommendation g. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The next item in the report of the committee on permanent organization deals with the method of selection of a sergeant at arms and it is the recommendation of the committee on permanent organization that the sergeant at arms be appointed by the president.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in recommendation h. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, the next recommendation of the committee on permanent organization deals with the temporary staff of the convention. Obviously, we have had no opportunity to make recommendations with respect to permanent staff, nor would we attempt to do so for that would in some measure usurp the function of the committee on administration which must now begin to function. However, it seemed appropriate, and the committee recommends, that such temporary employees as may have been employed for the convention continue as convention employees until replaced by permanent employees.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in recommendation i. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye.

Mr. Kelsey.

MR. KELSEY: Kelsey from the first representative district, Macomb county. I would support the recommendation. However, I would like some explanation as to what "until" means. I would like to have the word "until" clarified.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Kelsey, I would imagine that as soon as the committee on administration has been appointed, it will begin to deal with the question of the number of employees and the designation of their functions and will make recommendations to the convention with respect to those matters; and upon the adoption of those recommendations by this convention, we will have reached the point of 'until".

MR. KELSEY: Mr. President, I would certainly like to amend that recommendation to some degree at least, so that we have some period indicated here in terms of days or maybe weeks.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Tom Downs of the fourth district, Wayne. I believe that the motion as passed, as the chairman of the committee said, will provide that there will be a transition just as fast and reasonable as possible. I think certainly it has taken imagination by the secretary of state and others to go ahead. Now the speed of that will depend upon how fast the committee on administration functions. I think, since the chairman has indicated and the practice through the present has been that these have been appointed on a responsible bipartisan basis, that we as a convention have every right to feel that this committee will operate just as fast as is reasonable. If it would turn out to be unreasonable I would then be among the first to raise the question of "until", but I think as a matter of good faith we should give this committee, which has not even yet been appointed, a reasonable chance to satisfy the meaning of the word "until". Thank you.

MR. KELSEY: Mr. President, I will accept in part this reasoning. However, I would like to see this recommendation again become the property — suppose that in a 30 day period if we couldn't reach some agreement on employees, it would again become the property of the convention. Thank you very kindly.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in recommendation i. Any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, the committee on permanent organization has been mindful of the fact that the delegates have up to now been working on a day to day schedule, and have had very little opportunity to plan their own affairs. Therefore, the committee on permanent organization has 2 recommendations, one dealing with the immediate scheduling of our functions, and the other dealing with the general scheduling of our functions.

The general recommendation comes first, and it is item 6-j in your order of business, "Time of daily sessions". The committee recommends that sessions of this convention be held at 8:00 p.m. on Mondays; at 2:00 p.m. on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays; and at 10:00 a.m. on Fridays. This is the recommendation of the committee on permanent organization, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: Mr. President, thank you for permitting me to present my point of view on what I feel is probably the most important decision that we as delegates have at this particular time had the opportunity to act upon. Certainly, when I spoke of deliberation in my previous remarks, I can only reemphasize the importance that scheduling will mean to this convention. I am very disappointed that I am asked at this particular time, without any prior knowledge, to commit myself, along with 143 other delegates, to an irrevocable schedule. I certainly had hoped that a point as important as this one would have been presented in advance so that we could have discussed this matter much more intelligently than a simple yes or no vote.

I know there are many at this delegation who have indicated a desire to meet in places other than this very fine installation. I think the circumstances are such, however, that we had to accept these fine facilities.

I believe that, in consideration of some of the sacrifices made by the other delegates, the matter of scheduling should have been one of advance notice. I feel that the Monday night scheduling for 8:00 o'clock is a very unwise one because it would simply mean that we would come in here, probably answer roll, there would be not too much opportunity to do any constructive work. I have discussed this matter with many other delegates, and many here feel it would be unwise to schedule for 8:00 o'clock Monday. Personally, I speak against this motion and I hope that other delegates will also present their point of view on this important matter.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I am inclined, although a member of the committee on permanent organization and rules, to agree somewhat with the gentleman who has just spoken. I thing it might be helpful if the chairman of our committee would indicate whether these weekdays are fixed and arbitrary times of meeting or only whether, if we decide to meet on a particular weekday, the hour of meeting would be so fixed.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President and Mr. Bentley, the understanding which the chairman has of the purport of the rule is that unless otherwise ordered by this convention, the convention will meet in session at the times indicated.

It is, of course, within the prerogative of the convention to order otherwise with respect to any given day or series of days, and in response to Mr. Snyder's point I would suggest that it is entirely possible that the convention may order otherwise with respect to certain days, particularly in the early sessions of the convention. I would point out, however, with respect, for example, to next Monday night, that it is entirely possible — as a matter of fact, we fully expect to be able to do so — that the committee on permanent organization and rules will have for the consideration of the convention a set of permanent rules.

It is entirely possible that the committee on administration may have recommendations with respect to the staffing of the convention which can be presented at that time.

And it appeared to the committee on permanent organization that it was desirable that from the outset the delegates have some reasonable understanding of the times at which they might be expected to be here for convention sessions unless a majority of the delegates chose to do otherwise with respect to any given session or series of sessions.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Nord of the sixth senatorial district. I would like to speak generally in support of the recommendation with one amendment which I will offer in a moment. The intention of the committee was, as pointed out by the chairman now, to set up this schedule simply as a tentative understanding so that people will know when they are expected to be required to be here. It was not intended to be a rigid schedule, and I think I would move to amend the recommendation to make that point clear by adding, after the word "follows" a comma and "except as otherwise ordered by the convention".

PRESIDENT NISBET: You have heard the motion. Is there further discussion?

Mr. Habermehl of Alpena.

MR. HABERMEHL: In consideration of the number of delegates that have quite a distance to go in attendance, including myself, I would move an amendment to the committee report that the requirement for the Monday evening session be eliminated from the committee report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment of Mr. Nord that the recommendation of the committee be accepted with the addition "except as otherwise ordered by the convention". Is there any further discussion on that amendment?

Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, may I just offer a word of explanation on the discussion within the committee?

It was the feeling of the committee that this convention has a responsibility to work as far as we are able to find work to do — and we think we will find plenty — some 5 days a week, and the provision for a meeting on Monday night would give most of the delegates an opportunity to have a good share of Monday to do various matters at home, and to come down. I realize this is not entirely convenient for those who live perhaps as far away as the upper peninsula. Then it would give us, too, 3 full days of work in which the convention sessions would begin at 2:00 o'clock, but the mornings would be presumably filled with committee sessions. And the evenings could — since we are going to be here and ought to be working — be used for either committee sessions or hearings.

If we were to follow the legislative practice in the early stages, it might be entirely possible then to terminate our work on Thursday evening, although in the latter stages — if things happen about as they do in the legislature — work will begin to pile up and we will find ourselves needing to work on Friday, and perhaps all day Friday. But the thinking behind the proposal was to give you as full a day as we could on Monday and at least a portion of Friday, and all of the week end.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you.

Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry to clarify the situation. The vote comes first on the Nord amendment and then on the Habermehl amendment following?

PRESIDENT NISBET: That is right. The question is on the Nord amendment. Is there any further discussion?

Mr. Richards.

MR. L. W. RICHARDS: Les Richards from the upper peninsula, the Marquette district. Certainly I am one from the upper peninsula who will be traveling a long way. But one thing would disturb me, if I didn't feel my obligations first would be to my duties here at the convention, and certainly I don't think any of us would want to be spending too much time at home, as much as we like our home and so forth. Our duties are here, and if there is an 8:00 o'clock meeting Monday evening I certainly will be here to attend. But I think, as the gentleman spoke first, that to set up this regular schedule immediately, to find out what is going to be most efficient in effect would be difficult this first week, and certainly as we proceed I think we should then determine what our requirements are for meetings and length of time and so forth. I think all of our obligations will be filled.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you very much. The question is on the amendment. Any further discussion? If not, all in favor please vote aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

The question is now on Mr. Habermehl's amendment. Your amendment, Mr. Habermehl, was that the Monday night sessions be eliminated? Is there any discussion?

Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I would like to call this matter to the attention of the convention. If we eliminate Monday night sessions, the tendency will grow not to come in until Tuesday night. I think that we must have these Monday night sessions in order that everybody will be aware of the fact that by Tuesday morning committees will be meeting.

Now, it is obvious that right at the start perhaps there will not be a necessity for a Monday night session, but we must have these regular general sessions of the convention because it is necessary to have the opportunity to introduce proposals. Unless proposals are introduced in what I guess we would call plenary sessions, nothing much can get started. It seems to me that we, all of us, accepted this duty as members of this convention with the realization that for the next 5 or 6 months this is going to be practically a full time job, and I am sure that the people expect us to work 5 days a week.

I also agree with Mr. Martin that it is part of our job and essential that we spend part of our time in districts because we have to be available there. On the other hand, the work of the convention can actually only proceed with the speed that we are ready to proceed on this floor, and consequently I am of the opinion that the recommendations of the committee are right, that there should be 5 sessions a week unless otherwise ordered by the convention, and I must respectfully oppose the Habermehl amendment now being considered for the reason that I feel that in the end result we might find ourselves working only 4 days a week, or perhaps only 3.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. President, I would like to remind the delegates that we are costing the taxpayers $144,000 a month just for our salaries.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you. Is there any further discussion?

Mr. Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: Again I would like to point out that my motivation was not to try to avoid any work. In fact, if we want to work, let's start working Monday morning. I don't think that any of the delegates have a corner on a desire to work for the taxpayer. This we all want to do. My question was this: can we accomplish anything by a mere roll call on Monday night? I did not say we should eliminate the Monday sessions. I said we ought to revise these hours. If necessary, revise them upwards to start working Monday morning. If there is work to be done, let's do it. But let's face the facts and not have a device to meet on Monday nights for the purpose of roll call and then not do any work. If you want to meet Monday morning, that's fine with me.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment.

Miss Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: I believe that it should be established in the minds of most of the delegates now that the rules committee expects to come forward with work to be acted upon next Monday night. Probably the committee on administration also will have work for us to do. I do not believe we will be just calling the roll. Likewise the other committees, having been established, will probably the next Monday night have many things for this group to act upon, and to think we are going to sit here on a Monday night and do nothing but call the roll, I think, is unimaginative.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you.

Mr. Habermehl.

MR. HABERMEHL: I don't believe that in the minds of most of the delegates there is any attempt here to avoid one day's labor. I think a very important part of the work of any delegate, as has been mentioned, is going to be in his own district. We have to stop, then, to consider in our own district what meetings we might be able to attend, and still fit the convention schedule. If we are going to work Fridays and we hope to attend any meetings at all, about the only night available for attending such meetings — and communication with the people in our district is a most important part of our job — would be a Monday evening, assuming an evening meeting. That would be impossible in the case of many of the delegates and still permit them to arrive here for an 8:00 o'clock session of this convention.

It seems we must allow some time, if we are going to carry out this duty of communicating with the people of our districts, in order to do that part of our job. That, I believe, is the motivation for most of us who feel that the Monday night session ought to be eliminated and whatever might be accomplished there could well be taken care of early Tuesday morning.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment. Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: I want to speak against the Habermehl amendment. I don't agree with the statements that we would have merely a roll call on Monday night. I do agree with the statements made by Mr. Hutchinson that if we should eliminate the Monday night session, we no doubt then would have some people maybe considering convening on Tuesday night. Now, insofar as this problem of getting back to the district and reporting to the people there that was raised here, there are very few meetings on Monday night in the district. Most of these reports and these types of meetings will have to be made on the week ends when we are not in session; and as time and the convention proceeds and we get down to the work of drafting the document where committees are meeting and holding hearings, there will be committee reports that can be made on Monday nights. Some of our committees will be meeting on Monday. Some will be meeting on Friday afternoon. So I want to speak against the Habermehl amendment, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the Habermehl amendment. Is there any further discussion? If not, all those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The Habermehl amendment is not adopted.

The question is on concurring in recommendation j, as amended. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in, as amended.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Now, Mr. President, the committee on permanent organization has one further recommendation. That is, that when the convention adjourns today, it stand adjourned until Monday, October 9, at 8:00 p.m.

PRESIDENT NISBET: You have heard the recommendation. The question is on concurring in recommendation k. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, that concludes the report of the committee on permanent organization and rules.

I would like having the opportunity to speak to you from this rostrum to tell you that this committee is one which has addressed itself most diligently and carefully to a difficult task, and I think has accomplished in a very brief time a great deal which will contribute to the structuring and activity and function of this convention. I would like to compliment each and every member of that committee, and thank them for their attention to the work.

I would like to announce that the committee will meet again at 9:00 o'clock tomorrow morning in committee room G in constitution hall, and that any member of the body wishing to present recommendations dealing with the permanent rules of the convention should present himself at that time ready to be heard.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Van Dusen.

I would like to make an announcement or two before Mr. Chase does.

I appreciate, Mr. Snyder and Mr. Kelsey, your concern about the opportunity for debate and discussion in this convention. I appreciate that in the question of organization we may have to move a little rapidly but we are desiring to get our organization perfected so that we can actually get down to work.

I have asked Mr. Chase, if he will, next Monday night to give us a little presentation of operation. I appreciate that when Mr. Chase has taken charge of the senate when they meet on January 1, he probably has 4 or 6 new senators, and they sit back and listen for a few moments, and pretty soon — in a day or two, or a week — they learn procedure. But we are 144 people who don't know very much about procedure, and I know some of you are concerned with "how do you get proposals before the convention — how are they acted on — what's the procedure — what is the method", and just so that we will have a greater understanding on that, I have asked Mr. Chase if he won't give some description of that next Monday evening.

Furthermore, as Mr. Van Dusen has said, the committee on permanent organization and rules will meet tomorrow and Friday to continue their work so that they will have a report for Monday night. I hope, and I might say that if Mr. Downs and Mr. Romney and Mr. Hutchinson will meet with me in the president's office tomorrow morning at 8:30, we will start on some of our activities, too.

In the meantime, I hope that the delegates who go home for the week end will spend the next couple of days going through this material that was presented to them. It is very voluminous, but it is very important. You are not going home, I hope, to take a vacation — we haven't worked that long yet — but you are going home to prepare yourself in better shape for your work here at the convention which is very important.

Now Mr. Chase has some announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The President has caused to be placed on your desks this sheet, at the head of which is your name. Will you please put in there following that, some background data similar to what you put in the directory of delegates? Some of you put nothing in there. The president and vice presidents, when they meet in committee to select committee members, would like to have some knowledge of your background of experience and things you are interested in, to be of assistance to them in making committee assignments.

You will find, following that, the list of the 13 committees that have been set up, and at the bottom of the page a place for you to list your committee requests, the committees to which you would like to be assigned. Please list as number one the committee on which first you would like to serve, and so on. Turn that in either to the president's office or secretary's office today. Miss Hart has requested, and I think this is a good idea, that you make these out in duplicate. This will be of assistance to the committee so that instead of only 1 copy they will have 2. So will you please make these in duplicate and turn them in in that form, and if you don't have enough copies we will get more.

Another announcement. The gentlemen who have installed the voting machine have announced that they will be happy to remain here for a while this afternoon, and any questions you have about how the voting machine operates, if you want to try this out and ask some questions, they will be very happy to explain, demonstrate, and answer your questions.

Mr. Apol tells us that the mail room is across the hall, and in there you will find in the appropriate box for you any and all mail that has been received. It will be available from day to day as we get it from the post office.

The pages will be seated at the back of the room. We haven't had too much occasion to use them as yet but as time goes by we will. When you need to call for a page, if you will stand and turn in that direction and get their attention and give them a "come hither" signal of some kind, they will be at your service.

One other announcement. A number of you have had these name clips break. The people who made them are disappointed and unhappy about it and they have asked that you leave the broken ones in the top drawer of your desks and they will see to it that one that is good is here for your use when you come back and it will be a good one.

I have one or two other brief announcements. Secretary of State Hare has provided and there is at your desks this information in regard to the delegates: the alphabetical list, the seating chart, and the parking lot allotment. And from the constitutional convention preparatory commission there is this material. Mr. Tilden V. Mason, on behalf of the citizens research council, has placed in the lower drawer of your desk the publication, A Comparative Analysis of the Michigan Constitution. Any delegate who wishes an additional copy for his personal use may secure it by calling the Lansing office of the research council. The telephone number is Ivanhoe 9-0717.

One other request. I believe that everyone is planning on going home over the week end so that it will not be necessary for police protection in the parking lot. Unless there is some contrary request, we shall so advise the Lansing police department so the officers may not be required to be on duty over the week end.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: In regard to rules, I would like to offer this suggestion, if it is feasible. Hereafter, when we are voting on an amendment to the amendment to the amendment to the motion and therefore down the line, that before we vote on the motion, that the motion be read again. If that is feasible, I would like to make a motion to that effect.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Sharpe. Instead of voting on it, if you don't mind, that will be taken care of from the Chair. If I should happen to overlook it, will you please let me know about it?

Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Robert Hodges from the first district, Wayne. Mr. President, I would move that a copy of Mason's rules be provided to every delegate if that is not already taken care of or provided for.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The secretary informs me, Mr. Hodges, that they are not available at the present time. Whether they can be made available, I do not know. The secretary informs me that there are several copies in the library.

MR. HODGES: I think it would be much wiser if this convention provide each delegate with a copy of the rules, if possible. Is it the understanding that they are out of print?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Chase will talk to that point.

SECRETARY CHASE: At the present moment the volume is out of print. I am sure we can secure several copies. It will take a little while to do it. We will be glad to have them made available, but may I suggest this? Very shortly your permanent rules will have been adopted and they will cover most cases, and they will provide that in the case where these rules do not cover a parliamentary situation this volume shall govern. So the volumes we will be able to get, I am sure, will take care of anything in the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Hodges, for the suggestion. We will get as many more copies as we can.

Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. President, I think our own personal preferences as to what committee or committees we would like to be on is of great importance, not only to the result of the convention but to our own feeling of being able to work in those areas where we feel the greatest aptitude.

The titles of these 9 substantive committees are very general. I, personally, do not feel that I could intelligently state a preference in order, as requested on this sheet today, from 1 through 4. I realize the need for getting organized and getting the committees appointed as soon as possible. Therefore I would request that a member of, or members of the committee which proposed these 9 substantive committees speak to just what subject matters these committees would include. They are, in my way of thinking, too generally stated for many of us to make up our minds.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen, do you want to speak on this?

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, it was the feeling of the committee that the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections would deal with the bill of rights, with the questions of suffrage and franchise, with matters relating to the holding and conduct of elections. I think that's reasonably descriptive.

It is the intention of the committee that the committee on legislative organization would deal with the problems of apportionment, with problems of the internal organization of both houses of the legislature.

The committee on legislative powers would deal with all of those powers of the legislature not otherwise covered in specific substantive committees such as finance and taxation, local government, education, or such matters as might be assigned to the committee on miscellaneous provisions.

The committee on the executive branch I think needs no particular explanation, nor does the committee on the judicial branch or the committee on finance and taxation.

The committee on local government was made a large one because it is likely to be broken into subcommittees dealing with various units of local government.

The committee on education I think is reasonably descriptive.

The committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule may deserve some explanation. The scheduling function of this committee will be in all likelihood an extremely important one, for it will provide for the orderly transition from the present constitution to the new constitution, making provision for the applicability of statutes enacted under the present constitution until such time as they might be amended under the new constitution, and so forth. Miscellaneous provisions might include, for example, such subjects as eminent domain, the militia, corporations, many of which are dealt with in some detail in the present constitution and would have to be referred to some substantive committee of this convention.

If there are specific questions relating to matters which might be subjects of concern to specific committees, I will be glad to try to answer them, as I am sure would other members of the committee on permanent organization, but I hope that that explanation may suffice.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there any other discussion?

Mr. Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: Mr. Mahinske from the seventh district, Wayne. In relation to Mr. Hodges' comment on Mason's rules, they are available through Doubleday and Doran, if you want to buy your own or if the convention wants to allocate these books to us. I think it is necessary that we do have them. I realize there is going to be a catchall clause in our own permanent rules that where these rules do not cover situations, Mason's will govern. I don't think we are going to be in a position to go to the state library and draw out one of these when a question arises on the floor. I feel that it is important that we all have our own manual on the legislative procedure provided by Mason right here on the spot to use at any particular time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you very much, Mr. Mahinske. Mr. Chase will be glad to contact them. Will you give him your source after the session? Any other questions?

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Some of the members of the committee on permanent organization and rules have indicated that they might wish to consider meeting briefly further this afternoon. I can tell them they are going to wear out their chairman but I am glad to suggest that if the members of the committee on permanent organization and rules would meet with me here in this corner of the hall following the session of today, we will consider the question of whether we should have a further meeting this afternoon.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you. Anything further?

Mr. Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: I move that this body adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion. All those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. The session is adjourned until Monday night at 8:00 p.m.

[Whereupon, and in pursuance of the order previously made, at 3:10 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 8:00 o'clock p.m. Monday, October 9, 1961.]

THIRD DAY

Monday, October 9, 1961, 8:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order. The invocation will be given by the Reverend William S. Hill, Rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Lansing.

REVEREND HILL: Let us pray. O God, the fountain of wisdom, whose statutes are good and gracious and whose law is truth, we beseech Thee so to guide and bless the convention assembled to draw up a constitution for our state, that it may ordain for our governance only such things as please Thee, to the glory of Thy name and the welfare of Thy people; through Jesus Christ, Thy Son, our Lord. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary.

SECRETARY CHASE: Will those present please vote aye? Has everyone voted?

There is a quorum present, Mr. President.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received a request that Mr. Heideman be excused, and Mr. John E. McCauley wishes an excuse because of illness in his family.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Heideman and McCauley.

Absent without leave: Messrs. G. E. Brown, Dade, Norris and Suzore.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the delegates are excused.

[During the proceedings the following delegates entered the chamber and took their seats: Messrs. G. E. Brown and Dade.]

We will now listen to an announcement by the secretary.

SECRETARY CHASE: On your desk you will find, on a letterhead from the senate, a letter to the delegates of the constitutional convention together with the W-2 form to be filled in by each delegate. Please do this at this time. The convention will be at ease until they are completed.

Please show your name exactly as it is shown in your social security records; your social security number; number 5 is your street address; number 6 is the date of your birth; number 7, the number of exemptions you wish to declare for income tax purposes; and 8, please do not fail to sign the card in the same manner as your social security records. We need them by tomorrow morning. If you will, please fill them out now, sign the letter, and list the city of your residence and the mileage one way.

When this is completed, the sergeants and the pages will pick up the letters and cards and we will be able to take care of the pay roll and the mileage vouchers.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will be at ease while you are doing your home work. Will the sergeant at arms pick up the letters and the cards as they are finished?

SECRETARY CHASE: From the report made by the sergeant at arms, it seems the biggest difficulty is lack of the social security numbers. For those who do not have your cards with you, if you will fill that card in, bring it in the first thing tomorrow morning, and turn it in to the secretary's office, that will take care of it. For the rest of those who have them ready, will you please turn them over to the sergeant at arms for collection at this time?

PRESIDENT NISBET: We will now have a report of the committee on permanent organization and rules.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, fellow delegates, the committee on permanent organization and rules has a number of recommendations for the convention this evening. The first are a series of somewhat miscellaneous recommendations which are nevertheless important to the basic organization of the convention. You will note that they follow in each case the recommendations of the preparatory commission.

The first recommendation deals with the execution of official documents of the convention. The committee recommends as follows:

1. That the president, where required, and the secretary, under the direction of the president, be authorized to execute and certify all acts of the convention.

2. That the secretary be authorized to execute and certify all vouchers for payment of expenditures pursuant to authorization by the convention for such expenditures.

Mr. President, I move concurrence in the recommendation.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I should state to the delegates that, with respect to these first 6 recommendations, you do not have copies simply because we were unable to get them prepared in time for your consideration. If there are any questions, I will be glad to read them the second time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Inasmuch as this is the first one to be read and as you do not have a copy of it so that you do not know what they will be, Mr. Van Dusen, would you read them again, please?

MR. VAN DUSEN: 1. That the president, where required, and the secretary, under the direction of the president, be authorized to execute and certify all acts of the convention.

2. That the secretary be authorized to execute and certify all vouchers for payment of expenditures pursuant to authorization by the convention for such expenditures.

I think if you will look in your manuals prepared by the preparatory commission on page 17, you will find that recommendation as item 3.

PRESIDENT NISBET: You have heard the recommendation. The question is on the recommendation. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The second recommendation, Mr. President, deals with the daily journal of the convention. This recommendation you will also find in your preparatory commission manual. I believe this is also on page 17.

The recommendation is as follows:

That not to exceed 6,000 copies of the journal be duplicated in a manner to be prescribed by the secretary after consultation with the committee on administration and distributed to each delegate and to such other persons requested by each delegate not to exceed 25 each and to such other persons designated by the secretary, the president, or the committee on administration. Distribution of the journal to delegates shall be accomplished by 10:00 a.m. on the day following the adjournment of the session.

Mr. President, I might explain the recommendation of the committee in this respect. If each delegate is permitted 25 copies for mailing to persons in his district such as schools, libraries, and interested groups, this would be 3,600 copies. For the use of the delegates and staff, some 250 copies daily would be required. The experience of the legislature in general mailing of the journal indicates that perhaps 900 copies might be needed immediately for coverage of their mailing list. This once again includes libraries, bar associations, government officials, and so forth. This totals 4,750 copies.

It was the feeling of the committee that we should allow some reasonable cushion because of considerable interest in the proceedings of this convention, and therefore it is our recommendation that not to exceed 6,000 copies of the journal be printed. Needless to say, if that number is not required, the secretary will not provide for the duplication of that many.

I move the adoption of this recommendation, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, the third recommendation of the committee deals with the printing and distribution of a handbook. The recommendation is as follows:

That the secretary be directed to prepare and print 5,000 copies of a convention handbook containing the names of the delegates, their addresses, the committees, the rules of the convention, and such other information as the committee on administration deems appropriate. Twenty-five copies shall be given to each delegate and a copy shall be given to such other persons designated by the secretary, the president, or the committee on administration.

Now, in explanation of this recommendation, I believe many of you are familiar with the handbook of the legislature which lists the names and address of the members of the 2 houses, includes the Constitution of the State of Michigan, the rules of both houses of the legislature and the joint rules, and other information helpful to members of that body and to persons having business with it. A similar handbook was prepared in connection with the 1907 Constitutional Convention and was found to be most useful. Here again, we recommend that 25 copies of the handbook be made available to each delegate for his own use and for use of persons in his district who might be interested. It is felt that this would leave some 1,400 copies available for general distribution.

Mr. President, I move the adoption of this recommendation.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, the next recommendation of the committee on permanent organization deals with stationery and supplies. You will find this once again in your preparatory commission manual. The recommendation is as follows:

That the secretary be directed to print stationery for the delegates, showing the name of the delegate as a delegate to the 1961 Michigan Constitutional Convention in a style approved by the secretary, and to furnish each delegate with 1,000 sheets and envelopes. Additional stationery and envelopes shall be furnished on approval of the committee on administration.

That the secretary be also directed to print stationery for each of the officers of the convention in a style approved by the secretary, showing the name of the officer, and to keep such officer supplied with stationery and envelopes.

Here again the amount of stationery to be initially supplied to each delegate is based to some extent on the experience of members of the legislature who typically sit for periods equivalent to that that we may be expected to devote to our work. It is going to be necessary, obviously, for all of us to handle a fair volume of correspondence. The recommendation is that made by the preparatory commission and the committee felt it to be a reasonable one.

Mr. President, I move the adoption of the recommendation.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor vote aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, the next recommendation of the committee on permanent organization deals with the function of the committee on rules and resolutions. You will recall at our last session the committee made recommendations with respect to 13 committees. With respect to one of these committees, we made a recommendation, which you adopted, spelling out the functions of the committee on administration. This was necessary at that time because the committee on administration was required to become imminently active. The committee now feels that it is desirable to spell out the functions of 2 of the additional operational committees. The first of these is the committee on rules and resolutions. The recommendation is as follows:

That the committee on rules and resolutions shall consider and report upon changes in the rules and organization of the convention. It shall also consider all resolutions and other matters not germane to the work of other committees and make such recommendations as it deems necessary for action thereon.

Mr. President, I move the adoption of the recommendation.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The next recommendation, Mr. President, deals with the function of the committee on style and drafting. The recommendation is as follows:

The committee on style and drafting shall examine and edit all proposals for inclusion in the constitution which are referred to it for the purposes of avoiding inaccuracies, repetition, inconsistencies, or poor drafting and shall consider and make recommendations on any differences, conflicts, or unresolved matters of substance. The committee shall have the authority to rephrase or to regroup proposed language or sections of the proposed constitution but shall have no authority to change the sense or purpose of any proposal referred to it. The committee shall also be empowered to recommend referral of proposals submitted to it to any committee which may have an interest in the proposal. Where a proposal has been already acted upon favorably by the convention at second reading, the committee shall undertake to resolve any inconsistency or conflict in conference with the substantive committee concerned. If the committee on style and drafting shall fail to resolve any such inconsistency or conflict, it shall notify the convention and await its instructions.

Mr. President, I move the adoption of the recommendation.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor vote aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The next recommendation of the committee on permanent organization and rules, Mr. President, deals with the structure of the convention staff, and this report is on the desk of each of the delegates. I will read the recommendation.

The committee recommends the following:

1. That the convention create the employee positions described in the appendices to this report.

2. That the committee on administration consult with the president and then recommend to him for approval by the convention:

a. a salary scale for the employees of this convention whose job descriptions are indicated in the appendices to this report;

b. persons capable of fulfilling the job descriptions set forth in the appendices to this report, if and to the extent desired by the appropriate committees or officers;

3. That the director of research be appointed by the president.

Following are the appendices to the report:

Appendix B

I. OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT*

Division of research, drafting, and public information

A. Director of research and public information.

The director of this division would be responsible to the president. He should be a senior lawyer, political scientist, historian or economist; and have a knowledge of the methods of research and the capacity to do research and to manage a research team, to draft and write articles, to supervise the writing and drafting of others and to edit their materials. He must be able to work with people, to express his ideas without antagonizing people, and to harmonize the ideas of others.

B. Assistant to the director in charge of research and drafting.

This person should be able to do hurry up jobs of research on special problems. He should be able to help in putting out files of a research nature and to prepare brief memoranda on immediate problems needing research. He should assist the director in any manner suggested by the director. He should be a lawyer or a political scientist who has demonstrated his ability to write and do research.

C. Assistant to the director in charge of public information.

This person would work closely with the committee on public information. He should be a competent researcher and writer who can write notices and reports of committee hearings and sessions; prepare press releases and other materials designed to inform the public of the activities of the convention and its delegates. He should be available to all delegates for the preparation of releases and speeches. He should keep all groups interested in convention proceedings (e.g., schools and service organizations) informed of the convention's meetings and activities.

D. Secretaries (2) to the director of research, drafting, and public information and his assistants.

Persons capable of taking shorthand and typing letters, memoranda and studies. Should be capable of using dictaphone machine.

E. Research and drafting associates (9 or more if authorized by the committee on administration).

Some of these men should be trained in law, some in political science and some in economics. They should be assigned to the major committees and should be either full time or part time, depending upon the needs of the committees. They must know their own field well and be capable of doing research, of writing articulately, and of putting into words the ideas of others.

Such persons may be assigned by the director of research and drafting to more than one committee if necessary.

F. Librarians (2).

These persons should be capable of managing the library facilities of the convention, of keeping track of the library materials of the convention and of helping delegates to find material in the library of the convention.

Administration and housekeeping division

A. Administrative assistant to the president.

This person should be the personal choice of the president. He should have had experience and ability in handling administrative, personnel, and housekeeping details and problems. He will assist the president in his office duties in any manner the president requests. Under the president's direction he will supervise and direct the staff within his division. In addition to being an experienced administrator, he must have demonstrated imagination in working out problems. He must be congenial and able to work with people. This position could be assigned to someone who worked in a similar position on the constitutional convention preparatory staff.

* All employee positions listed under the office of the president will be filled by the president upon the recommendation of the committee on administration.

B. Secretary to the president.

A person capable of taking shorthand and typing letters, memoranda and studies. This person must also have the capacity to get along with people and work well with other staff members.

C. Committee clerks (9 or more if authorized by the committee on administration).

These persons would serve as committee clerks and secretaries for the committees to which the research associate is assigned. Such persons may be assigned to more than one committee, if necessary. All of these persons should be capable of taking shorthand and doing dictaphone work, of typing accurately, and of keeping track of committee activity.

D. Stenographic pool.

1. Chief stenographer.

This person must be able to get along with other members of the pool and keep them working.

2. Stenographers (15 or more if authorized by the committee on administration).

These persons would be capable of taking shorthand and typing letters, memoranda and reports for the delegates, the committees, and the officers and staff of the convention.

E. Postmaster and document clerk (2).

These persons would be in charge of mail, its distribution, and all internal and external document distribution.

F. Duplication clerk.

A person to schedule and operate mimeograph and other duplication equipment.

G. Press room manager.

This person would maintain liaison between newsmen and their offices, newsmen and convention leaders, newsmen and the committee chairmen, newsmen and each delegate. He would receive and distribute press releases, making sure all news correspondents are treated fairly. He would maintain order in the press room, excluding all unauthorized personnel, answering telephones, finding those called, filing journals and proposals in each correspondent's file. He would relay office messages to those newsmen called, supervise the mail received, and arrange for maintenance services. He would arrange contacts between newsmen and delegates, if desired and necessary. He should be a person with an extensive news reporting background, known to the correspondents and delegates as well.

H. Pages (6 or more if authorized by the committee on administration).

These persons would be able to act as messengers for the delegates and staff. They should be high school graduates or college students who have taken a leave from their studies. (The convention should avoid hiring grade school or high school students because to do so would mean providing tutors for their continued schooling.)

I. Telephone operators (3).

Police and guide division

A. Chief sergeant at arms.

The sergeant at arms shall be the chief police officer of the convention. He must be mature, get along well with people but must be firm. He must be able to supervise a small staff.

B. Assistant sergeants at arms (2 or more if authorized by the committee on administration).

These persons must be able to get along well with people and be firm without antagonizing them. They must be able to follow directions with common sense.

C. Convention guides (2 or more if authorized by the committee on administration).

These persons might well represent the only contact many convention visitors will have with the constitutional convention. Their primary function would be to explain the background, activities, sessions, and problems of the convention. They would conduct regular tours through constitution hall and its offices and committee rooms, explaining to visitors convention activities and answering any questions or furnishing information requested by them. The guides would be located in an information booth in the delegates' lobby and in the gallery of the convention while it is in session. They would relay any messages from visitors to the delegates. They would keep order in the delegates' lobby and in the gallery. They would make available information concerning the convention to its many visitors. They would take charge of all school, or other large groups. These persons should be recent college graduates, pleasing in appearance, amiable, and able to get along with people. They should be articulate and knowledgeable about government, particularly with the history of the 1961-62 Constitutional Convention.

D. Electrician.

A person to run the public address system during the convention sessions, controlling microphones. He should also be able to tape committee sessions and other meetings if requested by the delegates.

II. OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY*

A. Convention secretary (elected).

B. Assistant secretary.

This person would assist the convention secretary in his duties, replacing him whenever necessary in his duties on the rostrum.

C. Secretary to the convention secretary.

This person should serve the secretary as he desires including taking dictation and typing and following up on details suggested by the secretary with other persons connected with the convention.

D. Journal clerk.

This person is in charge of seeing that a verbatim journal is printed each day. The person must be a careful worker with editorial experience, must be able to supervise and manage typists, work with a duplication staff or a printing firm. Must keep the journal if it is not a verbatim journal.

E. Assistant journal clerk.

Assist the journal clerk with duties.

F. Proposal and enrolling clerk.

This person must keep track of all proposals and see that they are duplicated. Must be methodical.

G. Assistant proposal and enrolling clerk.

Assist the proposal and enrolling clerk with duties.

H. Finance clerk.

This person, under the direction of the secretary, will be in charge of the paper work of the convention relative to the payment of bills, the approval of purchases and all matters pertaining to spending the money appropriated for the convention. This person should have elementary knowledge of accounting procedures. This employee will be the liaison person with the department of administration who will handle these matters and the officers or committees of the convention having authority to spend money.

* Personnel in the secretary's office would be appointed by the secretary with the approval of the committee on administration.

MR. VAN DUSEN (continuing): Some discussion of this recommendation may be in order, though I think that appendix A shows you quite graphically the staff positions and the organization structure which are recommended. In general the committee has followed the recommendations of the preparatory commission though there have been some changes, largely in the enlargement of the recommended staff. I should indicate that it is the function of this recommendation simply to create the positions. It will be the responsibility of the committee on administration, if you adopt this recommendation, to determine salary scales and to recommend personnel to fill these positions.

Mr. President, I move the adoption of the recommendation.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any discussion?

Mr. Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: I am wondering if it might not be wise to have this matter laid over for a day so that we can read through this material that's just been placed on our desks. I talked to 2 or 3 delegates and they feel that it might be wise to lay this matter over due to the fact that we are creating positions that will cost considerable money.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I believe, Mr. Boothby, that it is the feeling generally of the committee on permanent organization that with respect to this particular report it is desirable to act as promptly as we can. I certainly do not mean to indicate that we should rush through it, and we have ample opportunity to discuss it rather thoroughly this evening. Unless and until —I recall the use of the word "until" at the last session—we are in a position to know what the staff structure of the convention will be, the committee on administration will be at a loss to proceed with the business of providing the staff which we will need to do our work.

The matter of filling these positions, as I said, and the question of salaries are matters which must be considered by the committee on administration, and which must then be recommended to the convention for the convention's approval. So that before any commitments are made which would involve the expenditure of funds, the convention will have another opportunity to pass upon the matter. I think this is not such a complex proposal that I would think it needed to lie over, and I would think we could act upon this proposal this evening.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: Is my understanding correct that we are actually creating these jobs at the present time?

MR. VAN DUSEN: We are creating the positions, yes.

MR. BOOTHBY: How many jobs are there in toto?

MR. VAN DUSEN: There are 66.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there any more discussion?

Mr. Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Is it correct that we are going to treat all the rest of these rules the same as we are treating this rule, as a degree of emergency? Or are we going to have a chance to consider them?

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, if I may. In response to Mr. Yeager's inquiry, it is the intention of the committee on permanent organization that there be such discussion as the delegates may desire with respect to the report on the rules this evening, and that the rules then lie over until tomorrow. It is only the report with respect to staff structure which we recommend action on this evening.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Allen.

MR. ALLEN: In connection with the point Mr. Boothby raised, I was talking with one of the delegates to this convention whose father happened to be a member of the 1907 Convention, and he gave me for the purpose of study the handbook of the Convention of 1907. I thought it would be interesting to know how many staff were on the Convention of 1907. There were only 96 delegates at that convention, 3 from each of 32 senatorial districts, and when I totaled them up I found that the staff in 1907 equalled 62, as contrasted with the 66 which is recommended by Mr. Van Dusen's committee this time, with a convention membership of 144. I think we can take some pride in saying that comparatively we are not overdoing it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there any other discussion?

Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Does this recommendation represent the unanimous recommendation of your committee, Mr. Chairman?

MR VAN DUSEN: So far as I can recall, Mr. Woolfenden, there was no dissent. However, I would invite any of the members of the committee who recall voting against it to rise and identify themselves. We have covered quite a lot of ground in the last couple of days, Mr. Woolfenden, and I regret to say that I do not recall the precise vote on this recommendation.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Did the entire committee sit?

MR. VAN DUSEN: The entire committee sat, and sat, and sat.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: I think it might be worth pointing out that these are maximums. It is not intended that all of these positions will necessarily be filled. They will be filled only as rapidly and to the extent as they are needed. So that if one of the committees, for example, doesn't need a committee clerk, the position will be filled only if the committee chairman asks for a committee clerk. So this is the maximum and we might be able to do with less.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there any other discussion?

Mr. King.

MR. KING: I wonder if the chairman could tell us how many are now being employed by the convention on a temporary basis?

MR. VAN DUSEN: I will defer to the secretary for that purpose, Mr. King.

SECRETARY CHASE: I think we could state at this time, Mr. King, that the personnel at the desk at the present time are here pretty much on loan from the senate in accordance with a resolution that was adopted by the senate before adjournment last spring. We have the journal clerk, Mrs. Nethaway, and on a temporary appointment basis Mrs. Archer has been named as reporter. Outside of that, the other people that have been working have been working on a voluntary basis.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further discussion?

Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. President, I would like to voice some agreement with the delegate that spoke initially in this regard. This is quite a lot of material to put on our desk and ask us to vote on it intelligently. I would like to hear a discussion from the committee chairman outlining in particular these posts. It seems to me, just in glancing through it, that there is quite a lot of authority in some of these posts. I honestly don't feel that I could vote on this particular proposal without more discussion.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Higgs, I would be glad to do this. If you will turn to your appendix A, you will note under the office of the president there are 3 significant divisions: the division of research, drafting, and public information; the division of administration and housekeeping; and the police and guide division.

Dealing first with the division of research, drafting, and public information, the positions involved are: a director, an assistant in charge of research and drafting, an assistant in charge of public information, 2 secretaries, 9 research and drafting associates who will work with committees in doing necessary research assignments and in drafting committee proposals, and 2 librarians.

Under the administration and housekeeping division, the chief officer will be an administrative assistant to the president. The president will have a secretary. It is proposed that there will be 9 committee clerks and more if the committee on administration finds it necessary, a stenographic pool consisting of a chief stenographer and 15 stenographers, 2 postmasters, a duplication clerk who is responsible for the sort of material you have on your desks this evening, a press room manager, 3 telephone operators, and 6 pages. I think all of these positions are reasonably self explanatory.

Under the police and guide division, it is proposed that there will be a chief sergeant at arms, 2 assistant sergeants at arms and 2 convention guides, and finally an electrician who will be responsible for such things as the public address system and the voting machine.

Then, under the office of secretary, there will be an assistant secretary to act in Mr. Chase's place in the event he is unavoidably absent from the rostrum and to assist him in the performance of his duties, a secretary to the convention secretary, 5 clerks whose responsibilities are spelled out in some greater detail on the last page of the second appendix: the journal clerk, the assistant journal clerk, the proposal and enrolling clerk, an assistant proposal and enrolling clerk, and a finance clerk. These positions will carry out substantially the functions which are outlined but they will keep track of the orderly flow of documents. Mr. Chase points out to me that it will not be necessary to have a reading clerk and that that position will probably not be filled in the ordinary course.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I wouldn't want the convention to get an erroneous impression. I believe it was Mr. Martin who said that these represent maximum in all cases. However, you will notice that many of these positions are marked by asterisks which means that in such cases the committee on administration can increase them, as I believe the chairman just mentioned, if necessary, so they are not absolutely maximum figures if the committee on administration believes, for example, that the committees need more personnel than herein listed.

MR. VAN DUSEN: That's quite correct, Mr. Bentley. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there other discussion?

Miss Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: I would like to point out that under the research and public information, we believe that the committee on public information may not wish this, and this is the outside limit to be hired in that instance, and it is not necessary to be hired at this time unless it was so desired by that committee.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. President, and ladies and gentlemen, I understand that in the legislature, and certainly in the senate in connection with the stenographic force, the 2 parties have something to say about selecting their own. No such provision made here?

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Brake, the selection of personnel is a matter placed under the recommendation and in the hands of the committee on administration which has the political balance which all of our standing committees have. It would therefore be the function of that committee to allocate positions in a responsible and equitable manner with unquestionably due regard for the political affiliations of the members who will be using the stenographers.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there further discussion? The question is on the adoption of the recommendation.

Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. President, with regard to the office of assistant to the director of public information, it states here that this person would work closely with the committee on public information. I wonder, Mr. Van Dusen, if the responsibility of the assistant to the director is directly to the director of research, to the president, or to the committee on public information? I note there are broad powers involved in this particular office.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Higgs, each of the positions, other than those indicated as being directly responsible to the office of the secretary, are responsible in the ultimate regard to the office of the president. The assistant to the director in charge of public information will have as his chain of command the director of research to whom he will have his immediate staff responsibility, and through the director of research to the president. He will unquestionably be assigned to work with the committee on public information but as a staff responsibility, his responsibility will be to the director of research and through him to the president.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any further discussion?

Mr. Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. President, at this time I would like to move that this question be laid over until tomorrow, to be considered tomorrow.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Boothby that this question be laid over until tomorrow. Is there any discussion?

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I would simply remark that I would oppose the motion for the reasons I have previously given.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, as a member of the committee, I think that the report should be adopted but I don't think that any of us want any of the delegates to feel that they are in any way being pushed to adopt something they are not familiar with or that they are not ready to adopt. I don't think we want to start out that way and I think if the decision of the body is to put the matter over until the session tomorrow, probably no harm will be done. It would be desirable to adopt it tonight but I think if it is not done, there will be no harm done.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Boothby to put the question over until tomorrow. Is there any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion does not prevail.

The question is now on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any further discussion? If not, all in favor vote aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, the final item in the report of the committee on permanent organization and rules is a preliminary report with respect to convention rules. Here, quite obviously, we do not request that the delegates act this evening on some 74 proposed rules.

If there are questions this evening with respect to rules, the committee will be happy to attempt to answer them. I would state that the committee will be sitting tomorrow morning at 9:00 a.m. in either room C or room B downstairs, and we will be glad to hear at that time from any delegate who has any question or who has any suggestion for inclusion in these rules.

It is the intention of the committee on permanent organization and rules to complete its second run through these rules tomorrow and to present them for adoption at the session tomorrow afternoon. However, we would welcome discussion this evening. We would welcome your participation in the work of the committee tomorrow morning. We would welcome your questions.

I would suggest to you at this time that the rules are those proposed by the preparatory commission with amendments which have been recommended by the committee. The form in which you have the rules is a form which indicates the original proposal by the preparatory commission and indicates the changes in those proposals recommended by the committee on permanent organization and rules, so that those of you who have already devoted some study to the rules proposed by the preparatory commission will be able to see at a glance with respect to each rule those changes which the committee proposes.

As I say, we will be delighted to try to respond to questions if you have them this evening, to the extent that questions may be posed. If there are no questions, or when we run out of questions this evening, we would then move that the report be put over until tomorrow at which time the committee will present a final report, and will hope to present rules for your adoption.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I am sure the chairman is well aware of the fact that it is awfully difficult to ask questions until the proposed rules have been read; and although I, of course, have no objection to initiating discussion or questions on the rules this evening, I suggest that it would probably be helpful if the delegates had a chance to read the rules and consider them before they care to ask questions and enter into discussion of them. Wouldn't the chairman share that feeling?

MR. VAN DUSEN: I certainly would, Mr. Bentley; certainly with respect to any specific rules. However, I had thought that conceivably there might be some questions which had been prompted by the preparatory commission rules and I just simply wanted to offer the committee's services in that regard.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Will the convention prefer to have the secretary read the rules or is it satisfactory for you just to look at them?

Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: I would move that the secretary dispense with the reading of the rules.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Bledsoe.

MR. BLEDSOE: Harold Bledsoe seconds that.

PRESIDENT NISBET: It has been moved and supported that the secretary dispense with the reading of the rules. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

For proposed rules, as submitted, see below, pages 130-135.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: That completes the report of the committee on permanent organization and rules, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: I have one announcement to make.

By the way, I hope that you will study these rules tonight so that when you come back tomorrow, we will spend the afternoon in going through them and your understanding of them before they are adopted so you will know the rules of the convention.

Tonight it has been the hope of your officers that we could name the committees. Let me say that we have worked Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday. We have the committees, but they were not ready until after 6:00 o'clock tonight so it was impossible to duplicate them for you. That is now being done. They will be on your desk for adoption tomorrow. However, it is very necessary that we have one committee named tonight. That is the committee on administration that takes care of the things we have discussed tonight—takes care of the leasing of this building which has nearly expired, and particularly your own pay which will come before very long. I will ask the secretary to read the names of the committee on administration.

SECRETARY CHASE: The president appoints the following delegates to the committee on administration:

Walter DeVries, chairman	Frank Perlich
Rockwell T. Gust, first vice chairman	Clifford Perras
	J. Burton Richards
Paul Mahinske, second vice chairman	James Shackelton
	Edward Shanahan
Berry Beaman	Joseph Snyder
Charles Davis	James Sterrett
James Farnsworth	Lee Walker
Morris Hood

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Durst.

MR. DURST: Mr. President, I move that the committee appointments be approved.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the approval of the appointments to the committee on administration. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The committee appointments are approved.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and delegates, there will be a meeting of the committee on administration in room G on the lower floor immediately after the session this evening.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any announcements by the secretary?

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary wishes to call to your attention the blue pamphlet which you will find in the manila envelope which was left on your desk with your name on it. Senator Porter, chairman of the senate committee on appropriations, was responsible with the help of one of the delegates, Mr. Claud Erickson, who came up with a copy, for the reprinting of the Address to the People that came from the 1907 Convention at the conclusion of their work. This is given to you with the compliments of the Michigan senate.

Also you have been handed a copy of a yellow sheet, a temporary list of delegates. This is through the courtesy of the Detroit News. Mr. Rudow tells me he has already discovered 3 errors on it which in the subsequent ones will be corrected. If there comes to your attention any correction that needs to be made, please let him know.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I have asked Mr. Chase tonight if he will, in an attempt to speed up our understanding of procedure—in an effort to make familiar to us the facilities that are here for us to use and how to operate them—take a few minutes and give us an orientation talk on convention procedure so that when the time comes for us to operate we will do so with the knowledge that we are operating in the proper form. Mr. Chase has very kindly consented to do it. The hour is not late. I am very happy to have him do it at this time.

Mr. Secretary.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President and delegates, as to just how to proceed in this matter, I am at a bit of a loss. In the organization of the legislature, this becomes routine as time goes by and you follow a certain set pattern. We have pretty much adopted this same pattern here except that with a group of 144 people coming together for the first time it is a bigger job and takes a little longer.

I would like to pay a particular compliment to the committee on permanent organization and rules. I should like you to know that last Thursday, for example, in the drawing of this set of rules that they have for your consideration, they met at 9:00 o'clock in the morning, at 12:15 they recessed for lunch until 1:30, and they completed their work at 7:00 o'clock Thursday night—and there were no coffee breaks. I am not complaining—don't misunderstand me. They came back today after the staff had worked diligently over the weekend to get these changes in the rules and form, and they sat for 2 hours this afternoon until it came time for a minority caucus and the minority members felt constrained to leave. They finished part of the rules, and they are going to meet tomorrow morning at 9:00 o'clock.

In all my years of experience in work with the legislature I should like to say simply this: here was a consecrated, dedicated, determined and capable group that was going to come up with one of the finest sets of rules I think you will find anywhere. I would just like to say this and give them the pat on the back that I think they deserve. It's been a pleasure to work with them.

Now, after the rules are adopted and the committees are appointed, there follows of necessity a tremendous amount of work, getting your stationery ready, getting the handbook ready for distribution, getting these various appointments filled and getting these people oriented in their jobs.

Across the hall we will have a document room in which there will be available every day the journals, copies of the proposals that you introduce, and all other documents that may be the result of this convention and its work. These will be available for public distribution and they will be put on your desks by the pages every day.

And of course it naturally follows, how do we get a proposal before this convention? In the routine that comes here, all you need to do is to have an idea, and you go to the director of research. He may take this responsibility himself. He may assign it to one of his assistants. You say to whomever you are assigned, "I want a proposal to amend the constitution." This may be offered in one of 2 forms. It may be offered merely as an idea, or, if you are an attorney and want to spell out exactly and in the nth degree the detail of the language you want therein, it can be done in that fashion. These will be delegate proposals, so called. They will be introduced by reading just the title from the rostrum. They will be referred by the presiding officer to the appropriate standing committee.

This, then, becomes the end of the delegate proposals as we understand it, and subsequently the committees—your substantive committees to which these proposals will have been referred—will hold meetings and they will invite you in, they will invite interested parties in, they may hold committee hearings, they will do everything in their power to get at exactly what you want to have done and get it done in the best possible shape for presentation to this convention.

The committees will report out what we call committee proposals. They will not be delegate proposals. They will be committee proposals which will incorporate in them the ideas that you may have or perhaps, if you have been meticulous in the drafting of the language you have in mind, they may incorporate therein the exact language that you have in mind. When they are reported out, they will be reported as committee proposals with a different number. They will be committee proposals as opposed to delegate proposals in the first case.

We propose to do this. Delegate proposals will be numbered starting with 1001 because there are likely to be a lot of them. Committee proposals, because the number will undoubtedly be considerably less than 1,000, will be started with 1, and will be numbered Committee Proposal 1, Committee Proposal 2, and so forth, as they come from the committees. The sequence in which they are reported gives them their numbers. The delegate proposals—the sequence in which you file them with the secretary will cause their numbers, starting with 1001.

We hope to print them on 2 different colors of paper so as to further aid in the differentiation to everybody so that they will be aware of which is which. These committee proposals will go through the regular routine of business. They will be reported out. They will go to the committee of the whole.

Now, what is the committee of the whole? It is just what its name says it is, a committee of the whole convention. The purpose of the committee of the whole is to allow free and unlimited debate. Under these proposed rules, you cannot close debate or limit debate or move the previous question in the committee of the whole. You can talk as many times as you want to in the committee of the whole. There is no limit on that. You may offer as many amendments as you care to.

The idea of the committee of the whole is to work out, without the formality that you find in the committee and the convention session as such, the perfecting of these proposals. When they have been perfected, the committee will rise and report the committee proposal to the convention, and from there on it takes whatever course you may determine. Ordinarily it will be referred to the committee on style and drafting and come back later on for further consideration.

These are the steps very briefly. I crave your indulgence because some of this procedure is just as new to me as it is to you and I shall have to do a lot of studying in the convention procedures of 1907 so that I, too, may know the answer to some of your questions. I shall be happy at any time to be of whatever assistance I can, and my staff the same, in the answering of any questions that occur to you.

May I ask this, please? In these daily journals as you find them on your desks, there are bound to be—in the process of getting them printed overnight—errors; typographical errors, errors in spelling, and what not. Whenever you find them, please let us know. This helps us to keep your journal.

I shall be glad to answer any other questions that I am asked.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Chase. I imagine the committee on administration will shortly report, too, as to the facilities that are available to the delegates such as secretarial service, telephone service, and those other things that are necessary to the operation of the convention. We are most anxious to get this under way with all the rapidity we can and still on an efficient basis.

One other thing that your vice presidents and I have discussed was to request Dr. Pollock—and I am glad to see that he is here tonight—to have us as his class for a day on the subject of what is a constitution and what it should include. I think none of us have ever before written a constitution of this character and magnitude and maybe before we start, it would be well for us to know just what it is, what it incorporates, what its purpose is, what its over all structure should be. I haven't talked with Dr. Pollock since last Saturday—I will try to see him after the session—but sometime this week we hope to have that discussion, too.

It is our earnest hope that by the end of this week we will have all of the preliminaries out of the road, our committees appointed and in operation so that next week we might receive proposals. If we can do that, I think we have done a good job. I talked to one member of the legislature the other day, and he said we wouldn't get started for a month, but I think we are going to beat that quite a long ways.

Are there any other announcements? What is the pleasure of the convention?

Mr. Buback.

MR. BUBACK: I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion that we adjourn. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. The convention is adjourned until 2:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

[Whereupon, at 9:05 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Tuesday, October 10, 1961.]

FOURTH DAY

Tuesday, October 10, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order. The invocation will be given by Delegate Arthur Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Dear Father, we are grateful that Thou art ever present and that Thou protect and direct each one of us with Thy unlimited wisdom. May we express in our dealings the Christ, Truth, thus humbly serving Thee. We ask that we demonstrate an ever unfolding spiritual dominion as the sons of God. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary.

SECRETARY CHASE: Will everyone present please vote aye? Has everyone voted? Mr. President, a quorum is present.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Erickson.

MR. ERICKSON: Mr. Hoxie would like to be excused for this session. He was called out of town on an emergency.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you. Without objection, Mr. Hoxie will be excused.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Mr. Hoxie. Absent without leave: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, submits the following report and recommendation:

That the convention accept the lease entered into by and between the city of Lansing and the governor's constitutional convention preparatory commission and that it exercise its option under the conditions of the lease.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, if I may, I would like to explain the conditions of the lease. The lease is effective from September 1, 1961, to May 31, 1962. The total cost of leasing these facilities is $110,000, of which $10,000 has already been paid by the governor's preparatory constitutional convention commission. The payments start on October 15. The first payment is $33,333.33, and subsequent payments are made on November 15 and December 15.

If there are any questions on the lease specifically, I would be happy to try to answer them. If not, Mr. President, I move the adoption of this item of the committee on administration report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any other discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: Number 2. The committeee on administration recommends to the convention that it authorize the repayment of $10,000 to the governor's constitutional convention preparatory commission used by them as a good faith deposit on the constitution hall lease.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: I believe this item is self explanatory. We are repaying the governor's constitutional convention preparatory commission the $10,000 used by them as a good faith deposit. I move the adoption of this item of the committee on administration report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: Number 3. The committee on administration recommends to the convention the adoption of a floor plan with the space allocations suggested in the committee report. Copies of the proposed floor plan are on the delegates' desks.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, if the delegates are interested, we can briefly run through this floor plan and point out to you where the officers will be assigned in constitution hall.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any discussion or questions?

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: We had intended to affix a map to the 2 pages. The map has not arrived. It will be here at 2:30 and we will have them put on your desks at that time.

Basically, the recommendations of the committee are this: that on this floor, the first floor, the convention hall will remain in the small auditorium.

Secondly, the press room which is located behind constitution hall be allowed to remain where it is.

Third, that the switchboard which is now on the stage will remain in its present location.

Fourth, that the 3 offices south of the corridor — those are the offices back of convention hall — be assigned in the following manner: The first office, which is now the office of the president, remains the office of the president. Within that office will be located the administrative assistant to the president, his secretary, and any other staff members that he may designate. One end of the room will become a conference room to be used by the president in press conferences and meetings with committee chairmen or any other groups that he desires to meet with. The center office would become the offices of the vice presidents where each would have separate but equal facilities. Each vice president will have his own personal office and his own personal stenographer. The last office in this block of offices will be assigned to the office of the secretary, providing him with a private office, and the rest of the space will be used for his immediate staff.

The fifth recommendation of the committee, under "a", is that the delegates' lounge remain as a lounge except that on the north end of the lounge a partition will be constructed, and within that room we will place a document, mail and cloak room. We thought this would give better access to the delegates and it would allow us to use the other office for different facilities.

Sixth, in the corridor immediately north of the public entrance — the entrance to the convention — the committee recommends the establishment of an information booth and a registration booth where visitors to this convention would register, would get information, and perhaps would be taken on guided tours of constitution hall.

On the lower level — the level below this one — the snack bar has been converted by the preparatory commission into 3 committee rooms. We recommend that that area be left the way it is. The kitchen in the snack bar area we have tentatively designated as a duplicating room. It has shelves and adequate space for duplicating equipment. The 4 rooms on the north side of the corridor are to continue as committee rooms except the committee recommends that we erect partitions approximately 12 feet from the north end of each room for office space for the committee chairman and the committee clerk.

The fourth item under "b", the check room downstairs. Since we will have a cloak room upstairs, we would like to convert that into a TV-radio-press room for interviews, sound and motion picture film, tape recordings, and the like.

The large room on the south side of the corridor which used to be the dining room, will continue as the stenographic pool, delegates' offices, research area, and the library. There are some 42 offices or carrels available in that room and the committee on administration has yet to figure out how we are going to assign these to the members of this convention. Each chairman will have his own office, the vice presidents and president obviously will have their offices, but we still have the problem of assigning office space in 42 carrels to some 135 people.

On the third floor — this was not included in the lease — the committee on administration surveyed the third floor and found out that there were 950 square feet of space available which we could rent at a very reasonable cost and it was our thinking that 2 committee rooms could be established up there and the 4 operational committees could be located on the third floor.

Mr. President, I move the adoption of this report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendations concerning space allocations. Are there any questions or discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendations are concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: Number 4. The committee on administration recommends to the convention the following committee room assignments:

Room A: Committee on local government
Room B: Committee on judicial branch
Committee on rules and resolutions
Room C: Committee on executive branch
Committee on public information
Room D: Committee on legislative organization
Committee on style and drafting
Room E: Committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections
Committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule
Room F: Committee on finance and taxation
Committee on education
Room G: Committee on legislative powers
Committee on administration

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any discussion?

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: The thinking of the committee on administration with regard to committee assignments is this.

The committee on local government is the largest committee with 27 members, and we think it will be a very active committee, so we have assigned it permanently to one room.

Room B — the committee on the judicial branch. Our thinking is pretty much the same on that line. The committee on rules and resolutions will meet temporarily in that committee room until October 23 when they will move to the third floor.

The same is true of the others. We have had to double up in room E with 2 committees. The same thing is true in room F and we hope this doesn't result in too much conflict. We have tried to pair together committees we thought wouldn't be meeting as much as some of the other committees. This remains to be seen and the committee will be able to work it out if conflicts develop.

What we have tried to do is give every committee its own room, its own headquarters, permanently.

Mr. President, I move the adoption of this item in the agenda.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: Number 5. The committee on administration recommends to the convention that for the purpose of efficiency and quality the convention authorize the civil service commission to conduct stenographic tests for applicants for stenographic positions on the constitutional convention staff. Furthermore, the committee recommends that tests for these stenographic positions be given by the civil service commission on October 11, 12, 13, 14 and 16 and at such other times as may be directed by the committee on administration.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: The committee on administration called in this morning Mr. Franklin DeWald, the director of civil service, and Mr. Richard Crable, the director of recruitment and examination, and Mr. Charles S. Pearson, the assistant director of civil service, and they told us that they would be willing to do this, to test all those people who have applied for stenographic positions.

At the present time we have over 150 applications. The committee felt that there must be some rational empirical way to evaluate these people and we asked civil service to do this. They say that they can handle all the testing, prepare a roster in a rank order showing those with the highest grades down to the lowest grades, and have this to us by next week. They also tell us that this will be done at no cost to the constitutional convention.

People who are interested in applying for these positions, as you will notice in the handout — the press release that is on your desks — should go to the information desk on the third floor of the Lewis Cass building and ask to take the examination for the constitutional convention stenographic positions. At that time they will also fill out an application form with standard kinds of information for use by the committee on administration. You might, if you are interested in somebody for this kind of position with the constitutional convention, have them contact Mr. Apol or the civil service people before Friday evening by telephone preferably, or by mail if necessary, and have them take the examination no later than Monday.

We would like to get some people appointed to the staff but we feel that we have to have qualified, competent people, and we know of no other way to test them.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any further discussion?

Mr. King.

MR. KING: A point of information. I notice here in the press release it states that these people must be residents of Lansing. Do you mean the city limits of Lansing or do you just mean that they must be available in this area?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. King, this release was written by Mr. Gust, Mr. Mahinske, and Mr. Snyder. I don't know what they had in mind when they said residents of Lansing. I don't think they mean to say that people who live in Delta township cannot work for the constitutional convention. I think what they are recommending is that we take people from the Lansing area, but perhaps Mr. Snyder, who participated in the writing of this handout, could explain it better than I can.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: Mr. President, there was no intention of limiting job opportunities to people with residence in Lansing. We felt in fairness to the many people who are looking upon this convention as possible means of gaining some livelihood that they should be located in the area of Lansing because the work would be of such a nature that their residence must be within a reasonable proximity of Lansing. There was no intent to limit it to the confines of Lansing.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there other discussion?

Mr. Barthwell.

MR. BARTHWELL: I would like to know the method of selection after the people qualify. Will they be selected from the highest person on the list and the next person in order?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the committee on administration tentatively decided on this procedure, that we would take perhaps the 50 to 100 highest scoring applicants. A committee of 3 from the committee on administration would talk to them and rank them in terms of personality, personal characteristics and appearance. Does that answer the question?

If I may, Mr. President, one more comment on the applicants for staff positions. The committee has directed me to inform all the delegates that there are other positions available other than stenographic help that we will have to fill in the near future and we would like to call your attention to the qualifications listed in the staff organization adopted by this convention last evening.

If I may make a personal observation, it doesn't seem to me that we should view the constitutional convention staff as a green pasture in which we can feed a lot of unemployed politicians. I think what the committee is interested in is qualified, competent people and we certainly would like your recommendations as to who you think might fill the other positions prescribed in the rules, with this proviso. We would like the applications no later than the end of the week.

Mr. President, I move the adoption of this item of the committee on administration report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 6. The committee on administration recommends and the president appoints the following constitutional convention staff members:

Administrative assistant to the president — Bernard J. Apol

Secretary to the president — Mrs. Bernice Tucker.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: May I point out to the delegates that under the rules, the president picks his own staff? The committee in this case is just referring to you his appointments, and I move the adoption of these appointments by the president of the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in and the appointments approved.

SECRETARY CHASE: Number 7. The committee on administration recommends and the secretary appoints the following staff members:

Journal clerk — Mrs. Lynn Nethaway

Proposal and enrolling clerk — Mrs. Marilyn West.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: The rules also provide that the committee on administration consult with the secretary of the convention, the secretary of the convention appoints his own staff, and the committee on administration recommends that these appointments be confirmed by the constitutional convention. I so move.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there any further discussion? The question is on concurring in the recommendation. If there is no further discussion, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in and the appointments approved.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: That concludes the report of the committee on administration. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: We will now have the report of the committee on permanent organization and rules.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The committee on permanent organization and rules is pleased to present its report with respect to the rules of this convention. The committee recommends that the proposed rules attached to its report, copies of which have been furnished to each delegate, be adopted as the rules of this convention.

Following are the proposed rules of the convention, as submitted:

Chapter I — General Provisions

Quorum and majority.

Rule 1. A majority of the delegates elected to the convention shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may compel the attendance of absent delegates by any means adopted by a majority of those present but not less than 15 so voting, and a majority of the delegates elected may fix penalties for nonattendance.

There being a quorum, a majority of delegates present shall be sufficient for the adoption of any motion or resolution or the taking of any action except where the affirmative votes of a greater number shall be required by these rules.

Admission to floor — defined.

Rule 2. No person, other than a convention delegate, an officer, employee, or accredited news correspondent shall be admitted on the floor of the convention for a period of 30 minutes immediately preceding the time set for any call to order and for 10 minutes immediately following adjournment unless invited by the president. Only delegates, officers and employees authorized by the president shall be admitted to the floor of the convention during the session. The words "floor of the convention" mean the space of the main floor of the convention, excluding the space designated for visitors and for the press. No introductions shall be made, except that the presiding officer may introduce official representatives of other states, the United States or other nations, or other persons invited by him to address the convention.

Bar of the convention — defined.

Rule 3. Any delegate, having answered roll call at the opening of any session, or having entered upon the floor of the convention after roll call, shall thereafter be deemed as present until leave of absence is obtained from the convention. Any delegate present at any session shall continue to be present if he shall be within the bar of the convention. The words "within the bar of the convention" mean the space occupied and used by the convention or any committee or other room attached thereto and used in connection with conducting of the business of the convention.

Chapter II — Officers and Employees

Officers of the convention.

Rule 4. The officers of the convention shall be a president, 3 vice presidents, a secretary, a sergeant at arms, and a director of research to be selected as determined by resolution of the convention adopted by a majority of the delegates elected. The president and vice presidents shall be delegates. The salaries of nondelegate officers shall be fixed by resolution of the convention.

For rule 4 as amended, see below, page 135.

The President

Duties of presiding officer.

Rule 5. The president shall take the Chair each day at the hour to which the convention shall have adjourned or recessed. He shall call the convention to order and, except in the absence of a quorum, shall proceed to business in the manner prescribed by these rules.

Further duties of presiding officer.

Rule 6. The president shall preserve order and decorum; may speak to points of order and shall decide questions of order, subject to an appeal to the convention. When 2 or more delegates seek recognition at the same time for purposes of debate, the president shall recognize the delegate who is to speak first.

Appointment by the president.

Rule 7. The president, after consultation with the vice presidents, shall nominate for convention approval the membership of all committees except where the convention shall otherwise order. All appointments shall be announced to the convention and entered upon the journal. The president shall appoint a committee consisting of 3 regular news correspondents of daily papers, 1 news correspondent from the wire services, and 1 news correspondent from the radio and television agencies. This press committee shall pass upon the credentials of all news media representatives, and no correspondent shall be entitled to a press desk who is not approved by such committee and the president. The president shall assign such accredited news correspondents press desks in the convention chamber and provide each news correspondent with a card of admission showing his desk number and signed by the president and the chairman of the convention press committee. Persons desiring to be accredited news correspondents at the convention shall file written application with the president, who shall refer them to the press committee. The application shall state in writing the names of all newspapers, publications or news media by which they are employed, and no news agency shall be assigned more than 1 desk in the press gallery. News correspondents using cameras, tape recorders and similar reporting devices shall conduct themselves so as not to interfere with the orderly course of the proceedings of the session. Persons registered with the secretary of state as legislative agents shall be ineligible for constitutional convention press credentials.

Naming of acting president.

Rule 8. The president may appoint any delegate to perform the duties of the Chair, but not for a longer time than 1 day without leave of the convention.

Naming of chairman of the committee of the whole.

Rule 9. When the convention shall have decided to go into the committee of the whole, the president shall name a chairman to preside therein.

Voting.

Rule 10. The president may vote in all elections, on all divisions called for by any delegate, and on all questions taken by yeas and nays, except on appeals from his decisions.

Vice Presidents

Powers and duties.

Rule 11. In the temporary absence of the president or his temporary inability to preside, one of the vice presidents designated by the president shall exercise the powers and perform the duties of the president, and shall preside over the convention, unless the president shall have designated a delegate to preside for that day.

Secretary

Roll call.

Rule 12. The secretary shall call the roll at the opening of each session of the convention and announce whether or not a quorum is present. He shall announce the names of the delegates absent with leave of the convention, and the names of delegates absent without leave, and enter the names of all absentees upon the journal. If a voting machine is provided, vote by machine shall be taken whenever a roll call or a vote by yeas and nays is directed by or in accordance with these rules.

Invocation.

Rule 13. The secretary shall arrange for an invocation at the opening of each session of the convention.

Publication, distribution, and correction of journal.

Rule 14. The secretary shall keep a journal of the proceedings of the convention in conformity with the rules, supervise the daily publication thereof, and make such corrections as may be necessary. He shall furnish each delegate a printed copy of the proceedings of the previous day. The journal shall be considered the approved journal of the convention, unless otherwise ordered thereby. The convention reporter shall keep a verbatim record of convention proceedings and shall, within the time prescribed in his appointment by the convention, provide a verbatim transcript of all proceedings had in convention sessions and the sessions of the committee of the whole for duplication and distribution to interested persons.

Order of business.

Rule 15. The secretary shall furnish each delegate daily with a calendar of the business on his desk under each order of business.

Printing and care of delegate proposals and committee proposals.

Rule 16. The secretary shall attend to the printing of all delegate proposals, committee proposals, resolutions, and documents ordered printed by the convention. The secretary shall give to each proposal when introduced, a number, and the numbers shall be in numerical order. When proposals are reported back from committees, they shall be called committee proposals, shall be printed, and shall be numbered in numerical order. The secretary shall cause to be printed at the head of the committee proposal the name of the committee which reported the same and the character and number of any report of the committee respecting the proposal. The secretary shall be responsible to the convention for the care and preservation of each proposal introduced into the convention and committee proposals. Committee proposals shall be kept on file in numerical order, unless otherwise ordered by the convention, and such file shall be called the general orders of the day.

Responsibility for constitution hall.

Rule 17. The secretary shall exercise supervisory care and control of the hall of the convention and all convention rooms and equipment. The secretary shall purchase or rent all necessary equipment, supplies, and postage and arrange for postal, telephone, and telegraph service.

Incapacity of secretary.

Rule 18. In case of the temporary inability of the secretary, from sickness or other cause, to perform the duties of his office, the assistant secretary shall act as secretary until the secretary is able to assume his duties.

Sergeant at Arms

Powers and duties.

Rule 19. The sergeant at arms shall be the chief police officer of the convention. He shall have charge of such assistants as the convention authorizes. He shall attend to the heating, lighting, and ventilation of the constitution hall, committee rooms, and connecting corridors. He shall have authority to serve subpoenas and warrants issued by the convention or any duly authorized officer or committee of the convention, or cause the same to be done by his assistants.

Directors of Research

Duties.

Rule 20. The director of research shall supervise all research and drafting activities of the convention and supervise the employees of the convention engaged in research and drafting.

For rule 20 as amended, see below, page 135.

Employees

Appointment.

Rule 21. The convention by resolution shall designate employee positions and job descriptions, provide salary scales, and provide for the appointment of employees by an officer of the convention or by a committee of the convention.

Chapter III — Delegates

Conduct in debate.

Rule 22. When any delegate is about to speak in debate or present any matter to the convention, he shall rise from his seat, and respectfully address himself to "Mr. President;" he shall not speak until recognized and when recognized he shall confine himself to the question under debate, and avoid personalities.

Delegates called to order.

Rule 23. If any delegate in speaking transgresses the rules of the convention, the president shall, or any delegate may, call him to order; in which case the delegate so called to order shall immediately sit down and shall not rise unless to explain or proceed in order.

Times delegates may speak.

Rule 24. No delegate may speak more than once on the same question without leave of a majority of those present and voting, unless he be the mover of the matter pending or chairman of the committee that reported it, in which case he shall be privileged to speak twice.

Conduct on the floor.

Rule 25. While the president is putting any question, or while the roll is being called or taken by the secretary, no delegate shall walk out of or cross the constitution hall; nor in such case when a delegate is speaking, shall any delegate entertain private discourses or pass between the speaker and the Chair.

Contest of election.

Rule 26. No protest or petition contesting the election of any delegate shall be received or considered unless filed within 10 days after the adoption of this rule.

Chapter IV — Committees

Establishment and meetings.

Rule 27. Committees of the convention and their functions and membership shall be provided by resolution of the convention adopted by a majority of the delegates elected. Committees shall meet at the call of the chairman or upon written request of a majority of the members.

A roll call vote on any matter before a committee shall be taken on demand by any member of the committee.

Each committee shall maintain an action journal of its proceedings.

For rule 27 as amended and adopted, see below, page 135.

Chairman of committee.

Rule 28. The first named member of any committee shall be the chairman, the second named member shall be first vice chairman, and the third named member shall be second vice chairman. The presiding officer of the committee may place under oath or affirmation any person who appears to testify on any matter pending before the committee.

In case of a vacancy or the prolonged absence of the chairman and first vice chairman, the president of the convention shall appoint a chairman to act until the chairman or first vice chairman shall return.

Sitting of committees during sessions of the convention.

Rule 29. No committee shall sit during the sessions of the convention, without special leave of the convention, by a majority vote of those present and voting.

Power to incur expenses.

Rule 30. No committee or delegate shall incur any expenses chargeable to the convention unless authorized by resolution of the convention.

Subcommittees of committees.

Rule 31. A committee, by a majority vote of its number, may provide for the appointment by the committee chairman of subcommittees composed of delegates named to the committee. Reports of subcommittees shall be considered by the entire committee before recommending any action thereon by the convention.

Notice of reports without recommendation.

Rule 32. All committees before reporting without recommendation on any proposal shall notify delegates who have introduced proposals on the same subject matter when and where they may meet such committee to explain the same before the committee reports; such notice to be given by mail in the convention post office or in person 24 hours before so reporting.

Report of committees.

Rule 33. A majority of the members appointed to a committee shall be necessary to report a proposal out of committee. The report of a minority of at least 3 of the members of any committee shall be received, printed in the same manner as the majority report, and treated as an amendment or substitute offered to or for the report of the committee if offered as such on the floor. All proposals reported by a committee to the convention shall be referred to the committee of the whole.

Powers of committees.

Rule 34. Committees may hold public hearings at the seat of the convention and may be authorized by the convention to hold public hearings any place in the state. Committees may take testimony under oath or affirmation. A committee may by resolution of the convention be given the power to subpoena documents and witnesses. A committee may grant the powers here authorized to any subcommittee.

For rule 34 as amended and adopted, see below, page 135.

Consideration of proposals without committee recommendation.

Rule 35. After 1 session days' notice a majority of the delegates elected may by motion require a committee to report any proposal without recommendation.

Chapter V — Committee of the Whole

General orders of the day.

Rule 36. All proposals reported by any committee shall be referred to the committee of the whole and kept in the file called general orders of the day.

For rule 36 as amended, see below, page 135.

Consideration of proposals.

Rule 37. When the convention shall have arrived at the general orders of the day, it shall go into a committee of the whole upon such orders, or a particular order designated by the convention by a majority vote of those present and voting, and no business shall be in order until the whole are considered or passed over, or the committee rise. Unless a particular proposal is ordered up, the committee of the whole shall consider, act upon, or pass over all matters on the general orders according to the order of their reference.

Reading; debate; amendment.

Rule 38. In the committee of the whole proposals shall first be read through by the secretary, and then read, debated, and acted upon by clauses. All amendments shall be entered on separate paper and reported to the convention by the chairman.

Motion that committee of the whole rise.

Rule 39. A motion that the committee of the whole rise shall always be in order unless a member of the committee is speaking or a vote is being taken, and shall be decided without debate by a majority vote of those present and voting.

Reconsideration.

Rule 40. A motion to reconsider shall be in order in the committee of the whole by a majority vote of those present and voting, before the committee shall rise.

Application of convention rules.

Rule 41. The rules of the convention shall be observed in the committee of the whole, so far as they may be applicable, except that it cannot adjourn the convention, the previous question shall not be ordered, the yeas and nays shall not be called, the vote of a majority of the committee shall govern its action, it cannot refer matters to any other committee, and a motion to postpone indefinitely or for a call of the convention shall not be in order. A delegate may speak more than once in the committee of the whole. A journal of the proceedings in committee of the whole shall be kept as in convention.

For rule 41 as amended, see below, page 135.

Chapter VI — Transaction of Business

Order of business.

Rule 42. The order of business of the convention shall be as follows:

1. Call to order.
2. Invocation.
3. Roll call.
4. Reports of standing committees.
5. Reports of select committees.
6. Communications from state officers.
7. Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.
8. Second reading of proposals.
9. Third reading of proposals.
10. Motions and resolutions.
11. Unfinished business.
12. Special orders of the day.
13. General orders of the day.

Petitions

Printing in journal.

Rule 43. No memorial, remonstrance, or petition shall be read or printed in full in the daily journal unless ordered read or printed by a majority vote of those present.

Motions and Resolutions

Stating motions.

Rule 44. When a motion is made, it shall be stated by the president; or, if in writing, it shall be handed to and read aloud by the secretary before being debated.

Every resolution, other than a proposal, shall be submitted in quadruplicate, shall be read by title, and shall be referred to the appropriate committee. When the rules are suspended to permit immediate consideration of a resolution, the resolution shall be read in full before it is considered.

Reduced to writing.

Rule 45. Every motion shall be reduced to writing if the president or any delegate shall request it, and shall be entered upon the journal, together with the name of the delegate making it, unless withdrawn by the maker or ruled out of order by the president.

When in possession; withdrawal.

Rule 46. After a motion has been stated by the president or read by the secretary, it shall be deemed to be in the possession of the convention, but may be withdrawn at any time before being amended or put to a vote.

Precedence of motions.

Rule 47. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but—

1. To fix the time to which to adjourn.
2. To adjourn.
3. To take a recess.
4. To reconsider.
5. To lay on the table.
6. For a call of the convention.
7. To limit debate.
8. For the previous question.
9. To postpone to a day certain.
10. To commit.
11. To amend.
12. To postpone indefinitely.

Such motions shall take precedence in the order in which they stand arranged, and shall be decided by a majority vote of those present and voting, except the motion to postpone indefinitely, which shall be decided by a majority vote of the delegates elected. When a recess is taken during the pendency of any question, the consideration of such question shall be resumed upon reassembling unless otherwise determined. No motion to postpone to a day certain, or to commit, being decided, shall be again allowed on the same day and at the same stage of the question. Whenever a proposal is up for consideration at any stage of procedure, and a motion is made to postpone indefinitely, or to commit, amendments to the proposal shall be in order before taking a vote on any such motion.

Motions not debatable.

Rule 48. A motion to adjourn shall always be in order except when a motion to fix the time to which to adjourn is pending. A motion to adjourn, a motion to lay on the table, and all matters relating to questions of order, shall be decided without debate. A motion for a recess, pending the consideration of other business, shall not be debatable.

Order of putting questions.

Rule 49. All questions shall be put in the order they were moved, except in the case of privileged questions.

Amendments to be germane.

Rule 50. No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of an amendment or substitute.

Division of question.

Rule 51. Any delegate may call for a division of the question, which shall be divided if it comprehends propositions in substance so distinct that one being taken away a substantive proposition shall remain for the decision of the convention. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible.

Motions for the Previous Question

Method of ordering.

Rule 52. The method of ordering the previous question shall be as follows: Any delegate may move the previous question and unless otherwise stated the motion shall apply to the pending question only. This being seconded by at least 10 delegates, the Chair shall put the question, "Shall the main question now be put?" This shall be ordered only by a majority of the delegates present and voting. After the seconding of the previous question and prior to ordering the same, a call of the convention may be moved and ordered, but after ordering the previous question nothing shall be in order prior to the decision of the pending question or questions, except demands for the yeas and nays, points of order, appeals from the decision of the Chair, and a motion to adjourn or to take a recess, which shall be decided without debate. The effect of the previous question shall be to put an end to all debate and bring the convention to a direct vote upon the pending question or questions in their order down to and including the main question: Provided, however, That when the previous question shall be ordered, amendments then on the secretary's desk shall be disposed of. When a motion to reconsider is taken under the previous question and is decided in the affirmative, the previous question shall have no operation upon the question to be reconsidered. If the convention shall refuse to order the previous question, the consideration on the subject shall be resumed as though no motion for the previous question had been made.

Motion for reconsideration.

Rule 53. Any delegate may move for a reconsideration of any question at the same or next succeeding session of the convention or the committee on style and drafting may move for reconsideration on any subsequent day if 1 session days' notice of its intention to do so is given in writing to the secretary, which shall be spread upon the journal. A motion to reconsider shall take precedence of all other questions, except a motion to fix the time to which to adjourn, a motion to adjourn and a motion to recess. No motion to reconsider shall be renewed on the same day.

Motion for Calls of the Convention

Ordering calls of the convention.

Rule 54. Calls of the convention may be ordered upon motion by a majority of the delegates present, but the total vote in favor of such call shall not be less than 15 in number. A motion for a call of the convention shall not be entertained after the previous question is ordered.

Procedure.

Rule 55. After a call of the convention is ordered the doors shall be closed and the delegates shall not be permitted to leave the floor of the convention without permission of the convention. The sergeant at arms shall notify all delegates within the bar of the convention of the call. The roll of the convention shall be called by the secretary and the absentees noted. The sergeant at arms may, upon motion, be dispatched after the absentees. In such case a list of the absentees shall be furnished by the secretary to the sergeant at arms, who shall bring such absentees to the floor of the convention with all possible speed. In case the sergeant at arms shall require assistance in addition to the regularly appointed assistant sergeants at arms of the convention, the president may, upon motion, deputize any person properly qualified as a special assistant sergeant at arms. The convention may proceed to business under a call of the convention pending the arrival of any absentees.

Chapter VII — Proposals

Introduction.

Rule 56. All matters intended to become a part of any revised constitution or constitutional amendment shall be introduced by a delegate or delegates in the form of a proposal and endorsed by the delegate or delegates introducing them. Five copies of any proposal shall be handed to the secretary not later than 3 hours prior to calling the convention to order. All proposals shall be introduced in accordance with the form prescribed by the secretary. Proposals shall be printed and distributed under the direction of the secretary.

For rule 56 as amended, see below, page 135.

Order of consideration.

Rule 57. The regular order to be taken by proposals introduced in the convention shall be as follows:

1. Introduction, first reading by title, reference to a committee by the president, and ordered printed and distributed unless otherwise ordered by a majority of the delegates present.
2. Report of committee and placing on the general orders.
3. Consideration in committee of the whole in order of reference.
4. Report by the committee of the whole and reference to the committee on style and drafting.
5. Report of committee on style and drafting.
6. Second reading, vote on passage.
7. Rereference to committee on style and drafting for incorporation in final draft.
8. Report by committee on style and drafting of any complete revision of or proposed amendment to the constitution.
9. Reference to committee of the whole which shall pass any complete revision or amendment by sections.
10. Report of the committee of the whole and placing on the order of third reading.
11. Third reading and passage of any complete revision by article and as a whole or in the case of any amendment by sections and as a whole.

For rule 57 as amended, see below, page 135.

Majority vote on proposals.

Rule 58. On the passage of every proposal, section, article and any complete revision of or amendment to the constitution, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays, and entered on the journal, and no proposal, section, article or any such amendment or complete revision shall be declared passed unless a majority of all the delegates elected to the convention shall have voted in favor of the passage of the same.

Special Orders

Unfinished special orders.

Rule 59. Any subject matter made the special order for a particular day, not having been reached on that day, shall come up for consideration under the order of unfinished business at the next succeeding session.

Limitation on debate and control of dilatory procedure.

Rule 60. The convention by resolution may limit the time of debate on any subject matter before the convention, designate a method of allocating the period allowed for debate among delegates, and take appropriate action to control dilatory procedure.

Chapter VIII — Miscellaneous

Reading and Endorsement of Papers

Reading.

Rule 61. When the reading of a paper is called for and an objection is raised to such reading, the convention by a majority vote of delegates present and voting shall determine without debate whether or not the paper shall be read.

Presentation and endorsement of petitions.

Rule 62. Petitions received by any officer of the convention or by any delegate may be initialed by the recipient, and by him handed directly to the chairman or clerk of the committee which has the subject matter of the petition under consideration. The chairman of the committee, on behalf of the convention, shall give appropriate notice of the receipt of the petition.

Calls of convention — yeas and nays.

Rule 63. Upon calls of the convention, and in taking the yeas and nays upon any question, the names of the delegates shall be called alphabetically unless a voting machine is provided in which case it shall be used.

Putting the question.

Rule 64. The president shall distinctly put all questions in this form: "As many as are in favor of (as the question may be), say 'aye'" and after the affirmative vote is expressed, "as many as are opposed, say 'no'." If the president doubts, he may order a division of the convention.

A division of the convention may be had on the demand of 10 delegates, or a roll call of the convention may be demanded by a vote of 1/5 of the delegates present on any pending question. When a division of the convention is ordered, the voting machine shall be used and the president shall declare the result. On a tie vote the question shall be deemed as lost.

For rule 64 as amended and adopted, see below, page 136.

Recognition during roll call.

Rule 65. After a question has been stated by the president, and the call of the roll has been started by the secretary, the president shall not recognize a delegate for any purpose, except upon points of order, until after the announcement of the vote by the secretary. The secretary shall enter upon the journal the names of those voting "aye" and the names of those voting "no". Any delegate is privileged to explain in writing his vote on record roll call votes. The written explanation shall be included in the journal if presented to the secretary before the next session of the convention.

Roll call.

Rule 66. At the roll call at the opening of each session and upon calls of the convention, the voting machine shall be used and the absentees noted, after which the names of the absentees shall be called.

For rule 66 as amended, see below, page 136.

Abstaining from vote.

Rule 67. No delegate shall be entitled to abstain from voting in any roll call unless he shall have stated his intention to abstain before the voting starts. Upon any announcement of intention to abstain, the delegate making such announcement, upon request of 5 delegates, may be required to state his reasons.

For rule 67 as amended, see below, page 136.

Amendment or suspensions of rules.

Rule 68. Any rule of the convention may be altered by a majority vote of the delegates elected, but no rules shall be amended unless such amendment is in writing, has been considered by the committee on rules and resolutions and is in the possession of the convention 2 session days prior to its consideration. A rule may be suspended by a vote of 2/3 of the delegates shown to be present by the journal entries.

For rule 68 as amended and adopted, see below, page 136.

Appeals

Form of question.

Rule 69. On all appeals from decisions of the Chair, the question shall be "Shall the judgment of the Chair stand as the judgment of the convention?" which question shall be decided by a majority vote of those present and voting by a recorded machine vote, unless otherwise ordered by the convention.

Debate on appeal.

Rule 70. No delegate shall speak on the question of an appeal more than once without leave of the convention by a majority vote of those present and voting.

Tabling appeals.

Rule 71. An appeal may be laid on the table but shall not carry with it the subject matter before the convention at the time such appeal is taken.

Practice.

Rule 72. In all cases not provided by these rules, the authority shall be Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure.

Appropriations.

Rule 73. No motion or resolution calling for an appropriation or expenditure of money shall be acted upon by the convention without first having been referred to some appropriate committee for consideration and recommendation.

Method of Voting

Voting by the electrical roll call system.

Rule 74. When taking the yeas and nays on any question to be voted upon, the electrical roll call system may be used, and when so used shall have the same force and effect as a roll call taken as otherwise provided in these rules.

When the convention is ready to vote upon any question requiring a roll call, and the vote is to be taken by the electrical roll call system, the presiding officer shall announce:

"The question is on the passage of (designating the matter to be voted upon). All in favor of such question shall vote 'yea', all opposed shall vote 'nay'. The convention will now proceed to vote."

When sufficient time has been allowed the delegates to vote, the presiding officer shall announce: "Have all voted?" And after a short pause shall say: "The secretary shall proceed to record the vote."

The secretary shall immediately start the vote recording equipment, and when completely recorded, shall announce the result to the convention. The secretary shall enter upon the journal the result in the manner provided by the rules of the convention.

Any delegate shall be privileged to vote or change his vote after the vote recording equipment has started to operate, by rising in his seat and announcing his vote before the result of the vote has been announced by the secretary.

No delegate shall vote for another delegate, nor shall any person not a delegate cast a vote for a delegate. In addition to such penalties as may be prescribed by law, any delegate who shall vote or attempt to vote for another delegate may be punished in such manner as the convention may determine. If a person not a delegate shall vote or attempt to vote for any delegate, he shall be barred from the floor of the convention for the remainder of the session and may be further punished in such manner as the convention may deem proper, in addition to such punishment as may be prescribed by law.

* * * *

Rules 4, 20, 27, 34, 36, 41, 56, 57, 64, 66, 67 and 68 of the foregoing rules were later amended by the convention. Following are these rules in their amended form, together with the date amended:

Rule 4 (as amended October 17, 1961.)

Officers of the convention.

Rule 4. The officers of the convention shall be a president, 3 vice presidents, a secretary, a sergeant at arms, and 3 codirectors of research to be selected as determined by resolution of the convention adopted by a majority of the delegates elected. The president and vice presidents shall be delegates. The salaries of nondelegate officers shall be fixed by resolution of the convention.

Rule 20 (as amended October 17, 1961.)

Duties.

Rule 20. The directors of research shall supervise all research and drafting activities of the convention and supervise the employees of the convention engaged in research and drafting.

Rule 27 (as amended October 10, 1961.)

Establishment and meetings.

Rule 27. Committees of the convention and their functions and membership shall be provided by resolution of the convention adopted by a majority of the delegates elected. Committees shall meet at the call of the chairman or upon written request of a majority of the members.

A recorded roll call vote on any matter before a committee shall be taken on demand by any member of the committee.

Each committee shall maintain an action journal of all of its proceedings and a calendar, which shall be available to news media and interested members of the public.

Rule 34 (as amended October 11, 1961.)

Powers of committees.

Rule 34. Committees may hold public hearings at the seat of the convention and may be authorized by the convention to hold public hearings any place in the state. Committees may take testimony under oath or affirmation. A committee may by resolution of the convention be given the power to subpoena documents and witnesses. Any witness so subpoenaed shall have the right to be represented by counsel of his own choosing. A committee may grant the powers here authorized to any subcommittee. All committee meetings shall be open to the public unless otherwise authorized by the convention by a majority vote of the delegates elected. A committee may direct a verbatim record of any portion of its proceedings.

Rule 36 (as amended November 27, 1961.)

General orders of the day.

Rule 36. All proposals reported by any committee shall be referred to the committee of the whole and kept in the file called general orders of the day. No committee proposal shall be considered by the committee of the whole until the third day following the day of its reference to the committee of the whole.

Rule 41 (as amended April 2, 1962.)

Application of convention rules.

Rule 41. The rules of the convention shall be observed in the committee of the whole, so far as they may be applicable, except that it cannot adjourn the convention, the previous question shall not be ordered, the vote of a majority of the committee shall govern its action, it cannot refer matters to any other committee, and a motion to postpone indefinitely or for a call of the convention shall not be in order. A delegate may speak more than once in the committee of the whole. A journal of the proceedings in committee of the whole shall be kept as in convention. When the committee of the whole reports to the convention, the actions of the committee of the whole shall be accepted.

Rule 56 (as amended October 26, 1961.)

Introduction.

Rule 56. All matters intended to become a part of any revised constitution or constitutional amendment shall be introduced by a delegate or delegates in the form of a proposal and endorsed by the delegate or delegates introducing them, or shall originate as committee proposals. Five copies of any proposal shall be handed to the secretary not later than 3 hours prior to calling the convention to order. All proposals shall be introduced in accordance with the form prescribed by the secretary. Proposals shall be printed and distributed under the direction of the secretary.

Rule 57 (as amended March 7, 1962.)

Order of consideration.

Rule 57. The regular order to be taken by proposals introduced in the convention shall be as follows:

1. Introduction, first reading by title, reference to a committee by the president, and ordered printed and distributed unless otherwise ordered by a majority of the delegates present.

2. Report of committee and placing on the general orders.

3. Consideration in committee of the whole in order of reference.

4. Report by the committee of the whole and reference to the committee on style and drafting.

5. Report of committee on style and drafting.

6. Second reading, vote on passage.

7. Rereference to committee on style and drafting for incorporation in final draft.

8. Report by committee on style and drafting of any complete revision of or proposed amendment to the constitution.

9. Third reading and passage of any complete revision by article and as a whole or in the case of any amendment by sections and as a whole.

Rule 64 (as amended October 11, 1961.)

Putting the question.

Rule 64. The president shall distinctly put all questions in this form: "As many as are in favor of (as the question may be), say 'aye' " and after the affirmative vote is expressed, "as many as are opposed, say 'no'." If the president doubts, he may order a division of the convention.

A division of the convention may be had on the demand of 10 delegates, or a roll call of the convention may be demanded by a vote of 1/5 of the delegates present on any pending question. When a division of the convention is ordered, a rising vote shall be taken or the voting machine may be used, if provided, and the president shall declare the result. On a tie vote the question shall be deemed as lost.

Rule 66 (as amended October 11, 1961.)

Roll call.

Rule 66. At the roll call at the opening of each session and upon calls of the convention, the names of the members shall be called by the secretary, or the voting machine shall be used if provided and the absentees noted, after which the names of the absentees shall be called.

Rule 67 (as amended October 10, 1961.)

Abstaining from vote.

Rule 67. No delegate shall be entitled to abstain from voting in any roll call unless he shall have stated his intention to abstain before the voting starts. He may voluntarily state his reasons for such abstention. Upon any announcement of intention to abstain, the delegate making such announcement, upon request of 5 delegates, may be required to state his reasons.

Rule 68 (as amended October 10, 1961.)

Amendment or suspension of rules.

Rule 68. The rules of the convention may be amended by a majority vote of the delegates elected, but no rules shall be amended unless such amendment is in writing, has been considered by the committee on rules and resolutions and is in the possession of the convention 2 session days prior to its consideration. A rule may be suspended by a vote of 2/3 of the delegates shown to be present by the journal entries.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Now, Mr. President, I should like to explain briefly the procedure which the committee has followed in preparing this recommendation.

At the second session of the convention last Wednesday, we announced that the committee would meet on Thursday and on Friday if necessary to consider proposed rules, and that we would use as a basis for our discussion the rules prepared by the governor's preparatory commission. We invited at that time the attendance of any interested delegate and any interested persons to make comments and suggestions with respect to the content of these rules. We met all day on Thursday, and we were favored with comments and suggestions from a number of delegates who attended that meeting. We also had the benefit of the comments and advice of Professor Pierce, the draftsman of the preparatory commission rules, and of course we had the assistance throughout of our own secretary, Mr. Chase. We went through the proposed rules prepared by the preparatory commission one by one and we either adopted them as a part of the report as they had been proposed or we recommended changes and then adopted them as amended.

Now, over the weekend Mr. Chase and his staff prepared our preliminary report which you had on your desks last night, which showed the preparatory commission rules and all changes in those preparatory commission rules recommended by the committee on permanent organization and rules.

Monday afternoon the committee met again and began its second trip through the rules and this resulted in a few changes which were embodied in the preliminary report which was on the desk of each of the delegates last night.

You will recall that last night we announced that the preliminary report was on your desks, that the committee would be happy to have questions at that time, that the committee would meet at 9:00 o'clock this morning and complete its consideration of the rules and we asked any of you who had questions or suggestions to meet with us at that time and give us the benefit of your comments.

Fortunately, a good many of the delegates did attend our committee meeting this morning. We had the benefit of a number of their suggestions which in many cases have been incorporated in the proposed report.

On your desks this afternoon you have not only the report which you were furnished last night, but you also have 8 additional sheets reflecting the changes adopted by the committee in its report as a result of its deliberations this morning. In most cases these are very simple, insignificant changes. There are few of them that are of importance.

Now, Mr. President, the committee is aware that many of the delegates are not fully familiar with parliamentary procedure as it is outlined in these rules and that many of the delegates may have questions with respect to the rules. Therefore, before moving the adoption of the rules, I would like to ask that any delegates who have questions please ask them at this time. The members of the committee on permanent organization and rules will attempt to answer them, with the assistance of our secretary, and after we have had all the questions and not before, Mr. President, I will then move the adoption of the rules.

I would like now, with your permission, to open the matter to questions with respect to the rules.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: I have an inquiry on rule 27 on page 28, which refers to the roll call. Through the Chair, may I ask Mr. Van Dusen if the implication is that it be a recorded roll call vote?

MR. VAN DUSEN: That is the intention, Mr. Downs, of the committee on permanent organization and rules, yes.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, may I ask that if that is the intention, the chairman of the committee make that recommendation as part of his report.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The secretary points out to me, Mr. Downs, that the next line of the proposed rule requires that each committee shall maintain an action journal of its proceedings. It would seem to me that this would necessarily require the recording of roll call votes.

MR. DOWNS: I think it would but I think some of us who aren't as astute in some of these matters would feel better if the term "recorded" were before the word "roll call".

MR. VAN DUSEN: I would move, then, if there is no objection, Mr. President, that the word "recorded" be inserted before the word "roll call" in the report of the committee as you have it before you.

MR. DOWNS: Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there objection?

Mr. Suzore.

MR. SUZORE: Some of the delegates in the back of the hall do not have the supplement. We are without the supplement.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Well, Mr. Suzore, that is an oversight I guess on the part of the sergeant at arms, and we will try to get them to you promptly. I can indicate to you, I think, the changes which were recommended by the committee this morning.

The first is a change in rule 7 as proposed. It appears in the last sentence of that section and it deals with the question of press credentials for lobbyists. As the rule was proposed originally, it stated that persons registered with the secretary of state as legislative agents or who are engaged at any time during the 1961-1962 legislature or the constitutional convention as legislative agents shall be ineligible for constitutional convention press credentials.

It was the feeling of the committee this morning that since the secretary of state requires current annual registration of legislative agents, it would be sufficient simply to require or to provide that persons registered with the secretary of state as legislative agents shall be ineligible for constitutional convention press credentials. And that is the first of the recommendations.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen, on Mr. Down's suggestion, has offered the following amendment:

1. Amend rule 27, second paragraph, line 1, after the first "a" by inserting "recorded".

The question is on the amendment. If there are no objections, it will be adopted.

Hearing none, the amendment is adopted.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, if I may, I will, for the benefit of those members who may not have the insert sheets, cover the remaining 7 of them as quickly as I can.

Rule 27, which Mr. Downs just alluded to, the committee recommends the addition at the end of the proposed rule of two sentences as follows: first, a recorded roll call vote on any matter before a committee shall be taken on demand by any member of the committee. Each committee shall maintain an action journal of its proceedings. This is new language added to rule 27.

The next rule to which changes are proposed which you may not have is rule 32. All of the additions are in line 2. The line as amended would read ". . . any proposal shall notify delegates who have introduced proposals on the same subject matter when and where they may meet such committee . . . " . The problem there was the question of being sure that adequate notice was given to any delegate who had a proposal in a committee before the committee reported those proposals without recommendation. The purpose is to be sure everyone has adequate notice.

Rule 33. A rather substantial change was recommended by the committee. The proposal initially was that the report of a minority of ¼ of the members of any committee shall be received and printed, and so forth. At its meeting this morning the committee recommended an amendment of that, that the report of a minority of at least 3 members of any committee shall be received, printed, and so forth. Thus, with respect to a 27 man committee, for example, as few as 3 members might require the printing of a minority report.

Rule 39. I think the change was fairly simple. The committee recommended the insertion of some language in the second line. I will read the whole rule as it is proposed to be amended.

> A motion that the committee of the whole rise shall always be in order unless a member of the committee is speaking or a vote is being taken, and shall be decided without debate by a majority vote of those present and voting.

The purpose of that change is simply to preclude a motion that the committee rise in the middle of a delegate's remarks or while a vote was being taken.

The next proposed change was in rule 42 dealing with the order of business. The change appears in item 7, "Introduction and first reading of proposals." It was felt that to make this conform to the anticipated practice it should read "Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals", because after a proposal is introduced, it is contemplated that it will be referred by the president to the appropriate committee.

Rule 45. A grammatical change for clarity was inserted. This deals in part with withdrawal of motions, and the second to the last line was amended to read, "unless withdrawn by the maker or ruled out of order by the president." This was designed to eliminate any ambiguity as to whether the president had the right to withdraw any motion and to make it clear that only the maker had the right to withdraw.

Then in rule 47, dealing with the precedence of motions, 2 changes were recommended: one, the order of precedence of a motion for a call of the convention was moved from number 8 up to number 6, so that it would come immediately after a motion to lay on the table and immediately before a motion to limit debate. This was designed to eliminate what appeared to be a conflict between the provisions of rule 47 and the provisions of rule 52 dealing with the circumstances which might be presented where a call of the convention was requested at the time the previous question had been moved.

Many of the members of the committee expressed concern that a very few members of the convention might cut off debate by calling for the previous question. It was indicated that by moving the call of the convention up in the order of precedence, then a call of the convention could be put on, precluding the termination of debate by a minority of the members.

The only other change in rule 47 was one of grammar. In the second to the last line we inserted the word "postpone" in front of "indefinitely" instead of after it so it reads "to postpone indefinitely" instead of "to indefinitely postpone". This is simply designed to conform to the terminology used earlier in the section.

I think, Mr. Suzore, this covers each of the proposed changes which were made this morning and which you may not have on your desk. Now, if there are other questions we will be happy to try and deal with them.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Powell.

MR. POWELL: I imagine the committee gave very careful thought to this one matter, but in the latter part of rule 7 relative to the assignment of seats in the press box I read these words: ". . . . no news agency shall be assigned more than 1 desk in the press gallery."

Now, of course, the larger press services—the State Journal, the Detroit newspapers—have a corps of newsmen assigned here. I see all the space is taken right now. I don't know whether we have that many papers and press services represented or whether there is some duplication, but I should think that to the limit of our facilities we ought to grant opportunity for these gentlemen of the press that are trying to cover this convention.

I haven't discussed this matter with any member of the committee. I don't know just how that stands but I caught that and I thought I would raise that point.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Powell, in the committee's consideration of this rule, we had the benefit of the comment and the advice of the several members of the press who were there covering our work. I do not wish to speak for them but at the time they raised no objection to any of the language of the rule as it is proposed here.

Of course, to be completely fair, to the extent that we have limited facilities inadequate to fulfill all requests for space, it seemed reasonable to allot each of the several agencies space before allotting more than one to any individual agency.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any other questions?

Mrs. Hatcher.

MRS. HATCHER: I would like the right to comment on rule 7 as it deals with newspaper coverage. I agree with the previous comments of the gentleman who just commented on the filled press gallery. Just a few moments ago, one of the press men who lives in the district that I represent was here and wanted to be seated. Of course, I assured him that we were about to discuss the very rules that covered his problem.

I do believe that some consideration should be given in terms of offering accommodations to representatives of weekly newspapers, religious groups and various other reporters who will be coming to cover special sessions during our deliberations. I realize the physical arrangements here and I recognize it to be a problem, but I do think wherever it is necessary and when it is necessary that these people should be given some consideration to be seated and to also be given a place to do their work.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Certainly the committee is in agreement with your position, Mrs. Hatcher, and it is for that reason that the recommended rule leaves to the representatives of the press themselves, a committee of 5, the responsibility of accreditation and working out the availability of facilities for the members of the press. We felt that they were best aware of their own problems in their attempt to cover our deliberations and that it would be wisest to refer the matter to them.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further discussion?

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mrs. Hatcher, I had something to do with the drafting of this rule. It is modeled after the house rule, or the way we would like to see the house rule set up. It provides for a committee of 5 correspondents. This committee and the president will assign temporary and permanent press cards.

There are transient reporters who come in for a day or two or a week. The office of the president, after consultation with the chairman of the press committee, will then issue a permanent card if the person is to stay on, or a temporary card if they will be here only on a temporary basis.

Each news agency was assigned one desk, and the rest of the desks in the second row, as I understand it, are available for transient—maybe that's not a good word—temporary news correspondents. That was the thinking in this particular rule.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President, I want to direct a point of information to Mr. Van Dusen through the Chair. I am somewhat confused as to the interpretation of rule 34 on page 35 which deals with the powers of committees. The question is, number 1, does this imply that the sessions of the committees will not be open to the public and to the press? And number 2, if this is the implication, is the discretion left to the chairman of the committee as to whether or not the committee should go into executive session, or does this imply that the committee itself by majority vote make this determination?

I am aware of the fact that there were some amendments offered to this rule in the committee hearings. It is not quite clear in my mind as to whether or not this rule permits executive sessions at the discretion of the chairman or at the discretion of the committee itself. I would like a clarification on it.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Marshall, I would be glad to try and clarify it for you. In the first place, the rule itself contains no implication one way or the other. The rule is simply designed to provide for authorization by the convention to committees to hold public hearings at places other than the seat of the convention here in Lansing.

As Mr. Marshall points out, there were amendments offered to this section designed either to provide specifically that committees might hold socalled executive sessions, or designed to provide that they might not under any circumstances hold executive sessions. Each classification of amendment was not carried and consequently the rules are silent on the question of the right of committees to exclude the press or to conduct private sessions.

There is no rule in this regard one way or the other. It is, I believe, the opinion of the committee that in the absence of such rule, it would be the prerogative of a majority of the committee, if it chose to do so—not the prerogative of the chairman—to hold sessions in private. I would simply suggest that, from the experience of the committee on permanent organization and rules in dealing with this question, a committee which chose to do so would have to have awfully good reasons and would do so at its peril.

MR. MARSHALL: That answers the question but I am still in the dark. Maybe I am being somewhat thickheaded and I think Mr. Van Dusen's explanation is clear, but I cannot understand leaving the proposal without at least the convention as a whole determining whether or not they desire open sessions of the committee meetings or whether they desire to permit committees to call executive sessions at the discretion of a majority of the committee.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. President, I would like to speak to the same point. Mr. Van Dusen, the chairman of the committee, has stated as his opinion here and also in the committee that rule 34 as it is presently written does not preclude the power of the committee to hold open meetings or closed meetings or to conduct the meetings in any way they see fit, generally speaking.

At the same time I recall at the previous time the question was raised, which was, I believe, last Thursday—the first time we discussed it—it was left in the same form as it is now and and at that point the understanding or the interpretation of the rule was that there was no power given by this rule or by any other rule to the committee to hold executive sessions and that the only powers that were given to the committees, other than those that may be expressly listed here or in Mason's rules, that there was no power granted, and therefore, in order for the committee to have that power, it would have to ask for that power by a resolution of the convention.

Now, since that time, we have also provided or proposed a rule which has to do with amendment of the rules and that rule—I don't have the number in front of me—that rule provides that a resolution would not be sufficient to amend the rules but it would have to go to a committee. Therefore, if an amendment of the rules would be necessary in order to permit this, there is a third possibility. As as result there are 3 different possible interpretations of this rule insofar as executive sessions are concerned.

In addition to that, I have discussed the matter further with delegates during the lunch hour and since the committee meeting, and additional ideas have been proposed which have not as yet come before the committee which I believe merit consideration. They are not prepared in final form to be brought here as yet and, as a result, I would ask the chairman of the committee whether he would be agreeable to delaying action on this particular rule, rule 34, and resubmit it to the committee for further action tomorrow.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The chairman of the committee would have no objection to that proposal. Certainly if this rule is to be a controversial one, it is wise to have that controversy as thoroughly thrashed out in committee as possible, and certainly it should not delay our consideration of the other rules. I speak only for myself in this regard. The other members of the committee obviously have not had an opportunity to consider it other than Dr. Nord who is a member of the committee.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there other discussion?

Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I have before me both rule 27 and rule 34. Rule 27 is the only other place that I find where the general powers of committees are discussed and, as has already been stated, it appears to be the belief of the majority of the committee on permanent organization and rules that as the rules now stand, each committee has inherently within its power, under normal parliamentary procedure, the power to vote by a simple majority of a quorum of that committee, which I understand from the discussion I overheard in the rules committee, is provided in these rules to be a majority of the members of the committee and that in the exercise of this inherent power, they could determine to hold one or more, or a series of executive sessions.

Coupled with this, in rule 34 we have the subpoena power. Now, I don't know that anyone in this room presently contemplates this possibility, but it would seem to me to be an eminently possible situation that might frequently occur, or might occur, not frequently, at least once, to the embarrassment of this delegation, that people would be subpoenaed before a committee, the public and the press excluded, and the committee proceed with its business. This is one aspect.

The second aspect frames itself in a question I ask myself. I can't understand—in searching my mind, I cannot find a single laudable motive for seeking to exclude either the public or the press from the deliberations of any standing committee of this convention. It appears to me that from the outset the attitude of all of the delegates I have talked to and this includes the people I have had the pleasure of meeting here from other parts of the state from that which I represent— has been that they are here to do a job for the state of Michigan, and that they want the people to know what is going on here.

I believe that it goes without saying that the principal business of this convention, the real meat of the provisions that the people of this state are going to be asked to adopt or at least to consider when we finish our deliberations here, are going to be discussed far more fully and by people in many instances more expert in the fields being discussed than those of us who are delegates, at the committee level than they will be here on the floor of this convention, and it would seem to me that this is the place that the public is entitled to view, this is the forum that the public should have the opportunity of viewing in every respect, and it would seem to me that, regardless of how we rationalize it, when the rules fail to provide direction from this body to the committees, what we are doing is saying to the committees, "We are in effect giving you the authority to do this if you in the particular committee see fit to do so".

Now, the difficulty arises — it's been suggested to me by members of the rules committee — that should there be any abuses of this privilege, should it prove to be embarrassing or should prove not in the best interests of the convention, that we could then, at that time, adopt a resolution or rules change here. But this necessitates a considerable amount of parliamentary maneuvering because such a proposal, as has been stated by Dr. Nord, would have to go back to the same committee which has previously, as I am now informed by the previous speakers, on 2 occasions refused to adopt such a rule.

So as a practical matter, we either decide now that we want these committee hearings to be open to the public and the press and we want the people of the state of Michigan to know everything that goes on up here, or we decide that, by failure to act and failure to face the responsibility of a decision at this time, we are never going to do anything during the course of this convention to change the situation as it now exists in the rules, and I oppose the adoption of these rules at this time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further discussion?

Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, of course Mr. Ford was not present at all of the discussions that went on in the committee on rules so he did not hear all of the comments that were made.

I think the decision of the committee — and it was discussed at great length, and backwards and forwards — was that exactly the thing should happen which Mr. Ford would like to see happen, which I think the rest of us would like to see happen, that is, that the deliberations of these committees should be public, that there should be every opportunity for the public to know what was going on in these committees. I am sure that was the result of the committee action on several votes that were taken, and for that reason it seems to me that the decision or the course that we should follow here should be the support of the rule as it is presently proposed.

I think it is perfectly clear from discussion throughout this convention that committee chairmen, as Mr. Van Dusen says, will proceed at their peril. I think you might say that they will think a long time before they call an executive session and, if they do consider such a matter, will want to bring the matter before the convention for approval. For that reason I believe the rule should be supported as the committee has voted it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Mr. President, I have 2 suggestions to make with respect to these rules. The first relates to rule 12 and rule 63, both of which evidently were drafted before it was known whether or not a voting machine would be available. In each rule it states that if a voting machine is available, the votes shall be taken by such a machine.

Therefore, I offer the following amendment:

1. Amend the last sentence of rule 12 by striking the first clause "If a voting machine is provided" and adding in the next to the last line between the words "vote by" and "machine" the word "voting" so that it will read "Vote by voting machine shall be taken whenever a roll call or a vote by yeas and nays is directed by or in accordance with these rules.".

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Woolfenden, the committee on permanent organization and rules gave careful consideration to these rules which were, as you suggest, drafted before the draftsmen knew whether or not a voting machine would be available.

However, in the course of our discussions 2 possibilities suggested themselves. One, it is possible that the convention might on some occasion meet in a place other than constitution hall where a voting machine was not available. Second, and more likely, it is possible that on some occasion the voting machine may not be functioning properly, as the secretary advises me was just the case, and under each of those circumstances it seems desirable that the rules make some provision for an alternative method of voting.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Elsewhere in the rules you have amended it to make it mandatory, so I think that should be changed back then. I think the rules should be consistent. That's the only thing I am speaking for.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment of Mr. Woolfenden. Is there any further discussion on that question? Mr. Woolfenden's amendment will be read by the secretary.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Woolfenden offers the following amendment:

1. Amend rule 12, the last sentence of the rule by striking out the words "If a voting machine is provided", and start the next line with the word "Vote" with a capital "V", so that it will read "Vote by voting machine shall be taken whenever a roll call or a vote by yeas and nays is directed by or in accordance with these rules."

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: A similar amendment to rule 63 I think should be voted on at the same time as follows:

2. Amend rule 63, the last clause of the sentence to strike the words "the names of the delegates shall be called alphabetically unless . . .", and then add before "voting machine" the word "the" and after "voting machine" the word "which" so that it reads "the voting machine which is provided in which case it shall be used."

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Woolfenden offers the following amendment:

2. Amend rule 63 so that it will read "Rule 63. Upon calls of the convention, and in taking the yeas and nays upon any question, the voting machine which" — I am sorry. I missed this, Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: I may have misspoken, Mr. Chase. It should read, "the voting machine which is provided shall be used". That is the way it should read after the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: So the language shall read "Upon calls of the convention, and in taking the yeas and nays upon any question, the voting machine which is provided shall be used."

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: I would like to ask either the chairman of the committee on permanent organization and rules or Mr. Woolfenden to point out whether these rules are inconsistent in this respect. I think if they are inconsistent that is one thing, but on the other hand if they are not, that is another thing. I for one would like to know before I vote.

MR. VAN DUSEN: In the opinion of the committee, the rules are generally consistent. There may be possibly one rule where no alternative provision is made to the use of the voting machine, but it was the intent of the committee generally to permit that alternative to provide for such occasions as might arise when the voting machine might not be functioning.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: I invite the chairman's attention to rule 64 which reads in the final sentence: "When a division of the convention is ordered, the voting machine shall be used and the president shall declare the result." My amendments are to correct the inconsistency in these rules.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I agree that Mr. Woolfenden has pointed out an inconsistency which I would suggest might conceivably exist. It would be the opinion of the committee, I believe, that rule 64 be amended rather than the rules suggested by Mr. Woolfenden.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendments of Mr. Woolfenden. Is there further discussion?

Mr. Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: I would like to make one inquiry, Mr. President. Is there an outside possibility that any sessions of the convention will be held in a different location? If this were so, however brief, it might mean that you would have to take a roll call by voice vote.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. President, I should like to ask this question with regard to both rule 12 and 63; does this preclude voting in the manner in which we have been voting?

MR. VAN DUSEN: This does not, Mr. Higgs.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: Mr. President, I would like to move that these particular rules, rules 12, 63 and 64, be referred back to the committee on permanent organization and rules to eliminate any inconsistency on this point.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Romney's motion to rerefer. Is there any discussion?

Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: I would like to support that motion. My only brief is for consistency in the rules.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further discussion? The question is on the motion to rerefer rules 12, 63 and 64. All those in favor of the motion say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Mr. President, I have one more motion I would like to make on rule 41.

Rule 41 has to do with the rules of the committee of the whole and provides in part that the rules of the convention shall be observed in the committee of the whole so far as they are applicable with certain additional qualifications.

Now, rule 60 of the convention rules provides that the convention by resolution may limit the time of debate on any subject matter before the convention, designate a method of allocating the period allowed for debate among delegates, and take appropriate action to control dilatory procedure. I think that is a very important provision of the rules relating to the convention.

A similar rule or provision is not included in rule 41 relating to the committee of the whole, and I believe that there is at least some question as to whether or not under rule 41 and the other rules relating to the committee of the whole we would be powerless to stop a filibuster which I think we certainly should be in a position to do. I therefore offer the following amendment:

1. Amend rule 41 next to the last sentence, by adding a sentence to read as follows: "Before a proposal shall be considered by the committee of the whole, any delegate (the chairman of the general standing committee in charge of the proposal having prior right) shall be privileged to move a limitation upon the time of debate and consideration by the committee, and the convention may fix in advance of consideration, a time for the committee to rise and report.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Woolfenden, would you bring a copy of that up, please?

Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: A point of information. With the motion and the amendment, I became slightly confused. I understood Mr. Romney's motion to refer this back to the committee on rules, and then I understood Mr. Woolfenden's amendment to restrict our voting to a voting machine. I understood also that the Chair ruled that both the motion and the amendment passed. Is that correct?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Chase tells me that the question is now rereferred to the committee for them to report back to the convention.

Mr. Habermehl.

MR. HABERMEHL: Mr. President, a point of information. Back to rule 34, we note that—

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Habermehl, may we finish discussing this particular one first?

Let's have a reading of the amendment first.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Woolfenden has offered the following amendment:

1. Amend rule 41, following the next to the last sentence which reads "A delegate may speak more than once in the committee of the whole.", by inserting "Before a proposal shall be considered by the committee of the whole, any delegate (the chairman of the general standing committee in charge of the proposal having prior right) shall be privileged to move a limitation upon the time of debate and consideration by the committee, and the convention may fix in advance of consideration, a time for the committee to rise and report.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: I rise to speak against the amendment.

When the rules relating to the committee of the whole were brought up in the committee on rules, the question of whether we should have a committee of the whole was raised. At that point, I couldn't see any particular reason why we needed a committee of the whole. It is nothing but a legal fiction and I see no reason why it is important. But the explanation was given that we ought to have a committee of the whole because the rules of debate were much freer and there was no way to limit debate in the committee of the whole. That was the reason for the committee of the whole. If it were not for that, we might as well eliminate the committee of the whole.

Now, if we have a committee of the whole and there is a possibility of limiting debate, it seems to me we simply have 2 different procedures in each of which you can limit debate. The only difference would be you can't move the previous question, but in any event you can limit debate in both.

My feeling is that a committee of the whole is of no value if you can limit debate. Therefore I speak against the amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Woolfenden's amendment.

Mr. Pellow.

MR. PELLOW: I also rise to speak against this amendment. When I was in this committee meeting this morning, it was my understanding that we would, at least the minority, have the right to express our views before this convention and not be gagged, and I say it is dangerous to this convention, that if this rule proposed is allowed to be put into effect, that the minority will have no chance, not because I am from the minority party, the democratic party, but I am also a minority from the upper peninsula, and I would appreciate having the privilege of stating my minority position. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I would like to make, if I might, Mr. President, one comment with respect to the proposed amendment. Mr. Woolfenden indicated that its purpose was to preclude filibuster. I would suggest that there is a very simple motion already provided to accomplish that purpose which goes like this: Mr. President, I move that the committee do now rise.

That is my only comment. I take no particular position for or against.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: I think the committee was very well aware of the fact that there was both a minority, and a minority from the upper peninsula, and it was our desire to make it possible for the freest kind of debate in the committee of the whole, and that's the reason that the rule is drafted in the way that it is. I therefore urge that the delegates accept the rule as it is, because that's exactly what it is designed to do.

I don't believe, particularly in the light of Mr. Van Dusen's comment, that there can be any real filibuster in the situation, but there should be an opportunity for active debate on both sides and for both sides to fully state their case.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: Delegate Ostrow from Wayne county. My comments are directed more to the way we are proceeding then to any particular issue.

We have these rules. The committee on rules studied them, worked on them for a long time. We were given the rules last night to study. Now we get amendments on the floor. They are oral. You hardly hear them. You don't have a chance to understand them. A lot of the amendments practically reverse the previous rules.

I would suggest this. Let's find out what rules anyone suggests any amendments to. Let's pass the rules to which there are no amendments or objections, and then let's get all of the amendments. Let's get them in writing so that we understand them, read them, and then discuss them.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Woolfenden's amendment. Any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

Mr. Habermehl.

MR. HABERMEHL: I think I am back in order now. On rule 34, I note that the committees have the power to administer oaths and the power to subpoena documents and witnesses. As a point of information, I would like to ask the committee on rules if this also contemplates that the committee shall also have power to enforce its subpoena powers. I know of no statutory provision that would give it that right unless it is adopted in the rule.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Habermehl, it was the opinion of the committee, I believe, that any enforcement action not specifically provided for in the rules — and there is some specific provision with respect to enforcement of subpoena in the rules — but any action not specifically contemplated in the rules would have to be taken by resolution of the entire convention. not just the committee.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: In view of the fact that considerable discussion, confusion and ambiguity exist with respect to rule 34, not particularly in the connection that was just raised but in connection with the executive session problem — whether they should be allowed or whether they are allowed under the rule — I move to recommit rule 34 to the committee on permanent organization and rules for further consideration.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Nord's motion.

Mr. Bledsoe.

MR. BLEDSOE: I second that motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Nord's motion that rule 34 be recommitted to the committee. Is there any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no. The Chair is in doubt. We will use the voting machine. All those in favor of Mr. Nord's motion to recommit rule 34. vote aye. Those opposed vote no. Have you all voted? The secretary will lock the machine and tally the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: On Mr. Nord's motion that rule 34 be rereferred to the committee, the yeas are 89, the nays are 50.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The motion prevails.

Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I would like to discuss for a moment rule 33. I am in some sympathy with the change that was made from yesterday which yesterday required a minority of at least ¼ of the members, and which on the smaller committees would have made it a requirement that a minimum of 4 members submit a minority report. I am not in sympathy with a report which requires only 3 for a committee as large as 27.

I have an amendment which I gave to the secretary which I would like to have read.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The secretary will read Mr. Elliott's amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. A. G. Elliott's amendment to rule 33 is as follows:

1. Amend rule 33, line 3, by striking out "at least 3" and inserting "at least 1/5".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: This would require only 3 in those committees of 15. It would require 4 in those committees of 21, and would require 5 in those committees of 27. This seems to be a more logical progression when you are talking in terms of a minority report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Elliott's amendment.

Mr. Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: I should like to support that.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. President, I should like to oppose the amendment. As a matter of fact, I should like to oppose the insertion that is in the report. I believe that the recommendation of Mr. Pierce's committee ought to be the one to be accepted by this body.

I think if there is any quality of this body, it ought to be deliberativeness, and by that I mean that every relevant consideration with regard to matters of substance ought to have its day in court before a deliberative body. I believe that the convictions and conscience of each member of this body are equivalent in value to every other member of this body. And that if some person, any person, any delegate is moved to write a report to express his conscience and convictions about a constitutional provision that will be serving this state for several decades, he ought to have an unequivocal right to do so. I don't think that any infraction or any mitigation of the deliberative process would be endured by this body by providing that unequivocal right of conscience and conviction on the part of any delegate who wishes to express himself in a formal fashion by writing a report and getting the cogency and efficacy of his arguments before this body.

I therefore oppose Mr. Elliott's amendment and, if anything, I should like to have the original Professor Pierce rule before us so that any person at any time who feels moved to express himself to the people of this state and to this body on any relevant consideration ought to have a right to do so.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there any further discussion?

MR. VAN DUSEN: I might express the views of the committee to the extent that they were in agreement with respect to this point.

First, quite obviously any member of this body can offer an amendment to a committee proposal when the committee proposal is before the delegates for discussion and action. Therefore, the only consequence of the rule as proposed is that the minority members of a committee, a minority as small as 3, might have the privilege not only of offering an amendment, but of having their report printed in the journal along with the report of a majority of the committee and given the same dignity that the majority report has as such. In the absence of any rule with respect to minority reports, the opportunity would still be present for any individual delegate to offer individual amendments to any committee proposal. So even if no minority report were provided at all, the individual delegate would not be the least bit foreclosed from bringing his views before the body.

The feeling of the committee on permanent organization and rules was that rather than encumbering the journal with the reports of any individual member of a committee who does not agree with the majority report and who has a right to offer his views as amendments, a report should only be given that dignity and treatment if it were subscribed by a significant minority of the committee. The figure finally agreed on was 3. I should state that this was a matter on which the committee was closely divided in terms of the size of the minority required to qualify a minority report for being printed.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: I should like to speak against the amendment offered to change at least 3 members to 1/5.

I sat on this committee and we heard this question discussed a number of times. We started with a report which said that any person, any member of a committee has a right to submit a minority report. At the committee meeting, it was suggested by some that there should be no minority report, which of course goes to the opposite extreme.

We also heard a proposal that it should be 1/3 of the delegates who might do that, and it was suggested by me at the committee meeting that that would simply enforce bloc voting which would be extremely undesirable, and at that point we moved to ¼. Since that time we have moved to 3. Now we are asked to move somewhere in between to 1/5 and I believe it is possible that we may get somewhere in between 3 and 1/5 before we are through.

It seems to me we are haggling over something which is not worth haggling over. What is important is to decide, first of all, that there should be minority reports. Secondly, that a reasonably small number of people — I prefer that it be one, myself, but I am not against 3 — have the right to speak.

Now, in connection with the argument raised by the chairman of the committee that a minority report is not really absolutely indispensable because it could always be offered as an amendment, it seems to me that overlooks the difference between a report and an amendment on the floor. We could do the same thing to the majority report if we were to use parity of reasoning. There would be no majority report. It would simply be introduced as an amendment which nobody would be able to read. If there is to be a majority report — and we know there ought to be — there should be a minority report as long as any person actually, or certainly not more than the number we have finally agreed upon — wishes to go to the trouble of preparing it in writing.

If there is some nut in this convention who will be the only person who has a certain view, my opinion is that he will not have the ability to write a report in any event. And if he has, I doubt if he would be able to write it.

Let's not worry about the fact that we have 3 or 4 or 5. We have been over this and I feel that we should settle the matter. Let it stand as it is. Otherwise, we are going to start the argument all over again that it should be one. Therefore, I oppose the amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there any further discussion? The question is on Mr. Elliott's amendment substituting the figure 1/5 for the 3. Is there any further discussion? If not, all in favor of the amendment, say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

Miss Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: Mr. President, I should like to move that we approach these rules in numerical order. I think we have jumped to the point that I am confused and I sat on the committee to write them. Perhaps others are having my difficulty and I think we could start from one and go through.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I am perfectly willing to do that if that is the wish of the delegates.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. President, I am coming back to the point I raised before, because we have rereferred rule 34, and it would seem to me, as we look at the rules, that points that have been raised here are also contained in rule 27 and it would seem to me that this should be rereferred also.

I should like to move at this time to rerefer to the committee on rules, rule 27, with the direction to the committee to prepare a proper amendment to provide that no person or group shall appear voluntarily or as a result of subpoena before any committee of the whole of this convention and give either testimony or evidence of whatever kind for the purpose of persuading the members of that committee to act in a particular manner unless such action shall take place at an open public hearing where adequate access of the public and press is provided.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, as chairman of the committe on permanent organization and rules, I should have to oppose Mr. Ford's motion. The rule has nothing to do with the subjects which he has discussed. I will read rule 27:

> Committees of the convention and their functions and membership shall be provided by resolution of the convention adopted by a majority of the delegates elected. Committees shall meet at the call of the chairman or upon written request of a majority of the members.
> A recorded roll call vote on any matter before a committee shall be taken on demand by any member of the committee.
> Each committee shall maintain an action journal of its proceedings.

These are a simple set of ground rules for basic committee action. If committees are to be appointed in the near future, as I suspect they will be, they will be starting their work in the very near future. It seems important and desirable that they be guided by general rules of this convention for the conduct of their action, and therefore I would oppose the motion by Mr. Ford.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ford, will you submit your motion in writing, please?

MR. FORD: All that the motion is, in essence, is a motion to refer this to committee. It is in the same nature as Mr. Nord's motion. The only reason that I point to rule 27 is that — this is correct as has been stated by the chairman — prior to this morning's session, rule 27 dealt with some simple ground rules but it was this morning that you put in the last 2 sentences and you now use this rule as a method of defining specifically the operations of the committee. I don't want to argue semantics, about whether it should be in rule 34 or rule 27; I just want to guarantee that no one is going to be talking to the committees unless the public is there.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ford, is your motion to rerefer rule 27 to the committee?

MR. FORD: Yes, sir.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Ford to rerefer rule 27 to the committee. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion does not prevail.

Mr. Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: While we are on rule 27, I should like to address this question to the chairman of the committee on permanent organization and rules. We have just been talking about proposed rule 27. This morning as I understand it a sentence was added to the effect that an action journal shall be kept by each committee. I assume an action journal is similar to the journal of this body which under the proposed rules is available to the interested members of the public, and my question to Mr. Van Dusen is simply this. Was there any discussion this morning as to whether this action journal should be available to members of the press or the interested members of the public or the public in general? I think it is a pertinent inquiry because I think it may temper some of this discussion about the dangling participle now as respects closed committee sessions.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Cudlip, it was the intention of the committee on permanent organization and rules by requiring each committee to maintain an action journal of its proceedings, that that journal would be available to the press, to the public, to interested parties generally.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. President, I move to amend the rule under discussion, 27, as follows:

1. Amend rule 27, last line, after the words "maintain an action journal of its proceedings" by inserting "which shall be available to the press and interested members of the public", to correspond with our action here on the floor as respects our own journal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Was that a motion, Mr. Cudlip?

MR. CUDLIP: I thought, Mr. President, I said, "I move that."

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment of Mr Cudlip. Mr. Cudlip, will you state your amendment for the secretary and for the members, please?

MR. CUDLIP: I refer again to rule 27, the last sentence of which reads this way as proposed this afternoon: "Each committee shall maintain an action journal of its proceedings.". My amendment is:

1. Amend rule 27, last line, after the word "proceedings" by inserting "which shall be available to the press and interested members of the public".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment of Mr. Cudlip. Is there any discussion?

MR. VAN DUSEN: I should just like to comment that this accords with the thinking of the committee, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: There is a point of information I would like to know. Does Mr. Cudlip consider an action journal a verbatim journal and is it recorded in executive session? As I understand it, there is no journal kept during an executive session and therefore Mr. Cudlip's amendment does not resolve our problem.

MR. VAN DUSEN: It is not a verbatim journal. It records actions taken, where members voted aye and nay. It records that for every session of the committee whether in executive session or otherwise.

MR. MAHINSKE: Then I think we should spell this out. In the event — now, you yourself maintain that there is a possibility, depending on the boldness of the chairman of these various committees — that we may have an executive session. I would like to guarantee the proposition that there will be an action journal kept during executive sessions if and when there are any.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I might suggest, Mr. President, that Mr. Mahinske's point might be accomplished in this fashion, by making the sentence read, "Each committee shall maintain an action journal of all its proceedings". If Mr. Mahinske would find that acceptable, I would move that amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mrs. Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: My question was on the nature of the action journal. From listening to the discussion of the committee on rules this morning, my understanding was that that action journal also would indicate to those interested what was going to be coming up in that committee in the immediate future so that people could be prepared to attend such committee meetings. Is that correct, or not?

MR. VAN DUSEN: No, I think that's a misunderstanding, Mrs. Cushman. The journal records what has happened. The calendar records what is going to.

MRS. CUSHMAN: Is there any mention, then, of a calendar coming up, or is this just an understanding, or what?

MR. VAN DUSEN: There is no specific provision in the rules other than one which we have already touched upon which deals with notice to an interested member. It was the understanding of the committee on permanent organization and rules that, as a matter of ordinary course, each committee would advise the convention and interested parties of the nature of the work which it proposed to undertake in the immediate future so that not only the members of the convention would know what subjects were to be under consideration but the public also would know.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Cudlip's amendment. Mr. Secretary, will you read the amendment?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Cudlip offers the following amendment to rule 27.

1. Amend rule 27, at the end of the last sentence of the rule which reads, "Each committee shall maintain an action journal of its proceedings" by adding the following language: "which shall be available to the press and interested members of the public".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there any further discussion? Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: I thought Mr. Van Dusen offered an amendment to Mr. Cudlip's amendment to insert still more words there. A point of information. Don't we vote on his amendment first, and then Mr. Cudlip's?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Chase says we vote on that later as a separate amendment.

Mr. Powell.

MR. POWELL: Mr. President, I was wondering if there was the implication that these journals would be in same form and distributed in the same quantity as our regular daily journals. If so, it would seem to me that that might be superfluous. I believe it is some 5,000 copies we were going to have, or something like that, yesterday. It would seem that, though we do not have experience in the legislature to go by, a rather limited number of possibly mimeographed copies of these action journals of the committees might serve the purpose. I just raise that as a suggestion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Cudlip's amendment. Is there any further discussion?

MR. VAN DUSEN: I would simply state, in response to Mr. Powell's point, that there was no intention on the part of the committee on permanent organization and rules that significant numbers of these be printed, simply enough to take care of those who might be immediately interested.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Those in favor of Mr. Cudlip's amendment.

Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: I am still somewhat confused as to your answer to Mr. Gust's question. Has this been incorporated now into the amendment, or will it be taken up separately?

PRESIDENT NISBET: It will be taken up separately.

MR. HODGES: I see. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Cudlip's amendment.

Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. President, I move to amend that amendment as follows:

1. Amend the amendment, after "available to" by striking out "the press" and inserting "news media" to incorporate the word "news media" rather than "press". If that is his intention, he might agree to that.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Higgs' amendment to the amendment.

Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: Some of us back here are confused, Mr. President. We don't know whether this word "all" that the chairman proposed is in there or not, and we don't know what Mr. Higgs just proposed. So if you can clarify it, we would appreciate it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Chase.

SECRETARY CHASE: May the secretary clarify this situation? Mr. Cudlip's amendment was pending, and still is. The chairman suggested an additional amendment to the language which will be voted on a little later. Mr. Cudlip's amendment is now pending to which Mr. Higgs offers the following amendmenent:

1. Amend the amendment by striking out the words "the press" and inserting "news media", so that the language will then read "which shall be available to news media and interested members of the public."

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Higgs' amendment to the amendment.

Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: Mr. President, I move an amendment to Mr. Higgs' amendment, inserting the word "all" before "proceedings" so that we can wrap the whole thing up with one motion here.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Romney, would you, in the interests of clarity, please withdraw your amendment, because it is coming up a little later?

MR. ROMNEY: All right.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you. The question is on Mr. Higg's amendment to the amendment. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment to the amendment is adopted.

The question now is on Mr. Cudlip's amendment as amended. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment as amended is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Van Dusen offers the following amendment:

1. Amend rule 27 in the last sentence of the rule, after the words "action journal of" by inserting "all of", so the language will read "Each committee shall maintain an action journal of all of its proceedings . . . .".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Van Dusen's amendment. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Now, Mr. President, I think that it is wise that we continue our consideration of such sections of the rules as may invite the questions of individual members. I would suggest that if we were to take them individually, there are 74 rules. I would prefer to stay with those in which individual members are interested. We can deal at whatever length the members choose with those. When the questions are exhausted, we then move the adoption of the rules as a whole, with the exception of those which have been referred to the committee on permanent organization and rules.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mrs. Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: I would like, going back once again to rule 27, to offer the following amendment:

1. Amend rule 27, last line, after "action journal" by inserting "and a calendar,".

MR. VAN DUSEN: So your amendment, Mrs. Cushman, would make it read "Each committee shall maintain an action journal and a calendar, of all of its proceedings . . .".

MRS. CUSHMAN: Maybe the wording "an action journal of all of its proceedings and a calendar,", would be a better wording there.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The language, then as I understand it, would read: "Each committee shall maintain an action journal of all of its proceedings and a calendar, . . .".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mrs. Cushman's amendment as revised. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor of Mrs. Cushman's amendment say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. President, I have just 2 questions on which I would like information. The first relates to rule 28. It seems to be a bit unusual. I presume the committee has some reason. Could we have the reason for this unusual arrangement?

Second, with reference to rule 35, it appears to me to be entirely adequate but since I put such great stress upon this convention controlling itself so that no chairman and no committee, as in other legislative bodies, can hold up something which the convention wants to discuss, I would just like to be reassured that rule 35 has been discussed with this in mind.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Yes. Professor Pollock, I will take up your questions in reverse order. With respect to rule 35 which provides that "After 1 session days' notice a majority of the delegates elected may by motion require a committee to report any proposal without recommendation.", it is the intention of the committee on permanent organization and rules that that rule make it possible for a majority of the delegates elected to require a committee to report any proposal on which a majority of delegates elected would like to have debate, discussion and consideration. No committee would be able to bottle up any matter which a majority of the delegates elected wanted reported to the floor.

With respect to rule 28, the provision is perhaps somewhat unusual. However, many of the committees are large. It is the purpose of this rule to provide for a chairman, a first vice chairman, and a second vice chairman, to give recognition as officers of the committees to members of both the majority and minority parties so that all will be fully represented not only as members of the committee but as officers of the committee.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there further discussion?

Mr. Hatch.

MR. HATCH: I have a question concerning rule 68. Rule 68 provides for altering the rules of the convention and also for suspending the rules of the convention. I would like to know whether or not this rule also provides for additional rules rather than the altering of a rule which we adopt.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The secretary points out, Mr. Hatch, that you have made perhaps a worthwhile point. Obviously, the rule contemplates additional rules as well as simple alterations of rules. The secretary suggests that perhaps the word "altered" in the first line should more appropriately be "amended". Of course, this doesn't completely solve the problem. The secretary now suggests that it read "The rules of the convention may be amended", and I would offer Mr. President, the following amendment:

1. Amend rule 68, line 1, after "Rule 68.", by striking out "Any rule of the convention may be altered" and inserting "The rules of the convention may be amended . . . .".

MR. HATCH: I will support it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Van Dusen's amendment to rule 68.

MR. VAN DUSEN: So that the first line would read "The rules of the convention may be amended by a majority vote of the delegates elected."

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there any discussion?

Mr. Allen.

MR. ALLEN: A question to Mr. Van Dusen. Does that solve Mr. Hatch's problem? Suppose the committee on rules wanted to bring in a new rule which would not be an amendment or an alteration. I do not think, as the proposed suggestion is made, it would cover that situation.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The secretary suggests, Mr. Allen, that an addition to the rules would be an amendment to the rules, and that therefore a completely new rule would be covered by the amendment as suggested.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Van Dusen's amendment. Is there any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Mr. President, on rule 28 again, it would seem to me that if we are going to have a second vice chairman, it should serve some purpose, and in relation to the last paragraph of the rule in which it states that,

> "In case of a vacancy or the prolonged absence of the chairman and first vice chairman, the president of the convention shall appoint a chairman to act until the chairman or first vice chairman shall return."

it seems that with this type of language, the use or what possible purpose a second vice chairman would serve, seems to be in doubt. I would therefore move that it read that in case of the vacancy or prolonged absence of the chairman and first vice chairman, that the second vice chairman shall act as chairman. I would offer this amendment, Mr. President;

1. Amend rule 28, second paragraph, line 2, after "vice chairman,", by striking out the balance of the rule and inserting "the second vice chairman shall act as chairman.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment of Mr. Hodges. Mr. Hodges, would you please write that amendment out and bring it to Mr. Chase?

Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, the thought of the committee on this, I believe, was that the president, having the original authority to appoint a chairman, a vice chairman — and a second vice chairman, for that matter — should, in the event that any of these persons were to be absent for a prolonged period, have the right to fill such vacancies, and that is certainly the prerogative of the president so that he can have those persons, or that person, as chairman to work with whom he thinks he can work with most effectively and who will do the most efficient job.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I will support Mr. Martin on this and I want to oppose this amendment. I think that it is very evident here that it would not probably be good policy, in the case of a permanent vacancy or a vacancy due to prolonged illness on the part of the chairman and the first vice chairman, that the second vice chairman, being a member of the minority, become the chairman of the committee.

Now, I will be frank to say that it doesn't disturb me in the least to have a situation where on a particular day, or for 2 or 3 days, the second vice chairman might actually be acting as the chairman of the committee, but in the case of a vacancy over a prolonged period of time, I think that the members of the minority here would recognize that the rules ought not to provide for an automatic filling of that vacancy by the second vice chairman.

The responsibility of the majority party in this convention is such that the situation, I think, must be clear to us all, and so I hope that the convention will not adopt the amendment now being proposed.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment offered by Mr. Hodges.

Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: Mr. Chase, will you please read the amendment?

SECRETARY CHASE: As the secretary understands the amendment, it is:

1. Amend rule 28, second paragraph, line 2, after "vice chairman,", by striking out the words "the president of the convention shall appoint a chairman to act until the chairman or first vice chairman shall return.", and insert "the second vice chairman shall act as chairman.", so the language will read "In case of a vacancy or the prolonged absence of the chairman and first vice chairman, the second vice chairman shall act as chairman."

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: Mr. President, I would like to offer an amendment which would carry out the intent, I think, that Mr. Martin and Mr. Hutchinson indicated.

1. Amend rule 28, in the last sentence, so that the word "and" is stricken and the words "or second vice chairman" are inserted after "first vice chairman" and the word "first" is deleted in the last line, and the words "vice chairman" are made "vice chairmen", so that it reads

> In case of a vacancy or the prolonged absence of the chairman, first vice chairman, or second vice chairman, the president of the convention shall appoint a chairman to act until the chairman or vice chairmen shall return.

This would mean that in the case of a vacancy in any one of these 3 positions, the Chair would be authorized to fill that vacancy.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I regret that I must take issue with Mr. Romney on this matter. I think that if Mr. Romney's suggestion were adopted we would have the same situation, that the second vice chairman would, as a matter of right, succeed to the chairmanship and I think that would create the same situation as Mr. Hodges' original amendment. I would oppose Mr. Romney's amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President, I find myself in agreement with all of the speakers on this. However, I rise to support Mr. Romney's amendment.

Now, in regard to Mr. Hutchinson's remarks, I think it is quite clear to all of us where the responsibility lies in the convention and I think it lies with each and every delegate. As far as I am concerned personally, rule 28—and I stated heretofore, and I don't retract that statement, that I have been pleased and happy with the show of bipartisanship, the spirit of fair play that's been demonstrated here in this convention by the delegates assembled — in my considered and humble opinion rule 28, as proposed, makes a mockery of the spirit of bipartisanship and it also makes a mockery of the established unofficial rule of fair play on a 2 to 1 ratio.

I do not contend that the minority party should have any of the chairmanships of the committees. I think that rightfully belongs with the majority. But in order to clear this up and move on and in the spirit of fair play and bipartisanship that we have tried and attempted seriously to establish, I second Mr. Romney's amendment, and I would urge the delegates to do likewise. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. King.

MR. KING: Mr. President, I would like to request that any vote on the pending amendment or amendments to the amendment be taken by roll call on the voting machine.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, it will be so ordered.

Mrs. Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. President, I don't think I want to propose this as an amendment because I might get mixed up, but I would like to suggest that if Mr. Romney's amendment is voted down, the logic of Mr. Martin's defense of his point of view points rather to the elimination also of the first vice chairman as succeeding the chairman in the case of his permanent absence, and it might very well read that in the case of the prolonged absence of the chairman that the president shall appoint a new chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, a request for information. As I read rule 28 originally, it indicated that if the chairman or first vice chairman had a prolonged absence, the president would have the authority to appoint a chairman. I would suggest that we probably wouldn't have had this discussion at all if we had added the word "second vice chairman" originally, because I feel that it must have been the intent of the committee that the president should, in the area of the chairman and the vice chairman, have good communications and that he would want those officers to be officers that he selected.

Now, I would like to get it clear in my mind. Mr. Romney's amendment, as I see it, in no way changes the intent of rule 28 but it merely adds to it an inclusiveness, including the second vice chairman, but that if there were an absence, a prolonged absence, of the chairman, that in that event the president of the convention would have the right to appoint someone to serve as chairman. Am I correct?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Secretary, will you interpret the amendment?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, I shall read the amendment as I have it, in my understanding, as offered by Mr. Romney. Mr. Romney's amendment is:

1. Amend rule 28 by striking out the last sentence and inserting "In case of a vacancy or the prolonged absence of the chairman, the first vice chairman, or the second vice chairman, the president of the convention shall appoint a chairman to act until the chairman or first vice chairman shall return.".

MR. ROMNEY: Mr. Secretary, I struck out the word "first vice chairman" on the last line and changed the word "vice chairman" to "vice chairmen" so that it will apply to both vice chairmen, and Mr. Elliott's statement of the intent of this amendment is exactly correct.

SECRETARY CHASE: May the secretary read the amendment again for the purpose of clarification and to make certain that he has it correct? The amendment would read:

1. Amend rule 28 by striking out the last sentence and inserting "In case of a vacancy or the prolonged absence of the chairman, the first vice chairman, or the second vice chairman, the president of the convention shall appoint a chairman to act until the chairman or vice chairmen shall return.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: It must be clear, I hope, to everyone that the effect of Mr. Romney's amendment will be to limit the power of the president of the convention to fill vacancies on the committee. Only in the case that the 3 top people were gone would the president of the convention be permitted to designate an acting chairman of the committee.

Now, the rule as it was reported out of the committee on permanent organization and rules is that in case of a vacancy of both the chairman and first vice chairman, then the president may designate an acting chairman. Can't you see that the effect of Mr. Romney's amendment would be to make it possible for a member of the minority to act as chairman of a committee over a prolonged period of time?

As a matter of fact, a matter of policy, the relationship between the president of this convention and the presiding officers of his committees should be maintained.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: Mr. President, Mr. Hutchinson, may I indicate that it is not the intent of my amendment to do what you say. Now, if it does what you say, I would be very happy to have language inserted that would clarify it on that point. I don't personally think it does but if that is the correct interpretation of it, I think it should be corrected to make it clear that the president has the right to fill a vacancy in the chairmanship or to fill a vacancy in either of the vice chairmanships without regard to whether or not the other 2 offices are vacant. I believe that the language means that but if it doesn't, I would welcome language that would clarify the point.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I would like to suggest that perhaps the insertion of one word would solve the problems existing here between Mr. Romney and Mr. Hutchinson. We could amend Mr. Romney's amendment as follows:

1. Amend the amendment by inserting the word "or" before the word "first vice chairman". It would then read "In case of a vacancy or the prolonged absence of the chairman, or the first vice chairman, or the second vice chairman, the president of the convention shall appoint a chairman to act until the chairman or vice chairmen shall return."

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: Having high regard for Mr. Van Dusen's legal authority, I accept the amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: I think if you go just a little farther in following Mr. Van Dusen's suggestion and make the amendment read this way, that you will have the problem licked:

1. Amend rule 28 by striking out the last sentence and inserting "In case of a vacancy or the prolonged absence of the chairman, or the first vice chairman, or the second vice chairman, the president of the convention shall appoint a chairman or first vice chairman or second vice chairman, as the case may be, to act until the chairman or first vice chairman or second vice chairman shall return.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: It sounds a little complicated but it does the job.

Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: Mr. President, I accept that amendment. I want it to be clear.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I don't want to belabor this point too far and I presume I should simply say all right, we will accept that amendment. My only concern is that by Mr. Martin's latest proposal we might end up with having the second vice chairman, a member of the minority, presiding over the committee during a prolonged period, which I think is poor policy. If Mr. Martin, who has the text of his amendment before him and I do not, can assure me that that language would not bring that result about, I would be very happy to support him.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mrs. Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: Perhaps the language — I don't know that I should be suggesting this with all these brilliant legal minds — but,

> In case of a vacancy or the prolonged absence of the chairman, or first vice chairman, or second vice chairman, the president of the convention shall fill the vacancy by appointment until the chairman or the others return."

Maybe this might make it a little clearer.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Martin, will you bring your amendment to the secretary, please?

Mr. Hanna.

MR. W. F. HANNA: Mr. President, I think the worry here may be over the word "prolonged". I would like to offer this amendment:

1. Amend rule 28, last sentence, by striking out "prolonged", and after "absence" by inserting "for 3 consecutive committee sessions or more", so that if the chairman, vice chairman, or second vice chairman should miss 3 consecutive committee sessions, he would be replaced. This spells it out so we have no question about the word "prolonged".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hanna, would you write out your amendment and give it to Mr. Chase?

Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I would just like to make this comment, that my interest in this is to retain in the presidency the right of working with the officers of the committee that he should desire. I think it is just as wise for the president to have the privilege of appointing a new chairman if the first vice chairman were there as it is if the first vice chairman were also absent.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: Mr. President, in an effort to unscramble this, I wonder if we might not attempt to cut the gordian knot here.

I would like to make an amendment to all these other amendments. Since, if we adopt the rule as it is presently written, the vacancy will be filled by the president of the convention in consultation with his 3 vice presidents, I move the adoption of this rule as it is presently in front of us, and let's see if we have to go any further for these amendments. If somebody will second my motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Martin's amendment.

Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. President, aren't we trying to do the work of the committee on rules? I would move that we table further consideration of this and send it back to the committee on rules to redraft. There seems to be a lot of agreement on what the intent is, but in framing the precise language I think it should go back to the committee.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I would strongly resist Mr. Higgs' motion. I think that this is a problem which we can resolve here and which Mr. Martin's language does resolve. I would call your attention to the first 2 lines of the rule which are of great significance, that the first named member of any committee shall be the chairman, the second named member shall be first vice chairman, and so forth. Committee appointments are imminent, and I think it is desirable that this rule be adopted.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Miss Hart.

MISS HART: I think we all appreciate the generosity of the majority in thinking of this particular move. However, it is creating a problem that is far greater than its importance.

It would seem to me that in the first place, the minority party needs every voice it has on a committee, that to have any of our people presiding would take away a voice, and I would like very much to suggest to whomever knows the parliamentary procedure on this that we remove ourselves from this kind of position and go on with the business of the convention which is important business.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: I agree with Delegate Hutchinson in the remarks that he made. In order not to belabor this issue any longer, I would like to offer an amendment at this time:

1. Amend rule 28 by striking out "second vice chairman" and all language relative thereto wherever it appears.

I am overwelmed with the generosity but I, as an individual, personally would not care to serve in this capacity in such an innocuous position. Therefore, I would like to offer an amendment that we strike the second vice chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Marshall's amendment that in this rule any reference to the words "second vice chairman" be stricken from the rule. The question is on the amendment.

Mr. Leppien.

MR. LEPPIEN: I move as a substitute motion that all of the original rule be adopted as it is before us in the paper handed us this date.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Would you please bear with us just a minute? You have caused us some confusion.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: A point of inquiry, Mr. President. It is my understanding of Mr. Leppien's motion that we simply vote down all amendments and then adopt the rule as proposed by the committee on permanent organization and rules. Is that correct?

MR. LEPPIEN: My motion is a substitute motion which takes precedence over all other motions and amendments, and if my motion is adopted that this convention adopt the original rule as proposed by the committee on permanent organization and rules, that wipes out all the rest of it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: I understood that to be my substitute motion 10 minutes ago, but if his is in order and mine wasn't, I would like to second his.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Mr. President, is that substitute motion in order?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Yes.

MR. HODGES: If it is, I would like to speak in opposition to it. It seems to me that we all have a lot of nice titles now and we have got a lot of nice committee assignments coming up, and I think that superfluous titles — and this is exactly what this second vice chairman is — is unnecessary, and therefore I would speak in opposition to the substitute motion in favor of Mr. Marshall's or Miss Hart's, that we abolish any reference to a second vice chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Leppien's substitute motion. Will you please read it?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Leppien's substitute motion is that we adopt the original recommendation from the committee on permanent organization and rules, which will eliminate all reference to any amendments that have been offered from the floor.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the substitute motion. Is there any discussion?

Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. President, I would be very much tempted to vote in favor of this merely for the reason of eliminating some of the confusion and getting on to something else. However, some people who have done some very thorough study on this and who are very interested in this, have made suggestions which, from their words, we all know they feel are very important.

Now, I am not going to bring them up at this time, but I have a couple of questions for additions to this rule that haven't even been mentioned yet. Here it is after 4:00 o'clock. I would therefore move to recommit this rule to the committee along with rule 34. since the commitee is going to have to meet again, where the committee can carefully consider all of the wording that has been suggested by all of these people and come up with something which will be the considered opinion of the committee on this problem and which we can then pass without delay.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on —

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I should like to speak vigorously in opposition to Mr. Wanger's motion. The recommendation of the committee on permanent organization and rules with respect to this rule is its considered judgment. The rule is one of the most important which we will adopt today, and it has among the most important significance of any of the rules with respect to the appointments which are shortly to be announced. If you recommit this rule in accordance with the suggestion of Mr. Wanger, you leave the convention without a rule with respect to the designation of committee chairmen.

I think, therefore, it is of great importance that this rule be adopted. Mr. Wanger participated in the sessions of the committee on permanent organization and rules. There was ample opportunity to present amendments there. There will be ample opportunity in the future to present amendments to the rules. I would vigorously oppose any effort to recommit this rule.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. President, it seems to me we have before us now a substitute motion to adopt rule 28 as it was originally stated. Mr. Van Dusen's opposition to the substitute motion goes to, I believe, the first paragraph of that rule.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen's opposition is to the motion of Mr. Wanger to recommit.

MR. G. E. BROWN: But I mean that in substance it goes to the first paragraph due to the fact that that paragraph establishes the procedure for the appointment of a chairman and vice chairman. It does not necessarily incorporate the last paragraph relative to the filling of vacancies.

I therefore would move an amendment to the substitute motion, that amendment being that the first paragraph of the rule be adopted and that the second paragraph be recommitted to committee.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Wanger to recommit the whole rule to the committee. Is there any other discussion?

Mr. Leppien.

MR. LEPPIEN: A point of order. There can be no amendments to a substitute motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion to recommit. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion does not prevail.

The question now is on Mr. Leppien's substitute motion. Mr. Chase, will you read it, please?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Leppien's substitute motion is to adopt rule 28 as follows:

> Rule 28. The first named member of any committee shall be the chairman, the second named member shall be first vice chairman, and the third named member shall be second vice chairman. The presiding officer of the committee may place under oath or affirmation any person who appears to testify on any matter pending before the committee.
> In case of a vacancy or the prolonged absence of the chairman and first vice chairman, the president of the convention shall appoint a chairman to act until the chairman or first vice chairman shall return.

This was as reported by the committee on permanent organization and rules and is Mr. Leppien's substitute.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President. If we are going to go according to any type of rules, it doesn't make sense to me how you can have a substitution of the original motion and then have the original motion intact. I think this motion is completely out of order because it is a substitution of the original motion and is identical word for word and therefore it is not a substitution and it is out of order.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The substitute motion is in order. All those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The substitute motion prevailes and rule 28 is agreed to.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Are there other questions with respect to the rules?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: I rise to a point of information. I would like to ask the chairman this. I am alluding to Delegate Hart's remarks. Is the chairman precluded from a vote? I think Delegate Hart said something about this chairmanship business and presiding and so forth would mean the loss of a vote. I don't find as a rule that the chairman is without a vote, and I didn't want to let the remark go unchallenged in our journal if I am right.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I think, Mr. Cudlip, that Miss Hart's remarks were directed simply to the typical conduct of a chairman who frequently does not participate in debate. There is nothing in these rules that would preclude the chairman or any of the vice chairmen from voting as members of the committee.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hannah.

Mr. J. A. HANNAH: Mr. President, in order to expedite action, I would like to return to a suggestion made more than an hour ago, and that is that the chairman permit the delegates to indicate the rules to which they have objection or question, and that we approve all the rest of them and then return to those about which we want to debate, and I move, sir, that procedure.

PRESIDENT NISBET: You have heard the motion of Dr. Hannah.

Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: I would second the motion, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Dr. Hannah that all rules about which there is no question be adopted.

Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: It seems to me that if we are to adopt this procedure, there will be numerous objections simply based on "I object to such and such a rule", and the first thing we know we will have about half of these rules back in the committee on rules which has already worked over them long and arduously.

It seems to me the procedure Mr. Van Dusen is following is a good one. I think we have answered most of the questions likely to arise, and if we will just go forward, we will end up with the bulk of these rules adopted, and the one or 2 that have been referred back to committee for consideration tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Dr. Hannah's motion.

MR. VAN DUSEN: May I speak to the motion, please?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Yes.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I see no particular inconsistency between the motion of Dr. Hannah and the position espoused by both Mr. Martin and myself. It would seem to me that the sensible procedure here would be to exhaust questions with respect to particular rules and then to move the adoption of all the rules with those exceptions.

Now, to this point we have acted to rerefer to the committee on permanent organization and rules, rules 12, 34, 63 and 64. There has been some discussion of other rules but no motion which would have in any way affected them, so far as I know, except for amendment.

At this point, if Dr. Hannah would temporarily withdraw his motion, I would like to move the adoption of the rules as presented by the committee on permanent organization and rules with the exception of rules 12, 34, 63 and 64 which have been rereferred.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Hannah.

MR. J. A. HANNAH: I will withdraw my motion for that purpose only.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Van Dusen that the rules be adopted with the exception of rules 12, 34, 63 and 64. It there any discussion?

Mr. Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: With reference to rule 67, I would like to propose an amendment to this rule:

1. Amend rule 67, at the end of the first sentence, after "starts.", by inserting the additional words "He may voluntarily state his reasons for abstaining.". I so move.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Where would you put that, Mr. Mahinske?

MR. MAHINSKE: At the end of the first sentence immediately after the word "starts" so that the first sentence would read:

> No delegate shall be entitled to abstain from voting in any roll call unless he shall have stated his intention to abstain before the voting starts. He may voluntarily state his reasons for abstaining.

The purpose of this alteration would be for a delegate obviously to voluntarily state his reasons for abstaining because the majority of the rule would not give him this privilege unless he were forced to state his reasons for abstaining by 5 other delegates, or he could get 5 friendly delegates to force him to give his reasons.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Mahinske's amendment to rule 67. Is there any discussion?

Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: I am not opposed to the substance of the amendment but I am opposed to the grammar of the amendment and I would ask Mr. Mahinske to restate it, if possible, because I believe it is certainly not clear and certainly not in grammatical form at the moment.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I would suggest, Mr. Mahinske, that if you made that read "his reasons for such abstention", it would satisfy your substantive point and, I hope, Dr. Nord's grammatical point.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is that satisfactory, Mr. Mahinske? Those in favor of the amendment, as revised, say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

The question is now on Mr. Van Dusen's motion. All in favor of the motion which is to adopt the proposed rules, as amended, except rules 12, 34, 63 and 64, say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

For rules as adopted by the convention (except rules 12, 27, 34, 63, 64, 67 and 68), see above, pages 130-136.

For rules 27, 67 and 68 as amended and adopted by the convention, see above, pages 135-136.

MR. VAN DUSEN: This concludes the report of the committee on permanent organization and rules for today, Mr. President.

The committee will meet tomorrow morning at 11:00 o'clock in room B.

[By unanimous consent the convention returned to the order of motions and resolutions.]

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Austin offers Resolution 6.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. President, this resolution is offered on behalf of the committee on permanent organization and rules, and I move its adoption.

> Resolved, That we, the members of the committee on permanent organization and rules, commend the chairman for the competent and impartial manner in which he conducted the business of this committee and the manner in which he has presented its findings.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the resolution. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The resolution is adopted.

Thank you very much, Mr. Van Dusen, and your committee.

The sergeant at arms will now pass among you the report of the committees and the appointments which will be read by Mr. Chase. I might say, as he is doing this, that we have worked long and hard on making these appointments. It was not easy. We took interests, personal desires, political philosophy, areas of location, and points of view into consideration. We were able to give most people what they had requested as far as committee appointments are concerned.

As far as committee chairmen are concerned, we have selected people who have demonstrated their ability to lead discussions, to bring out different points of view, to resolve differences, and to come up with a report that will reflect the action of the committee. They will now be distributed.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: There will be a meeting of the committee on administration at 9:00 o'clock tomorrow morning in room G. Thank you.

SECRETARY CHASE: And while the proposed committee appointments are being passed out, may the secretary request those who have not yet turned in the letter and the form W-2 for the pay roll vouchers, please do so. At the time we started the session this afternoon I think there were 22 missing, and 3 have come in since then. If there are more that are available, please let us have them as soon as you can.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: I was just wondering, now that we have decided to pay the rent, if they couldn't turn on the air conditioning.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Will the sergeant at arms see if the air conditioning can be turned on?

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: I regret to inform the delegates that there are no facilities for air conditioning in this auditorium, to the best of my knowledge.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Do you all have a copy of the report? Mr. Chase will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: The president appoints the following delegates to the several committees of the convention:

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the approval of the committee appointments.

Mr. Beaman.

MR. BEAMAN: I move the approval of the committee appointments.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the approval of the committee appointments.

Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: I am very, very disappointed in this report. Naturally it was ready yesterday, but as the president said, they didn't have time to have it printed. When I got here to Lansing last night, I was informed by my democratic friends just what committee they were on. And so at the conclusion of last night I find that in my mind there are 3 groups here and not just 2, republicans and democrats. There are those of the democratic party who definitely know what is going on, and there are those in the republican party who know what is going on, and there are the rest of us in the republican party who do not know anything about what's going on. We were asked to make 4 selections, which I did. I find that none of the 4 selections were granted, and yet some of my colleagues from my county who are in the know are put on 2 of the committees to which I asked to be assigned. Now, to me this is not fair, but as we were not in on the know and were not consulted, I am a member of this third group who does not know what is going on and a victim of this railroading. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Kuhn. The question is on the approval of the committee appointments.

Mrs. Butler.

MRS. BUTLER: I would like to ask why no women are put on either the legislative committee or the committee on administration. There are 11 good smart women, and I think we should be represented on these committees.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you very much.

Mr. Balcer.

MR. BALCER: Mr. President, is there a possibility of knowing what some of the professions are to which members of those committees belong? I think they are off balance, the way it appears to me, as much as I know about it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Balcer, I would be glad to visit with you in my office as soon as the session is over.

The question is on the approval of the committee appointments. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The committee appointments are approved.

I would like to have a meeting of all the committee chairmen in room E tomorrow morning at 11:00 o'clock.

Are there any other announcements, Mr. Chase?

SECRETARY CHASE: I have none.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there anything further?

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: In view of your announcement, might I ask how long you think that meeting might last? The reason I asked is that I had already announced a meeting of the committee on permanent organization and rules at that time. I will defer to you, but I would like to set a new time for the committee on permanent organization and rules.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Probably half an hour.

MR. VAN DUSEN: In that event, the committee on permanent organization and rules will meet at 11:45 in room B.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there any further business?

Mr. Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: I would like to state that after the close of the convention tomorrow afternoon, if there is a session, there will be a meeting of the committee on style and drafting in the room assigned to it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further announcements?

Mr. Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Mr. President, I move that we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails and the convention is adjourned until 2:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

[Whereupon, at 4:40 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m. Wednesday, October 11, 1961.]

FIFTH DAY

Wednesday, October 11, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order. The invocation will be given by the Reverend Joseph E. Sutherland, Minister of the South Lansing Church of Christ of Lansing.

REVEREND SUTHERLAND: Grant, O Father, the fullness of Thy grace and guidance to this assembly this day. We pray that all who share and participate deny the prideful expressions of self and think and act only in the best interests of all concerned, even to generations still unborn. May each one that shares this day, O God, have a high and honest sense of purpose and destiny in this historic session. To this purpose we dedicate ourselves to Thy purpose and Thy will, in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. Those present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, 142 delegates are present, a quorum.

Absent with leave: None.

Absent without leave: Mr. Wilkowski.

PRESIDENT NISBET: If there is no objection, Mr. Wilkowski will be excused.

A few days ago, the question of having Dr. James Pollock address us on the question of the basicness of our constitution was presented to this convention. Dr. Pollock has agreed to do this. With no objection, I will ask Dr. Pollock if he will privilege us with his presentation at this time.

Dr. James Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. President and fellow delegates, at the suggestion of the president and a number of other delegates, it was thought fitting and proper that before we began to divide ourselves into special committees and began to think about special and specific and individual problems, we should, at least for some time, focus our attention on the overall job which we are about to perform and to see the picture in the large rather than in miniature and that we should give some thought to what a constitution should be and what goals and objectives we have before we begin to work on the details.

The president very kindly suggested a very charming committee for me to work with, consisting of 3 of the most charming ladies in the convention: Miss Andrus, Miss Hart, and Mrs. Judd, and they probably will not approve of everything I am about to say, but at least they are a very agreeable committee — and, Mr. President, I hope I can always have as pleasant committee assignments.

Now, to begin with there should be, I think, no particular mystery about a constitution, particularly a state constitution. Americans have had the greatest experience with constitutions of any people in the world. All you have to do is look at the compiled volume of state constitutions of the 50 American states and you will realize that a tremendous amount of constitutional experience is involved in that volume.

State constitutions, of course, have to be considered as something rather special. They are hardly in the same category as the federal constitution and yet, we frequently make the comparison with the federal constitution because it has always been looked upon as something of a model. Obviously the federal constitution is supreme. State constitutions must conform to it; and unlike the federal constitution which has developed around it a certain aura of worship, a state constitution is much more an instrument of government to be worked and not so much an idol to be worshipped.

I should say at the outset that my approach to state constitutional revision is both positive and dynamic. I want to strengthen the underpinnings of our democracy at a time of very great crisis and I want us also to support, at a time of great crisis like this, at the essential state and local level, our great democracy of the country as a whole. The underpinnings are just as important as the superstructure. I also feel that democracy should always be on the march in order to keep up with rival systems.

Next, I think it is well for us to keep in mind what has happened to our state since the last constitutional revision of 1908. Also we should keep in mind what has happened to our federal system of government and its division of powers between the states and federal government. If we given attention to these 2 important points, I think we will see that effective revision of our basic document is needed. If I simply remind you of what I am sure you are already aware, of the great changes which have occurred in this state, you too, I am sure, will put this in proper perspective.

Let me refer first of all to the tremendous population changes which have now made our state 73.4 per cent urban as compared to 26.6 per cent rural. Quite as important as this overall figure is the fact that the socalled urban fringe areas around our central cities have had an increase of 125.8 per cent in the period from 1950 to 1960 and this constitutes, therefore, one of our greatest problems.

We now have 10 standard metropolitan statistical areas in the state of Michigan. You are also aware of the tremendous industrialization which has occurred in Michigan with all of its consequent social and economic problems. You don't make the transition from an agricultural economy to an industrial one without creating both social and economic problems.

You are aware of how our communications network has improved and multiplied. What you may not be aware of is the heavy impact on our state of the developments in Washington. Do you realize, for instance, that there are now more federal employees in the state of Michigan than there are state employees? And that federal grant-in-aid expenditures have more than doubled in the past 10 years and they have now reached the $7 billion annual level, which is about 1/6 of the national government's nondefense expenditures? These are expenditures that we handle and deal with, for which we have to provide the machinery.

Indubitably, the load now carried by state and local governments will continue to grow. It hasn't come, certainly, to a stop. The administration of all these programs, both national and state, depends to a very large extent on the structure and the efficiency of our state and local governments. National administration would break down if it were not for the underpinning and support given by state and local governments. In a word, as Woodrow Wilson one time put it, "Like a lusty child government with us has grown great in stature but it has also become awkward in movement. It has grown strong but it has not acquired deportment."

Our state government, like all state governments, has now become a service state. Every type of specialist and expert from actuary to zoologist is now required to perform the multifarious services which our citizens are now demanding. The difficulties in the way of effective regulation of a great many activities have consequently multiplied.

Fortunately, in the last 50 years our knowledge of government management has greatly increased and we no longer need to flounder around in ignorance about how to efficiently manage thousands of employees and millions of dollars. This is of the greatest importance because, as Stanley Baldwin one time put it, "Administration is now the essence of government and its quality a prime condition of civic comfort."

Finally, may I merely refer to the fact that we are living in a period of great crisis for democratic states. Less than 1/9 of the world's population enjoy freedom. The perpetuation and improvement of our own freedom must be undertaken now at a time when freedom everywhere is under attack.

May I finally, in these brief introductory remarks, quote from the report of the so called Kestenbaum commission on intergovernmental relations which was set up some years ago representing all levels of government. After thoroughly studying the role of the states in our federal system, they said,

> Early in its study the commission was confronted with the fact that many state constitutions restrict the scope, effectiveness, and adaptability of state and local action. These superimposed constitutional limitations make it difficult for many states to perform what their citizens require and consequently have frequently been the underlying cause of state and municipal pleas for federal assistance . . . . It is significant that the constitution prepared by the founding fathers, with its broad grant of authority and avoidance of legislative detail, has withstood the test of time far better than the constitutions later adopted by the states. A due regard for the need for stability in government requires adherence to basic constitutional principles until strong and persistent public policy requires a change. A dynamic society requires a constant review of legislative detail to meet changing conditions and circumstances . . . . The commission finds a very real and pressing need for the states to improve their constitutions.

Let me come now to a very brief discussion of the proper attributes of a good state constitution as these attributes are pretty well understood by students of the problem. You have been supplied with a considerable amount of very good reading on this point. I am sure many of you are already familiar with this point. Whether you are or whether you are not, it won't hurt to rehearse them and to read further along this line, so that all I need to do now is to remind you of the principal points which I think we should always keep in mind as we proceed to draft a new constitution.

I think it was John Dickinson who said in very eloquent words, "The function of a written constitution is to provide a principle and a framework of order within which change can proceed without endangering stability." This is the difference between a country which has an orderly system of progress and one which always has to have a revolution.

Obviously, therefore, the first requirement of a constitution is to provide a mechanism of orderly government through which not merely the existing laws may be executed but new laws can from time to time be adopted. This essential frame of government is one of the principal reasons for a state constitution. Such a document should take its yardstick, I think, from the spirit of the age, and in addition to providing for the 3 branches — now really 4 if you include administration as one — of our state government, a good constitution should preserve the American tradition of a separate judiciary and the separation of powers. It should, however, always endeavor to harmonize progress and stability and it should not promote government by deadlock.

Speaking now on the proper attributes of a good state constitution, all of us agree that a constitution should be as brief and concise as possible, logically arranged, and readable. It should deal only with fundamentals. Obviously, it is a good question as to what is fundamental — and we should always ask ourselves that question — but in general I think it is proper to repeat that we should be more concerned with ends than with means. We should only include what is essential. Unnecessary statutory detail is the curse of most of our state constitutions.

Where it is possible, I recommend that we take the Constitution of the United States as a model. It does not refer to any government department nor does it set up even the structure of the courts. It only says "there shall be created a supreme court and such inferior courts as congress shall from time to time establish." The present constitution of Michigan is 3 times the size of the federal constitution.

In urging that our new state constitution be brief and concise, I should also add that since it is an object of study for all citizens it should also be put out in a proper format so that it can be properly and even interestingly studied. Our present edition coming in such small print really takes someone with 20/20 vision.

In deciding what should be included and what should not be included in the constitution, we should always raise the question: why should this be in the constitution? The constitution isn't supposed to do everything. In fact, it should do only what is absolutely essential. When constitutions become filled with statutory detail, they require too frequent revision, as has been the case with our own. As Governor Driscoll of New Jersey warned the New Jersey convention in 1947, "When statutory detail is permitted to infiltrate a constitution, it shackles the hands of the men and women elected by the people to exercise public authority." Occasionally, of course, statutory material is simply ignored and therefore ineffective.

As we look at our own constitution, together with those of other states, we find that it perpetuates many archaic offices and is continually in need of amendment.

The more details that are crowded into a constitution the more quickly it loses touch with the social and economic needs of a rapidly growing community. Excessive details impair the capacity of the state and its local units of government for self government. We have what Henry James Ford once called "the manacled state" — the state in manacles.

Obviously much can be done to eliminate the deadwood from our own constitution. In the Missouri convention of 1945, they reduced the size of the document by 1/3. I would hope that we could do much better.

Next I think I should point out that a good constitution should be flexible and should be realistic. Judge Cardozo made it very clear one time when he said, "A constitution states, or should state, not just rules for the passing hour but principles for an expanding future." It should, of course, make adequate provision for administrative problems. It should reflect the current best thinking among the people. A good constitution, it also seems to me, grows with the society it orders. It does not straightjacket that society. Because of the requirements of our economic order, it should also stimulate economic growth. Obviously Michigan's constitution, as do those of many other states, leaves much to be desired along these lines.

Finally, I should say that a state constitution must be internally consistent and, of course, not in violation of the United States constitution.

These points are offered, Mr. President and my fellow delegates, as a basis for discussion and thought. As one of our early political scientists said, "I should be unwilling to go to jail as a martyr for any or all of them", but I suggest them to you as a desirable basis of discussion. And then finally, I think we, as we proceed with our discussions here, must keep in mind, too, that we are not just legislating for the present; we are certainly legislating for the future. We have to keep our minds not only upon the problems of the present but try to be perceptive and inventive as we look through our glasses into the future.

I cannot avoid saying, too, my fellow delegates, that we have upon us not only the eyes of the citizens of this state, but the whole country is thinking about what Michigan is doing, and many of our sister states wish they had proceeded as we have in an orderly way to provide for a review of their basic documents.

Just recently in Europe I found an interesting article in the leading Swiss newspaper, The Neue Zürcher Zeitung, which took 2 full columns to describe the Michigan constitutional convention. So we have eyes on our work and we are doing this, as I indicated in the beginning, in a period of tremendous international crisis and at a time when the whole success of our democratic system depends so much more on the underpinning of our local government and our state government than it does on our national government. Our national government happens to have unlimited taxing power and can provide a great many of the services which we found it undesirable or difficult to provide but, after all, the work has to be done within the cities and the counties and the townships of this and every other state.

But fundamentally I suppose everything gets down not merely to what we do as a group but to what we do as individuals, and here may I be permitted to quote from Walt Whitman one of the poems cited in the recent report of the commission on national goals which, I think, sums up the matter rather succinctly:

I swear I begin to see the meaning of these things!
It is not the earth, it is not America, who is so great,
It is I who am great, or to be great — it is you up there, or anyone:
It is to walk rapidly through civilizations, governments, theories, through poems, pageants, shows, to form great individuals.
Underneath all, individuals!
I swear nothing is good to me now that ignores individuals.
The American compact is altogether with individuals, the only government is that which makes minute of individuals.
the whole theory of the universe is directed to one single individual, namely you.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you very much, Dr. Pollock. When this was first discussed, we talked of having Dr. Pollock make his presentation one day and have some discussion the next when you might have had some time to think it over and ask some questions. Consequently at tomorrow afternoon's session, we will save some time for a discussion of Dr. Pollock's lecture.

Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: Mr. President, I would like to rise to a question of personal privilege.

MR. KUHN: Yesterday I raised a point of order on a substitute motion proposed by Mr. Leppien. The Chair ruled that the substitute motion was in order. This has bothered me very much and that is why I ask for this time today. We are here in Lansing to rewrite the constitution of the state of Michigan. We are here to write the basic law of the state of Michigan. It would seem to me that we should follow basic rules of parliamentary procedure. I know of rules — Robert's, Mason's, Cannon's — I observed Sam Rayburn's rulings in the house of representatives for 3 years. I will say to you that at that time when a point of order was made, it was given serious consideration. And if Mr. Rayburn did not know the rule, or Mr. Deschler who was his parliamentary assistant, it was given serious consideration even if they had to say the Chair was calling a short recess. The reason this disturbs me so much is that that was a fundamental question. There is no question in my mind that this motion was out of order. I would like to report to this body today that I have spoken to the secretary of this body, Mr. Chase, and he agreed with me that it was out of order and should not have been voted on. The only reason I am making this statement at this time is to keep the record straight. I don't want some people to think that I am one of those people who will be jumping up and talking all the time. I know some people who are jumping up and talking all the time and I don't like them any better than you do.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you.

Mr. Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: In order that there may be no question about this matter, I now move that this convention reaffirm the action taken yesterday on Mr. Leppien's motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Ostrow's motion. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

May I say to you very sincerely, Mr. Kuhn, that if this bothered you, it also bothered me. Incidentally, due to the vast realm of amendments that had been introduced, we have endeavored to work out a system of having these amendments taken care of as they are presented, and having amendments presented in writing to the secretary so that this matter will not occur again. Thank you very much for your comments.

We will now have reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, recommends the appointment of the following constitutional convention staff members: Emma Davis, Sharon Johnson and Janina Moser, as telephone operators.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the recommendation. Is there any discussion?

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move the adoption of the recommendation of the committee on administration.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The president appoints, pursuant to authorization by the convention, and with the approval of the committee on administration, the aforenamed persons to the respective positions indicated.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the appointments are approved.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only standing committee report on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The committee on permanent organization and rules has a further report.

The committee's first recommendation deals with the functions of the committee on public information. The members will recall that the committee on permanent organization and rules has previously offered recommendations, which have been adopted by the delegates, defining the functions of the other 3 operational committees. The only one with its functions as yet undefined is the committee on public information and the committee offers the following report and recommendation with respect to the functions of the committee on public information:

(a) Purpose and duties:

The purpose of the committee on public information shall be to develop public interest in and public understanding of the work of the convention throughout its existence and to advise on methods for explaining the results of the work of the convention to the public.

The duties of the committee on public information shall be:

1. To cooperate with the news media and to facilitate their understanding of the convention's work, its problems, and its results.

2. To assist the delegates, when requested by them, in informing civic groups, individual leaders, schools, libraries and the like about all aspects of convention activity.

3. To train and advise the guides employed by the convention for the assistance of student groups and other visitors in understanding the convention activities they may be witnessing.

4. To assist the substantive committees, if requested by such committees, to obtain publicity for their meetings and public hearings to the end that public attitudes on the issues may be expressed for the guidance of the committees and that there may be a development of public interest in and understanding of the issues facing the committees.

5. To assist the convention to develop full public informational benefits from any convention sessions which may be held elsewhere than in Lansing.

6. To watch the trend of public opinion with respect to convention issues as the convention proceeds and to report thereon periodically to the convention and its substantive committees.

7. To prepare a documentary film of the convention, its activities, problems and deliberations as a part of the permanent record of the convention, such film to be available for showing in high schools, colleges and public meetings as a means of explaining the process of writing the constitution prior to the vote on the convention's final proposals.

8. To consider and report to the convention methods of explaining the results of the convention's deliberations to the people of the state; to prepare an address to the people; to recommend to the convention proposals for widespread distribution of such address; to recommend to the convention any other means that may be carried on after convention adjournment to assure voter understanding of the convention's final proposals.

9. To conduct such other public informational activities within the purview of the committee's appropriation as may be acceptable to the convention.

(b) Qualifications of the assistant in charge of public information to the director of research, drafting, and public information:

The committee on permanent organization and rules recommends to the convention that in addition to the qualifications of the assistant in charge of public information as defined in the report of said committee with respect to the convention staff, this staff member be a person of broad experience in public relations and education in the field of public affairs.

I move the adoption of these recommendations, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendations. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendations are concurred in.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The next item in the report of the committee on permanent organization and rules deals with rule 34 of the convention rules which was yesterday rereferred to this committee for action. The committee recommends the adoption of rule 34 of the convention rules in the following form:

Committees may hold public hearings at the seat of the convention and may be authorized by the convention to hold public hearings any place in the state. Committees may take testimony under oath or affirmation. A committee may by resolution of the convention be given the power to subpoena documents and witnesses. A committee may grant the powers here authorized to any subcommittee.

Now the following language is added — all I have read to you so far was in the rule as offered yesterday:

All committee meetings shall be open to the public unless otherwise authorized by the convention. A committee may direct a verbatim record of any portion of its proceedings.

Mr. President, I move the adoption of rule 34 as recommended by the committee.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any further discussion?

Mr. Theodore Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Mr. President, because of the gravity of our consideration of the motions that I know will be coming up concerning rule 34, I would move at this time that the vote on any of the motions and amendments concerning rule 34 be on a recorded roll call basis. Now, I noticed yesterday the one vote which we had was tallied, it was not conducted on a roll call basis and we have the numbers and not the identification of the delegates involved.

Now, in addition to my motion in that regard — because I know Mr. Bledsoe has an amendment pending on rule 34 concerning the subpoena section of the rule as amended by the committee on rules and I know there will be other amendments offered on the open committee portion — I suggest that we first consider, for the purposes of clarity, the portions containing amendments to the subpoena portions.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is your motion —

MR. T. S. BROWN: My motion was for a recorded roll call vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: If the secretary may suggest the procedure here, Mr. Brown has demanded the yeas and nays on the question of voting on any amendment to this rule. Rule 64, as you adopted it yesterday, provides a division of the convention may be had on the demand of 10 delegates, or a roll call of the convention may be demanded by a vote of 1/5 of the delegates present, on any pending question. Mr. Brown has demanded a roll call vote, and the secretary would suggest that the question of seconding the demand for this roll call be done by a rising vote, as we call it in the legislature, by which the members do not stand but they merely raise their hands so that when the president says "those in favor, rise", you merely put up your hand so that we may count, and upon assurance that 1/5 of the delegates present here have put up their hands, the yeas and nays will be ordered.

Mr. Brown has demanded the yeas and nays. Is the demand seconded? Those in favor will rise. Obviously a sufficient number.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Because of the anticipated number of amendments to which this matter may be subjected, I would move that this matter be referred to the committee of the whole, and that this body now resolve itself into the committee of the whole for the purpose of considering the matter and reporting the same back to the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Wanger's motion. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no. The Chair is in doubt. All those in favor please say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

I would like to ask Mr. Hutchinson if he would preside at the meeting of the committee of the whole.

Mr. King.

MR. KING: A point of information. I am not familiar with Mason's rules. I would like to know how many amendments can be before this body at one time?

PRESIDENT NISBET: One at a time.

MR. KING: Is that the ruling of the Chair, or is that as set forth by Mason's rules? Amendments or amendments to amendments.

PRESIDENT NISBET: An amendment may be offered and amendments to that amendment may be offered but the original amendment will be taken care of. In other words, what I think we are trying to say is that the amendment on a certain point and amendments to that amendment would be taken care of before an amendment on another subject would come into the picture.

MR. KING: Under Roberts' rules you can only have 2 amendments pending to the initial amendment, as I understand it, and at one time yesterday I think we had 7 or 8 amendments pending and I am just looking for clarification on that point.

PRESIDENT NISBET: That is what got us into difficulty. I hope Mr. Chase can keep us out of it this afternoon.

[Whereupon, Mr. Hutchinson assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The committee will be in order.

The gentleman from Oakland, Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The matter before the committee of the whole, I believe, is the recommendation of the committee on permanent organization and rules with respect to the adoption of rule 34. This has already been read to the members of the committee, and I believe by now it is on every member's desk in writing, if you will turn to the appropriate page of the report of the committee.

Yesterday, you will recall, there was some discussion of the manner in which committees of this convention should conduct their business, particularly with respect to members of the public at those meetings. It was suggested that perhaps this rule should receive the further consideration of the committee on permanent organization and rules. The rule as then proposed was rereferred to the committee.

The committee has met and has unanimously recommended the rule in the form in which it is presented to you, which quite obviously provides that all committee meetings shall be open to the public unless authorized by the convention and further provides that a committee may direct that a verbatim record of any portion of its proceedings be made.

I move the adoption of the recommendation by the committee of the whole.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The question is on agreeing to rule 34 as explained by Mr. Van Dusen, to which there are some amendments to be offered. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Does Mr. Ford wish this amendment considered in the light of the language in the rule?

May the secretary suggest, if I may interrupt here just a moment, below the platform on each of those microphones there is a little black band and if you will take hold of that, you can raise or lower the microphone by the simple process of pulling it up or down. When you wish to be recognized, push that white button, then the presiding officer will be aware of the fact that you wish recognition and, depending upon whom he recognizes, the electrician up here will press the appropriate button and you will find a green light flash alongside and you will know you are recognized and may proceed.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: A parliamentary inquiry. Do I understand that a motion in the convention prevailed to the effect that all votes on amendments on this issue should be by yeas and nays?

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: That prevailed in the convention, Mr. Bentley, and it would be the ruling of the Chair that in the committee of the whole there can be no record roll call taken, and so long as this committee of the whole sits, there will be no record roll call.

MR. BENTLEY: Thank you.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I have in the secretary's hands language that I would like to propose as an amendment, but before proposing the amendment I would like to move at this point to divide the question of rule 34 so as to divide the discussion of the provisions pertaining to the holding of hearings and the subpoena power from the provision pertaining to the power to hold other than open meetings. I move the division of the question at this time.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Ford, the Chair would like to inquire whether, as a matter of fact, this matter won't be divided because of the fact that there will be amendments offered one at a time and the question in each instance will be upon these amendments so you are in effect dividing the question, perhaps not only into categories but into perhaps several?

MR. FORD: If this is an inquiry as to the reason for this motion at this time, I will call to the Chair's recollection and to the convention, the confusion that arose yesterday when, in the midst of a discussion of one part of rule 34, we got back into the discussion of other rules and we discussed rule 34 at 2 separate and distinct times. I will admit to being one of the people who was confused with rule 27. I had people over here telling me it should have been rule 28. All I am trying to do is simplify this so that we don't have to subject our people who may want to speak to both points — I don't want to foreclose that — to a situation of confusion. And if the question is divided, I should like to yield the floor to Mr. Bledsoe who will offer an amendment with relation to the principal part of rule 34.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Bledsoe.

MR. BLEDSOE: Mr. Chairman, may I call upon the secretary to read my amendment? I would rather prefer to discuss both of these together in order to save the convention's time. I gave you a copy of it — the proposed amendment to rule 34.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The Chair understands that Mr. Ford moves that amendments having to do with the subpoena power be considered ahead of amendments having to do with the public character of the meetings. Is that what Mr. Ford moves? All right, the Chair will entertain that motion. I assume that is what you want done, too, is it, Mr. Bledsoe?

MR. BLEDSOE: Substantially.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The motion is that amendments filed in relation to the subpoena power will be considered before amendments relative to the public character of the meetings. All those in favor of the motion will say aye. Opposed, no.

The committee so orders. The secretary will read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Bledsoe has offered the following amendment to rule 34:

1. Amend the rule after "documents and witnesses.", by inserting "Any witness so subpoenaed shall have the right to be represented by counsel of his own choosing.".

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment.

The Chair recognizes Mr. Bledsoe.

MR. BLEDSOE: May it please the convention, this amendment is submitted by virtue of the fact that I believe we are duty bound — in the course of doing the work of this convention, which undoubtedly will necessitate the calling of witnesses and possibly subpoenaing of documents — I believe that in the light of our sensory experiences, that persons who are called before a committee should unquestionably have the right to be represented by counsel of their own choosing, and I further feel that it is necessary, growing out of our experiences with bodies and procedures of this kind, and unless we contemplate that and make it evident in our rules, there could possibly be certain public abuses that I am certain we do not want to run the risk of taking place, during any of the deliberations and committee meetings that we will necessarily become a part of.

I would also like to address myself to the question of open meetings and the provision "unless otherwise authorized" in the rule as it was presently recommended. I believe that our position should be so clear that the word "unless" should be stricken completely and that we unalterably take the position that we, as a sovereign body representing all of the people of the state of Michigan, are here today and will be throughout this convention acting for and on their behalf. I cannot for the life of me understand what could possibly come before this committee, or this convention, of the people's business that should at any time be made a matter of secrecy.

I believe the spirit of due process should be carried out to the letter, as well as the spirit of all of our deliberations. We are acting here and the actions that will be taken will become a part of, we hope, the permanent and never fading archives of what we do here as a deliberative body. For that reason and many others that I would not at this time certainly belabor, I believe that all of our actions — this will not prevent conferences — but any action predicated upon any conference taken later by this body should remain open, all covenants should be arrived at openly and carried out in the same spirit. That is the motivating spirit, my colleagues, for the offering of this amendment.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The question is upon an amendment offered to the rule by Mr. Bledsoe which, for clarification, the secretary will read again.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Bledsoe offers the following amendment:

1. Amend rule 34, after the sentence which reads "A committee may by resolution of the convention be given the power to subpoena documents and witnesses.", by inserting this sentence: "Any witness so subpoenaed shall have the right to be represented by counsel of his own choosing.".

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, I am quite sure the committee on permanent organization and rules would have no objection to the amendment offered by Mr. Bledsoe. It is the purport of the rule as presented to the convention by the committee that any person appearing before a committee may be accompanied, if he chooses, by a symphony orchestra, so long as they do not all play. Therefore, I am sure that there is no objection to the amendment offered by Mr. Bledsoe.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

The secretary will read the next amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford has offered an amendment to read as follows:

1. Amend rule 34, by adding "All meetings of all committees and subcommittees of this convention shall be open to the public.". May the secretary inquire, Mr. Ford, do you intend to strike out the sentence which reads "All committee meetings shall be open to the public unless otherwise authorized by the convention.", and insert this one in lieu of it?

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: It was my intention in submitting the amendment rather than getting into a discussion of striking and deleting, in lieu of the entire sentence which presently reads in the rule "All committee meetings shall be open to the public unless otherwise authorized by the convention.", to become a part of this rule, as a separate and distinct sentence, standing by itself, stating a complete proposition as a sentence and a paragraph in this rule, that will admit of no equivocation in the future or during our deliberations of our intention to have all meetings open to the public, and this is the intent and purpose and the form I wish it would take if it is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: May the secretary then, sir, restate your amendment as follows:

1. Amend rule 34, at the end, by adding a separate paragraph to read "All meetings of all committees and subcommittees of this convention shall be open to the public.". Am I correct now?

MR. FORD: Yes, you are, Mr. Secretary.

SECRETARY CHASE: Thank you, sir.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Ford, have you completed your argument at this point?

MR. FORD: I would like to state very briefly — I stated my position yesterday — I have been in conference with people of several groups last evening and today and I still fail to appreciate any sincere and laudable reason for attaching any element of secrecy to the deliberation and action of this body.

I would like to call your attention with regard to the way the rule is proposed: ". . . unless otherwise authorized by this convention." Rule 1 that we adopted yesterday provides that "A majority of the delegates elected to the convention shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business . . . ." I take that quickly to mean a quorum in this convention is 73 people. It further says in this rule,

> There being a quorum, a majority of delegates present shall be sufficient for the adoption of any motion or resolution or the taking of any action except where the affirmative votes of a greater number shall be required by these rules.

Now, I compute a majority of a quorum at its minimum to be 37 members. That means that at any time during this convention, should there for any reason be an experience similar to what frequently occurs in the legislature whereby the nature of the business of the day, or the nature of the duties of the members of standing committees who find themselves away from the city of Lansing on the particular day in question, any person could simply put to as few as 73 delegates present the question of wide open license to conduct quiet or secret meetings from that point for a particular phase of a committee's work or for all the balance of a committee's work.

And of course the remedy remains with the delegation to come back on our next occasion and try and upset this but we find ourselves constantly at the point of making decisions as to particular issues. Now, the danger of that is this. There may be members of standing committees who are persuaded by the most laudable motives that there are circumstances requiring the holding of meetings from which the public is excluded. As I have said, I haven't yet heard a cogent explanation of why they should be necessary but I am certainly not going to question anybody's motives in this convention.

So, assuming that there is a legitimate difference of opinion here, which we know does exist, should there be a given set of circumstances which appeals on its face to a majority of a quorum from time to time attending here, I think we are doing by indirection that thing which we say in the principal part of the rule as recommended by the committee we don't want to do. We are opening the door, and where does it stop? I think this revolves around and around until it resolves itself to a simple question: Shall everything we do and shall everyone that appears before our committees be exposed to the glare of the public spotlight and be exposed to knowledge, analysis, criticism, and what have you?

I would like to suggest this possibility. There are people who have a legitimate reason and a legitimate purpose and a legitimate right to appear before all the various committees in pursuance of their special interests. This applies to individuals, to groups and organizations and even to political organizations. They should have this right by all means. By the same token, all other groups and persons interested in the same subject matter should have the right to know as a practical matter, not by going to the record and looking it up but by the glare of the public spotlight, what representations are made from time to time by individuals or groups, with special interests in particular, to the committee members.

I suggest that the greatest protection against bad information being given to members of our committees is the protection of having other people with experience in the field and other people with contrasting or contradictory opinions be in a position to pick up their daily newspapers and read what was said before the committee, read who is appearing there and what they are representing to the committee, and then the other people in this state who we can hope will participate will be in a position to come forward and express their views. I can't see any other way that the people in this state can stay informed and the people who have interests in the matters that will be coming up before us than to have the press available and have the press reporting.

It is suggested that we will be hamstrung as a practical parliamentary procedure if we can't have executive sessions. It has also been suggested that we are whistling in the dark or fearful of shadows. The Michigan legislature as recently as 1959, both houses incidentally, since it is the law, felt that there was sufficient reason to take from the school boards of this state the right to hold secret meetings or private meetings or conduct any business except in an open public meeting and this is now the law of the state. Now, I don't know what provoked the legislature to adopt this law but I assume it wasn't something that was done ipse dixit. It was something based on someone's honest belief that it was necessary. And I submit that the same considerations that made this type of law necessary there, might well come into consideration here.

As I said, I think that any attempt to add this qualifying language is simply begging the question here. Either we are not in favor of a 100 per cent open convention from the beginning to the end, or we are in favor of leaving a foot in the door for the possibility of having a large portion of the important business of this convention conducted under circumstances where the confidence of the public in our deliberations may be hampered and harmed and where the opportunity of every person in this state to participate and to make themselves heard to us, in committee sessions in particular, might be impaired. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that we have come to the point in our deliberations of this matter of the open convention where it seems incumbent upon many of our members to demonstrate that they are opener than thou.

I don't wish to suggest that this is not a significant point. Certainly the openness of our deliberations is a matter of great importance. However, the rule as proposed by the committee provides: "All committee meetings shall be open to the public unless otherwise authorized by the convention."

Now, Mr. Ford suggests that that may under certain circumstances be ordered by less than a majority of the delegates elected. I suggest that the remedy for the matter that he suggests is a call of the house which would require the presence of all the delegates. The call can be ordered in advance of any vote on a matter of this kind and would insure the requirement that a very substantial majority of the delegates to the convention acted before any change was made in the procedure to authorize something other than an open meeting.

The only reason for the proviso "unless otherwise authorized by the convention" is to avoid the necessity of a change in the rules which requires submission to the rules committee, 2 days notice, and so forth, before such a meeting could be held if in the judgment of a majority of the members of this body that should seem desirable. Certainly in the conduct of every meeting, not only of this body as a whole but of every committee of this body to date, proceedings have been fully open, so far as I know. No one has any intention of holding any meetings otherwise.

This rule as proposed by the committee — as I say, the rule was unanimously recommended by the committee — seems to govern every contingency and to provide for the orderly transaction of our business. I would oppose the amendment offered by Mr. Ford.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, speaking on the rule proposed, the matter has had the most extensive debate in the committee. There have been varying opinions. I have personally taken the view from the very beginning that this convention should be open not only as to the sessions of the convention but as to all sessions of the committees and all sessions of subcommittees.

Mr. Van Dusen has explained the reason for the rule as proposed. In the absence of the clause at the end of that sentence, it will be necessary first to adopt a rule which would have to go back to the committee on rules, have the rule argued there, have the rule come out again, and then to ask for actual authorization to hold an executive session.

The rule as proposed is far more liberal than the rule which Mr. Ford has proposed and for that reason I would oppose his amendment and recommend to the delegates that they accept the rule as set forth here. The rule does nothing more than state the obvious authority of the convention to decide what it may do in any circumstance, including this question of executive sessions.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that we operate here in a goldfish bowl. This convention is not the property of the delegates, nor is it the property of the committees. The final document will be the basic document of all the people of the state of Michigan. What is done here on the floor of the convention and in committee sessions necessitates, I think, that we have as much light as possible shed at all times. If you are permitted to go into executive sessions, you will not stop even then. The delegates will have outside caucuses among themselves. Rumors will come out of the committee which will be picked up by the press. The press then will concoct a few ideas of their own and incorporate this into a statement or a story which would not necessarily — and I do not intend to question the press as to their accuracy, but I have seen occasions where they were not quite accurate enough when they wrote from rumors.

I do not see any reason why we should fear to discuss the people's business, that we should fear to compromise, if necessary, in certain areas and I see no reason why we should fear to do this publicly and openly. On the other hand, I don't think we should discuss them either out of fear that we might be misquoted or that someone might reprimand us for our actions within the committee.

I take exception to the statement by our able chairman of the committee, Mr. Van Dusen, and I believe he said that the time has come for some of us to get up and state — I believe his words were our "opener than thou" attitude. I want to say, with all respect to Mr. Van Dusen, that my position on this matter has not changed from the very outset, from the time I announced my candidacy for the constitutional convention. I have taken a forthright position on this repeatedly, time and time again, in the basic belief that this is the people's business and the people have a right to know at all times what is being discussed, what compromises are being made, what their representatives are doing in committee sessions as well as on the floor of the convention.

It seems to me, in conclusion, that the more open we keep this convention and the more open we keep the discussions, the more informed electorate we are going to have when the final document is submitted, the more they are going to understand the document.

Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I support the amendment of Mr. Ford, and I hope that the delegates to this convention will not permit a situation to develop where you will go behind closed doors to discuss the business of all the people of the state of Michigan. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Hubbs.

MR. HUBBS: Mr. Chairman, I have heard a great deal of talk this afternoon about open committee meetings, an open convention, and open meetings of all kinds. Now, I happen to be a member of the majority party at this convention and as of now I have as yet to be summoned in any way since this convention opened to any sort of a party caucus.

I would like to know if it would not be possible to introduce another rule at this stage, stating that any party here represented who are about to hold a caucus to discuss their views, give notice to all delegates so that all delegates may attend all caucuses of all parties.

I would like, Mr. Chairman, to further point out that a considerable number of party caucuses have been held and I was not informed and I was not present, and if the press was present I have not heard about it, and so long as this is going to be open to the public, let's let them right into our party caucuses also. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The question is on the amendment offered by Mr. Ford, to which Mr. Brown is now recognized.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, I have given the secretary an amendment to Mr. Ford's amendment which I think is self explanatory.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The secretary will read the amendment to the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. G. E. Brown offers the following amendment to the pending amendment offered by Mr. Ford:

1. Amend Mr. Ford's amendment by adding at the end of it this language, "And notice of the time and place of every meeting of every committee or subcommittee shall be given to all news media. No meeting of a committee or subcommittee shall be held without such notice first having been given.".

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The question is upon Mr. Brown's amendment to the amendment. Does Mr. Brown desire to debate his amendment?

Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I haven't had an opportunity to talk with Mr. Brown but I would simply like to say I feel this is completely consistent with the objectives of my amendment and I would like to support the position he is now taking. I think this is consistent with the entire theory we are arguing here.

The question is really not on who is more opener than thou — and we can start to be cute about this sort of thing if we will — it is a question of whether we are going to equivocate now or not.

What we are faced with right now is what I invite you people to consider we will be faced with the first time somebody comes in and attempts to use the rule the way the committee has written it. The point is that now is the time to make the decision. Why are we afraid to make a decision at this particular time? Why do we have to equivocate? If it becomes so apparent that this convention cannot proceed without such a rule as now proposed, the time to adopt that rule is when somebody can come up with a clean cut reason to give us why we have to have any secret meetings at this time and I invite any delegate to give me reason for such a provision. I would like to know under what circumstances anybody in this delegation would like to have the right to meet with any person in front of a committee or to have the committee deliberate on any matter without the public present.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. King.

MR. KING: In answer to Mr. Ford's point, I might state that unfortunately many of the delegates have put themselves in somewhat equivocal positions during their partisan campaigns. This is unfortunate but it is true and I think we ought to recognize it.

An executive session of a committee would provide that type of atmosphere which would permit some resolution of our differences. There is legitimate reason for executive committee meetings. Now, I don't propose to tell you what those reasons are in advance. I don't know. I just say they could exist. So far as I know, all legislative bodies in this country reserve the right to have executive committee meetings. You might say this is not a legislative body. The greatest constitutional convention I am aware of took place 174 years ago in the city of Philadelphia. I am given to understand, although I wasn't present, that this was conducted in a great deal of secrecy and the very essence of the document we now live under would not have been possible without that sort of secrecy.

With regard to school boards, I don't think that is a fair analogy to a constitutional convention.

Now, as has been pointed out, the majority party has held no secret caucuses that I am aware of. The minority party has. The press reported the reason in one case as being a discussion of personalities. This seems like a valid reason to me. I wouldn't quarrel with it if that is the reason they advanced. I would support the rule as it is now, or I would have supported it as it was before this latest amendment.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: Mr. Chairman, with the exception of the last speaker, every other speaker was in favor of open meetings. They disagreed on language. It seems that we present a ridiculous spectacle to the public when all of us agree — Mr. Van Dusen, Mr. Martin, Mr. Marshall, Mr. Ford — everybody wanted open meetings and we couldn't agree on language. Now, if at this stage of the proceedings, language is going to hold us up when we all — almost all except the last speaker — are agreed on what we want, what is going to happen to us when we get into substantive matters?

I know you can't move the previous question in committee of the whole. I think everybody understands what is involved. Let's take a vote on this matter. Let's dispose of it one way or the other and go on to the next order of business or the next amendment.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Lundgren.

MR. LUNDGREN: I would be very much for the vote too, but if you want something more — Mr. Ford, on your invitation, will you tell us what you told us last evening about a secret session, or executive sessions and how you would like to have one? I think you had quite a discussion with us last evening about that.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I don't think that Mr. Lundgren is referring to — and I think it is about time for me to start rebelling a bit against constant reference to the members of the minority party. I am a member of the democratic party which isn't in all instances a minority party. I am a member of a delegation of 144 people, and I certainly don't, in offering this amendment, suggest anything different than what happened last night, and I think Mr. Lundgren has struck on a good point.

Last evening by chance I happened to run into about 5 or 6 members of the republican party who might be expected on a number of occasions to disagree with me because of my party affiliations, and I was very pleased to have the opportunity to sit down for about an hour with those gentlemen and to discover that we really aren't too far apart on the basic things that are good for the people of Michigan.

As a matter of fact, you would be very hard put to find a real party issue in any of the matters we discussed last night, and I strongly would urge that committee members get in the habit, all delegates get in the habit, of exchanging these ideas on an informal and social basis, and I would expect in any committee I am on that I will have the right at any time to sit down, with the entire committee for that matter as long as we are not deliberating as a committee, and discuss any of these matters.

I reserve the right to discuss it with anyone, from 1 to 143 delegates, and when we talk about caucusing — there isn't any question but that members of the committee will be caucusing, if we use the word caucus. I don't see that the word caucus carries with it any sinister connotation, and since there's some note of levity injected in this, I certainly hope none of the speakers are going to try to convince me — I am young and I am new at this, all of us are new at constitutional conventions — but I don't think anybody is making a statement that either party has been without its caucus since we arrived here a week ago Monday. None of us are naive enough to accept that proposition.

The practices — so far as I know, I read when I arrived here in time for the dinner on Monday night that both parties were having open caucuses. I participated in an open caucus with the press present, where we discussed the election of the president of this convention, and I believe, as a matter of fact, members of the opposite party also attended the caucus and talked with us. I don't want to mention names on it. It is certainly proper and in the best keeping for us to meet and talk about these things.

I think Mr. Lundgren is entirely correct that this is the right that everybody should retain so long as they are not sitting and acting as a committee.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: Mr. Chairman, I rise on a point of information with reference to Mr. Ford's original amendment, if I may. Is that in order at this time under the present procedure?

It was my understanding that Mr. Ford wanted to add a paragraph to rule 34, as originally submitted to us today and amended by Mr. Bledsoe, that he wanted to put an additional paragraph down at the bottom to provide that all committee meetings shall be open to the public.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The secretary will read the amendment, Mr. Gust.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford has offered the following amendment to rule 34:

1. Amend rule 34 by adding at the end the following paragraph "All meetings of all committees and subcommittees of this convention shall be open to the public.".

MR. GUST: Does the Ford amendment contemplate any deletion of any of the rule as given to us in its present form today by the committee on permanent organization and rules?

SECRETARY CHASE: The Secretary understood from what Mr. Ford indicated that it would not.

MR. GUST: That's what I understood, Mr. Secretary. That being so, would you not have 2 conflicting sentences in the same rule? You have in there presently that "All committee meetings shall be open to the public unless otherwise authorized by the convention." If you merely added this as a paragraph, wouldn't they be inconsistent?

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Gust, the Chair would remind you that the question immediately before the committee is the amendment of Mr. Brown, not the amendment of Mr. Ford.

MR. GUST: That's why I asked if I was in order, Mr. Chairman. It is not in order at this time, is that right?

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: In the interest of keeping things in order, let's defer that until we get Mr. Brown's amendment out of the way.

Mr. Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: I call the convention's attention to rule 22:

> When any delegate is about to speak in debate or present any matter to the convention, he shall rise from his seat, and respectfully address himself to "Mr. President;" he shall not speak until recognized and when recognized and this is the important thing — > he shall confine himself to the question under debate and avoid personalities.

In view of the tone of some of the remarks, I would suggest that the chairman caution delegates to avoid personalities and stick to the issue.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Delegates will take warning. Mr. King.

MR. KING: Mr. Chairman, I would just like to clarify the record. I don't know if anyone was referring to personalities, but the implication was made that 143 of us were in favor of an open convention and one of us, being myself, was opposed to it. That is not correct, and I want that made very clear at this point.

When I made reference to the federal constitution, I was stating a fact. If anybody takes issue with this fact, that that was held with a great deal of secrecy, I will be glad to lend them my history books.

My position is that I support the amendment of the committee on permanent organization and rules, and that is my only position.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Dr. Nord.

MR. NORD: I rise to speak on the question again of whether the rule in the original form is satisfactory or whether it needs to be amended at all.

I am a member of the committee that has recommended this rule. The reason it was sent back to the committee yesterday was because it was ambiguous. It certainly is not ambiguous at the present time. That doesn't solve the entire problem, of course. The question is not only whether it is ambiguous, but whether it is correct. It is not ambiguous. I also state that it is correct in the present form and ought to be adopted.

The reason I have arisen at this point — and I didn't intend to — but somebody has challenged all of the delegates, I believe, to rise and state whether there are any circumstances where there might be executive sessions. Nobody so far has thought fit to rise and say that there ought to be executive sessions on some particular occasions. Therefore I arise to do so.

I don't believe this will make me the most popular delegate, but nevertheless I have been challenged, and I have never yet refused to accept a challenge, and I have the scars to prove it. And I also suggest that it would be better in the future if we do not challenge each other.

I am in favor of executive sessions in certain cases, and it is my opinion that a great many members of the convention are as well. This is based on discussion with many members of both sects, you might say — the democratic sect and the republican sect. I realize there are various different types of religious belief of that type at the convention. Nevertheless, as I say, there are various different reasons. I advanced them at the committee meetings on 3 different occasions and I would like to repeat them. They have never been advanced on the floor.

In my opinion, there is one reason and only one reason, but that is a valid reason, why an executive session might at some time be had. That is when personalities are brought into play. I don't mean personalities between the delegates. They can slug it out as much as they wish. I wish they would do that in committee meetings rather than on the floor.

What I am afraid of is what has happened in congressional committee hearings. In my opinion, many congressional committee hearings have abused the process of conducting hearings. I have long felt that. I have been opposed to the way many committee hearings in congress have been held. I have not opposed their making investigations, full investigations, of facts and I don't oppose our doing so. I think we should do so. If we do so, if we make full investigations of fact, we are bound to discover an occasion where somebody begins to sling mud against somebody else. That is the occasion which I am concerned about. At that point, I don't believe we should say, "Stop slinging mud and forget what you have to say." Rather, I would like to hear what he has to say, but I don't wish that to be made public until there is an opportunity to determine whether it is fair to allow some person who is not present to be slandered.

In my opinion, if such occasion arises where personalities are brought in by a witness, that witness ought to be brought before the committee. I believe it is possible that might happen. In the event that is not done, the only other cure is an executive session. I would favor an executive session, or else a rule that protects persons who are not present, whose reputations are impugned by witnesses. There being no such rule at the present time and none proposed, I believe there are cases where executive sessions would be worth while but only in those cases.

I would say that it is not too funny to note, as it has been noted by someone, that there have been caucuses, at least one caucus, that was secret. I believe that it was proper to have it secret. I don't think it needs to be defended. It was the correct thing to do. There will be cases where committees will do the same thing. It will be better to hear the evidence, even in secret, than to shut it up.

Therefore, let's not assume that we have all taken a purity pledge that nothing we ever do will be secret. I believe we all have hotel rooms and we close the door, and I hope that we don't have to keep that door open, too.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Hatch.

MR. HATCH: I would like to direct a question concerning Mr. Brown's proposed amendment which, as I understand it, provides that before a committee could hold a meeting there must be notice to the news media. I would like to know what he means by notice. Does this mean that all newspapers, radio stations, television corporations, must be served by registered mail before a committee meeting can be held? Or just what does the amendment mean when it speaks of notice?

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Hatch, I think the impracticality of your interpretation is apparent. We do, however, have liaison with the press. At present I think there are 3 members of the press who have been designated by the president for that liaison, and certainly insofar as the notice is concerned it could be given to that group which would constitute notice to the news media as a whole.

This does not contemplate certified mail or registered mail or anything of that nature. It is primarily to make sure that every meeting, regardless of where held and regardless of the extent of the deliberations involved, notice of that meeting is given to the news media.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Miss Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: Mr. Chairman, I would like to answer the challenge, and support very firmly everything Professor Nord has had to say.

I also would like to add that I believe the difficulty in refusing to allow executive sessions thus establishes more secret sessions than anyone could dream of, and thus more danger to the public and to all individual delegates, and defeats our job which I believe is to keep the public informed.

The only instance I think the public should not necessarily be informed is to protect individuals, and I am very fearful that if we do not provide the opportunity to protect them we will damage them and thus ourselves, because we are also part of the people and must represent them.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: On Mr. Brown's amendment which is now offered to Mr. Ford's amendment, it seems to me we could get a little better and more intelligent result if that were deferred until we could vote on the amendment we are concerned about, and then consider the amendment Mr. Brown has offered. I am sure probably there is no objection to it on anyone's part, but in the order it is presented it will cause some confusion.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The Chair will have to rule that the question is still upon Mr. Browns amendment to the Ford amendment, it being a principle of parliamentary procedure that amendments to perfect must be taken care of ahead of the main question, and so the question is still upon Mr. Brown's amendment. All those in favor of Mr. Brown's amendment say aye. Opposed, no.

The Chair would rule by voice volume that the amendment to the amendment is not adopted.

Now the question is upon Mr. Ford's amendment.

Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: Mr. Chairman, I rise now on my point of information. I may have lost track through the minutes here, but it appears to me that unless you delete the following sentence from the printed rule 34 as submitted today before you add the last paragraph, that you will have inconsistent sentences in this rule, because the second to the last sentence now reads "All committee meetings shall be open to the public unless otherwise authorized by the convention." To leave that in and to substitute in a subsequent paragraph, I submit for the Chair's consideration, would leave 2 inconsistent sentences within a single rule.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Ford

MR. FORD: Mr. Chairman, it was my intention, and I believe I used this exact language, that I would propose this paragraph in lieu of the sentence which reads "All committee meetings shall be open to the public unless otherwise authorized by the convention." I stand corrected on the semantics of the word, or the phrase "in lieu of". It has been my intention to strike that sentence, leaving the rest of the rule, as placed on our desks after we started this discussion, intact.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary is sorry that he misunderstood your intent. I understood originally that that was your intent, and then we adopted this other form. So Mr. Ford's amendment now is as follows:

1. Amend the proposed rule 34 by striking out the sentence which reads, "All committee meetings shall be open to the public unless otherwise authorized by the convention.", and inserting in lieu thereof the sentence "All meetings of all committees and subcommittees of this convention shall be open to the public.".

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, the late Judge Learned Hand once said that "The spirit of liberty is that spirit which is not too sure that it is right".

We have heard several people here today say that they cannot conceive of any circumstances whatsoever when an executive session of a committee should be held. I think that impression has been corrected. While all of us want to have a convention and committees which are as open as possible, I think there is some question remaining in most of our minds that perhaps once in a while — we hope not, but maybe — a secret meeting should be held in the interests of the people of the state of Michigan, and in the interests of the information which must be presented to us if we are to judge the facts fully, and that would be presented to us in no other way. If that is so, then the question comes up, how do we go about doing it?

I suggest that it is probable, in the unlikely event that the need should arise, it should be done as soon as possible, that we should not have to go through the rules committee, wait 2 days — which I don't believe would be just 2 ordinary days but 2 session days — and go through all that procedure and then come back and debate it again. I think we should be able to do it as soon as possible, and as Mr. Van Dusen suggests, with a roll call or a call of the convention a sufficient number of delegates can be obtained so that the motion as proposed by the committee will most satisfactorily serve the interests of the people of the state of Michigan, and that therefore Mr. Ford's very well intentioned amendment should be defeated.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I arise in support of the amendment offered by Delegate Ford. I feel that we have here more than a simple matter of whether we will have open and public meetings. I feel that we have here an issue that is of more significance not only to the delegates assembled but to the people of the entire state of Michigan. I feel that we have involved here a basic principle of rights.

Should we defeat the proposition on the floor at the present time, I feel that there would be an erosion of the basic rights of the people. Once we lose this basic right, there is a strong possibility that we can also lose other rights guaranteed to us in our present constitution. These rights that we have at the present time were gained over a period of many years. Certainly in the history of our conventions, both on a state and national level, there was much discussion on the rights of people.

Our learned instructor of the day, Professor Pollock, pointed out that times have changed. Indeed times have changed, and I feel that the basic agreement among all of us is that the most significant change of this century is one of communications. Communications are vital to the people, to the democratic procedure of the entire state. We have got to bring into the homes of the people by the various news media the actions of all the committees, and I will say that as presently written it is my opinion that the rule offered by the committee at the present time does not include the subcommittees because there is a distinction made, there is a specific power given to the committee as a whole here that they may refer this matter to a subcommittee, and once you raise a distinction between a committee and a subcommittee, you do not contain in context the basic right that all meetings will be public.

You have here a question that committee meetings as such may be public, but also further appended is that the committee may set up subcommittees and pass certain powers to that subcommittee, not that all the meetings will be open.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The question is on Mr. Ford's amendment. All those in favor say aye. Opposed, no. The amendment is not adopted on a voice vote.

Mr. Dehnke.

MR. DEHNKE: I am concerned about the effect that this debate might have in creating a false impression around the state. It may have the effect, although of course not intended, of leading the people to believe that the convention is about ready to authorize some committee to hold a secret session. That, of course, has not been done. The time for that to be decided is when some committee asks leave to hold executive sessions.

I am also cencerned about one of the points raised by Mr. Ford, that by reason of a bare plurality of members in attendance, a bare quorum, such an authorization might be given by a vote of less than 40. I do not have the impression of the membership of this convention that there will be any meetings whatever when there will be a substantial absentee list except for illness or some other emergency. However, to guard against any such possibility and to set at rest all fears resting upon it, I move that the proposed rule be amended as follows:

1. Amend rule 34, in the next to the last sentence, after "convention" by inserting "by a majority vote of the delegates elected", so that it will read as follows: "All committee meetings shall be open to the public unless otherwise authorized by the convention by a majority vote of the delegates elected."

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The question is upon Mr. Dehnke's amendment. All those in favor of Mr. Dehnke's amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted. The question is upon the rule as amended.

Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, do I understand that the question before us now is the rule as proposed by the committee?

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: And as amended by the Dehnke amendment and the Bledsoe amendment. There have been 2 amendments adopted.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, the substance of the matter before us is the provision of this rule which grants committees the power only to hold public hearings unless otherwise authorized by this convention, sessions wide open to the press and the people. This is without precedent in the history of representative government.

So far as I can determine, never before has a representative body of consequence gone so far in laying bare the inner workings of its activity, the vital and delicate process, if you will, of combining the real and the ideal with common sense and compromise into law. As was pointed out by Luther Cushing, who is the authority historically on this subject, it was only in a very recent historical period that legislative sessions were in fact open to the public.

Furthermore, our own constitution was drafted in secrecy, and more recently, in 1953, it was disclosed that the constitutions of but 2 of our states, Idaho and New Mexico — those 2 states only — provided for unrestricted access of the press and the people to their general sessions. This secrecy grew up historically not merely to conceal the compromises of the members or the true reasons for their decisions, as some would have us believe, but also for the fear which was too often justified in fact in those days, of inaccurate, unfairly opinionated, or sometimes even coercive treatment by the press. But both the press and the people have come a long ways since those days.

By adopting the rule as recommended by the committee and amended, we who have no control over the newcasters, reporters, headline writers, columnists, editors or publishers, will be giving them an immensely increased control and power over our deliberations, and with that power we will be sharing in a very real sense our responsibility which on September 12 the people of Michigan entrusted to us. We will be making the news media of Michigan full partners with us in our task of doing our very best to improve Michigan's constitution. Only if both partners fulfill that responsibility can the task succeed. And while the eyes of Michigan, and perhaps some of the rest of the world, will be on us, as delegates here, the journalistic professions of America will be watching to see if the news men and news women of Michigan do theirs.

We have all read, heard and, I believe, thought a good deal about our responsibilities as delegates, and therefore I think it would not be inappropriate to hear briefly mentioned the responsibilities of the news media as well.

Will our committee deliberations be reported to the people fully, accurately and objectively? Will the facts be correct, and sufficient space and time be allotted so that all significant matters appear? And most important of all, perhaps, will our news men and news women keep first in mind that their influence is far out of proportion to their rights as individual citizens, and that the heavy duty of deciding what to submit to the people is and must be left with the delegates here? Will they therefore firmly resist the natural temptations to glamorize their choices of people and issues, to vilify to some extent the people and issues with which they disagree, and to sensationalize what they consider to be mistakes? Mr. Chairman, I have much confidence that the answer to each of these questions is yes.

In light of the news media's generally very good record in covering con con over the past 8 months, and in light of the inescapable fact that the people will judge our work as we go along and in light of the fact that I understand that the committee's report on this was unanimous, or substantially unanimous, I urge each delegate here respectfully to support the committee's report as amended.

However, in the spirit of what I just said, I would like to offer the following addition to the rule:

1. Amend rule 34 by adding to it the following sentence: "The convention press committee together with such other persons as the president may choose to appoint, shall, as soon as practicable before the convention's final adjournment, poll the delegates by secret ballot to determine the opinion of the delegates as to whether or not and to what extent the convention's activities have been covered fully, accurately and objectively, by the press, radio and television media of the state, and shall report the results thereof to the convention.".

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Wanger offers an amendment.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Chairman I listened with great care to the remarks by Mr. Wanger, as I think we all did. They were very much to the point. I know that they were listened to with care and respect by the members of the press.

I think, however, that with respect to the amendment to the rule which he now offers, I would suggest that it is the purpose of the rules to deal with recurring events, that his amendment deals with a single event and might more appropriately be dealt with as a separate resolution rather than as a part of our standing rules of this convention. For that reason, and for that reason only, I would oppose Mr. Wanger's amendment.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The question is upon Mr. Wanger's amendment.

Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, I agree that perhaps under some circumstances this could be handled fully as well by resolution as by rule. However, I would suggest to the committeee that, in addition to providing for recurring matters, the rules are also to empower committees and establish their duties, which, of course, my proposed amendment to the rule does.

From the standpoint of procedure, I would also respecfully suggest that I would like to have this adopted, but before we pass on the rule as a whole. I think perhaps there is some feeling among the delegates here, and since it would be, I presume, out of order to take it as a resolution at this time, I would resist Mr. Van Dusen's suggestion that consideration of it be deferred.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Brown of the sixth senatorial distict.

MR. G.E. BROWN: A point of information. I would like to direct my question to either Mr. Van Dusen or Dr. Nord, and since Dr. Nord is on his feet perhaps he would like to answer it. I am wondering if in connection with the discussion of this amendment to the rule they went into the ramifications of what would amount to sufficient persuasion to get this convention to authorize the holding of an executive session? It occurs to me that if there are matters which the committee proposes to discuss that will necessitate an executive session, those matters would have to be presented to this convention to determine whether or not this convention would authorize an executive session. If that is done, would not the benefit and effect of an executive session, if it is ever necessary, be lost completely?

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The Chair would suggest that the question is on Mr. Wanger's amendment, and the question directed to Mr. Nord appeared to be on a a subject other than Mr. Wanger's amendment. Will you kindly withhold that question until we get rid of the immediate motion?

The Chair recognizes Dr. Nord on the immediate motion of Mr. Wanger.

MR. NORD: In accordance with the Chair's instructions, I will not bother to answer the question addressed to me and will hope that at some later date Mr. Van Dusen might do so.

I would like to speak against the amendment, and I hope that this will be the last amendment offered to this rule. This rule is not worth this many amendments. The motives behind this amendment may be great as well. I am sure they are. But this amendment rubs me the wrong way. I don't know that you care if it rubs me the wrong way, but anyway it does. The reason it rubs me the wrong way is this: Here we are debating how great everything is, that it is in the open, and that we are just concerned whether there is any possibility whatever that sometime we might want to be closed, but now the amendment says we will have something closed. It says we will have a secret ballot. Let's not have any secret ballots. Let's not worry about that. The newspaper men will ask our opinions in any event, and I hate to see the word secret get into this rule. I wish Mr. Wanger would withdraw this amendment. If not, I wish that we would vote it down.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. Chairman, with regard to the objection that the word secret is in this amendment, I would merely like to say that here is one place where the word secret ballot is appropriate.

After all, we are deciding on something that's past. It is not anything that is going to go into the constitution, and I think we have an opportunity in passing this amendment to do the press and the news media, not of Michigan but perhaps of part of the rest of the country, a great service, because by adopting it we will have the opportunity to give the journalistic profession in their fight for what I believe Kent Cooper called "the right to know" a tremendous and a meaningful vote of confidence for the job I am sure we are convinced they are all going to do here.

That is the spirit that prompted me to offer this amendment, and I think that is the spirit in which it should be be passed.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I am opposed to Mr. Wanger's amendment. It has been my experience that if you tell the press the truth and you are fair with them, you get good coverage.

I think by Mr. Wanger's amendment we are impugning or suggesting that we are not going to get fair coverage of this convention. What's the purpose of it? Are we trying to scare the press? Are we trying to threaten them? Are we going to scare them into fair coverage? I don't think so.

I wonder what purpose the poll serves. Does it tell us that the members think they have done a good job or a bad job? My response to that is, so what? What does it tell us? I am 100 per cent opposed to the amendment.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment offered by Mr. Wanger. Mr. Wanger, do you desire further recognition on this?

MR. WANGER: Briefly, Mr. Chairman, to say this. There is no coercion in this. In the most unlikely event that there would be any amount of unfavorable vote on such a poll, it would be the press who would be the ones charged with disseminating that information. I doubt very much if it would receive a tremendous amount of publicity as a practical matter, in the ways in which it would be used, and I have no questions in my own mind but that that eventuality would never arise.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the amendment offered by Mr. Wanger. All in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

The question is now upon the rule, as amended.

The gentleman from Wayne, Mr. Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, a point of information. Are we still sitting as a committee of the whole?

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: We are, sir.

MR. T. S. BROWN: I move at this time that the committee rise.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the motion. Let us advise the committee, however, that unless we take action upon the rule, the rule will have been left in the committee of the whole.

Mr. Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: I suggest actually the purpose of my question, Mr. Chairman, was not to delay action upon particular amendments, but to place the matter back in the convention after we have finished our deliberations as the committee of the whole.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Mr. Brown, the Chair would advise that under this procedure, the committee of the whole, upon its rising, assuming that it has resolved something, will report back to the convention and the question will then be upon agreeing with the recommendations of the committee of the whole, and if it was your concern that you wanted to put everybody on record in that regard, you could do that by demanding the yeas and nays on agreeing to the recommendations of the committee of the whole.

Mr. Brown of Kalamazoo.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. Chairman, I once again would rise to a point of information more properly at this time. I don't think it is necessary to restate that inquiry, and I would once again direct it to either Dr. Nord or Mr. Van Dusen.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: Perhaps in the light of much having transpired, it would be well if you would restate it.

MR. G. E. BROWN: The amendment that's been offered by the committee to rule 34 at present refers to "meetings shall be open to the public unless otherwise authorized by the convention.", to which has been added "by a majority vote of the delegates elected."

My point of information and my inquiry to Dr. Nord and Mr. Van Dusen was as to whether or not the rules committee had considered how this matter would be brought before the convention if a committee desired to hold an executive session? My point is that, if it is necessary in order to persuade the convention or to persuade a majority of the delegates elected to hold an executive session, these matters which we attempt to protect by an executive session will have to be disclosed here, which is an open forum, in order to get that authority to hold an executive session, which means that, in effect, the idea of an executive session would be nullified. I am just wondering whether or not the committee has discussed it and what the answer of the committee was to the question.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The Chair recognizes Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I do not recall, Mr. Brown, any specific discussion of the point which you raise in the committee on permanent organization and rules, although, of course, this subject received our most careful and lengthy deliberation.

I think the answer to the question is that it would be necessary for the chairman of the committee, if a majority of his committee desired an executive session, to bring his reasons and the reasons of the committee before convention, the delegates as a whole.

I do not think, however, that it would be necessary in putting forward those reasons to defeat the purposes suggested by Dr. Nord. I think the reasons could be stated in such a manner, if they were valid reasons, that the rights of no individual would be thereby impugned.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the rule, as amended. All those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The rule, as amended, is adopted by the committee of the whole.

Is there any further business before the committee of the whole?

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I move that the committee do now rise.

CHAIRMAN HUTCHINSON: The gentleman from Oakland, Mr. Van Dusen, moves that the committee do now rise. All those in favor will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The motion prevails.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, President Nisbet resumed the chair.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration a certain rule upon which the secretary will make a detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration rule 34 and reports the same back to the convention with the following amendments:

1. Amend the body of the rule following the language "A committee may by resolution of the convention be given the power to subpoena documents and witnesses.", by inserting, "Any witness so subpoenaed shall have the right to be represented by counsel of his own choosing.". This was Mr. Bledsoe's amendment.

2. Amend rule 34 at the end of the next to the last sentence after "convention" by inserting "by a majority vote of the delegates elected", so that the sentence will read: "All committee meetings shall be open to the public unless otherwise authorized by the convention by a majority vote of the delegates elected."

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on agreeing to the amendments as recommended by the committee of the whole.

Mr. Brown, do you now insist upon a yea and nay vote upon this matter?

MR. T. S. BROWN: Correct, sir. I believe Mr. Ford had an amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ford, may we proceed to dispose of these committee amendments first?

MR. FORD: Mr. President, I don't in any way want to be disrespectful, but I think I am learning a lesson in parliamentary procedure here from Mr. Hutchinson.

We are now placed in a position — in the very beginning before we went into the committee of the whole, we had, I believe, adopted in this convention a motion to separate this question as to its 2 principal parts; and it is apparent, although some of us are not apparently skillful enough to bring it to this, that we would like to have a yea and nay recorded roll call vote on the amendment that received so very much discussion in the committee of the whole.

I don't purport to open the floor to a lengthy discussion, but I would like to have a yea and nay vote on my amendment as presented, and I submit that, if you now proceed to act on the recommendation of the committee of the whole, the challenge might well be made that this is out of order after this vote is taken.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ford, you may present your amendment after the committee amendments are disposed of.

Mr. Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Do I understand the purport of your last ruling, Mr. President, that we will still vote now in toto on the several amendments?

PRESIDENT NISBET: The 2 amendments that were proposed by the committee of the whole were those of Mr. Bledsoe and Mr. Dehnke. The vote is on those 2 amendments.

MR. T. S. BROWN: By recorded roll call vote?

PRESIDENT NISBET: You called for that. Yes, sir.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Might I also ask, then, what are the people to do who were in favor of Mr. Bledsoe's amendment which passed, and in favor of Mr. Ford's amendment which failed?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ford can offer his amendment after we have voted on these 2 amendments. And there can be a yea and nay vote on that.

The question is on the report of the committee of the whole. Those in favor will vote aye on the machine. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted?

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

SECRETARY CHASE: Upon the question of the convention concurring in the amendments recommended by the committee of the whole, the yeas are 132, and the nays are 7.

[A majority of all the delegates elected having voted therefor, the amendments were adopted.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Thank you, Mr. President. Without discussion, at this time I would like to propose as an amendment to this rule the deletion of the sentence which reads "All committee meetings shall be open to the public unless otherwise authorized by the Convention.", and the addition to the rule as a distinct paragraph and sentence the language which the secretary has before him and will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ford offers the following amendment:

1. Amend the body of the rule by striking out the sentence which reads "All committee meetings shall be open to the public unless otherwise authorized by the convention by a majority vote of the delegates elected.", and inserting "All meetings of all committees and subcommittees of this convention shall be open to the public.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment by Mr. Ford. Is there any discussion?

Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: I call for the yeas and nays. Is that right?

PRESIDENT NISBET: That has already been ordered. Any further discussion? All those in favor of the Ford amendment vote aye. Those opposed vote no. Have you all voted? The secretary will record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

SECRETARY CHASE: On the question of the amendment offered by Mr. Ford, the yeas are 41 and the nays are 100.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is not adopted.

The question is now on the adoption of rule 34, as amended.

Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. President, a point of information. I am sorry that I can't recollect this. Do we have 3 delegates absent at this time?

SECRETARY CHASE: There was one who was absent. Mr. Wilkowski was excused at the beginning of the session.

MR. FORD: Then I would continue this point of inquiry to this. It was my understanding of the rules of this convention that everyone is to cast a vote aye or nay on a roll call unless they have previously stated their intention to abstain. Apparently at least 2 of the delegates didn't understand this, and I would challenge the vote on that basis.

SECRETARY CHASE: May the secretary point out that the only votes that are not recorded are the votes of the President and Mr. Wilkowski. And Mr. Kelsey did not vote. The yeas are 41, the nays are 100, and 3 not voting.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of rule 34, as amended. Is there any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The rule is adopted.

For rule 34 as amended and adopted by the convention, see above, page 135.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: For those of you who may have lost your place, we are now on page 6 of the report of the committee on permanent organization and rules with respect to certain rules relative to the use of the voting machine.

You will recall that yesterday Mr. Woolfenden called to the attention of the delegates and of the committee the fact that while rules 12 and 63 presented the alternative between the use of the voting machine and the use of some more primitive method of voting, rule 64 made mandatory the use of the voting machine. Because of this apparent inconsistency these rules were referred to the committee on permanent organization and rules for their further consideration.

The committee has given that consideration, and recommends the adoption of rules 12 and 63 as previously presented, and the adoption of rule 64 amended so that the second to the last sentence, where the problem arose, would read as follows: "When a division of the convention is ordered, a rising vote shall be taken or the voting machine may be used, if provided, . . .". Thus, in the event of the disability of the voting machine, a rising vote by a show of hands could be authorized in the alternative. The committee recommends the adoption of all 3 rules.

Mr. President, I move their adoption at this time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of rules 12, 63 and 64. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

Rules 12, 63 and 64 are adopted.

For rules 12 and 63 as adopted by the convention, see above, pages 131 and 134.

For rule 64 as amended and adopted by the convention, see above, page 136.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, in the consideration of the inconsistency raised by Mr. Woolfenden yesterday, the committee discovered that the inconsistency exists also with respect to rule 66 which was adopted yesterday which, as adopted, provides only for the use of the voting machine. Therefore the committee recommends that rule 66 be amended to read as follows:

Rule 66. At the roll call at the opening of each session and upon calls of the convention, the names of the members shall be called by the secretary, or the voting machine shall be used if provided and the absentees noted, after which the names of the absentees shall be called.

Mr. President, because this is now a part of the permanent rules of the convention it will be necessary first to suspend the rules in order to consider this amendment at this time. Therefore, I move first that the rules be suspended for the purpose of considering an amendment to rule 66 at this time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there objection? I hear none and the rules are suspended.

MR. VAN DUSEN: The rules having been suspended, Mr. President, I move the adoption of the recommendation of the committee on permanent organization and rules with respect to the amendment of rule 66.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the recommendation. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in and rule 66 is adopted, as amended.

For rule 66 as amended by the convention, see above, page 136.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, this concludes the work of the committee on permanent organization and rules which, as the delegates are aware I believe, was a temporary committee created for the purpose of assisting in the organization of this body of 144 men and women into a functional constitutional convention with committees, with staff and with rules.

The work of the committee has been done. It has been made immeasurably easier by the work of the preparatory commission and its staff. We have been greatly assisted in our work by Mr. Apol and his staff and by our secretary, Mr. Chase, and his staff.

The committee has been diligent, conscientious, and thoughtful. It has been a pleasure for me to work with each of the individual members of that committee, and I am grateful to each of them for their intelligent and conscientious work.

I hope that each of the standing committees which are now embarking on their work will find their experience in working together as pleasant and their work as fruitful as ours has been on the committee on permanent organization and rules.

Mr. President, I move that the committee on permanent organization and rules be now discharged.

PRESIDENT NISBET: You have heard the motion. Is their any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. Thank you, Mr. Van Dusen, and your committee.

The next order of business is communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are none, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Erickson introduces Delegate Proposal 1001, A proposal for election of a nonpartisan state board of education. Amends article XI, section 6.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Erickson also introduces Delegate Proposal 1002, A proposal for election of a nonpartisan board of trustees for Michigan State University. Amends article XI, section 7.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Erickson also introduces Delegate Proposal 1003, A proposal for election of a nonpartisan board of regents for the University of Michigan. Amends article XI, section 3.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Erickson also introduces Delegate Proposal 1004, A proposal for election of a nonpartisan board of governors for Wayne State University. Amends article XI, section 16.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Erickson also introduces Delegate Proposal 1005, A proposal for an appellate court. Amends article VII by adding a new section.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on judicial branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Erickson also introduces Delegate Proposal 1006, A proposal for election of nonpartisan supreme court. Amends article VII, section 2.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on judicial branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Yeager introduces Delegate Proposal 1007, A proposal relative to the private ownership of real property. Amends Article II by adding a new section 23.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all the proposals on file at this time, Mr. President.

May the secretary comment that the rule provides that proposals to be introduced at any session shall be filed with the secretary 3 hours in advance of the session. There are some other proposals that he knows of that are in process which did not come in in time for introduction today.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The next order of business is motions and resolutions. Hearing none, any unfinished business?

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are none.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I would like to announce that in view of the work we have just received and for other reasons the committee on education will meet in room F immediately following the close of today's session. This will be an open meeting.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further announcements?

Mr. Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: I would request from the Chair permission to be excused from the early portion of tomorrow's session for the reason that approximately 6 months ago I made a commitment to a teachers' conference at Kalamazoo.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, you will be excused.

Dr. De Vries.

MR. De VRIES: Mr. President, there will be a brief meeting of the committee on administration immediately following this session in room G. The committee will also meet tomorrow morning at 9:00 o'clock in room G.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Hannah.

MR. J. A. HANNAH: The committee on legislative organization will hold its first meeting tomorrow afternoon 15 minutes after the close of the session in room D.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections will hold its first meeting tomorrow morning, 11:00 o'clock, committee room E.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Powell.

MR. POWELL: This forenoon I was contacted by Mr. Lloyd Ashe of East Lansing, a retired mechanical engineer, who for a number of years has carried on a personal project of making a record of the attendance and the voting participation of members of the legislature. He does this entirely as a public service and has never been compensated in any way for his time or material.

Mr. Ashe is a native of Michigan, having been brought up in a farm area near Frankenmuth, and having at one time owned and operated a farm in Tuscola county. He is a veteran of World War I and, as I have said, is a retired mechanical engineer who does this purely as a citizen interested in this subject and without any pecuniary compensation whatsoever

A copy of this report is being placed in your mail box. The yellow sheet explains the setup of the compilation.

Of course, I had no part in the preparation of this material, having merely sponsored the placing of it in your mail boxes. I thought you might be interested in studying the voting record of your own state legislators.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, the committee on executive branch will meet briefly in room C at the conclusion of this session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any other announcements?

Mr. Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. President, just to remind the members of the committee on style and drafting that after the close of this session, we will have a brief meeting in room D.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Danhof announces a meeting of the committee on judicial branch in room B at 10:00 o'clock a.m. tomorrow.

Mr. Erickson announces there will be an organization meeting of the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule tomorrow morning at 11:00 a.m. in room E.

Mr. Hoxie announces a meeting of the committee on legislative powers immediately following adjournment today in room E.

Mr. Shackleton has filed with the secretary a request to be excused from the convention session of Thursday so that he may attend a director's meeting scheduled for that afternoon.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, it will be so granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: May the secretary point out that the staff will again process the rules that you amended today and they will be placed upon your desks in a packet so that you may interleaf them in the packet that you now have.

There has also been left with the secretary a note that one gold pendant with a rhinestone has been found in the library, and if the person who lost this will call for it, it may be obtained there.

This further and final announcement on the part of the secretary which has been filed with the request that the announcement be made: Mrs. Ella D. Koeze, national committeewoman, calls a republican caucus in committee room B after the session today.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Leppien.

MR. LEPPIEN: Mr. President, I believe there is a conflict of committee calls. I believe the secretary announced committee calls for 2 separate committees in room E at 11:00 o'clock. I think one should have been 9:00 o'clock.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Will Mr. Erickson correct that?

MR. ERICKSON: One of the vice presidents couldn't be there at 9:00 and he asked me to have it at 11:00 o'clock. But if there is a conflict with E, if the secretary will give us another room, we will defer to Dr. Pollock.

SECRETARY CHASE: I am sorry, sir, but I am unable to.

MR. ERICKSON: Well, what other letters are there that we can have? We are not choosy right now.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Erickson, if you will see Mr. Apol, he will take care of that for you, I am sure.

MR. LEPPIEN: Mr. President, I would like to point out to Mr. Erickson that at least one member of his committee is a member of both committees, and you can't be in 2 places.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further announcements?

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President, it appears we have some conflict, there being a republican caucus called in conflict with the committee meeting that was called directly after this session by myself, as chairman of the legislative powers committee, and in deference to the democratic members of our committee I will ask that that committee meeting be postponed.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any other announcements?

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the committee on administration will not meet following the session but will meet at 9:00 a.m. tomorrow morning in room G.

PRESIDENT NISBET: What is your further pleasure?

Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, in view of the fact that there apparently is a conflict and since I was unaware of this when I prepared this announcement for my committee meeting, I will now announce that the committee on education will meet at 9:00 o'clock tomorrow morning in room F if there are no conflicts and no caucuses and nothing else going on at that time that will interfere with the committee.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you very much.

Mr. Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: I will now say that the committee on style and drafting will not meet in room D after this meeting but we shall meet at 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning in room D.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: The committee on the executive branch will meet briefly and it will take us just about 3 minutes to transact our business. It will work out all right, I am sure.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, the 2 vice chairmen of the committee on local government and myself will meet immediately after this session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Anspach.

MR. ANSPACH: I move that we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The motion has been made that we adjourn. All those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

We are adjourned until 2:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

[Whereupon, at 4:35 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m. Thursday, October 12, 1961.]

SIXTH DAY

Thursday, October 12, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order. The invocation today will be given by the Reverend John W. Murbach, Pastor of the Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church of Lansing.

REVEREND MURBACH: Shall we pray? O God, to whom all hearts are open and who art the author and life of happiness, of freedom, grant us, O God, clarity of insight and understanding as together we share in the important responsibilities that are committed to us. We thank Thee for the dedication of those who have committed themselves to the responsibilities of working on behalf of our state and grant, O God, that from the deliberations of the hours spent together there will come that which is Thy will and that which shall be of Thy purpose and shall be for the betterment and establishment of the kind of state we all seek. We give Thee thanks for the freedoms and liberties that are ours, and grant that we ever cherish those things which Thou has given to us, and that we are Thine. Grant us in this meeting this afternoon and in every instance and in every circumstance clarity of thought, determination of purpose, to know Thy will and to do Thy purpose. To these ends let Thy blessing rest upon each member. We ask this through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary.

SECRETARY CHASE: Everyone present please vote aye. Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following request for leave:

Mrs. Conklin reports that Mrs. Koeze called earlier today, and her father has had a heart attack.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, Mrs. Koeze will be granted an indefinite leave of absence.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Mrs. Koeze, Messrs. Boothby and Shackleton.

Absent without leave: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I would like an omission here to be corrected in today's journal for yesterday's proceedings. I am not listed as having voted either yea or nay. I did vote on the first recorded vote and it was a yea vote. I would like the journal to carry that today for yesterday's proceedings.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the correction will be made.

[The correction has been made at page 162 above.]

Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, submits the following report and recommends that the convention immediately approve the following vouchers incurred by the preparatory committee:

Tape Recording Industries $26,000.00
East Lansing, Michigan
Voting system as specified for constitutional convention.

Capitol City Lumber Company 7,320.00
Lansing, Michigan
Labor, materials, tools, equipment and services for fabrication and installation of podium with cabinets and lectern; desk, table and cabinets for the press; panels and hand rails for the gallery area; 2 bookcases; and the mail room case with cubicles and storage.

C. J. Parducci Studio 450.00
Detroit, Michigan
Material and labor for 5½ foot state seal.

Herman Miller, Inc. 8,577.00
Zeeland, Michigan
Delegates' chairs for the assembly room.

Capitol City Lumber Company 17,000.00
Lansing, Michigan
Labor, materials, tools, equipment and services for fabrication and installation of delegates' desks in assembly room.

Irwin Seating Company 1,800.95
Grand Rapids, Michigan
Labor, materials, tools, equipment and services for fabrication and installation of theater chairs in the spectators' gallery.

Dowcraft Corporation 4,628.00
Jamestown, New York
Steel and glass partitions for committee rooms in the northeast portion of the basement of the building.

Grand Rapids Partitions, Inc. 4,876.25
Grand Rapids, Michigan
Glass partitions for the dictation, research and press carrels in the building.

International Forwarding Company 449.68
Los Angeles, California
Shipping charges for chairs.

Bouma Cartage Company 8.80
Grand Rapids, Michigan
Shipping charges for partitions.

The committee on administration further recommends that the convention avail itself of the necessary facilities of the department of administration in order to expedite payment of bills, purchases and matters pertaining to spending money authorized by the convention.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, perhaps there should be a brief explanation of these items. All these bills were incurred by the preparatory commission and I think it is our obligation to pay them as soon as possible. The $26,000.00 for the voting system includes service for the voting system, which I see today may need some repair.

The other items, I don't think there's any question about them. I think they have to be paid. Many of them are with small contractors and they need their money badly.

So I would like to make 2 motions, if I may, that the bills incurred by the preparatory commission be taken over by the constitutional convention and we immediately approve their payment, and then make the last part of the report a separate motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the approval of bills. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: It might be of interest to the delegates with regard to the chairs and desks that were purchased, the committee on administration tentatively decided this morning that the delegates could buy these when the constitutional convention adjourns next year. We did not set a price.

One further item. You will notice there is an item in here for $8.80. We will not insult your intelligence to bring this kind of bill before you again. We intend to provide in our budget, which we hope to present to you next Monday evening along with the salary schedule, a contingency fund from which the committee on administration and secretary can approve small amounts like this without bringing it to your attention.

My second motion, Mr. President, is that we recommend that we avail ourselves of the department of administration and let them handle our postaudit and preaudit and the processing of all our financial documents. I move concurrence in that recommendation.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurrence in the recommendation. Is there any discussion? If not, all those in favor vote aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

Any other standing committee reports?

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only standing committee report on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: No communications, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Brake also introduces

Delegate Proposal 1018, A proposal to clarify legislator's immunity from arrest. Amends article V, section 8.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Butler introduces

Delegate Proposal 1019, A proposal for election of nonpartisan board of control for Michigan College of Mining and Technology. Amends article XI, section 10.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all the proposals for introduction today, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on the calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I move that when the convention adjourns today, it stand adjourned until next Monday evening, October 16.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion. Is there any discussion? If not, all those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: I have a resolution which is in the hands of the secretary to be read and, since we will not be meeting tomorrow, I ask unanimous consent to make a brief statement in support of the resolution before it is referred to a committee.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there objection? Hearing none, Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Will the secretary read the resolution, please?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Woolfenden offers

Resolution 7, A resolution providing for final adjournment of the convention.

Whereas, Section 4, article XVII of the Michigan constitution provides that any proposed constitution or amendments adopted by this convention shall be submitted at an election to be held the first Monday in April, 1962, in the event final adjournment of this convention takes place on or before January 2, 1962; and

Whereas, Under the weekly work schedule heretofore adopted by this convention, 7700 delegate work days are available between today and December 31, 1961, for the formulation of the recommendations of this convention; and

Whereas, It is the view of the delegates assembled in this convention that it is in the best interest of the state of Michigan to conduct the work of this convention as expeditiously as is feasible, with due regard to the deliberative responsibilities of the delegates; now therefore be it

Resolved, That this convention adopt a timetable for its deliberations and the deliberations of its several committees to the end that the work of the convention may be completed, if feasible, on or before December 31, 1961, as follows:

1. All proposals by delegates shall be submitted and all public hearings by committees shall be held on or before November 15, 1961;

2. All committees shall report their recommendations to the convention on or before December 1, 1961; and

3. The convention shall complete its work on or before December 31, 1961.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Mr. President, I believe under the rules that the resolution is to be referred to an appropriate committee, and I think I have unanimous consent to make a brief statement before reference.

I think that the delegates in this convention have an overriding responsibility, not only to produce a good constitution, but a responsibility that carries forward to the election at which this constitution will be voted upon by the people. I think we delegates will have engaged only in an academic exercise if we produce a good constitution and then fail to support it or to sell it to the people of the state of Michigan.

It was evidently the intent of the people, the wish of the people in adopting this constitutional amendment, to have it voted on in April of 1962 if that is feasible. Having due regard for the caliber of the 144 delegates assembled in this convention, the many years of experience of most of these delegates — in fact, all of them — I think that under the work schedule we have already adopted, we have 7700 work days left before December 31 to complete this job. There can be no question but that we have the time available to do it. It is a question of how we spend that time, and I strongly urge the delegates to consider this matter carefully, and I earnestly hope that the delegates will support this resolution.

I feel that if the question is submitted to the people in April of 1962, it will be the only question on the ballot in all probability, in most areas of the state, probably throughout the state. It will be in very sharp focus. The people will have been following the deliberations of this convention in the press and otherwise, and the subject will be fresh in their minds. I think we will have an excellent chance of getting approval by the electorate of the product which we produce at this convention if it is voted on in April. If it is not voted on in April, under the constitutional provision it will be voted on in November of 1962.

I think that the chance of getting this constitution passed will be prejudiced in 2 important respects if it goes on the November ballot. First, it will be so long after we have concluded our deliberations that it will constitute a kind of warmed over dish that we are submitting to the electorate. I don't believe it will be possible to get the same support and understanding of the job we have done in November that it will be in April, approximately 90 days after we complete our deliberations.

The second important reason why I think the chance of passage would be prejudiced in November is that in the November election this question will be only one of many submitted to the voters. There will be, undoubtedly, partisan questions and partisan candidates being considered by the voters. There will have intervened between the conclusion of our convention and the November election primary elections throughout the state which will have diverted the attention of the voters. I can conceive that the very subject of the passage of the proposed constitution may itself receive some partisan attack from some point of the compass in the November election.

If it is submitted on the April ballot, it will be considered squarely on the merits, and I feel very sincerely that we have the manpower here to do it if we address ourselves primarily to this problem of getting the show on the road and getting the job done.

I earnestly ask your support when the resolution is before the convention here.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Under the rules, this resolution will be referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Do I take it that this is not to be discussed any further but referred directly to the committee?

PRESIDENT NISBET: That is correct.

MR. HODGES: Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: In view of the fact that the rules have been suspended in order to hear this speech, I ask the privilege of responding in 2 sentences. May I do so?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, you may do so. I hear none.

Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Thank you. These are my 2 sentences. The last time I saw such a timetable was when I was on a railroad. That's number 1. I don't intend to be railroaded here. That's number 2.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: I assume the rules are still suspended, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT NISBET: They are not.

MR. MAHINSKE: Well, I move that we suspend the rules and take a vote on this issue right here and now.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Mahinske. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion does not prevail.

The Chair recognizes Mr. Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. Secretary, will you please read my motion?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Binkowski moves that, because of the limited spectator space and the interest of high school and college students and because of the need of this convention to have a knowledgeable electorate who understand how we function, the committee on administration be requested to consider the advisability of retaining closed circuit television and contact all parties who may be of assistance, such as the capitol building superintendent, who can testify to the number of students visiting Lansing each year, the working committee on educational television, and the universities.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Just a few brief remarks. As you can see, our space here for visitors is limited to 180. On the other hand, talking with the capitol building superintendent, he informed me this morning that during the peak season, which usually starts in November, there are approximately between 600 and 900 students per day. I don't think that we can possibly accommodate them, and the only way that they can actually watch and see what is going on is via this closed circuit TV, and outside I think you have seen it in operation.

Incidentally, another benefit which we delegates can derive from this is that we can wander around outside perhaps sometimes during the debates and still keep track of the sessions so that we can return here in time to vote. My motion is only to have this matter fully discussed and considered by the committee on administration.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Binkowski.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, we appreciate Mr. Binkowski's motion, and I am sure the committee will give it every due consideration.

As I understand it, there are 2 policy questions involved in the use of closed circuit television which I would like the delegates to consider, and give their opinions to the committee. First of course, is the obvious expense. The contract, I understand, runs out at the end of the week. The second is we would like to make arrangements with the television stations of this state, if they so desire, to tie into this closed circuit television and do it either on video tape or do it live on their television stations, and of course in this case we would like to know if they are willing to share the cost.

In any event, we would like your opinions on this. If you have any, please make them known either to myself or the other members of the committee on administration. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Binkowski. Is there any further discussion? If not, all those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Any further motions or resolutions?

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all the motions or resolutions on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

The Chair recognizes Dr. Pollock. Incidentally, I might say that Dr. Pollock was asked to do this.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. President, you asked me yesterday to make a few preliminary remarks of a general nature before we began to split up into committees in order to focus the attention of the delegates upon the general problems that face all of us.

I merely wanted to suggest that I consider general discussion, both in the convention and in the committees, prior to getting down to our specific work, to be highly desirable, and if the Chair wants to make arrangements for some kind of general discussion at our next meeting, I certainly would be very glad to support that action. I have no particular suggestion to make but perhaps the delegates themselves would care to react either to what I said or have additional ideas of a general nature which will be valuable to us as a convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Dr. Pollock. Without objection, would you please consider Dr. Pollock's presentation of yesterday, and Monday evening if at all possible we will try and save some time for discussion of his presentation and ideas that you might have on this very important subject.

Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: We have the following announcements of committee meetings. May the secretary state that it is his intention to publish this list of committee meeting announcements at the end of the journal for today so they may be found for quick and easy reference when you come back on Monday. But here are 2 or 3 of immediate importance.

The committee on administration will meet in room G today immediately after the session, and also the committee on administration will meet in room G today at 8:00 o'clock p.m. Two meetings of the committee on administration, one immediately after the session and the other at 8:00 o'clock this evening. Walter DeVries, chairman.

Mr. Arthur Elliott announces that the committee on local government will meet next Tuesday, 9:00 o'clock a.m., in room A.

Mr. Danhof announces that the committee on judicial branch will meet in room B next Tuesday, October 17, at 10:00 o'clock a.m.

Mr. Ink White announces a meeting of the committee on public information immediately after the session today in committee room C.

Mr. Brake announces that the committee on finance and taxation will meet next Tuesday morning at 10:00 o'clock in room E.

Mr. John Hannah announces that the committee on legislative organization will meet in room D immediately after the session today.

Mr. Van Dusen requests that the standing committee chairmen meet briefly in room B immediately following the adjournment of today's session—committee chairmen meet briefly in room B immediately following today's session.

Now in regard to the mailing lists, we borrowed them from the house of representatives so you will find these journal mailing lists with an indication "representative" instead of "delegate". Please put your name at the top of the sheet, and over this weekend you are allowed to put 25 names on the mailing list for the mailing of the daily journals.

Mr. White has raised a question as to whether or not automatically the names of the members of the legislature, Michigan newspapers, and schools and libraries are on this mailing list. They are not. If you wish any of these on the mailing list that are in your district, please put the names and addresses on the mailing list for your district. If it runs to over 25 in that category, I am sure my secretary will be glad to arrange a method to see that interested citizens in this category, and particularly the schools and libraries, may be furnished with the journals.

One other request on the part of the secretary and his staff and that is please, for a little while yet, when you rise to be recognized here on the convention floor, the court reporter in particular who must keep her nose in her notebook, has some difficulty in finding out who is speaking, so if immediately before you start to speak after being recognized you would give your name, it would help the reporter considerably.

Also, when you hand a document of any kind in to the secretary's office or to anyone on the staff, please see that your name is on it. We haven't yet reached the point where we know you all. We hope to before too long.

Another committee meeting notice. Mr. Martin gives notice that the committee on the executive branch will meet in room C next Tuesday morning at 8:30.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: I also sent in a notice that the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections will meet at 10:30 on Tuesday in room E.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the committee on administration wishes me to make 2 announcements. First of all, that all applications for staff positions with the constitutional convention must be in the committee on administration office, room G, by 11:00 p.m. Monday, October 16. Secondly, there has been some question from the delegates as to when they are going to get their salary checks. Mr. McLaury, of the department of administration, tells me that we should have the first check no later than the middle of next week.

PRESIDENT NISBET: One other announcement. Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Dr. Pollock's committee and the committee on finance and taxation cannot both meet in the same room at the same time. If he is going to occupy E, perhaps we can occupy F. It makes no difference as long as we have separate rooms.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Brake has changed the meeting of the committee of which he is chairman to room F — committee on finance and taxation.

A question has been raised as to the use of the telephone credit cards. These are to be used on convention business only, and any calls you make by the use of these telephone credit cards will be billed to the convention, and through that, with the information that we receive, we will maintain a record of the expense of the telephone calls that you make individually.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further announcements?

Mr. Wilkowski.

MR. WILKOWSKI: I ask leave to be absent from Monday night's session. I make this request because of the death of a very close and dear friend of mine.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, leave will be granted. Any further business?

The Chair recognizes Mr. Blandford.

MR. BLANDFORD: Mr. President, I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. All those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. The convention is adjourned until Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, and in pursuance of the order previously made, at 2:35 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 8:00 o'clock p.m. Monday, October 16, 1961.]

SEVENTH DAY

Monday, October 16, 1961, 8:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

The invocation will be given by the Reverend Virgil Felton Director of New Churches of Christ Evangelism, Grand Ledge.

REVEREND FELTON: Our heavenly Father, tonight we pray for three vital things: One, we pray for wisdom and understanding to know that which is right. Two, for courage that we might stand on that which we determine to be right. And finally, our Father, wilt Thou grant to us the greatest of all gifts, that of love.

May love truly dominate every person here tonight, and may our love for each other be the kind of love that was exemplified in the person of the Christ, Who gave Himself, in His great love, a ransom for all. We ask it through His name. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, 129 delegates are present, a quorum.

There have been filed with the secretary the following requests for leave:

To be excused from tonight's session: Mr. Snyder, on request of the committee on administration, is in Detroit inquiring into the use of some furniture for the convention; Mr. Upton, attending the 50th anniversary of the founding of his company; and Mr. G. E. Brown, who is attending a township board meeting.

To be excused from the sessions of today and tomorrow: Mr. Walker; Mr. Shackleton, who is attending a board meeting in New York City which was scheduled before the election.

To be excused from Wednesday's session: Mr. Pugsley so that he may attend a funeral in the immediate family.

Miss Hart requests that Messrs. Baginski, Binkowski, Lesinski and Stopczynski be excused from today's and Tuesday's sessions and that Messrs. Mahinske and Wilkowski be excused from Tuesday's session.

Mr. Faxon requests that Messrs. Norris and Suzore be excused from today's session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs Baginski, Binkowski, G. E. Brown, Lesinski, Norris, Shackleton, Snyder, Stopczynski, Suzore, Upton, Walker and Wilkowski.

Absent without leave: None.

The secretary has been requested to make an announcement. In the parking lot, a blue Ford with license number LA-1309 is not parked in the proper place.

That is all the announcements, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Daisy Elliott introduces

Delegate Proposal 1020, A proposal relating to election, term and duties of state officers. Amends article VI, section 1.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on executive branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Hatcher and Mr. Faxon introduce

Delegate Proposal 1021, A proposal to change the voting age minimum from 21 years to 18 years. Amends article III, section 1.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hoxie introduces

Delegate Proposal 1022, A proposal to provide 4 year terms for members of the legislature. Amends article V, sections 2, 3 and 12.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hoxie also introduces

Delegate Proposal 1023, A proposal to provide 4 year terms for governor and certain other state officers. Amends article VI, section 1.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on executive branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hoxie also introduces

Delegate Proposal 1024, A proposal to provide 4 year terms for certain county and township officers. Amends article VIII, sections 3, 5 and 18.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on local government.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Erickson introduces

Delegate Proposal 1025, A proposal for qualification of electors for president and vice president of the United States. Amends article III, section 1.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Faxon introduces, for Mr. Norris,

Delegate Proposal 1026, A proposal providing for the adoption of the national municipal league model state constitution provisions for a single chamber legislature elected by such apportioned numbers as to grant all areas, rural and urban, effective representation, and granting the governor power of districting with judicial review of such districting by any qualified voter. Amends article V, sections 2, 3 and 4.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative organization.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Faxon introduces

Delegate Proposal 1027, A proposal relating to the appointment and duties of the superintendent of public instruction. Amends article XI, section 2.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Faxon also introduces

Delegate Proposal 1028, A proposal relating to increasing the size of the state board of education and expanding its functions. Amends article XI, section 6.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Austin introduces

Delegate Proposal 1029, A proposal to give broader constitutional freedom to the legislature to levy all types of taxes and to delete confusing reference to "an annual tax". Amends article X, section 2.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Austin also introduces

Delegate Proposal 1030, A proposal to direct the legislature to give taxing powers to local governments or political subdivisions. Amends article X by adding a new section.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Austin also introduces

Delegate Proposal 1031, A proposal to remove the prohibition against tax legislation by reference to other legislation. Amends article X, section 6.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Austin also introduces Delegate Proposal 1032, A proposal to direct the legislature, without unnecessary limitation, to provide for equalization of assessments. Amends article X, section 8.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all the proposals for introduction this evening, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Faxon offers Resolution 8, A resolution requesting the transmittal of copies of convention proceedings to all secondary schools and libraries of the state.

Following is the body of Resolution 8, as offered:

Whereas, The state of Michigan is now in the midst of a constitutional convention, the results of which, if adopted, will be the basic law of the state for many years to come and the generation of students now in schools and colleges will be governed by the same; now therefore be it

Resolved, That copies of all convention proceedings be sent to all secondary schools and libraries of the state.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on administration.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Nord offers Resolution 9, A resolution relative to the form of writing the constitution.

Following is the body of Resolution 9, as offered:

Resolved, That the substantive committees of the convention be requested to consider the writing of the constitution in such manner as to contain 2 distinct types of provisions, each amendable in a different manner, to wit:

1. General provisions of a broad scope, amendable in the normal manner; and

2. Implemental provisions designed to make immediately self executing certain general provisions, such as, for example, supplying dates and certain other numerical quantities, to be amendable by legislative action.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Nord also offers Resolution 10, A resolution pertaining to the procedure of substantive standing committees relative to proposals.

Following is the body of Resolution 10, as offered:

Resolved, That

1. Each substantive standing committee, before undertaking an evaluation of specific proposals for changes in the constitution in its particular area of competence, undertake a study having as its object to evaluate the relevant present system or systems and/or constitutional provisions; for example, as to origin, history, rationale, costs, effectiveness and need for change or improvement if any;

2. Each such committee thereafter proceed to consider all modifications or alternatives to said present system or systems and/or constitutional provisions, whether presented to the committee in the form of proposals, petitions, or suggestions of members of the committee, in the light of the prior study set forth in item 1 above, in order to determine which, if any, of these will provide necessary corrections or desirable improvements;

3. Each such committee then draft its specific committee proposal or proposals in the light of such evaluation of the present status and on the basis of such study of proposals, petitions, and suggestions;

4. Each such committee immediately arrange a planned program and tentative time schedule for carrying out the above activities, and report same to the convention as soon as feasible: Provided however, That such time schedules shall yield to the orderly progression of work of the committee, and that there shall be no rigid deadlines for the receipt of new proposals, petitions, and suggestions from committee members; and

5. Each such committee thereafter submit brief periodic progress reports to the convention approximately every 2 weeks, showing any changes in said program, the degree of progress with respect to said program, the number and location of committee meetings and public hearings held, the names of all persons who appeared in such public hearings and on whose behalf they have appeared, and any tentative conclusions reached by the committee in the course of its study.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messers. DeVries, Gust and Mahinske offer Resolution 11, A resolution to amend the appendices to the report of the committee on permanent organization and rules, adopted by the convention October 9, 1961.

Resolved, That the convention adopt the following amendments:

1. Amend the table of organization, Appendix A, under "Research, drafting, and public information division" by striking out "Director of research, drafting, and public information" and inserting "3 codirectors of research, drafting, and public information".

A. Amend the appendix by striking out "Assistant to the director of research and drafting".

B. Amend the appendix by striking out "2 secretaries to the director and his assistants" and inserting "2 secretaries to codirectors and their assistant directors".

C. Amend the appendix by striking out "9 research and drafting associates" and inserting "9 research, drafting, and public information assistants and consultants*".

2. Amend the table of organization, Appendix A, under "Administration and housekeeping division" by inserting, following "Secretary to the president", "3 secretaries to the vice presidents".

3. Amend the job descriptions Appendix B under "OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT* — Division of research, drafting, and public information" by striking out all of item A and inserting "A. Codirectors of research, drafting, and public information (3).

The codirectors of this division are responsible to the president. They should be senior lawyers, political scientists, historians or economists; have a knowledge of the methods of research and the capacity to do research and to manage a research team, to draft and write articles, to supervise the writing and drafting of others and to edit their materials. They must be able to work with people, to express their ideas without antagonizing people, and to harmonize the ideas of others.".

A. Amend the appendix by striking out all of item B.

B. Amend the appendix, item C, by striking out "C. Assistant to the director in charge of public information.", and inserting "B. Assistant director in charge of public information.";

C. Amend the appendix, item E, by striking out "Research and drafting associates" and inserting "Research, drafting, and public information assistants and consultants".

4. Amend the job descriptions, Appendix B, under "OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT* — Administration and Housekeeping Division" by inserting a new item C as follows:

"C. Secretaries to the vice presidents (3).

These people must be capable of taking shorthand and typing letters, memoranda and studies. These people must also have the capacity to get along with people and work well with other staff members."; and relettering the remaining items accordingly.

For body of original report, see above, page 122.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The resolution will be referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

[By unanimous consent the convention returned to the order of reports of standing committees.]

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, submits the following report and recommends that the convention approve the report:

1. That the size of the convention journal be 8½ x 11 inches, same to be printed on 50 lb. Climax paper stock, 3 hole punched, larger left hand margin, uniform right hand margin, with proceedings of the convention printed in 2 columns on each page. Also, that a performance bond be required.

Further, that the convention accept the proposal of Speaker-Hines and Thomas, Inc.

2. That the convention employ Accurate Court Reporters to make verbatim transcripts of the sessions of this convention until further action of the committee on administration.

Walter DeVries, chairman

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the report. Is there any discussion?

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President, I move the adoption of the report of the committee on administration.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any further discussion?

If not, all those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

It is concurred in.

Is there any unfinished business?

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The other day, Dr. Pollock made his presentation on the constitution. We have reserved some time this evening at this time for further discussion of Dr. Pollock's presentation, and suggestions and questions that some of us might like to put to Dr. Pollock or to discuss among ourselves on his presentation that day. The meeting is now open for questions, contributions or discussion on Dr. Pollock's talk on the constitution.

Mr. Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. President, I should like to ask our distinguished colleague for his ideas, if he has any at this time, about the priority of work, to use a general phrase, as amongst the subjects before the convention as we now know them or think they will develop.

I realize that is a broad question, but I think it will open up a subject that is very interesting to all of us.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. President, I have no very clear ideas on that specific proposal, although it is my notion that sooner or later the committee chairmen are going to have to get together and decide upon the order in which their various proposals are going to come before the convention.

They can come, of course, hit and miss. It would be much better if some order could be brought into this matter. I do think, however, that there is a collateral matter that has occurred to me. I have noticed as the president has been referring bills to committees it is quite obvious that a proposal has an effect upon the substantive material of 2 or 3 committees. I should think that the rules committee should somehow bring out a rule which would make certain that there be collateral references to affected committees in all matters which are before the convention.

Take, for instance, the matter of elections. It is obviously a matter of significance to the committee on executive branch about the term for governor and the time for the election in which the governor is chosen. This is obviously a matter of elections too, and one can't consider the whole electoral process and that means perhaps collateral reference to committees.

I also think that somehow — I have no very specific suggestion here — some of the basic questions facing this convention are going to have to be discussed somewhere, somehow, at least in a preliminary manner, before we begin to refer single issues. Let us take, for instance, the whole question involving the legislative process and the powers of the legislature. We can't talk very much about whether we believe in earmarking revenues or not earmarking revenues until we decide whether the legislative body we are going to propose is the kind of body we want to be unrestricted. There are 2 or 3 of those issues that I should like to have more discussion on before we begin to get down to specifics.

But on the point that Mr. Cudlip has raised, I'm afraid that I have no better suggestion than that perhaps the president, with the assistance of the committee chairmen, can work out some system of priorities.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Dr. Pollock, I have 2 questions that concern the statistics which I believe you gave, which interested me and some of the other delegates very much, concerning the extent of federal grants-in-aid out of the total nondefense budget of the United States. I believe you said it amounted to about 1/6 of the total nondefense budget of the federal government.

I wonder, first, if you could comment on that a little more, particularly in regard to Michigan?

And then, second, particularly in what way you would feel that this constitutional convention could do anything effective so that this large dependency which we seem to have on the federal government could be retarded or slowed down?

MR. POLLOCK: This would require at least a couple of hours. (laughter) Mr. Allen, I will be glad to talk to you privately, or anybody else. I threw the statistic in because it does seem to me to be very eloquent in demonstrating the extent to which Washington now has been assuming control — and it is in many cases effective control — over services which are performed in the state of Michigan, some of which, I think I can say without being controversial, could just as well be provided for and therefore controlled exclusively by the state of Michigan.

I meant to illustrate the fact that I think the states have been negligent in providing services demanded by their citizens. Therefore, the citizens have been turning more and more to Washington, and my figure clearly indicated the extent to which that trend has gone.

I think beyond that, I don't care to say any more now.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Follo.

MR. FOLLO: I would like to ask Dr. Pollock how long should a constitutional convention take in its labors? Can it be done in a short period of time, on a short schedule?

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. Follo, here I have to express disagreement with my good friend Mr. Woolfenden who introduced his resolution the other day, because I don't see how anyone at this point can do this; even the president himself, who is in a better position than anybody else to predict when we are going to be able to come to grips with some of the basic issues before us.

To say that this will be December 1 is, I think, to be extremely optimistic. As far as I am concerned, I would not want us to loaf on the job, but I do believe that we should proceed without hurry or rush. If we proceed along normal lines and normal circumstances, I see no reason why we can't complete our labors certainly within the period mentioned in the statute and, I would hope, a little bit sooner, but not as soon as I think was indicated by my friend Mr. Woolfenden.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Dr. Pollock, it is a fact, is it not, that Alaska wrote its new constitution in 75 days and New Jersey wrote its new constitution in 90 days? Is that correct?

MR. POLLOCK: That is correct, but it is not the whole story.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Is it also correct that Missouri, running without a timetable, ran a constitutional convention for 2 years and ended with really trivia that the people would not approve?

MR. POLLOCK: Yes, that is also correct. And that is most of the story so far as Missouri is concerned.

But when you talk about Alaska, you should mention the fact that they all went up into the woods in the university and holed up for the period without any other diversions and were able, therefore, to give their full time to the task.

In a great industrial commonwealth like this, it doesn't seem possible for us to do that under those circumstances. Therefore, it is bound to take us longer.

And so far as New Jersey is concerned, please remember that one of the most controversial issues before this convention was completely excluded from the discussion at the New Jersey convention, and therefore they had to worry no time at all about reapportionment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Prettie.

MR. PRETTIE: In your very instructive remarks, Dr. Pollock, you mentioned, speaking of the attributes of a constitution, that we agreed the same should be as brief and as concise as possible.

Would you care to express an opinion whether, in your view, our present constitution is at this time unnecessarily encumbered with legislative detail?

MR. POLLOCK: Yes, I certainly do think so. I tried to mention the fact that our constitution, I hope, would be very considerably reduced in size, and I have hardly met a delegate in this convention who hasn't agreed with me on that point.

I think there is a considerable amount of deadwood in the constitution which, without much controversy, can be eliminated.

Of course, the point you raise about the inclusion of the statutory material is often more difficult than it appears. We sometimes put statutory material in the constitution because we didn't trust the legislature to do what we wanted them to do. This is a basic point. That is way I said earlier that unless we can develop a legislative body in which the public is likely to have more confidence than it has had in legislatures in the past, there will be many delegates in this hall who feel loath to remove present restriction on that legislative power.

This is one of those basic questions that will have to await the careful handling of Dr. Hannah's committee before we get into other substantive matters.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mrs. Judd.

MRS. JUDD: Mr. President, I should like to speak to Dr. Pollock on the point that the constitution should be dynamic and, as he quoted, I believe, Justice Cardozo, it should express principles for our expanding future. I think this is very challenging. At the same time I find it presents one with quite a paradox.

If you try to envision Michigan's expanding future, you can get very enthusiastic. But when you try to translate it into constitutional terms, you come down with quite a thud because you come face to face with the other principle Dr. Pollock mentioned — brevity and flexibility.

I would like to illustrate this with just one example from my pet interest, which is local government. I have spent a good many years on metropolitan area problems, so when I found the constitution was going to be open to change, for my amusement I drafted a provision which would set up what I consider to be an ideal situation for metropolitan government. Then, when I checked up on it from the point of view of brevity and flexibility, my pride in authorship took quite a beating, and I think these are the 2 reasons in this particular example:

First, there is no one form of metropolitan government that would satisfy the needs of our very widely differing metropolitan areas, where we have Detroit, for instance, which is a multicounty area and almost interstate and, indeed, international.

Then we have areas which fit very neatly into a single county situation. We have other areas that are just emerging and whose problems really are in the preventative stage.

Secondly, there really is not as yet any satisfactory form of metropolitan government. There is a great deal of talk and there is a great deal of experimenting going on, but certainly not even Miami or Toronto offer us anything we want to freeze into the constitution. So I am much impressed with the combination of qualities that Dr. Pollock has outlined for us because it would, if we adhered to it, make room for inventiveness.

I think Dr. Luther Gulick, who was one of the principal speakers here in East Lansing a few years ago at the first conference on metropolitan government, brought this point out very well. I will quote him. He said:

> The time has come for inventive thinking, for action as inventive as with our forefathers, when in the face of great need they brought the squabbling colonies together under the federal Constitution of the United States in 1789.

So it does seem to me that about the most we can do on this problem is perhaps remove the restrictive provisions that prevent change in local government, and then give authority and freedom to both the local units of government and state to make room for invention and improvement and change, and in this way I feel that we will draw a dynamic constitution which, as Dr. Pollock has said, should keep democracy on the march.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. King.

MR. KING: Dr. Pollock, you mentioned in your talk, as I recall it, a state constitution should be a document which is worked rather than worshiped.

I wondered if you had reference in the context of our present constitution, or would you still say this was true assuming a constitution could be written which would meet with your complete approval?

In other words, do you feel that the amendment process in a state constitution must be considerably more liberal than the amendment process in the federal constitution?

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. President, I have found in my life that there has been a good deal of transfer made of that very sacred quality which I think does attach to our federal constitution to documents at the state level which don't deserve that attention and worship. In other words, state constitutions have been, by and large, hodgepodge documents and have become even more so in recent years.

When they cease to have that eternal quality ringing true on institutions that have lasting value, then I think it is wrong to attach to them qualities which they really do not possess. That is what I meant to say.

Regarding the amending process of the two, this of course raises all kinds of collateral questions which we will have to discuss when we consider the amending process.

As far as I am concerned, I think our present amending process is reasonably satisfactory and I think should remain reasonably flexible as it is now. This is my own opinion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Dr. Pollock, I would like to have you answer this question in regard to a drastic change that we might make in our present document. What effect will it have in getting it passed by the electorate?

MR. POLLOCK: I am very sorry. I didn't hear the last part of that question.

MR. SHARPE: In the event there is a drastic change made in our present document, what do you think it will do in regard to the vote of the population of Michigan when they come to vote on the document?

MR. POLLOCK: I don't think anybody can tell at this stage. I can conceive of a constitution that is completely worked over, new, even radical in some respects which might be adopted easier than one which just changed a few commas. I wouldn't want to say one way or the other. I am not able to judge the temper of the people of Michigan a year from November — I think we should keep this in mind — but I believe the temper of Michigan is a little more progressive than most people make it out to be.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Kelsey.

MR. KELSEY: Dr. Pollock, my notes tell me that you mentioned something about government by deadlock. I wonder if you would give some example of this remark, government by deadlock?

MR. POLLOCK: Well, I think we can see the record of Michigan during the last decade, and that is the only documentation that you need. (laughter)

Of course here, Mr. President, you are forcing me to express my own opinions without benefit of all of the advice and counsel and argument which I am bound to have here at this convention.

At one time or another I have had, I think, a fairly reasoned opinion on most of these problems, but whatever I have thought in the past has got to stand up to the arguments that are presented in this convention, and I expect many times to withdraw from my position, as I expect others to withdraw from theirs, to the end that we all come to a happy compromise.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I would like to address myself to Dr. Pollock's remarks of the other day very briefly, and to say at the beginning that I subscribe substantially to everything that he says. I think that it will be one of our chief goals to write a constitution for this state which is brief, provides a flexible government vesting in the legislature sufficient power to meet changing conditions, changing times and changing demands.

As I approach this task, though, I believe there is, perhaps, quite a fundamental difference in function between the Constitution of the United States and the constitution of Michigan or of any one of the 50 states.

I was taught — and I believe rightly — that the government of the United States is a government of limited power; that the function of the Constitution of the United States is to grant that power to the federal government; and that every activity of the federal government must be based in that constitution — must be found there within that grant of power.

On the other hand, I conceive the state constitution not to be a grant of power at all, but a limitation upon power.

I think that the people of the state of Michigan in their sovereignty retain all power for themselves, save only that part which they have delegated to the national government. The people of Michigan in the exercise of their sovereignty hold all political power which is expressed through their elected representatives in the legislature. Therefore, I believe that it is the function of a state constitution to write restrictions upon the legislative power, and that unless you find a restriction there prohibiting a particular course of action, that the legislature does have the power to act.

It has been my privilege — and I have counted it a privilege — to have served in the legislature of Michigan for 14 years. I have felt that that legislative power has been unduly restricted by our present constitution, and I am hopeful that the legislative power can be greatly increased; that is to say, that the restrictions upon it will be measurably reduced.

I have thought about the matter even to this extent, and this may oversimplify it, but to make a point: if in the beginning the congress of the United States had not required Michigan to submit a written constitution as a condition precedent to entering the union of these states — if instead of that the congress of the United States had passed a law authorizing and directing the territorial legislature to have passed a law for election of a state legislature and that is all, then the state legislature so elected back in those days could have by law — by legislative act — created an executive; created a judiciary; created local units of government; created the whole structure of government by legislative act. And since that would have been possible — and, I submit, constitutionally possible — it occurs to me that by that reasoning we demonstrate that the whole function of a state constitution is to write restrictions upon the legislative power insofar as the constitution provides for an executive branch and for local units of government and for a judiciary.

And insofar as the constitution goes into details and sets those things up, to that extent the power of the legislature in its discretion is limited.

Therefore, Mr. President, I say I approach this task with a conviction that our problem is to weigh the restrictions upon legislative power primarily, and I hope that we will adhere to Dr. Pollock's admonition that in each and every case, we put each and every proposal to this test: Why must this be in the constitution? Why must it be there? Couldn't it be as well left to the discretion of the legislature?

And I would be extremely happy to see our labors result in a constitution limited and broad; but I agree also — as I think Dr. Pollock has pointed out this evening — that our first task here must be the determination of what kind of a legislature we are going to create. If we can create the kind of a legislature which can bear this broad responsibility, then I think that the people of Michigan will be better off to leave that broad discretion in the legislature's hands.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: My question has been partially answered by Mr. Hutchinson. The question was to Dr. Pollock: Did he have any suggestions by which we could shorten the present constitution? He said in committee meeting one day that he hoped it could be cut about ⅓. I told him he was an optimist.

Mr. Hutchinson has suggested certain plans. I am sure there are some others.

MR. POLLOCK: I think I would agree very thoroughly with Mr. Hutchinson and thank him for his remarks which are obviously a necessary addition to what I was able to say in a few minutes. I think the principal saving, aside from mere material which through the ages has become just logically and naturally out of date, the basic shortening of the constitution can come best by the elimination of material which properly should belong to statutory drafting, namely to action by the legislature.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, I don't want to disagree with Dr. Pollock with respect to the shortening of the constitution, but I think it is possible to put too much emphasis, perhaps, on the number of words in the constitution, and that we have to put more emphasis on the content of it and let the words take care of themselves, recognizing that we should keep it as short and as concise and as easily understandable as possible.

With regard to Mr. Hutchinson's comment, I think we ought to add — at least in my own view — that the framing of a good constitution is not solely a question of the extent of legislative power and how to free that so that the legisture can operate as it should operate, as freely as possible, but that it is also a question of establishing the powers of the governor in such form that the governor can also act to the full extent of not only his ability, but to the extent of the needs of the state of Michigan. I think that in many respects this power has been unduly restricted.

I think there are not only opportunities to consider changes that can be made in restrictions on the legislature, but that there should be equal consideration given to those changes we can make which will make the governor a more effective governor and one who can more readily carry out the wishes of the people.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. President, I wish to speak in support of the approach which Mr. Hutchinson suggests that we should take in examining the constitution, which is an approach not favoring increasing or keeping restrictions which we have in the document, but rather the basic standpoints from which we view the constitution.

According to the Book of the States, our constitution has about 15,300 words in it. It is about 3 times as long in words as the United States constitution. It is, of course, far more specific than the United States constitution, which, on the other hand, is far more general than specific. Those people who wish to eliminate a great deal of restrictive detail from our constitution often use this comparison between the 2 documents as an argument.

While there may be very excellent reasons for removing many specific restrictions from our constitution, I would like to say that this analogy, this comparison, is not a good argument.

Lord Bryce, in The American Commonwealth, put it very well, I think, when he said, speaking of America's national government:

> The national government is an artificial creation with no powers except those conferred by the instrument which created it.
> A state government is a natural growth which prima facie possesses all the powers incident to any government whatever.

And he goes on at some length quoting from one of many American supreme court cases as follows:

> It has never been questioned that the American legislatures (speaking of the state legislatures) have the same unlimited power in regard to legislation which resides in the British parliament except where they are restrained by written constitutions.

So we see the fundamental legal concept behind our state constitutions is entirely different in this respect from that of our federal constitution, and we should not use that comparison as an argument for limiting the details which we wish to remove for other reasons from our basic document in Michigan.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. President, I would like to start by saying that I don't find it unpleasant to be able to find a point of agreement with Mr. Hutchinson so soon after our tiff the other day (laughter) but I feel constrained to follow the thinking of Mr. Martin who, it seems to me, is touching on what Dr. Pollock said, at least as I understood it, the other day; that although he, as most scholars of his stature that have spoken and written on this subject, would look for some condensation of the present constitution, he nevertheless stays with the basic idea of our constitution, although it can't be, because of the difference in function outlined by Mr. Hutchinson, completely an exact duplicate or even an expansion of the federal constitution.

We find that numerous points of restriction are in our constitution of necessity to preserve the balance of power that Mr. Martin was touching on, and I got the impression from Dr. Pollock's remarks the other day that he felt that the clear-cut distinction between the three branches of the government would have to be maintained, and perhaps in some instances more clearly than now.

I believe there was some reference to the encroachments of administrative boards and bodies into the judiciary — at least a suggestion of it.

I would like to ask Dr. Pollock if he doesn't believe that a good many of the perhaps quasi-legislative actions taken in the constitution itself and in its amendments resulted from either the legislature's failure to act with respect to the other 2 principal departments of the government or, in some instances, situations that this state has found itself in where there has been such clear cut conflict between the legislative and executive, for example, and even the legislative and the judiciary that the people have come to feel a situation where either of the other 2 principal parts of the government might find themselves in a position of responding to the will of the legislature rather than to their own independent power and acting on their own conscience?

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. President, if I may reply to this last question, you may recall that I said in my remarks that we really now have 4 branches of the state government as we commonly mention them as we teach political science these days, meaning the administrative being the fourth.

Our constitution, of course, dating really from 1850, gives almost no attention, aside from the civil service amendment which was adopted 20 years ago, to the development of this huge new dimension within modern government, namely, administration, and this is certainly one aspect which needs to be given careful attention by the appropriate committees as we draft this constitution.

However, that in no way means that we should overlook the normal discussion and attention to the balance of powers between the authorities in the state.

And here I would reply to Mr. Martin that I am perhaps as strong an advocate as he is of developing the governorship into an office where you could expect the governor to do the job that the people ask him to do, which I think is not possible as the governorship is set up today.

But, although I believe in strengthening the position and power of the governor, at the same time I believe in strengthening the position and power of the legislature. I think they go hand-in-glove.

And I think I might also say I also believe in strengthening the powers and capacities of local government.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. President, in view of the fact that all the professors are getting into the act, I would like to do so a bit myself.

First of all, I would like to strike a blow in favor of long constitutions — not necessarily that they must be long, but that they might be long.

It seems to be that it is very easy for us to jump to a wrong conclusion: namely, the shorter the better. Obviously, by reductio ad absurdum, you could see that the best constitution would be no constitution at all — and I believe Mr. Hutchinson has indicated that that might not be a bad idea. (laughter) I would like to dissent from that.

I don't believe that you can tell how good a constitution is by how short it is. I don't think that the style of drafting and the brevity and beauty of language are what count.

What counts is what is in the constitution regardless of the form or the words. What counts is whether we have a responsible government and an effective government, and if it needs a lot of words, I see no objection to it. I believe words are quite cheap.

I would point out that good grammar is not what we are after. What we are after is good government.

I would like to comment further on what Mr. Hutchinson says about the function of the state constitution. Mr. Hutchinson says the function of the state constitution is to write restrictions on the legislative power, that that is the basic function.

Mr. Hutchinson then goes on to say that we should get rid of many of these restrictions. If the purpose is to put them in, it seems kind of odd that our main purpose should be to get them out. I think they should be in, not out.

If, as Mr. Hutchinson says, the object of the constitution is to limit the legislature, I don't see how it follows that we can leave everything to the discretion of the legislature as Mr. Hutchinson indicates. To me the question is not how much liberty the legislature should have; the question is how much liberty the people should have.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Shanahan.

MR. SHANAHAN: Mr. President, I have been impressed by some of the comments. I like very much the comments that Mr. Hutchinson made. I would like to express what I have thought a constitution should be in just a very few words:

> I consider that a constitution is a good constitution or is a poor constitution in its measure against this consideration: I believe we are here as free men and as free women representing free men and free women for the purpose of stating, in just as few words as possible, the amount of our freedoms that we are willing to turn over to government.
> Man was born free. If he does not remain free, it is because he loses his freedom. I would hate to be a party to any convention that would infringe unnecessarily on the freedom of people.

I will explain this just a little bit if I may: I have felt for a long time that government is a necessary evil. I say it is a necessary evil. I emphasize the word "evil." It is evil because it infringes on the liberties of people. It imposes on people, but it is necessary. When government goes beyond that which is necessary, it becomes an unmitigated evil.

Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Richards.

MR. L. W. RICHARDS: Mr. President, certainly one of the observations I have made in the short time I have been here concerns the caliber of people I have had the opportunity of meeting and being with, and it certainly gives a person a challenge to even play a small part in trying to write this constitution.

Meeting with these people, with the training they have, comparing them to the position I hold, I would say probably in my position I am representing our people as a layman, having experience in our local government and certainly having a wonderful opportunity to represent our people.

I might add, first of all, that to have a short written constitution, by the discussion I have heard here, seems to be a great impossibility, due to the fact that a number of people, like myself, like to have the opportunity to speak, and I imagine they would like to have as much as they could in writing, (laughter) so that a short constitution would be almost an impossibility.

So my deep concern is this, Dr. Pollock: do you believe this should be written as closely as possible in average layman's language so it can be easily interpreted?

Secondly, in what manner, besides the journal, can we help our people in making comparisons as to the changes we approve as a majority, and how this differs from the present constitution?

MR. POLLOCK: Your last question, Mr. Richards: it seems to me obvious that it is the duty of this convention to keep the people of this state informed not merely of what we do but the reasons for doing it. This, I think, is quite obvious.

Your first point with reference to the shortness of the document, the readability of the document: you will recall what Justice Dethmers said so well to us at the banquet, that he hoped this time the convention would give the supreme court a constitution which even they could understand. (laughter) This, I think, is something of an ideal (laughter) and points, regardless of length, to the fact that I think it is incumbent upon us to write the clearest possible language which we are capable of, and here, of course, we will rely heavily, I am sure, in the final analysis upon the committee on style and drafting.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mrs. Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: I would like to speak in regard to one of the points made by several of our speakers tonight, namely the desirability of considering reapportionment as possibly the first major issue to be debated on the floor.

With all due respect to the great people that have spoken before me, I would like to disagree with them, and I would like to point out a couple of dangers, to my way of thinking, that such a procedure might involve.

First of all, this issue is going to be possibly the most divisive issue of any we are going to meet here, and I think for it to come up first may set a tone for the rest of the convention in terms of the divisive atmosphere that I think can go far toward injuring what we are going to do or try to do.

Secondly, it will also be deciding all the rest of the issues in terms of what happened on reapportionment. This means, then, that you are going to be deciding policies in the constitution that may last for 50 years in terms of what you will be getting as a political party member in the next 5 years.

Actually, as a matter of fact, at the present time, the way people are moving around the state and the way political conditions change, it is very difficult indeed to predict what is going to happen as to benefits or harm to various political parties for a very long period in the future. We don't know what political changes will be taking place in the next 5 or 10 years, let alone the next 25 or 30 years, so let's make our decision on what goes into the constitution not in terms of what may happen in the next 5 years or how we happen to come out on reapportionment, but let's make our decisions in terms of what the people of the state can best use in their constitution 50 years from now.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, I find it impossible to resist the urge if not to get equal time, at least ⅓ of the time given to our esteemed professor, so I think while we are making our comments on history, I too want to get in the act.

To paraphrase Calhoun, I view government not as a necessary evil but as a positive good, and as a positive good to the extent that this government responds to the wishes of an informed, educated electorate.

I think with that, I would just like to say a word on the historical shift that has, in my judgment, taken place between the executive and the legislative branch. Perhaps our founding fathers whose wisdom was great in many areas made one almost fatal mistake: they continued to call the chief executive of a state the governor, and prior to that time the governor of the colony had been a hand picked, imposed individual selected by the King of England who, as a result of not being elected, was not responsive to the people whereas the legislature was.

By using the same word, I think many of the historical criticisms and fears of the chief executive or the former British colonial governor continued, but as time has gone on — and this touches upon what we call legislative organization; I understand "apportionment" is not a nice word to use in this convention — we get then into the shift that at the present time the governor of any state in the United States, regardless of his party affiliation, is elected in an arena or an elective process where each person's vote is equal and to that extent can and does tend to respond to the wishes of the people, whereas, unfortunately — and I mean this in no personality sense, I want to make clear — our legislative process, which at the time of the colonial government was the responsive arm of government to the needs of the people, has increasingly, compared to the executive, been less responsive — not because of the intents or attitudes of the individuals, but because of the fact that each person's vote was not equal in the legislative area in the sense it was in the executive.

I suppose I might end up by saying, "Dr. Pollock, isn't that so?" and put it in the form of a question. (laughter) But it is, perhaps, because of these historical trends that we need to take another look at our legislative and executive branches and see that what we need is not a matter of applying these terrific checks and balances that prevent action, which we say in our state compare to a power lawnmower that has air brakes to slow it down.

I would like to ask Dr. Pollock if he visualizes making our state government more responsive to the needs of the people by trying to get a more positive structure in which both the executive and legislative more rapidly respond to the needs of the people?

Thank you.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. President, of course I believe in making our government much more responsible and more responsive, and I thought I had indicated that by the phrase that we didn't want government by deadlock.

I certainly feel that in these days when so much apparently has to be done by government, the best we can do is to develop a structure which is not only in and of itself efficient, but which also responds to the recurrent needs of an enlightened electorate.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mrs. Hatcher.

MRS. HATCHER: Mr. President, I would like to add, in just a few remarks, my personal observation of this convention and the discussion that is going on at the present time.

Of course, I view this convention as a very significant occasion in the history of the state of Michigan, and I think the manner in which all of the delegates here came here is significant.

The fact that we do represent people back in our respective areas and that we were elected on a senatorial and representative basis means primarily that we will be expressing certain points of view, certainly points of view that people in our respective areas maybe are primarily concerned about as it affects the constitution of the state of Michigan.

A few days ago, one of the newspapers covered the vital statistics of this convention, pointing out how many lawyers, how many professors, how many businessmen, how many accountants, how many undertakers and how many other people were present here in this convention body, only saying to me in my own analysis of that particular appraisal that who the people are, what they represent and who they represent will determine how they will view certain sections of the constitution and what parts of it will play an important part to them. It seemed to me that how we determine these things will certainly be based upon these facts that I have just mentioned.

Of course, a good constitution to some people would be in the brevity of it. Some others may think that a full, lengthy document would be important. In my opinion I think it should be a constitution that would be meaningful to the people.

And certainly I will speak in agreement with what Tom Downs said and what Mr. Martin said a few minutes ago, that the constitution should be, for the most part, a document that would apply and be meaningful to people, in this case the people of the state of Michigan.

As delegates of this body, we are not only representing the people in our respective areas but all of the people in the state of Michigan, so our charge here is to review this document, the Constitution of the State of Michigan, and to recommend certain changes and to see to it that those changes, for the most part, will be flexible and farreaching enough to cover the needs of the people in the years to come.

I certainly hope that in our deliberations here within the next few months, however long they may be, we will certainly keep uppermost in our minds the importance of trying to keep abreast with the kind of surge that is going on throughout the nation and throughout the world, and that the people of America do have their eyes on the state of Michigan. What we do in terms of trying to create a greater degree of protection, a greater degree of electoral rights and all of the phases of the constitution that will be under discussion will certainly be something that all of the citizens throughout the country will be interested in.

And I certainly want to say to Dr. Pollock that it will be a pleasure serving with him on the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections, and I look forward certainly to being able to improve the document, especially that particular section.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: I have 2 questions to direct to Dr. Pollock, both dealing with apportionment.

Should a legislature be reapportioned so that it responds only to the needs and wishes of the majority, or should it also respond to the needs and wishes of the minority?

Secondly, is the purpose of a legislative body one of action or one of deliberation? (laughter)

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. President, I think it is about time that I claimed the protection of the Fifth Amendment. (laughter and applause)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. President, could I say finally that it was never my intention — and I am sure it wasn't yours — that I should be laying down the law and the gospel to this convention.

It was your idea and mine, I believe, that we did need to have — and I think the discussion this evening proves it — a discussion about general principles, general goals, general objectives before we began spreading all over the map and I, for one, am very grateful for the various comments which have been made this evening.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you very much, Dr. Pollock, for your presentation. It was very provocative, as the discussion has been tonight, I am sure. I think that must be some compensation to you for making your presentation.

Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are none, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The following announcements relative to committee meetings after the session this evening:

The committee on rules and resolutions will meet briefly in room B immediately following the session. R. O. Van Dusen, chairman.

The committee on administration will meet in room E immediately after the session. Walter DeVries, chairman.

The committee on legislative powers will meet in room F this evening after the session. T. Jefferson Hoxie, chairman.

A correction in the notice as it appears in the journal of last Thursday. The committee on executive branch will meet in room C tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. John Martin, chairman.

The committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule will meet in room C tomorrow morning at 10:30.

The committee on local government will meet tomorrow morning at 9:00 o'clock in room A. Arthur Elliott, chairman.

The committee on finance and taxation will meet Tuesday morning, 10:00 o'clock in room E.

The committee on education will meet in room F tomorrow after the session. Alvin M. Bentley, chairman.

The president requests a meeting of the committee chairmen Wednesday at 11:00 o'clock in the morning in room E.

Miss McGowan requests to be excused from attendance at the convention for the period October 18 through October 20. She has a first-degree murder trial to conduct. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection Miss McGowan will be excused.

Mr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. President, I didn't hear the secretary announce the meeting of my committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections at 10:30 tomorrow morning, and he was to provide a room for us. I haven't heard that room indicated. We were originally scheduled to meet in room E. I see you have now put another committee there. Could we have a committee room?

SECRETARY CHASE: Will it be satisfactory, Dr. Pollock, to meet in room F tomorrow morning?

MR. POLLOCK: At 10:30. All right.

SECRETARY CHASE: Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Are there any further announcements?

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary appoints, pursuant to authorization by the convention, and with the approval of the committee on administration, the following persons to the positions indicated:

Assistant secretary — Dr. Austin C. Knapp.

Assistant journal clerk — Mrs. Mimi Simpson.

Assistant proposal and enrolling clerk — Mrs. Louise B. Parker.

Finance clerk — Mrs. Lois H. Tomlinson.

Secretary to the secretary — Mrs. Billie L. Dowell.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the appointments will be approved.

Is there anything further to come before the convention?

SECRETARY CHASE: There is on your desk the blank which you sign, with a request for information as to your occupation and your home post office address. We should have put there your home phone. Please list your Lansing address and the committees to which you have been assigned. This will assist us materially in the preparation of the copy for the handbook.

That is all, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there anything further to come before the convention? That completes our business for the day.

Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I move we adjourn, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The convention is adjourned until 2:00 o'clock tomorrow.

[Whereupon, at 9:20 o'clock p.m., the Convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Tuesday, October 17, 1961.]

EIGHTH DAY

Tuesday, October 17, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Convention will please come to order.

The invocation will be given by theReverend E. Eugene Williams of the East Lansing Trinity Church.

REVEREND WILLIAMS: Almighty God, our Father in heaven, reverently now in Thy holy presence we bow our hearts to invoke Thy presence and Thy power upon this assembly this afternoon. We thank Thee that Thou hast indeed enjoined us to call upon Thee for wisdom, indicating that Thou wouldst give unto us liberally. We thank Thee, God, for the way Thou hast distributed this wisdom upon the delegates who are assembled here. We pray with a true sense of humility they might recognize now Thou hast given these gifts variously to different individuals, and therefore there might be an interdependence upon one another; that there might be a consciousness, our God, for the need of real cooperation and true statesmanship that will rise above any political partisanship.

We pray, our God, they might have a sense not only of duty and responsibility and commitment, but a sense that there are christian people praying throughout this state for them that they might be helped even in the realization of this, our God, because the matters before them are of such serious consequence. And thus we pray that by Thy grace and Thy love they might be blessed, our God, to make this convention all that it should be in every way. We shall give unto Thee the praise, for we ask it in the name of Thy holy Son, the Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary will lock the voting machine. We suggest that while the tabulation is being taken and the machine is locked, you can return your voting switch to the not voting or center position, which will clear the board.

Mr. President, 136 delegates are present, a quorum.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave: Mr. Donald Doty requests to be excused from the early part of today's session because of a death in the family; and Mr. Tubbs requests to be excused from the sessions of today and tomorrow because of a death in the family.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Binkowski, Donald Doty, Lesinski, Shackleton, Stopczynski, Tubbs, Walker and Wilkowski.

Absent without leave: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on rules and resolutions, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 11, a resolution to amend the appendices to the report of the committee on permanent organization and rules, adopted by the convention October 9, 1961; with amendments, recommending that the amendments be agreed to and that the resolution, as thus amended, be adopted.

Following are the amendments:

1. Amend page 1, following subsection C, by inserting subsection D to read as follows:

"D. Amend the appendix by striking out "Assistant to the director of public information" and inserting "Assistant director of public information".".

2. Amend page 2, following subsection C by striking out all of paragraph 4.

3. So that the convention rules may correspond with the changes made in the Organizational Chart, correct rule 4 to provide for 3 codirectors of research and rule 20 to make the word "director" plural.

Richard Van Dusen, Chairman.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, perhaps the easiest way to deal with this report is first to describe briefly the content of the resolution submitted by Dr. DeVries, Mr. Gust and Mr. Mahinske. It has 2 principal purposes:

First, to change the single director of research, drafting and public information, as shown in the Organization Chart, to 3 codirectors of research, drafting and public information, it being the intention of the committee on administration, as reported to our committee, to fill these positions, if possible, with the 3 distinguished professors who served on the preparatory commission. The change from a single director to 3 codirectors makes unnecessary the position of assistant director of research and drafting and requires a slight change in the description of the assistant to the director of public information, making him the assistant director of public information. That position would remain with simply a slight change in description.

The other feature of the resolution as proposed would be to insert in the Organization Chart 3 secretaries for the vice presidents. Last night, when the committee on rules and resolutions considered the recommendations, the hour was somewhat late and most of our consideration was devoted to the question of creating the 3 codirectors of research, drafting and public information, and the recommendation in that respect was adopted by the committee on rules and resolutions and is a part of the report as presented to you.

The hour being late and there being some tentative disagreement between members of the committee on rules and resolutions with respect to the requirement for 3 secretaries for the vice presidents, it was determined that we should defer consideration of that matter until we had an opportunity to hear from the vice presidents, who were not available to us last night.

For that reason, one of the amendments to the resolution which is proposed by the committee on rules and resolutions is the striking, temporarily, of 3 secretaries for the vice presidents from the Organization Chart. This does not indicate any disposition on the part of the committee on rules and resolutions to deprive the vice presidents of their secretaries, but it only means that we did not have time last night to give sufficient consideration to that proposal to justify acting affirmatively on it.

Accordingly, the report of the committee on rules and resolutions recommends the adoption of the resolution as presented by Dr. DeVries and Messrs. Gust and Mahinske, with the amendment striking the 3 secretaries for the vice presidents.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendments. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

They are adopted.

The question is on the adoption of the resolution, as amended. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

It is adopted.

Following is Resolution 11 as amended and adopted by the convention:

Resolution 11, A resolution to amend the appendices to the report of the committee on permanent organization and rules, adopted by the convention October 9, 1961.

Resolved, That the convention adopt the following amendments:

1. Amend the table of organization, appendix A, under "Research, drafting, and public information division" by striking out "Director of research, drafting, and public information" and inserting "3 codirectors of research, drafting, and public information".

A. Amend the appendix by striking out "Assistant to the director of research and drafting".

B. Amend the appendix by striking out "2 secretaries to the director and his assistants" and inserting "2 secretaries to codirectors and their assistant directors".

C. Amend the appendix by striking out "9 research and drafting associates" and inserting "9 research, drafting, and public information assistants and consultants*".

D. Amend the appendix by striking out "Assistant to the director of public information" and inserting "Assistant director of public information".

2. Amend the table of organization, appendix A, under "Administration and housekeeping division" by inserting following "Secretary to the president", "3 secretaries to the vice presidents".

3. Amend the job descriptions, appendix B, under "OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT* — Division of Research, Drafting, and Public Information" by striking out all of item A and inserting "A. Codirectors of research, drafting, and public information (3).

The codirectors of this division are responsible to the president. They should be senior lawyers, political scientists, historians or economists; have a knowledge of the methods of research and the capacity to do research and to manage a research team, to draft and write articles, to supervise the writing and drafting of others and to edit their materials. They must be able to work with people, to express their ideas without antagonizing people, and to harmonize the ideas of others.".

A. Amend the appendix by striking out all of item B.

B. Amend the appendix, item C, by striking out "C. Assistant to the director in charge of public information.", and inserting "B. Assistant director in charge of public information".

C. Amend the appendix, item E, by striking out "Research and drafting associates" and inserting "Research, drafting, and public information assistants and consultants*".

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, recommends the following temporary reassignment of committee rooms:

Room E: committee on finance and taxation
committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule.
Room F: committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.
committee on education.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

The Secretary will repeat these: room E, the committee on finance and taxation and the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule. And in room F, the committee on Declaration of rights, suffrage and elections and the committee on education.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation of the committee. Are there any remarks? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

It is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, also recommends:

1. That the convention authorize the purchase of the following equipment:
   a. Varitype 610F $3,205.00
   b. Model 2550W Multilith offset ..... $5,601.20.
2. That the convention adopt the following policy relative to the use of telephone credit cards by all convention delegates:

Telephone credit cards are to be used solely for convention business.

The budget is predicated on the assumption that credit cards will not be used for personal reasons.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, just a few comments about the last recommendation of the committee on administration.

We provided the policy statement to clear up some misunderstanding and questions about the telephone credit cards. The views on this range anywhere from those who think that this might be a carte blanche to telephone at will to the possibility of this being some kind of a fringe benefit for delegates. A lot of questions have been asked of the members of the committee. We thought it was necessary to come up with a policy statement to clear the air and provide a guide for the use of these cards.

Further, may we suggest this: when you do make a long distance telephone call within the convention hall on an extension phone, that you cite to the switchboard operator either your number or your name. The call can be placed in that manner.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the committee recommendation. Is there any discussion?

If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

It is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all the standing committee reports, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Prettie introduces Delegate Proposal 1033, A proposal to retain operating expenses in the general fund of the county for inferior courts. Amends article XI, section 14.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on local government.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Sharpe introduces Delegate Proposal 1034, A proposal requiring voters in school elections dealing with bonding issues to be registered and to own real estate in city or county of residence. Amends article III, section 4.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Sharpe also introduces Delegate Proposal 1035, A proposal requiring supreme court judges to be nominated at partisan convention, elected on partisan ticket. Amends article VII, section 2.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on judicial branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Sharpe also introduces Delegate Proposal 1036, A proposal dealing with purity of elections. Amends article III, section 8.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Boothby introduces Delegate Proposal 1043, A proposal to abolish the office of auditor general, and commissioner of the state land office. Amends article VI, sections 1 and 17.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on executive branch.

Yesterday Delegate Proposal 1025 by Mr. Erickson was referred to the committee on local government. If there is no objection, that proposal will be referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections. Hearing none, it will be so referred.

Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Douglas offers Resolution 12, A resolution relative to the simultaneous holding of 2 or more public offices.

Following is the body of Resolution 12, as offered:

Resolved, That this convention consider the question of whether an individual may hold 2 or more public offices at the same time; and be it further

Resolved, That the question be referred to the appropriate committee with instructions to determine the question and submit a committee proposal with recommendations to this convention for its adoption.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Turner offers Resolution 13, A resolution relative to students visiting the convention.

Following is the body of Resolution 13, as offered:

Whereas, There are many school classes that want to visit the convention; and

Whereas, These visits would provide an excellent means of informing the people of Michigan of the work and progress of the convention; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the superintendent of public instruction be requested to provide a method of coordinating these visits, so that not too large a number of classes will come on any one day; and be it further

Resolved, That each student be asked to register his name, address and school and that the convention provide a suitable brochure about the convention for each student.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: Mr. President, if I may have permission to do so, I would like to make a brief statement on the discussion of objectives and goals that Dr. Pollock made and that we engaged in last night.

PRESIDENT NISBET: If there is no objection, Mr. Romney, you may proceed.

MR. ROMNEY: I am sure we all appreciate very much your having Dr. Pollock make this statement, and I am sure the discussion we have had thus far has been very beneficial. It has stimulated my thinking, and I would like to voice a few thoughts. I have reduced them to writing to be succinct and also for purposes of clarity.

Dr. Pollock referred to publicity in Berlin about this convention. With national survival at stake and freedom challenged everywhere, there is no question, I think, in most of our minds but that this constitutional convention is of worldwide significance. The greatest weaknesses are always within and the greatest strengths are always within. Consequently, it is essential for us, it seems to me, to fulfill the purpose and opportunity of this convention.

I think there is cause for grave concern as we take a look at the world situation, and one reason is that most states — in fact, practically all states — need new constitutions to strengthen the underpinning that Dr. Pollock talked about, and also the mainsprings of freedom.

Now, despite the number of state constitutions and the number of times they have been revised, none yet matches the federal constitution in fulfilling its purpose. I think this is a significant factor in our effort; that despite the period of time that our country has been in existence, we do not yet have a state constitution that in its area meets the needs of a state constitution as well as the federal constitution does in its area. This deficiency is now so widespread that the federal constitution itself is in danger of being nullified, and the sources of its strength made anemic and eventually sterile. Others are looking to us to meet this need and fill this void and it is because of this aspect, it seems to me, that our efforts assume their major proportions. Under these circumstances, it seems to me that nothing less than a thorough, comprehensive revision will be adequate. No piecemeal or partial revision will do. I think our task will be neglected if we fail to fashion a model state constitution, which is what this country needs.

A constitutional convention is the mechanism by which the people achieve the necessary common understanding and agreement on the principles of self government. Because it represents the sovereign will of the people, in the scale of political values its function is of a higher order than that of a governor, a legislature, supreme court or any private group.

Thus I believe our first objective should be a model state constitution equal to and capable of preserving the federal constitution. This means a comprehensive, thorough and adequate revision.

Second, we need an open convention whose public discussion of the basic issues of government will contribute to better citizen understanding of the processes of representative government, which I think we are in general agreement on.

Third, we should strive for the achievement of a greater degree of unity throughout the state. For too long we have emphasized our conflicts and differences instead of our superior common interests.

And, fourth, we should seek the removal of the obstacles to effective local and state government.

The political philosopher, Henry Simons, writing nearly 30 years ago, expressed this need with great clarity. He wrote:

> Modern democracy rests upon free, responsible local government and will never be stronger than this foundation. . . . Progress to which local freedom, responsibility and experimentation have pointed the way may be accelerated for a time . . . by the shortcut of central action. But such shortcutting . . . impairs . . . the roots of progress in order to obtain a briefly luxuriant bloom.

It seems to me a fifth objective — and most of these objectives Dr. Pollock mentioned — is a better national image of Michigan as a state that meets its citizenship responsibilities, effectively resolves its governmental and fiscal problems, and is superior in its economic, social and cultural progress.

It seems to me that our realization of these objectives will depend on our acceptance of them together with our concept of our responsibility as delegates. What do we consider our primary delegate responsibility?

I believe that our responsibility as delegates exceeds that of supreme court justices. After all, we have to review and revise those basic principles that govern courts, legislators, administrators and our private political, economic and social activities.

To fulfill our purpose, I think we need the wisdom, impartiality, objectivity and moral courage for our task, and we must also have faith — faith in each other and faith in representative government.

I want to express particular appreciation for the words that Ed Hutchinson spoke last night in which he voiced great faith in the representative process as representative of the legislature, and also faith in the actual availability of divine guidance.

The nature of our responsibility suggests, it seems to me, something we have the right to expect from those outside of this convention in carrying out our responsibilities. Haven't the people clearly placed the question of a new constitution in our hands? It seems to me we are their representatives and undertaking to shape a constitution that they can accept or reject.

And through our committee organization we have created the means by which all interested citizens and groups can present their views directly to us. Wouldn't it be helpful for political organizations and leaders to avoid speeches that make political capital out of our efforts until they are completed? Wouldn't it be wise to have a self-imposed moratorium by the parties and their leaders on self-serving statements before we report back to the people? I think it would be.

Of course, I am not referring to recommendations from them as to what we should do. We should seek and welcome their suggestions just as we seek those of other groups and citizens.

In addition to establishing our goals and objectives and our personal concepts as to our responsibilities as delegates, we need to determine, it seems to me, the basic steps in getting our job done and establish a specific timetable. In any cooperative activity involving as many people as there are delegates to this convention, it is necessary to know not only what we are going to try to do, but also how we are going to try to do it. Our general rules that we now have are rules of procedure that largely apply to our procedure as a convention, but they do not apply to or establish committee procedure.

The chairmen of the various committees have been asked by our president to give consideration to basic steps that should be included in their committee work, and I am hopeful that they will agree on a general procedural program for committees. While the work of the various committees differs and they will need considerable flexibility, there are, nevertheless, certain basic elements of procedure that apply to successful committee effort. If committee chairmen and committee members can agree on the basic steps of committee procedure with which the convention as a whole agrees — in other words, if we have a common understanding as to the basic procedure we are going to follow — then it will be possible to develop a specific and realistic timetable.

In my opinion, the agreement on basic committee steps should precede our effort to work out the timetable and a deadline for the completion of the whole job. Our efforts will be much more productive if we do agree at an early date on general committee procedure and a firm timetable.

Now a final comment: when we have completed our work, it seems to me, there is a danger that it will be rejected by those who will vote against the entire constitution because of disagreement over a particular argument or detail. This is more likely to be the case if our work bears a partisan, sectional or special interest stamp. There are 2 possible protections against this danger, it seems to me.

First is a bipartisan approved and recommended constitution and, second, an informed and conscientious appraisal of the whole document by the voters. Our success with citizens generally will depend on the extent to which we ourselves can measure up to the view expressed by Benjamin Franklin at the conclusion of the federal Convention of 1787. Franklin said:

> I confess that there are several parts of this constitution which I do not at present approve but I am not sure I shall never approve them: for, having lived long, I have experienced many instances of being obliged, by better information or fuller consideration, to change opinions even on important subjects which I once thought right but found to be otherwise. It is therefore, that the older I grow, the more apt I am to doubt my own judgment, and to pay more respect to the judgment of others.
> I doubt too whether any other convention we can obtain may be able to make a better constitution . . . on the whole, sir, I cannot help expressing a wish that every member of the convention who may still have objections to it would, with me, on this occasion doubt a little of his own infallibility — and, to make manifest our unanimity, put his name to this instrument.

Even this appeal didn't get unanimity on the federal constitution, but certainly this attitude has prevailed and the federal constitution saved the nation. Those who wrote it preserved our country despite problems much more difficult than ours and pressures, interests and factions greater than ours. Unquestionably, their success resulted importantly from the above attitude expressed by Benjamin Franklin as well as his better known suggestion that they accept help through prayer.

While it may not be as apparent to us, I believe future historians may well conclude that what we do here or fail to do here will either save or lose the Republic which Benjamin Franklin and his fellow delegates saved for us.

Desperately needed is a constitution that will serve our state — yes, and other states as a pattern — as well as our federal charter has served the nation.

And it seems to me that this opportunity is the most fundamental opportunity that we have and the most fundamental need that we have, and may our dedication as delegates, with God's help, make us equal to this task. Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Romney.

Is there any unfinished business?

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President, I would like the privilege of speaking under personal privilege.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, proceed Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President and fellow delegates, a matter has come to my attention of inaccuracy in reporting the proposals introduced by myself yesterday, which is reported in this morning's Free Press.

The proposal which I introduced was Proposal 1023, which proposed to amend article VI, section 1, of the term of office of our state officials. This proposed change was from 2 to 4 year terms for all state officials. That included the governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, state treasurer, auditor general and attorney general.

The article which I would like to call your attention to reads as follows:

> Delegate T. Jefferson Hoxie, Republican, St. Louis, also proposed 4 year terms for the governor and lieutenant governor and appointed department heads.

This is inaccurate, and I think we, as delegates, should be sure that every newspaper article which is inaccurate is called to the attention of the press.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: Dr. Pollock gives notice of a meeting of the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections in room F, Thursday, October 19, at 10:00 o'clock in the morning.

Mr. Bentley gives notice of the meeting of the committee on education in room F on Thursday, October 19, at 10:00 o'clock a.m.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, we obviously have a conflict that I wasn't aware of when I gave my notice in to the secretary.

I am wondering if the chairman of declaration of rights, suffrage and elections would be able to change the time of his meeting, since I understand there are a large number of school children who are planning to attend the meeting of my committee at that time and place.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: I don't know, Mr. President, why everybody is picking on my committee. (laughter) It is not really a matter for me to determine. I assume that it is the business of the secretary to work out committee rooms without conflict. I am willing to do anything that is agreeable.

PRESIDENT NISBET: I suggest, Mr. Bentley, you confer with Mr. Chase. Maybe something can be arranged on it.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Bentley also announces that the meeting that he has called is in addition to the meeting following the adjournment of the session today. Committee on education after the session today.

Mr. A. G. Elliott gives notice of the meeting of the committee on local government 15 minutes after we adjourn on Thursday, but not before 3:15 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. Van Dusen announces a meeting of the committee on rules and resolutions in room B today after the session.

Mr. Hannah announces a meeting of the committee on legislative organization in room D this afternoon immediately after the session.

Mr. Danhof gives notice of a meeting of the committee on judicial branch in room B Thursday, October 19, at 10:00 o'clock a.m.

Mr. Brake gives notice of a meeting of the committee on finance and taxation in room E Friday, October 20, at 9:00 o'clock a.m.

Mr. Brake also gives notice of a public hearing on the question of constitutionally earmarked funds, in committee room C Wednesday, October 25 at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

Mr. DeVries announces a meeting of the committee on administration in room G today immediately after the session, and a second meeting at 8:00 o'clock this evening.

May the secretary call attention to an error on the last page of yesterday's journal, in which it was stated that the president requested a meeting of the committee chairmen. That is for Wednesday, tomorrow, at 11:00 o'clock a.m. in room E.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Hannah.

MR. J. A. HANNAH: Mr. President, there is an error in the announcement of the committee on legislative organization. It is tomorrow afternoon after the session rather than today.

And for the guidance of our committee members, it will be Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons immediately following the session until we decide otherwise. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoon, after the session every day.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DEVRIES: Mr. President, if I may make these announcements on behalf of the committee on administration: first of all, the committee will present for your approval tomorrow the operational budget of the convention with the suggested staff salaries. Second, we will be ready tomorrow to recommend to the president the names of potential clerks for the committees. Third, we hope to have enough committee rooms for every committee at the end of next week so we can stop the confusion. We apologize for this but there is nothing else we can do at the moment. We are trying to lease some additional space in the building. Fourth, we intend to process the rest of the staff applications by the middle of next week. We have over 350 applications. We are interviewing now. We are about ⅓ done. We appreciate your patience. We are trying to get it done as fast as we can. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Let me commend the committee chairmen for calling their committee meetings as frequently as they are in order to get started and get into operation. Probably that is what causes our difficulty on rooms, but I am happy that you are a working group.

Announcements, Mr. Chase.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. White asks to be excused from the session of Wednesday afternoon because of a speaking engagement which he had accepted prior to the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the leave will be granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Dr. Hannah has filed with the secretary this statement for your information: Several delegates have asked him whether or not it would be possible for them to be informed of events on the university campus in which they might have an interest. They pointed out that they might have free time when various educational features in which they were interested might be available.

There are present here at the secretary's desk 25 or 30 copies of the staff bulletin left after last week's distribution. These copies are available. Dr. Hannah states that if you would like copies of these each week, he would be glad to provide them and see to it that they are placed in your mail boxes.

If you would care to receive these in your mail box, please sign this yellow pad up here on the secretary's desk at the close of the convention. That will put in your mail box these weekly staff bulletins from the university.

That is all I have.

PRESIDENT NISBET: This completes the business of the convention today. What is your pleasure?

Mr. Buback.

MR. BUBACK: I move the convention adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The motion is on adjournment. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The convention is adjourned until tomorrow at 2:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, at 2:40 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Wednesday, October 18, 1961.]

NINTH DAY

Wednesday, October 18, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

The invocation today will be given by Reverend Guy N. Bridges, pastor of the First United Missionary Church, Lansing.

REVEREND BRIDGES: We lift to Thee, our Father, the deepest longings of our souls. We recognize Thee as the sovereign of the universe; and ask that Thou wilt help us to make Thee the Lord of our lives.

We thank Thee that Thou art concerned about government and that this convention desires divine direction. May these delegates be guided by the moral code which Thou hast given.

Impress upon each one the importance of his task. Let us sense our responsibility to Thee, as well as to the people. Deliver us from the fear of men, and give us courage to do that which we believe to be right. In the name of our Lord. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Absent with leave: Miss McGowan, Messrs. Pugsley, Tubbs and White.

Absent without leave: Messrs. Douglas and Walker.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the delegates are excused.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, submits the budget for the constitutional convention, and recommends its adoption.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DEVRIES: Mr. President, if I may make these comments and opening statement on behalf of the committee on administration before we discuss the individual items, I would like to point these things out:

1. This budget is the unanimous recommendation of the committee on administration.

2. This is a projection based on 7 months of operation, from October 3, 1961 to April 30, 1962, with certain exceptions; for example, some salaries, the lease of certain materials and equipment which are indicated in the budget are projected on an 8 month basis.

3. If the constitutional convention meets less than 7 months, the budget can be reduced proportionately.

4. This budget is projected within the $2 million appropriation passed by the legislature. There are 2 schools of thought on this matter: one, that we are bound by this $2 million appropriation and can spend no more than this amount. The second school of thought is that the $2 million appropriation does not bind the convention; that we can ask the legislature for more money, if needed. Nevertheless, the committee has budgeted within the $2 million.

5. This is a projected budget. We have tried to estimate and anticipate all expenses. We have not provided for some, either because we didn't know the cost, or because we have not anticipated these expenses. We expect to come before you to ask you to authorize additional expenditures from the contingency fund.

6. The committee on administration believes this budget will provide the constitutional convention with enough money to organize and run a model convention, in the belief that the administration of the convention materially affects its product.

7. Last, we suggest that in considering this budget, we follow this procedure: that the secretary read one item at a time and then a committee member will make a brief explanation and answer any questions by the delegates.

We will ask the secretary to read the first items, roman numeral one on page 2 of this report.

SECRETARY CHASE:

I. Salaries and wages — delegates $1,080,000.00

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, this is in line with what was set up by the legislature as salaries of delegates.

SECRETARY CHASE:

II. Other salaries, wages, contractual services, supplies, materials, rent and equipment

A. Rental, lease and purchase of equipment

1. Office fixtures and furnishings	$ 10,000.00
2. Carpet	3,500.00
3. Platforms, wiring, etc.	25,000.00
4. Backdrop in convention hall	4,500.00
5. Voting equipment	26,000.00
6. Lumber—Capitol City ($7,320.00 plus $17,000.00)	24,320.00
7. Partitions ($4,628.00 plus $4,876.25)	9,504.25
8. Installation of chairs	1,800.95
9. Chairs	8,577.00
10. Seal	450.00
11. Xerox machine and supplies ($95.00 monthly rental plus $1060.00 for extra copies and supplies)	1,680.00
12. Varitype 610F	3,205.00
13. Model 2550W Multilith offset duplicator	5,601.20
14. Office machines—(50 typewriters at $6.00 per month—$2,100.00; 5 electric typewriters—$16.00—$560.00; 1 adding machine—$12.00—$84.00)	2,744.00
15. Addressograph (lease—$1,438.74; cabinet $76.25; shipping of cabinet $3.75; 8,000 plates $560.00)	2,078.74
16. Postage meter	1,661.50.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, most of these items have already been approved by the convention. If there are any questions, I would be happy to try to answer them.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Lesinski.

MR. LESINSKI: Mr. President, in regard to item II-A-12, the varitype, it is my belief the varitype is not necessary in this operation if you have 55 typewriters. I believe it is an expensive piece of equipment and if it is really necessary it can be leased like the other items.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President, delegates, by action in the convention on October 17 you authorized the purchase of the varitype. This convention authorized the purchase. The committee recommended that on this basis, where you have 2 and 3 sheets that you want to consolidate into one stencil to put on your multilith machine, that machine will do that, whereas a typewriter will not.

Regarding the rental factor, we could have rented this machine and paid ½ of the total cost to rent it. It was our feeling that we might better purchase it, use it, and have whatever salvage value we thought might come out of it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further questions?

Mr. Powell.

MR. POWELL: I would appreciate a little enlightenment on item II-A-8, installation of chairs.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: Mr. President, it is our understanding that this was the cost item for the installation of the chairs in the gallery to the delegates' right, and this was done substantially at cost by the people who sold the chairs and installed them for convention purposes.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further discussion?

Mr. Plank.

MR. PLANK: My addition doesn't come out with yours on item II-A-11. Ninety-five dollars monthly and $1,060.00 is not $1,680.00. There must be an explanation.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: Mr. President, the $95.00 is the minimum cost for the rental of the machine and the supplies, and you are permitted, with this $95.00, 2,000 individual copies. In addition to this, you pay the cost for the extra supplies and the copies, which is not provided in the rental of the machine. The $95.00 is for the 2,000 written copies. After the 2,000, the cost goes down to 3½ cents per copy.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further discussion?

Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, on item II-A-15, on the lease of the addressograph, wouldn't it be better to purchase the addressograph machine? I am quite sure we can certainly use it in the state government. This vague idea of talking about writing off things after we get through is a little foolish, because we certainly can use them in the state government. I would like to have a question answered on the 8,000 plates.

MR. FARNSWORTH: The addressograph machine has not been purchased. The item was put in the budget to allow for it. We hope to make an arrangement with a state office to either address the envelopes before they come here, or perhaps use the Elliott people at a lesser cost to do the addressing on the premises.

We thought it necessary to put in some figure. That was the figure we had, and it will not be any higher.

MR. MADAR: I think he misunderstood me. I wasn't questioning price. I was questioning the idea of just leasing one when we could buy one. I don't think they cost too much more, but if it was even twice as much it would be well worth buying it and giving it to the state.

MR. FARNSWORTH: This committee did investigate that possibility and it would have cost considerably more to have purchased it, and even if it cost $10.00 more, we didn't feel we should give it to the state. We are responsible to the constitutional convention budget.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. President, I do not notice under item 14 any mention of dictaphones or transcribers. After all, we are having evening sessions. Will there always be secretaries present? If not, should there be some item for dictaphones?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Dr. Pollock, it is our intention to assign you a secretary. She will be present at all hearings. Other committee chairmen have suggested we inquire into the renting of tape recorders and the purchase of tape recorders and dictaphones. If we decide to do this, it would have to come out of the contingency fund. There is no appropriation in the budget at the present time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any other questions?

Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I wish to return to item II-A-15 because I think we are responsible to the people not just to get this constitution through, but also to try to save as much money as we can. That is one of the reasons why we are trying to draw up a constitution.

At this time I would like to amend this to strike out item 15 until we can find out what a new machine would cost us to purchase.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President, as a member of the committee on administration, I would object to that being done at the moment. We have advised the convention that this is a maximum figure that would be expended for that function, which is to address a mailing list.

We anticipate the committee on public information will have quite a lot of addressing to do. We anticipate quite a large mailing list. It must be done on some type of equipment or in some state office.

I hope this convention will have confidence in the committee on administration; that it will ultimately get the job done at the lowest possible cost. I do think, however, we must have some figure in there for it. That is as good a figure as we now have.

Should you vote on this amendment favorably, all it would do would be to take the figure out and add it to the contingency fund at the end of the budget and increase your contingency fund by that amount; and, later on, you would have to go back and change it. I see no merit in the amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment that Mr. Madar has offered, that item 15 be stricken from item II-A. Any further discussion?

If not, all in favor of the amendment say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

The question is on the approval of the budget.

Next item, Mr. Secretary.

SECRETARY CHASE:

B. Office supplies and printed matter

1. Delegates' stationery (Wellman Press)	$ 2,011.83
2. Journal (Speaker-Hines and Thomas on the basis of 6,000 copies daily for 150 days: 50 days—12 pages at $445.00; 100 days—24 pages at $797.00)	101,950.00
3. Office supplies	8,175.00.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President, I should say this is based on the convention operating for 150 days. The only basis we have to go on was the Convention of 1908, which did meet 71 days. We are getting a break here. We are having better than 2 times the amount of time.

Before we could estimate printing cost, the question was how many pages are you going to have? Frankly, that we do not know. We did make a rundown of the 1908 Convention and analyzed that as best we could day by day, and came up with an estimate and presented it to the printers.

We had 2 bids, and we took what, in the opinion of the committee, was the lower of the 2 bids, and you have been getting that product here in the last day or two. You have it on your desks now. That is a projected figure.

Let me say this: if you are really interested in keeping the cost of the convention down, here is a place where each and every delegate can contribute his full share. (applause)

We have gotten off to a fine start due to the prodding of the president and good organization, and we are getting some very favorable responses. We are getting down to business.

This item does not include printing of the verbatim journal at the end of the convention. That will be another cost.

Mr. President, if you can keep these political speeches or campaign speeches out of the verbatim record, naturally it is going to save printing cost.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any questions on item II-B? If not, we will proceed to item II-C.

SECRETARY CHASE:

C. Rental and lease of building

1. Civic center—($110,000.00 plus $4,200.00 for additional space.)	$ 114,200.00.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I believe this item is also self explanatory. The convention has already authorized the payment of $110,000.00 on the lease and also provided for $4,200.00 for additional space on the third floor.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any questions on item II-C?

Mr. King.

MR. KING: Mr. President, I am sorry but I would like to go back to item II-B-2. I am sure the price is quite reasonable. We are not talking about the $100,000.00.

Is there any possible way we could produce this document ourselves with our offset printing equipment?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President, I can assure you that possibility has been explored to the fullest extent. At the beginning we thought that could be done, and we had a proposal that, in cooperation with the secretary of state's office, this could be accomplished at considerably less cost until this convention went on record asking for 6,000 copies of the journal daily.

When you did that, you ruled out any possibility of working with the state office and accomplishing that job at a lesser cost.

This figure is the lowest figure we were able to obtain on that item and in the time you have to have it, which is of course, the following day.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Are there any further questions? We will go to item II-D.

SECRETARY CHASE:

D. Other contractual services

1. TV — closed circuit (from 10-3-61 through 10-20-61) ..... $ 4,200.00.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: Mr. President, up to and including Friday of this week we are paying for the closed circuit TV service to the Giant View Television Corporation, the fee of $300.00 per day whether or not we use the service.

We contacted these people and asked them to give us prices on what they would be willing to give us this service for, for the balance of the convention. We estimate the balance of the convention will be approximately 25 weeks.

The Giant View people informed us there would be no change in the price. It will still be $300.00 a day or $1,500.00 for a 5-day week whether or not we use this equipment.

In view of this, we feel this is a rather expensive item; especially in view of the fact that our attendance has not been landoffice type of attendance in the lobbies where we have these 3 viewers.

There is no transformation of material that goes through the 3 TV viewers. None of this is taped. It is lost.

With this in mind, and extending the figure for a 25 week period, in order to maintain this service the convention would have to ratify a sum of $37,500.00.

It is the feeling of the committee on administration that when and if the time arrives that we feel we need this service, possibly we should seriously consider retaining these services with the Giant View people.

Meantime, the audio visual departments of Wayne State University, Michigan State University and the University of Michigan are working out a plan where they will come in and service the convention on a closed TV remote control circuit, with TV viewing and recording and storing of material. They have given us no statement as to how much it will cost the convention. Their thought is they would like to use this convention as a training ground to train some of their people.

I would have no objection to this as long as we are not personally involved in training them.

It is the feeling of the committee that as of Friday of this week we should terminate the contract we have with the Giant View people, which we have on a $300.00 a day basis.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any questions? If not, item II-D-2.

SECRETARY CHASE:

II-D-2. Sound system ..... $ 8,000.00.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, this is a contract with KLA Sound. It provides for the installation of the sound system and the operation of the sound system throughout the period of the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any questions? If not, we will proceed with the next item.

SECRETARY CHASE:

II-D-3. Clipping service ($40.00-$50.00 monthly) ..... $ 400.00.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: This is a service provided by the Michigan press association. They clip all of the daily and weekly newspapers in the state without duplication and send them to the convention. We anticipate establishing a file in the library of these clippings by subject matter for research and a permanent record of the constitutional convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any questions? If not, next item.

SECRETARY CHASE:

II-D-4. Freight for chairs ..... $ 458.48.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, we have already authorized this a week ago.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any questions? If not, item II-D-5.

SECRETARY CHASE:

II-D-5. Convention reporter ..... $ 25,000.00.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Beaman.

MR. BEAMAN: Mr. President, the committee had before it proposals from 4 different reporting agencies, all highly qualified and highly recommended; 2 from Detroit and 2 from Cleveland, Ohio. After careful review of all of the proposals, it was found that the one proposed by the Accurate Court Reporters, of Detroit, Michigan, was the most favorable and we have recommended entering into a contract with them.

The basis of cost on all of the proposals was predicated on a cost per page of transcript. The budget cost of $25,000.00 was based on an estimate of the possible number of words of debate and oratory necessary for us to complete our work.

Now, if you are interested in statistics, we found that approximately 1,500,000 words were transcribed in the 1908 Convention. In arriving at our estimate, we have based it on a possibility of 2,500,000 words, which the committee feels was very liberal.

If you are further interested in statistics, that figure divided among 144 delegates means that each one of us will be entitled to 17,300 words, at a cost to the taxpayers of $173.00.

Now it may be in order to make a rule that after the delegate has used up his 17,300 words—(applause) he should be denied the privilege of the floor.

I might say, after sitting through 8 sessions of this convention, some of the delegates are right on the fringe of silence. (applause)

PRESIDENT NISBET: I think we are having a very enlightening report here. Any further discussion? Item II-D-6.

SECRETARY CHASE:

II-D-6. Police ..... $ 17,600.00.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, this will provide for 2 security officers on 24 hours a day and 2 security officers on 12 hours a day in order to police the parking lot and other facilities of the convention, mostly in the late evening hours and early morning hours.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any questions? Item II-E.

SECRETARY CHASE:

II-E. Postage ..... $ 15,000.00.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, this estimate is based on what the house and senate do in a comparable rate of time. It is much more conservative.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any question? If not, item II-F.

SECRETARY CHASE:

II-F. Telephone

1. Basic charge plus allowance for changes ..... $ 4,596.00
2. Toll Calls ..... 15,404.00.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Davis.

MR. DAVIS: Mr. President, I believe the telephone charges are self explanatory. The basic charge of $4,596.00 is for telephone rental at $1,725.00 per quarter, plus installation charges and the toll calls at $15,404.00 represents a conservative estimate of toll charges for delegates and staff on matters of convention business.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any questions? If not, we will proceed to item II-G.

SECRETARY CHASE:

II-G. Fees and compensation

1. Mileage and subpeona fees for persons called before convention committees ..... $ 6,000.00.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: Mr. President, obviously in this category we had to make an educated guess as to what the needs of the convention might be in this particular category. There has been some discussion on several occasions as to the possibility that people might be brought before committees or subcommittees of this convention.

In addition thereto, it is possible that at some time in the future some committee or subcommittee might find it imperative to meet in some other place.

Both of these items are of a speculative nature at this time, and we felt that a budgetary amount of $6,000.00 was very reasonable in light of possibilities that exist.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any questions? If not, we will proceed to item II-H.

SECRETARY CHASE:

II-H. Maintenance services — minor repairs and services ..... $ 450.00.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: I really don't think this item needs too much consideration. Obviously there will be certain maintenance costs around the building here which are our responsibility, such as signs and other needed guides for the delegates and visitors. This again was based on a projected sum that we felt would be adequate, though reasonable, for our uses.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further questions?

Mr. Lesinski.

MR. LESINSKI: Mr. President, how are the other items provided for as far as maintenance is concerned; in other words, typewriters and office equipment?

MR. GUST: That includes the multilith and varitype. I believe, Mr. President—without having all these documents in front of me, but in one instance, and perhaps in 2—the terms of the lease covers maintenance. In the event other problems of this nature would arise, if they are not specifically covered in the budget, of course they would have to be covered by an appropriation from the contingency fund.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: You will note that a great amount of this equipment is on a lease basis. Those are obviously covered in respect to servicing.

You have items that you have purchased, to be sure, and the guarantee expires in 90 days. This convention might conceivably be obligated to a service problem after the 90 days expire. The committee didn't feel there was much liability and we thought the $450.00 would be adequate for any contingencies.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further questions? Item II-I.

SECRETARY CHASE:

II-I. Travel and subsistence

1. Delegates — 2 monthly trips at the rate of $3,286.60 per round trip for the total delegation based on 7 months ..... $ 46,012.40
2. Reimbursement of actual and necessary expenses for officers, delegates and staff of the convention 31,000.00.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Perras.

MR. PERRAS: Mr. President, the figure of $46,012.40 was arrived at by going up to the office and adding up the mileage on the slips the delegates filled out a week ago; normal mileage trips to and from their homes. That was taken at $32.80 a month and based on 7 months.

The item 2, of $31,000.00, is just an estimate of the cost of the travel for delegates on committees and subcommittees, if it does happen that they have to travel. We also took that from the budget of the house and senate for 1960 and 1961. It goes up to $275,000.00. We took approximately 9 per cent of that figure.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any questions on item II-I? If not, item II-J.

SECRETARY CHASE:

II-J. Educational supplies and library

1. Books and services already purchased ..... $ 2,203.90
2. Additional materials ..... 1,000.00.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: Mr. President, I think that item speaks for itself. I think most of the delegates are aware of the volume of materials that have already been purchased and are available for their use. We are hopeful in the future that we will not have to purchase too many additional materials but we felt that some appropriation should be made for it and we felt that $1,000.00, though only a guess, is an appropriate figure at this time based on our best estimates.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any questions? If not, item II-K.

SECRETARY CHASE:

II-K. Insurance and bond

1. Fire ..... } $ 4,455.00
2. Comprehensive general liability ..... }
3. Bond for finance clerk and secretary of the convention ..... }
4. Workmen's compensation on employees ..... }
5. Social security — employer ..... 9,879.20.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: Mr. President, the committee on administration recommends these items for approval because they have surveyed the risk involved and evaluated the possibility of losses.

After careful deliberation the committee decided the damage or exposure would be to fire, public liability, workmen's compensation, embezzlement and, of course, social security. The social security is for employees of the convention only, because we have asked the attorney general's office to give us an opinion, and this will go to Cincinnati to the federal social security commission as to whether or not it is necessary to take the employer's part out of the social security allowance at this time. Therefore, we have not considered any part for the delegation itself.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any questions?

Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: I was wondering about the item for fire insurance. Is this just for the personal property of the convention?

MR. STERRETT: Yes, sir, it is just for personal property.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any other questions?

Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President, I might address this question I would like some discussion on to Dr. DeVries.

The question, Doctor, I have in mind: I notice we have workmen's compensation for employees—not that I think the members of this delegation should be considered in that category—but I am wondering if the committee has investigated at all the possibility of a group death and accident policy for the members while they are discharging their duties?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, may I yield to Mr. Sterrett? He was in charge of the subcommittee investigating insurance.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: Mr. President, as far as the workmen's compensation insurance on the delegation itself, we have had a ruling from the attorney general that we do not come under the workmen's compensation act in the state of Michigan.

As far as the fringe benefits, the committee on administration felt that it was not necessary because we are already getting quite a good salary for this convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further questions?

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, before we get to the section on salary schedule, I would like to make these observations, if I may:

One, that the salaries are based on 7 months of operation, from October 3, 1961 to April 30, 1962, except those which have an asterisk. In these cases we anticipate possibly 8 months of service.

Two, the committee on administration anticipates that the work week of the staff of this convention will be at least 40 hours per week, and probably a good deal more as we move ahead during the next few months.

Furthermore, the hours will be irregular and uncertain. Therefore, in order to avoid the problem of overtime, we have set the salary somewhat higher than might be the case otherwise.

Furthermore, we want to avoid the payment of fringe benefits, such as group insurance mentioned by Mr. Hoxie, and are paying a flat salary and no hourly wages.

The committee strongly believes that in order to obtain top quality personnel on this convention staff, not only in skills but in personality characteristics, we are obligated to pay commensurate salaries. We didn't feel we wanted to conduct a training program. We need people with optimum skill and competence.

The salary figures you see before you have received thorough consideration and have been given unanimous support of this committee but have been scaled down in some instances on the request and appearance of certain delegates before the committee.

Further, Mr. President, most of the salaries in this schedule are based upon comparable positions in the house of representatives and the senate of Michigan. Civil service recommendations for those positions not found in the house and senate table of organization were used as the basis for judgment in the other cases.

With that, Mr. President, I ask the secretary to read the salary schedule as outlined in the report.

SECRETARY CHASE:

L. Other salaries and wages

27. Other consultants
*28. Librarian	2	500	8,000.00
			$ 329,306.52.

*These employees have been working since the opening of the convention; therefore, the totals for them are based upon 8 months.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, items 26 and 27 should be combined into that $50,000.00 total figure.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any discussion?

Mr. Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: I wonder if we could have some further clarification of items 26 and 27?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: I suppose it would be impossible to discuss items 26 and 27 without discussing item 23, but suffice it to say that after much discussion and conferences with the proposed codirectors of research and drafting, we tried to establish some means of setting up a staff for them.

Items 26 and 27 were seperated for this reason: after going over the applications in our file and interviewing various people who had applied for a research and drafting job, we found that, generally speaking, they fell into 2 categories: those usually of a younger nature, either still in school or recently graduated from some college and, in some cases, young men and women working on their master's or doctor's degree who wanted to take a leave of absence from their studies in order to work full time doing research and drafting for the committees and the delegates of this convention.

In addition thereto, we found that there were many outstanding men, both on the campuses of the various universities of this state and, in some instances, in the professions, who were not in a position to devote any sustained continuous amount of time on research and drafting for the convention but who were willing to make their services available to us on a per diem basis at such time as a committee or subcommittee of this convention might require their services.

For your information, we attempted to—after going through our files and consulting with the 3 gentlemen, Drs. Combs, Joiner and Kelly, who worked extensively on the preparatory commission—reach what in our combined considered opinion was a reasonable scale both for research and drafting assistants and public information assistants who would be available on a full time basis and also what would be a reasonable scale for experts in a chosen field who would be available on a per diem or part time basis.

Projecting these figures forward, and again speculating somewhat, to be sure, as to what the future needs of the delegates to the convention would be, we established this item of $50,000.00 for items 26 and 27.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any discussion?

Mr. Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. President, I wonder just what this language can mean with regard to the research facilities that will be available to each of the respective committees. I gather there are going to be some 13 research people. How many are going to be full time, how many part time, and how many will the committee have at their disposal for the work of this convention?

MR. GUST: Generally speaking, it had been our intention to make available to each committee some one person, if it so desired and felt the need, on a full time basis. After discussing this with, again, Drs. Combs, Joiner and Kelly, it was the feeling that although some committees certainly would need a full time assistant to do drafting and research and, in the case of one committee, public information work, that there were several committees who probably would not need somebody full time.

In addition to that thought, we ran into a scheduling problem. As you know, the committee that is submitting this report, and the committee which Mr. Van Dusen has so ably discharged his duties on—very cheerfully, I might say—will have the bulk of their work completed and it is possible from time to time, though we need the assistance of some experts in this field, that we probably will not need them on anything other than an occasional basis.

Therefore, to arbitrarily say we are going to, right off the bat, assign a full time drafting and research assistant to a single committee would not appear feasible. So we gave it the maximum flexibility. But I can assure you that the co-directors of research and drafting will be very sensitive to the needs of the various committees and subcommittees of this convention. I also can assure you that we will see that your needs in this field are fully met.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any other questions? If not, next item.

SECRETARY CHASE:

II-M. Contingency fund .....$ 42,075.03.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: Obviously, Mr. President, from the questions which have just arisen here, and the many more questions that I am sure the delegates have, you can realize that a number of items undoubtedly will come up throughout the course of this convention that none of us could foresee at this time.

This, quite frankly, is the remainder of the figure left over from the appropriation from the legislature, which I think some of the arithmetic will disclose; and we have seen fit to allocate it into a contingency fund with the hope that we will not have to spend all or any part of it; but knowing full well we will undoubtedly have to spend some part of it, both on items which we have budgeted for you which turn out to be inadequate and, in addition thereto, for certain items neither this committee nor, perhaps, any of the delegates foresee at this time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any questions?

Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I wonder if the committee on administration feels that it has the authority to make changes of funds between various categories without further reference to the convention in the event such might prove feasible.

I am thinking of one item of $31,000.00 for committee travel. In the event, as time goes by, that was proven to be far in excess of needs, I wonder if the committee would feel free to take that money and put it into another budget that might need it more.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: It is my interpretation that any time you want to make a change in the convention budget, you will have to bring it before the full convention for its approval.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Erickson.

MR. ERICKSON: Mr. President, a few days ago the convention authorized the lease, and among the things set forth was that the leased premises shall be returned to the lessor as they are received by the lessee. I don't believe that contingency item would be enough to take care of it and I am wondering if that should not be classified as a foreseeable expenditure.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Erickson, we anticipate we will be able to sell a good deal of material and equipment used in this convention which we hope can be used to restore the facilities. We completely surveyed the building before any equipment or installations were put in here. We do hope to use the money received from the salvage of equipment to restore the building to good shape.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any questions?

Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Mr. President, I am aware, as I am sure all of the delegates are, that we have gotten away to a very fast start in this convention due to the excellent work of the preparatory commission which was financed by a grant from the W. K. Kellogg foundation. It is my understanding that many of these items and facilities, contractual services and leases were initially committed for with funds that the W. K. Kellogg foundation advanced.

I am wondering if Dr. DeVries can tell us the extent to which, by our action here if we adopt this budget, we are reimbursing the foundation for the funds so generously advanced. As a citizen and as a delegate I earnestly hope that we can repay any funds which probably should have come out of the convention in the first instance.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Woolfenden, we did authorize the repayment of $10,000.00 that was given to us to make the deposit on the lease. That is the only money refunded to the Kellogg foundation. That money will be used by the 3 universities for distribution after the convention.

One thing that wasn't pointed out: the Kellogg foundation didn't charge us for the $1,500.00 used to get the auditorium ready for the opening day's session and $500.00 which was paid to a wrestling promoter in order that we could have the auditorium on that day. That was given to us. I didn't want to bring that out but I suppose it should be mentioned.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any other questions?

Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. President, it has been stated by the committee on administration that the convention will not be required to pay federal insurance contribution tax, which is the social security, on the earnings or compensation of the delegates.

I am wondering if in making this determination — I understand they are getting a ruling from Cincinnati on this matter — it has been decided that the delegates are not employees as defined under the FICA and, if they are not regarded as employees, will their compensation be subject to income tax withholding?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: Sir, this is not in the realm of insurance. The income tax feature I could not answer on myself. However, we are awaiting a ruling on the social security from Cincinnati and the committee on administration, I am sure, will be very glad to look into this for the delegates. If somebody already has, I am not aware of it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further questions? If not, continue, Mr. Secretary.

SECRETARY CHASE:

Subtotal — category II .....$ 920,000.00
Grand total ..... $2,000,000.00.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Snyder.

MR. SNYDER. Mr. President, on behalf of the committee on administration, may I state that we are deeply indebted to the constitutional convention preparatory commission for their preliminary report on administrative procedure.

It was necessary, however, for our committee to tailor some of their recommendations to fit our specific circumstances. Some of the problems that we had were easy to solve but, in addition to that, we had many knotty problems. In order to best resolve these, and to use most effectively the many and varied talents of our committee members, several subcommittees were designated by our chairman, Dr. DeVries.

Their efforts were reported out from time to time to the committee as a whole and then, after full discussion and deliberation over such recommendations, general agreement was usually reached. In fact, I am very happy to say that every final action taken by the committee as a whole was a unanimous action.

In conclusion, Mr. President and delegates, I will say that the reports that we are offering to you for your approval represent what we feel is an objective, bipartisan effort of the entire committee on administration. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the budget as submitted by the committee. Any questions?

Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. President, one question — I am not trying to save money here; perhaps spend a little more — I notice under the salaries, which is the only place where we have an actual breakdown of the committee's contemplated personnel, they have stenographic clerk.

Am I correct in assuming this classification would be the people to whom we as individual delegates, rather than as members or officers of a committee, would turn to for stenographic assistance in preparing proposals or any other memoranda to be presented to this convention?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Ford, it is the intent of the committee on administration, as we read the table of organization, that these 15 stenographic clerks will be the personal secretaries of the delegates. Each delegate will be assigned one stenographer — perhaps I should put it this way: 4 or 5 delegates will be assigned one stenographer.

MR. FORD: This is why I raise the question. When I divide 14 into 144, I have difficulty in getting 4. Perhaps there is something here that isn't apparent. Perhaps some people are doing double duty and also doing duty to the delegates.

But it appears to me, if we tie ourselves to this budget of 14 stenographers, this may be grossly inadequate, if we have one person serving 10 delegates. Maybe this is too soon to anticipate the difficulty but while you are securing personnel, it seems like this would be the appropriate time to raise the question.

MR. DeVRIES: The rules provide for 15 or more if authorized by the committee on administration. If you deduct the personal secretary to the president, 3 personal secretaries to the vice-presidents, and 13 committee clerks, deduct those from a total of 144 delegates, it would be considerably less than 10.

It has been my experience there are many members in the house who do not dictate very much, do not have much work. We anticipate that will cut down this figure. If it turns out we cannot handle the work, I suppose the committee will have to authorize the hiring of additional stenographers.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the committee's report. Any further questions?

If not, all in favor say aye. Those opposed, no.

The budget is adopted.

May I, without any lack of dignity, convey to this committee, as well as Mr. Van Dusen's committee, our appreciation for the very thorough job both committees have done in getting this convention started in administration. (applause)

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, on behalf of the committee on administration, we want to thank you for this vote of confidence. We worked hard and, as you can probably see, we rehearsed our parts quite well. (applause)

The committee on administration will celebrate the completion of this part of its work with another meeting immediately following in room G.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Chase, any further reports of standing committees?

SECRETARY CHASE:

Mr. DeVries submits the following report:

The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, recommends the following persons to the president for consideration as staff members of the constitutional convention:

Codirector of research, drafting, and public information, Dr. William Combs.

Codirector of research, drafting, and public information, Dr. Charles Joiner.

Codirector of research, drafting, and public information, Dr. Alfred Kelly.

Secretary to vice president Tom Downs, Mrs. Geraldine Rapaport.

Committee clerk to the committee on legislative organization, Mrs. Margery Archer.

Committee clerk to the committee on finance and taxation, Mrs. Pauline Farman.

Committee clerk to the committee on judicial branch, Mrs. Valverda Louden.

Committee clerk to the committee on executive branch, Miss Evelyn Silverman.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unless there is objection, the recommendation of the committee will be concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The president appoints, pursuant to authorization by the convention, and with the approval of the committee on administration, the aforenamed persons to the respective positions indicated.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the appointments are approved.

Any further reports of standing committees?

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on rules and resolutions, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, submits the following report and recommends that the appendices to the report of the committee on permanent organization and rules, adopted by the convention October 9, 1961, be amended as follows:

Amend the job descriptions, appendix B, under "OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT* — Administration and housekeeping division" following item B, by inserting a new item C to read as follows:

"C. Secretaries to the vice presidents (3).

These people must be capable of taking shorthand and typing letters, memoranda and studies. These people must also have the capacity to get along with people and work well with other staff members."; and relettering the remaining items accordingly.

Richard Van Dusen, chairman.

For the body of the original report, see above, page 122.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, delegates, in view of the fact that 3 secretaries to the vice presidents have been included in the budget which you just adopted, and one just appointed, I hope you will find this recommendation acceptable. It is made at the request of the committee on administration. It has the full approval of the committee on rules and resolutions.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation.

All in favor say aye. Those opposed, nay.

It is concurred in.

Any further reports of standing committees, Mr. Secretary?

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. G. E. Brown introduces Delegate Proposal 1048, A proposal relative to approval of amendments to the constitution by initiatory petition. Amends article XVII, section 2.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. G. E. Brown introduces Delegate Proposal 1049, A proposal to make inadmissible evidence obtained by illegal search and seizure. Amends article II, section 10.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Suzore introduces Delegate Proposal 1050, A proposal to take property; necessity and compensation. Amends article XIII, section 1.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Suzore introduces Delegate Proposal 1051, A proposal relating to debt limitation. Amends article X, section 10.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Erickson introduces Delegate Proposal 1052, A proposal setting a limitation on state indebtedness to meet deficits in revenue. Amends article X, section 10.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hoxie introduces Delegate Proposal 1053, A proposal to establish a uniform basis of valuation on taxation of property. Amends article X, sections 3, 5 and 7.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Norris introduces Delegate Proposal 1054, A proposal dealing with prohibition of liberty of speech and press. Amends article II, section 22. Replaces Delegate Proposal 1016.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Bentley introduces Delegate Proposal 1062, A proposal to lower the voting age to 18 years. Amends article III, section 1.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Brake introduces Delegate Proposal 1063, A proposal to describe the organization of the state administrative board and define its jurisdiction.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the Committee on Executive branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all the proposals for introduction today, Mr. President.

May the secretary make this announcement? In connection with proposals, when the research and drafting staff is established, will you please take your proposals to that staff, because we have found a number of these are raising pretty technical questions. If you will take all of your proposals to them, then they will be filed with the proposal clerk. Meantime, please, if you will, take your proposals down to Mrs. West during the afternoon or early the next morning, because the deadline is 11:00 o'clock. When that deadline comes, if they are not in and several of you are dictating, it is a pretty hard thing to get everything in readiness by 2:00 o'clock.

Your cooperation will be greatly appreciated by the staff.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals. Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, if I may comment on Mr. Chase's suggestion, the procedure the 3 codirectors would like you to follow is: if you have a research project, give it to one of the 3 codirectors. They will then assign the assistant or consultant, after conferring with the chairman, who will do the work for you. That will save time. We would like the research directed through the 3 codirectors, after consultation with the chairman and then have the research go back to the codirectors for editing.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on the calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Faxon offers Resolution 14, A resolution to establish a speaker's bureau.

Following is the body of Resolution 14, as offered:

Whereas, Many civic and political groups around the state are vitally interested in the events of this convention; and

Whereas, There will be much discussion by the citizenry of the action we take; and

Whereas, An informed electorate is the best electorate; now therefore be it

Resolved, That this convention establish a speaker's bureau of our members in order to clarify the issues under discussion for the citizens of this state.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Faxon also offers Resolution 15, A resolution inviting foreign students to our convention.

Following is the body of Resolution 15, as offered:

Whereas, The work of this convention has received national and international attention; and

Whereas, There are many nations in the world today which face a task similar to our own here; and

Whereas, There are many foreign students attending schools in Michigan; and

Whereas, These students will be the future leaders in their respective countries; now therefore be it

Resolved, That this convention extend an invitation to these students to attend our meetings and meet our delegates in order that they may better their understanding of our American democratic process in action.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Faxon offers Resolution 16, A resolution to invite social scientists to speak before our convention.

Following is the body of Resolution 16, as offered:

Whereas, There are many changes taking place in this state and the world today; and

Whereas, Social scientists are and have been engaged in studies dealing with an objective view in these changing conditions; and

Whereas, Economic and political and social changes vitally affect the fabric of the product of this convention; now therefore be it

Resolved, That we invite these social scientists to speak before our entire convention on their respective fields of study to provide an information background towards our future deliberations.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all the resolutions on file.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Are there any further motions or resolutions?

Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: I move that when the Convention adjourns tomorrow afternoon, it stand adjourned until Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock p.m. This will give us time for committee sessions on Friday.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Romney. Any discussion?

All in favor say aye. Those opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Any unfinished business?

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. President, at 2:00 o'clock I was before the Michigan supreme court and therefore not available to be checked in. I am now present and I would like to have the record show that.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Your presence is noted.

Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The following announcements of committee meetings:

The secretary has on his desk the following requests for leave of absence from tomorrow's session: Messrs. Douglas, A. G. Elliott, Farnsworth and Karn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be excused.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary has been requested to make this announcement: The apples on your desks are from the Turner orchards, with the compliments of Delegate Herbert Turner, of Saginaw.

This final announcement: The checks for the delegates for this first pay period will be available from the finance clerk, Mrs. Tomlinson, in the office of the secretary tomorrow any time after 8:00 o'clock, with the exception of the members who were not able to get their social security in time. Those will be available by the first of next week.

PRESIDENT NISBET: This completes the business of the convention for today. What is your pleasure?

Mr. Barthwell.

MR. BARTHWELL: I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The motion is on adjournment. All in favor say aye. Those opposed, no.

The convention is adjourned until tomorrow at 2:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon at 3:20 o'clock p.m., the Convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Thursday, October 19, 1961.]

TENTH DAY

Thursday, October 19, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

The invocation today will be given by the Reverend Vernon T. Smith, of the Holt Presbyterian Church, Holt.

REVEREND SMITH: Let us bow our heads in the spirit of prayer. Almighty God, before Whom all nations rise or fall, in Whose hands rest the total history of man, make us all humble enough to seek Thy holy will in the affairs of state. O Thou creator of all things, of life, of mind and spirit, Who has given us all a rich inheritance, give to these, Thy servants the health of body and mind, the guidance of Thy spirit to do a wise and lasting work in this constitutional convention. Bless us all and keep us and our loved ones safe in Thy care today and always. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: May we suggest, please, that you canvass the switches and make sure at this time that every one is in the not voting position. Then, if there is a vacant seat next to you, please be sure that that is also in the not voting position. Now, will you vote aye?

The secretary will now lock the machine and record the vote.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Absent with leave: Miss McGowan, Messrs. A. G. Elliott and Karn.

Absent without leave: Mr. Everett.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Erickson

MR. ERICKSON: I move that Mr. Everett be excused from today's session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the motion prevails and Mr. Everett is excused.

Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Bentley, for the committee on education, introduces Committee Proposal 1, A proposal pertaining to the inclusion of section 1 of article XI in the constitution; with the recommendation that it pass.

Alvin M. Bentley, chairman.

For Committee Proposal 1, see below, page 197.

PRESIDENT NISBET: It will be referred to the committee of the whole and placed on general orders.

Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I would merely like to state that there was a great deal of interest in my committee on receiving as expeditious action as possible on this proposal, owing not only to its noncontroversial nature but to the high value which the committee and, I'm sure, the convention places on this declaration of principle which historically dates back to the Northwest Ordinance of 1787.

However, if it had been desired to consider this proposal today, it would, of course, have involved a suspension of the rules and it was felt that this would not be a good time to start setting such a precedent of this nature.

Therefore, I announce for the members of the committee and the convention, as I understand it, that this will be an order of business in the coming session on Monday evening. Thank you, sir.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, recommends the following persons to the president for consideration as staff members of the constitutional convention:

Committee clerk to the committee on legislative powers, Mrs. Bernice Popp.

Committee clerk to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections, Mrs. Charlotte Walter.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the committee recommendations are concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The president appoints, pursuant to authorization by the convention, and with the approval of the committee on administration, the aforenamed persons to the respective positions indicated.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, these appointments will be approved. Are there any objections? They are approved.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only remaining standing committee report, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

Mr. Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. President, there is a procedure in the legislature which permits members of the legislature to join in putting in bills to the legislature. I'm wondering if this convention is aware of the possibility that members can join in preparing proposals and we might perhaps eliminate some duplications and some paper in that regard.

SECRETARY CHASE: In response to the inquiry from Mr. Yeager, there are today on file for introduction several proposals, 2 or 3 of which are by 2 or 3 delegates acting together and one in which there are 5 joined together for introduction.

Messrs. Binkowski, Stopczynski, Perlich, Pellow and Wilkowski introduce Delegate Proposal 1064, A proposal allowing operation of lotteries if conducted by charitable or fraternal organizations. Amends article V, section 33.

PRESIDENT NISBET: It will be referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Faxon introduces

Delegate Proposal 1065, A proposal to increase the size of the state board of education and to change time of elections. Amends article XI, section 6.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Faxon also introduces

Delegate Proposal 1066, A proposal relating to the selection of the superintendent of public instruction. Amends article XI, section 6.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Erickson introduces

Delegate Proposal 1067, A proposal to divide state into 8 territorial districts for nonpartisan election of certain state officials.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Allen, G. E. Brown and Stamm introduce Delegate Proposal 1068, A proposal to establish a separate governing board for Western Michigan University. Amends article XI, section 6, and adds a new section.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Anspach, Leibrand and Spitler introduce

Delegate Proposal 1069, A proposal to establish a separate governing board for Central Michigan University. Amends article XI, section 6, and adds a new section.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. L. W. Richards and Pellow introduce

Delegate Proposal 1070, A proposal to establish a separate governing board for Northern Michigan College. Amends article XI, section 6, and adds a new section.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Lawrence introduces

Delegate Proposal 1071, A proposal to establish a separate governing board for Eastern Michigan University. Amends article XI, section 6, and adds a new section.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Madar and Youngblood introduce

Delegate Proposal 1072, A proposal to provide employment protection for public employees. Amends article V, section 29.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Perras introduces

Delegate Proposal 1073, A proposal providing that no state income tax shall be levied without a favorable vote at a general referendum. Amends article X by adding a new section.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Wood introduces

Delegate Proposal 1074, A proposal that no representative district shall have more than one representative. Amends article V, section 3.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative organization.

SECRETARY CHASE: That's all the proposals for introduction today, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. President, I rise to a question of privilege of the convention.

I received a letter in the mail yesterday. It happens to be the first of its kind and that's why I rise at this moment to make a comment.

It came from the attorney general of the state and related to a matter of internal business of the executive branch and ended up with some prejudicial information in the letter.

I just want to say that I consider this letter to be very prejudicial to our fair discussion of the question in hand and an example — whether it was intended this way or not I shall not say — of official influence or pressure on our deliberations.

Regardless of the subject or the form of the letter, to both of which I could take exception, I should like to say that I don't want any kind of pressure, official or unofficial, to affect our decisions. If every state official or employee should follow the lead of the attorney general, we not only would be flooded, but we would be given only prejudicial and self serving information.

If we want any information, we can ask for it. If any state official is so anxious to communicate with the convention, let him submit a formal and proper communication to the president, under our rules, and under the regular order of business it will be presented in order to this body. To drop the letter in each delegate's box, not even using a postage stamp, (laughter) also abuses our box privileges.

If this form of self serving, prejudicial, official pressure continues, I shall ask the convention to take appropriate action by a special rule. We already have one for nonofficial personnel.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, I assume that the attorney general would not attempt to pressure any delegate and I also assume that the delegate who just spoke could not conceivably be pressured by anybody, official or unofficial.

I, for one, welcome communications of all sorts. Those that are anonymous get filed in the wastebasket; others receive the attention that I think they warrant.

I think our concept of freedom of speech and press permits anybody to make the communication and I assume that all the delegates are mature enough to give to the communications the merit they deserve. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Dehnke.

MR. DEHNKE: I just want to take a moment to express my agreement with what Mr. Downs has just said. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on the calendar, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that order.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Faxon and Heideman offer

Resolution 17, A resolution relating to the televising of our proceedings.

Following is the body of Resolution 17, as offered:

Resolved, That this convention take immediate steps to procure the services of the state university television staffs and their facilities for purposes of televising these proceedings.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Norris offers

Resolution 18, A resolution for the compilation of all suggestions and recommendations that are statutory in character for forwarding to the legislature.

Following is the body of Resolution 18, as offered:

Whereas, In the process of presenting and evaluating proposals, many suggestions and recommendations emerge as statutory and discretionary matter for the legislature rather than as constitutional in nature; and

Whereas, Such suggestions and recommendations may have merit for statutory enactment; and

Whereas, It would be helpful if it be known to the public that even if many suggestions are regarded by the convention as statutory and not constitutional, such suggestions could nevertheless be consolidated and forwarded to the legislature; now therefore be it

Resolved, That suggestions and recommendations that are regarded by the committees and the convention as being statutory rather than constitutional in character be compiled and organized in a formal fashion as the convention proceeds for forwarding to the legislature upon conclusion of the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: That's all of the resolutions on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no special orders.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. McAllister.

MR. McALLISTER: Mr. Chairman, a murder trial which I am defending has been set for October 24. My client is in jail and I don't want to be a party with him in the jail. So I have to be absent next week, if it's agreeable with the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, you will be excused.

General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The president appoints, pursuant to the provisions of rule 7, the following press credentials committee: Messrs. Carl Rudow, William Kulsea, Willard Baird, Eugene Schroeder and Rob Downey.

[There being no objection, the appointments were considered approved]

There have been filed with the secretary the following requests for leaves of absence:

Messrs. Dehnke, Durst, Prettie and Snyder ask for leave of absence from the session of Monday next; and Miss Hart and Mr. Buback ask for leave of absence from the sessions of Monday and Tuesday of next week.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be granted. There is no objection; they are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: We have the following notices of committee meetings:

The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections will meet in room F next Tuesday, the 24th, at 10:30 a.m. James K. Pollock, chairman.

The committee on administration will meet in room G next Monday, October 23, at 6:30 p.m. Walter DeVries, chairman.

The meeting of the committee on finance and taxation which was scheduled for 9:00 o'clock tomorrow morning is cancelled and instead the committee will meet in room E, Tuesday morning from 10:30 to 12:30. D. Hale Brake, chairman.

May the secretary request that those members who have not yet turned in the material on the blank where we ask for the delegate, his occupation and home post office, etc., please do that before you leave today, so that we may get the orders for your stationery and the material for the handbook ready over the weekend.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Are there any other announcements?

Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, there has been a little confusion on when these committees will be able to meet. A meeting of the committee on executive branch will be held Tuesday morning, the 24th, in room C at 10:30 a.m.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Are there any further announcements?

This completes our business for the day. What is the pleasure of the convention?

Mr. Lundgren.

MR. LUNDGREN: I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: All in favor say aye. Opposed, no. The convention is adjourned until 8:00 o'clock Monday night.

[Whereupon, and in pursuance of the order previously made, at 2:20 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 8:00 o'clock p.m., Monday, October 23, 1961.]

ELEVENTH DAY

Monday, October 23, 1961, 8:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

The invocation this evening will be given by one of our own delegates, Mrs. Ruth Butler of Houghton.

MRS. BUTLER: Mr. President and members of the convention, 54 years ago yesterday, October 22, 1907, the previous constitutional convention convened in the state capitol. Time has shown that their work was completed in a most excellent manner. It is fitting that tonight we recognize the fruits of their thoughts and labor.

This evening let us bow our heads in prayer and offer the same prayer given by the Reverend Frank G. Ward of the Plymouth Congregational Church of Lansing, that opened the 1907 convention.

Let us pray. The wise man did build his house upon a rock, and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house and it fell not, for it was founded upon a rock.

O, God, our heavenly Father, we pray Thee as we are called together here again to construct the foundations of our commonwealth, and to widen and strengthen its bulwarks, we may have something of the prophet's vision which shall enable us to foresee and interpret the trend of men's thoughts, and may we have that wisdom which is not selfish or superficial, and which is not provincial, but works for the building up of society upon those foundations which are strong and permanent, and which give opportunity for progress. We ask it in the faith of Jesus Christ. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mrs. Butler.

The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All those present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine. You may now return your voting switch to the neutral position.

Mr. President, 129 delegates are present, which is a quorum.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

Messrs. Allen and Norris request that they be excused from tonight's session and from the sessions of October 30, November 6 and 13, 1961.

Mr. Kirk requests that he be excused from the sessions of tonight and tomorrow.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Miss Hart, Messrs. Allen, Durst, Kirk, McAllister, Norris and Prettie.

Absent without leave: Messrs. Bledsoe, Gadola, Lundgren and Suzore.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the delegates are excused.

Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, recommends to the convention the following permanent committee room assignments:

Room A: Committee on local government
Room B: Committee on judicial branch
Room C: Committee on executive branch
Room D: Committee on legislative organization
Room E: Committee on finance and taxation
Room F: Committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections
Room G: Committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule
Room H: Committee on legislative powers
Room I: Committee on style and drafting
Committee on rules and resolutions
Room J: Committee on public information
Committee on administration
Room K: Committee on education.

Committee rooms A through G are located on the lower level. Committee rooms H and I are located on the third floor of the office wing of the civic center. Tentatively, committee room J is on the third floor of the office wing of the civic center and K is on the second floor. All of the tentative room assignments will be made permanent by the time of tomorrow's meeting.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, those assignments will be approved.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Rooms H, I, J and K will be ready for occupancy at 9:00 a.m. Wednesday morning, with the necessary desks, typewriters, tables and chairs.

We are now awaiting a decision by the city council in regard to room J, which is on the third floor and room K on the second floor.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, recommends the following persons to the president for consideration as staff members of the constitutional convention:

Press room manager, Mr. Hub George

Secretary to Vice Presidents Hutchinson and Romney, Mrs. Kathleen Fowler

Committee clerk to the committee on education, Mrs. Shirley Quinn

Secretary to the codirectors of research, Miss Ruegene Luedtke

Research assistants, Miss Jane Denison and Miss Sarah Luedders.

Walter DeVries, Chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the committee recommendations are concurred in.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the rest of the recommendations will be in tomorrow afternoon for the session.

SECRETARY CHASE: The president appoints, pursuant to authorization by the convention, and with the approval of the committee on administration, the aforenamed persons to the respective positions indicated.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be approved. Hearing none, they are approved.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all the standing committee reports, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Faxon, Tweedie, Wood and Lesinski offer

Resolution 19, A resolution relative to inclusion of delegates' names in the Michigan Manual.

Following is the body of Resolution 19, as offered:

Whereas, The Michigan Manual is the official publication of the state of Michigan; and

Whereas, The publication of this manual is to go to press on December 1, 1961; now therefore be it

Resolved, That this convention appropriate the necessary funds to include the names of the delegates to the constitutional convention in the Michigan Manual.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Haskill, Perras, Walker and Lesinski offer

Resolution 20, A resolution to change the name of "veterans' section" of the civic center to "constitution hall".

Following is the body of Resolution 20, as offered:

Whereas, The south east corner of the Lansing civic center is designated as "veterans' section"; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the name be changed to read "constitution hall" for the duration of our deliberations here.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, those are all of the resolutions presently on file.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I move that the convention do now resolve itself into committee of the whole for the further consideration of Committee Proposal 1.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Bentley's motion. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Will Mr. Brake please take the Chair.

[Whereupon, Mr. Brake assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: The committee will be in order. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Committee Proposal 1, A proposal pertaining to the inclusion of section 1 of article XI in the constitution.

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

Sec. a. Religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Are there any amendments to the body of the proposal?

Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, I would like to speak briefly on this particular proposal, the first substantive proposal, I believe, to come before this convention.

As the secretary has read, the committee on education has recommended — and I might add that the recommendation was unanimous — that the present article XI, section 1 of our state constitution be retained verbatim.

Mr. Chairman, this particular section has indeed a very historic background. It is not my intention to take the convention this evening through a lesson in history. There may be other delegates who may wish to speak in more detail on this particular subject, but I am sure that many, if not all, of our delegates realize that this identical language was first contained in the northwest ordinance which passed the congress, the congress then formed under the articles of confederation, on July 13, 1787, by a vote I might add, of 17 to 1. In other words, this language dates back before the federal constitution, before the formation of our present federal government, really. It goes back to the earliest possible reported history insofar as this part of our country, the great northwest territory, is concerned.

Following its adoption in the northwest ordinance, the Constitutional Conventions of 1835 and 1850 made no reference to this particular subject. But in the last Constitutional Convention, that of 1907-08, it was inserted in the constitution, the document which, of course, we now have under consideration.

There was some discussion following the committee report a few days ago that this item was relatively noncontroversial. Mr. Chairman, I hope very much that it will be noncontroversial so far as this particular committee and the convention itself is concerned.

The committee on education passed it and reported it believing that it would not be controversial and hoping that it would be adopted by an overwhelming vote because not only of the historic significance of the language but because of the importance which, I am sure, the entire convention attaches to the subject of the development of education in our state of Michigan.

I think it would only be fair to remind the delegates, those who have not had the opportunity to do research in the proceedings of the last constitutional convention, that at that time there was some controversy, not — I might add and emphasize — with respect to any particular portion of the language, but rather as to the merit and the wisdom of its inclusion or not. The question was voted on on various occasions, upon the occasion of the first reference back from the committee on arrangement and phraseology and again upon the second reference from that committee and, although the vote particularly on the second occasion was somewhat divided, nevertheless it was adopted by a very substantial majority indeed.

Now without going further into the merits of this particular provision of the constitution, which I think is self explanatory, I might say that it is the sincere and earnest hope of the committee on education that this language will be accepted in toto. Any change or attempted change in the language would, I think, invalidate the entire sense of the article.

We hope very much that these words:

Religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged will be adopted to take their appropriate place in our new constitution of the state of Michigan.

I remind the committee again that these are indeed historic words in the history of our great state. I am sure many of you have seen them emblazoned on the front of Angel hall at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. They have been a part of our very first historic document. I think the action of the 1907-08 Convention in including them was worthy and justifiable. The people of Michigan are familiar with these words. I believe they are proud of these words and I believe that this is one part of our present constitution which we should keep and give a note of familiarity to the people when they come to vote on the document next year.

I sincerely hope that there will be some discussion of this but again I very strongly urge the committee, at the end of the discussion and when it rises, to recommend the favorable passage of this particular phrase — this particular clause — and to send it on its way to the committee on style and drafting.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Are there any amendments to the proposal?

Mr. Faxon.

MR. FAXON: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I have prepared a statement here on this proposal and I wish to give credit to the Detroit public library for securing the necessary materials to bring about this little report.

We are gathered here at an historic moment in the life of this convention and in the course of our history. We are about to consider the first recommendation before this body by one of its standing committees. Such an action deserves our utmost attention and considered deliberation.

The statement we are about to consider is the following from article XI, section 1:

Religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged.

Part of our job at this convention is to write a constitution that is purposeful and meaningful. This statement, on the surface, is one which few could find any objection to. The questions we must constantly keep in mind are, "Is this meaningful? To what extent must we be wedded to its phraseology? Is there a better way of saying it?"

I propose, therefore, that we ought to identify the person or persons responsible for writing these words, examine their meaning, then view the context from which they were drawn, trace the origin of the idea and then intelligently deliberate on the merit of its inclusion in the constitution. I might add that such a methodology might serve as a guide for our future deliberations and a stimulus to our own information. It is, therefore, with these thoughts in mind that I approach the subject under discussion.

It seems to me that the best way to answer these questions is to trace this statement back to its original authors. Most of us are aware of the fact that this statement appears as the first sentence of article III of the Northwest Ordinance of 1787 and was adopted by the U. S. congress on July 13, 1787.

At the time of its passage by a unanimous vote of the 8 states present it brought little note and comment from the press of the day. According to Walter C. Haight in his work on the Ordinance of 1787,

> It seems to have been regarded much of the time as simply a preliminary measure to a sale of lands . . . . and the New York newspapers issued the week that the ordinance became law contained no notice of its passage.

And so what is considered today as one of the truly great documents in our history slipped onto the stage of time not with a cry but a whisper. Indeed, Daniel Webster was to say some 40 years later of this same document:

> We are accustomed to praise the law givers of antiquity, we help to perpetuate the fame of Solon and Lycurgus, but I doubt whether one single law of any law giver, ancient or modern has produced effects of more distinct, marked, and lasting character than the Ordinance of 1787.

And so with the passage of time, the fame of the ordinance grew and its provisions became an integral part of many a constitution. For the purpose of the act was aptly put in its own section 13 > for extending the fundamental principles of civil and religious liberty, which forms the basis whereon these republics, their laws and constitutions are erected.

Yet, we are here concerned only with that sentence dealing with education and therefore we must transport ourselves back to that hot summer of 1787 when our founding fathers were diligently applying their skills to our present federal constitution and a small group of men remained in the capital at New York City to maintain the then functioning government under the articles of confederation. It was from this group of 18 men that a smaller committee worked on the draft of what was to be the Ordinance of 1787. The most prominent figure in this endeavor was Nathan Dane, a representative of the commonwealth of Massachusetts and the scribe for the committee.

They say that behind every legislator is someone desiring some legislation. Such a person was seen in the figure of Dr. Menasseh Cutler, who according to W. P. Cutler's work on the ordinance of 1787 from the Ohio archeological and historical publications, had reached New York on July 5, 1787, and finding a quorum of congress present, set about his work immediately. As a director of the Ohio company, Cutler's chief concern was providing for some suitable settlement of the western lands question so that the sale of lands would commence as soon as the settlers began to move in. Dr. Cutler's background had been a long association with the New England clergy and as such, he was a firm believer in the principles of human rights, of personal liberty, of the necessity of obedience to law as being the foundations upon which a republic can stand. As a supporter of these principles, these puritan clergy organized and maintained a system of popular education extending from common school to institutions of highest culture.

Dr. Cutler's cultivating of the various congressmen present soon brought results in the formation of a committee which he helped to select and in a document which he probably helped to write. According to Harlow Lindley, Norris Schneider and Milo Quaife in their History of the Ordinance of 1787,

> Cutler made suggestions and proposed amendments so that on July 10th he left for Philadelphia to look in on the constitutional convention.

Actually it can't be proven for certain whether it was either Nathan Dane or Menassah Cutler who actually wrote that little statement on education, since both have claimed this fame. The original report from the committee had this language:

> Institutions for the promotion of religion, morality, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged, and all persons, while young, shall be taught some useful occupation.

What is even more significant, however, is the fact that both of the gentlemen emanated from Massachusetts, where the following article appeared in the Massachusetts Constitution of 1780:

> Wisdom and knowledge, as well as virtue, diffused generally among the body of the people, being necessary for the preservation of their rights and liberties; and as these depend on spreading the opportunities and advantages of education in the various parts of the country, and among the different orders of the people, it shall be the duty of legislatures and magistrates, in all future periods of this commonwealth, to cherish the interests of literature and the sciences, and all seminaries of them; especially the university at Cambridge, public schools and grammar schools in the towns; to encourage private societies and public institutions, rewards and immunities, for the promotion of agriculture, arts, sciences, commerce, trades, manufactures, and a natural history of the country; to countenance and inculcate the principles of humanity and general benevolence, public and private charity, industry and frugality, honesty and punctuality in their dealings; sincerity, good humor, and all social affections, and generous sentiments, among the people.

A careful analysis will reveal that the statement in article XI, section 1, which we are now considering, is a derivation from this lengthier provision in the Massachusetts constitution.

This comment is verified by a letter written by Nathan Dane concerning the ordinance, to be found in the Proceedings of the Indiana Historical Society in 1897, in which he states that this passage was taken from the code of Massachusetts and has thus > created for her [Massachusetts] an extensive and lasting influence in the west and of the most republican, liberal and beneficial kind.

Now that we have the statement traced back to its previous source, it becomes necessary to go back still another step. Permit me to briefly call to your attention one of those basic documents of freedom and liberty that ranks next to the magna charta in significance and effect. The declaration of rights issued in 1689 following that most glorious revolution of 1688 is a document basic to everything we call American today. In section 3 there occurs the following passage:

> As the happiness of a people and the good order and preservation of civil government essentially depend upon piety, religion, and morality, and as these cannot be generally diffused through a community but by the institution of the public worship of God, and in public instructions in piety, religion, and morality: therefore, to promote their happiness and to secure the good order and preservation of this government, etc., followed later by

> Wisdom and knowledge, as well as virtue, diffused generally among the body of the people, being necessary for the preservation of their rights and liberties; and as these depend on spreading the opportunities and advantages of education in the various parts of the country, and among the different orders of the people, it shall be the duty of legislatures and magistrates in all future periods of this commonwealth, to cherish the interests of literature and the sciences, and all seminaries of them.

It is therefore within this great historic tradition that we consider this section today. It is with the realization that our basic liberties and our very foundations are rooted in an educated society as was foretold by our forefathers hundreds of years ago. It is fitting and proper that the purpose of education be the first item submitted for your consideration. There is no doubt that it has been one of the first items of government since we have known that institution on these soils. For us, the people of Michigan, the Ordinance of 1787 was our first and most basic constitution. And its proper concern with religious freedom, the bill of rights and education is a living testimony to the wisdom of its writers.

I find myself in complete agreement with Milo M. Quaife, a name familiar to many of us, as he viewed this education provision in the Ordinance of 1787. At that time — and I quote —

> Education found precious little encouragement over the face of the globe. Today America is dedicated to the ideal of universal education and nowhere is more liberal encouragement extended to schools and the means of education than in the five states of the old northwest.

This concludes my report, Mr. Chairman, and this is the amount of evidence that I was able to uncover in the last couple of days in regard to the origins of this statement.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Are there any amendments?

Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: I have one or 2 questions to ask in regard to this proposal. First, I would like to compliment Chairman Bentley and his committee on education for diligence in presenting the first committee proposal to this convention. Also, I believe most of us are grateful for the effort of the committee in presenting the proposal to provide a philosophical link between the objectives of our founding fathers and those of our convention.

I think it goes without saying that most of us, like the early framers of constitutions, favor religion, morality and knowledge, and acknowledge their importance to good government and the happiness of mankind. However, before we are asked to take a vote on this proposal, it seems appropriate to ask Chairman Bentley for clarification of the record of this convention, whether his committee has given due deliberation to these questions that may arise with respect to the language of the proposal. If the committee has not carefully considered these questions and studied the content of its own report, I would then ask that the proposal be referred back to the committee for further deliberation. Here are the questions:

Is the language of the proposal likely to be interpreted by readers as a directive and therefore suggests that religion may form a part of public school programs? Secondly, are the implications in the proposal apt to be construed as contradictory to the mandate of article II, section 3, that public funds not be spent for religious education? And thirdly, is the language of the proposal germane to article XI, the article on education?

Mr. Chairman, it is not my intention to provoke a floor debate on substance and intent of this proposal. It expresses a sacred principle traceable to an era precedent to the founding of this nation. I merely ask these questions to be sure that the language of the proposal has been carefully deliberated by the committee.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, in the first place I would like to express my thanks and the thanks of the committee to Mr. Austin for the very fine words about the diligence and the research that has been done by the committee on this particular proposal.

In answer to his 3 questions, as I recall them, in the first place I feel sure that no one on the committee on education has any idea that the present wording of article XI, section 1, would in any way imply or hint anything to do with the question of teaching religion in the schools. My interpretation, Mr. Austin, of this particular section is that the phrase beginning ". . . schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged" refers only to the word "knowledge". In other words, knowledge is one of the 3 principles, or virtues — whichever way you want to put them — that are necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind. Therefore, since knowledge is included, "schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged".

I think the same answer then could be applied, sir, to your second question: is there anything that might be taken as being in conflict with article II, section 3, contained in the declaration of rights. And of course, with the heading "freedom of worship; disabilities", I suppose the particular part of article II, section 3 to which you are referring states that

> No money shall be appropriated or drawn from the treasury for the benefit of any religious sect or society, theological or religious seminary; nor shall property belonging to the state be appropriated for any such purpose.

Knowing something of the background of the framers of the northwest ordinance, knowing perhaps a little bit more about the background of the framers of our present state constitution and having read with care every word contained in the 2 volumes of the proceedings of that convention — although the provisions with respect to the northwest ordinance are not so set forth — but having read with care every word contained in these proceedings, I find nowhere among all of those learned gentlemen of that time any hint as to the possibility that such an interpretation as your question might suggest could possibly be placed on this particular article.

Now, the third question was: is this germane to the whole question of education? I certainly believe it is because — and I want the committee to bear this in mind — not only was the northwest ordinance historic in establishing the great territory which later became divided into, I believe, 5 separate states, but also the northwest ordinance contained another provision which has formed the background of education and the need of educational financing in the state, and that was the provision that the sixteenth section of every township should be set aside for purposes of education. That proposal, which was truly unique for that time, has come all the way down through the years to us, all the various legislation, statutes, etc. with regard to the question of public support of our schools. So I would certainly say, sir, in reply to your third question that I consider this article most germane and most appropriate to a discussion of education, to the article on education, and to the question of education as a whole.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. Chairman, I rise to speak to the proposal and as I have prepared a somewhat lengthy statement in this connection, I respectfully request that I be permitted to approach the secretary's desk for this purpose.

[The request being granted, Mr. Nord spoke from the Secretary's desk.]

Mr. Chairman and delegates, in rising to speak to such an innocuous appearing and apparently uncontroversial proposal as the one presently before us, I realize that I take the risk of appearing to be wasting your time and to be acting eccentrically and conspicuously, as if I insisted on wearing a beret or swinging a dead cat. I realize further that the statement I am about to make will win me no popularity, no friends, no merit badges, no thanks, and is likely only to have quite the reverse effects. Nevertheless, I wish you to know that I speak at this time as a matter of principle because certain basic principles are at stake.

One, I seek to establish a precedent for this convention, that no provision be incorporated in the constitution without firstly a careful study of the constitutional and judicial history pertaining thereto — so that we can see whether it is necessary or useful to adopt it — without secondly, a further consideration of what reasons there might be why it would be inadvisable to adopt it, and without thirdly, a final conclusion based on a weighing of the aforementioned considerations.

Two, I have personally conducted such an analysis over the past weekend following the introduction of the present proposal and as a result it appears to me that the present proposal (a) serves no useful purpose (b) is violative of procedural principles and (c) conflicts with fundamental substantive principles.

I now proceed to develop these several points. Before doing so, however, I respectfully urge the press and others to exercise care not to misquote me in this connection, as the customary rules of legal immunity are not applicable to this convention. In order to make certain that my remarks are not misquoted or misunderstood by anyone, I have prepared them in the form of a written statement, and I shall make no departure whatever from this written text.

First I should like to discuss the constitutional history of the proposal. As indicated by the chairman of the committee on education, this section appears verbatim in the present Michigan constitution and its source is the Northwest Ordinance of 1787. These exact words, in fact, appear in the northwest ordinance in article III of the articles of compact. As pointed out by the citizens research council of Michigan in its manual, A Comparative Analysis of the Michigan Constitution, the provision was deleted from the 1835 and 1850 Michigan Constitutions and was subsequently incorporated within the 1908 Constitution. However, this is by no means the whole story with regard to the constitutional history of this article. We need to understand why it was in the Northwest Ordinance of 1787, what happened to it in the 1835 and 1850 Michigan Constitutions and why it was inserted in the 1908 Constitution.

We first need to understand that the northwest ordinance was never adopted as such by the people of Michigan; it was a statute adopted by the confederate congress, acting for the then existing states, for the government of this territory. As a part of this statute, section 14 provided as follows:

> That the following articles shall be considered as articles of compact between the original states, and the people and states in the said territory, and forever remain unalterable, unless by common consent, to wit: . . .

Following this there were 6 such articles of compact, each of which was to be of an enduring nature. These were the following: Article I provided that the broadest possible degree of religious freedom should forever be maintained.

Article II provided for a permanent bill of rights.

Article III contained the language of the present proposal regarding the fostering of education. It also provided that the lands, property, rights and liberty of Indians should never be invaded or disturbed, but that laws, founded in justice and humanity, should be made for preventing wrongs being done them.

Article IV provided that the territory and states formed from it should always be a part of the United States.

Article V provided for the admission of states formed from the territory, provided > the constitution and government so to be formed shall be republican, and in conformity to the principles contained in these articles.

Finally, article VI forever prohibited slavery from the territory. Each of these embodied a noble concept; each was meant to be put into practical operation; and each was meant to remain inviolate forever, unless there was common consent by the people of the United States and the people of each of the states to be formed from the territory.

In view of the fact that these noble principles, including the one embodied in the present proposal, were then declared to be of an enduring and binding nature on us, I believe it can be readily understood that the delegates to the 1908 Michigan Convention might have felt a moral obligation to insert these words into our constitution. In fact I believe an interesting argument can be made that, whether we like it or not, there is a legal obligation to maintain inviolate each of the 6 principles of the articles of compact, except to the extent that the law of the United States now provides otherwise. The basis of this argument is as follows:

One, the condition of the grant of territory from the original states to the people of the northwest territory was that these principles remain inviolate forever, except insofar as changed by subsequent consent;

Two, these conditions are binding on the present inhabitants of the territory — except to the extent subsequently changed by common consent — either as a real covenant attaching to the territory as land, or as an agreement in the form of a treaty — somewhat akin to the treaties between the United States and unorganized groups of people like the indians;

Three, when the 1835 Constitution of Michigan was offered to congress, along with the Michigan Ordinance of July 25, 1836, and the document entitled Assent of the State of Michigan, of December 15, 1836, and Michigan was formally admitted to the union, these documents covered all the conditions embodied in the articles of compact and the northwest ordinance generally, and superseded them in legal effect; this was common consent to alter the articles of compact;

Four, however, this consent of the United States to alter the articles of compact presumably would not have extended to an outright license for the state of Michigan to amend its constitution to rid itself of any or all of the obligations covered in the articles of compact and the 1835 Michigan Constitution.

For example, it is inconceivable that the state of Michigan, in 1838, could legally have amended its constitution so as to allow slavery to be introduced into the state, even though slavery was lawful at that time under the United States constitution. We were in other words still bound to observe the principles embodied in the articles of compact in the modified form found in the 1835 Constitution and the other documents mentioned above relating to the admission of Michigan to the union.

Therefore, in my opinion, we are still bound — certainly morally and perhaps legally — to observe all the principles of the articles of compact, except to the extent that they have been changed by common consent, that is, one, by the adoption of the 1835 Michigan Constitution; 2, by the agreement between the United States and the people in the documents relative to the admission of Michigan into the union; and 3, by subsequent changes in the federal law which may affect these principles.

Now let us examine whether we are or to what extent we are still bound, whether legally or morally, by the educational provision of the articles of compact which forms the present committee proposal. If we turn to the articles of compact, we find that article III contains 2 apparently unrelated subjects: encouragement of education and protection of the lands and rights of indians. Presumably there must have been some connection intended between these 2 concepts, although what that connection may be is not at first apparent. We can get a better idea of this relation by observing what followed in the subsequent constitutional history of Michigan.

In 1835, the people of the territory of Michigan promulgated their constitution. This document contained an article X, on the subject of education, which presumably was intended to satisfy the principle of encouraging education as expressed in the articles of compact. In addition to providing for a superintendent of public instruction, for a state school system and for libraries, it also provided for perpetual funds for the support of schools and a state university, said funds to be provided from lands to be granted by the United States to the state of Michigan for the support of state schools and a state university. Furthermore, the 1835 Constitution was not silent but contained explicit language relating to the encouragement of education. Thus, in article VIII, section 2, it was provided that:

> The legislature shall encourage, by all suitable means, the promotion of intellectual, scientifical [sic] and agricultural improvement.

The rest of this section provided for the use of lands to support state schools. Thus, the precise language of the articles of compact relative to the encouragement of education was modified by deleting the term religion, by making it more specific and practical action was taken to implement the concept of state schools by the reservation of lands as a perpetual fund for the support of the schools.

On June 23, 1836, the congress of the United States provided for the admission of Michigan into the union, under the 1835 Constitution, provided that 5 additional conditions were met. The first 2 of these related to the grant of certain specific lands by the United States to the state of Michigan for the support of state schools and a state university. These proposals were formally accepted by the state of Michigan in the statutes of July 25, 1836, and December 15, 1836. Then, in an early Michigan supreme court case, Ballou v. O'Brien, 20 Mich. 304, it was pointed out that the words employed in the proposal of the United States relating to school lands, in the act of congress for the admission of the state of Michigan into the union, indicated that the grant by the United States of such lands was subject to any prior rights of the indians in such lands, under treaties with them.

Taking these various facts together, we can see that the reason that the encouragement of education and the protection of the indians were placed in the same paragraph in the articles of compact of the northwest ordinance was that some very specific action was intended as a condition for admission of Michigan into the union as a state, namely, the reservation of certain lands as a perpetual fund to insure that the state would always support a public school system. In other words, the language:

> Religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged was not intended to be a mere noble sentiment, but rather was meant as an absolute requirement that the state set up and maintain permanently a public school system, rather than relying solely on the system of private religious education which prevailed in 1787 in most parts of the United States. This was in fact accomplished by the 1835 Constitution, and it has been maintained ever since.

Thus, the language of the northwest ordinance relative to the encouragement of education was in fact superseded by common consent, by the language of the 1835 Constitution, which provided broadly for the encouragement of intellectual, scientific, and agricultural improvement, and specifically for the financial means of carrying out this mandate.

Thus, it is concluded that while the principles of the articles of compact of the northwest ordinance do in general bind us morally and perhaps even legally, except insofar as they have been modified by common consent, this is not so with regard to education. In this respect the starting point of our law and moral obligations is the 1835 Constitution and its practical provisions for education.

It will be noted that this view is in accordance with the language of the 1850 Constitution. Article XIII, section 2, of the 1850 Constitution omitted the general language relating to the encouragement of education, retaining only the practical provisions relating to the school fund.

The report of the committee on education of the 1850 Constitutional Convention — which will be found in Document 2 of the 1850 Convention Journal — doesn't even mention the fact that the broad language of encouragement of education was being dropped since it was obvious that the principles had already been put into practice. There was no need to say what we were getting ready to do, as we were already doing it.

Until the 1907 Constitutional Convention, this language of the northwest ordinance relative to education had been preserved only as an item of historical interest but as having no current effect. When the 1907 Constitutional Convention inserted this language into our constitution, it was evidently done on the mistaken assumption that this language was a mere noble sentiment rather than a pledge of future concrete action which had already become past action by 1836.

The entire constitutional history of Michigan thus shows that there was no moral or legal obligation to have adopted this language in the 1908 Constitution, that its meaning was not clearly understood when it was inserted in the 1908 Constitution and that the effort to reinsert it again is based on this same misapprehension of the constitutional history of Michigan.

Let us, however, examine the possible value of including such a provision in the constitution, regardless of the fact that it may not be historically necessary for us to keep it. Looking at its language from the viewpoint of today, rather than from the past, the questions arise, what does it mean today? What does it do? What is its present effect?

At first reading the language is so innocuous as to appear, at least to modern minds unconcerned with constitutional history, to be of no effect whatever. It does not purport to set up any branch of government. It does not purport to provide financial support for state schools. It does not create or modify any law. In other words it appears to be entirely an expression of a noble sentiment with which no one disagrees — namely that we wish to encourage education. If this is the actual purpose of retaining this provision in the constitution, I submit that it is not a valid reason for doing so. I understand that many, if not all of us, are opposed to retaining language in the constitution which is not necessary for its proper operation, — which is not functional in other words. We want a constitution in which every word does something — does something which cannot be better done elsewhere. If this is so, I submit that the present proposal fails on this ground.

I have compared this section with every other section in the present constitution and find that it is the only section which has no apparent functional effect whatever.

I have also studied every judicial case cited in the Michigan Statutes Annotated as having a bearing on this provision of our constitution. There are 11 such cases. Inspection of these cases indicates, however, that this section of the constitution was actually mentioned in only 5 of the 11 cases and that in none of these cases did it determine or affect the result. Not only was it thus found that this provision had not been determinative of any judicial decisions over a 53 year period but it was also found that the intention of the state to encourage education has always been held to be present, regardless of whether such a provision was present or absent in the constitution. For example, in the case of Michigan Female Seminary v. Secretary of State, 115 Mich. 118, the Michigan Supreme Court said:

> It has always been the policy of this state, as indicated by the provisions of its constitution and a long line of legislative enactments, to encourage the cause of education.

The interesting factor in this case is that it was decided in 1897 when there was no express provision whatever in the Michigan constitution purporting to encourage education. Similarly, the cases of Dennis v. Wrigley, 175 Mich. 621, Attorney General v. Connolly, 193 Mich. 499, and in re School District 6, 284 Mich. 132, also indicate that this policy is settled in Michigan, despite the fact that it has been out of the constitution almost as long as it has been in the constitution.

The only judicial decisions I have been able to find which even appear to be based on the present article XI, section 1, are the following 2 cases: One of these is entitled Roman Catholic Archbishop of Detroit v. Village of Orchard Lake, 333 Mich. 389, in which it was held that there was no presumption of validity of an ordinance which in effect precluded the erection of a church and school anywhere in the village. While article XI, section 1, was cited by the court in this connection, the actual holding was that the ordinance was void on its face as unreasonable. Thus, the application of article XI, section 1, was mere dictum. The other case is Daskiewicz v. Detroit Board of Education, 301 Mich. 212, which held that the board of education of the city of Detroit had governmental immunity in a negligence case because public education is a governmental activity. While the decision cites article XI, section 1, in support of its holding that public education is a governmental activity, this is clearly superfluous, since the holding is the same in other states which have no such constitutional provision. Furthermore, the holding of this case has, in any event, been overruled by the recent decision of the Michigan supreme court which abolished the doctrine of immunity from tort liability for governmental actions. Thus, the overall legal effect of article XI, section 1, in Michigan remains nil.

That this is so is also indicated by the fact that, of the 50 states, the overwhelming majority have not found the need to provide broad language of encouragement of education in their constitutions. According to the citizens research council of Michigan, 10 states have constitutional provisions similar to ours in this respect.

An examination of the constitutions of other states demonstrates, however, that this statement is somewhat inaccurate and misleading. Actually, there are at least 12 states which have constitutional provisions containing broad language of encouragement to or promotion of education; namely Michigan, Massachusetts, North Carolina, Rhode Island, Tennessee, West Virginia, Maine, California, Wyoming, Nebraska, Ohio and Indiana. However, only one of these is the same as that of Michigan, namely North Carolina, and only 2 others, Ohio and Nebraska, contain substantially our language including along with other language tending somewhat to separate the religious connotations from the educational functions.

Thus, it is perfectly clear that whatever legal function the present provision may be intended to have, it has in fact not been of any value in Michigan, nor has it or anything similar been found necessary or valuable for incorporation within the constitutions of 46 of the 50 states.

It is interesting further, to compare the constitutional history of each of the 5 states carved out of the northwest territory, since each was originally governed by the same provision of the northwest ordinance with regard to the encouragement of education. In Ohio the provision was incorporated in the 1802 Constitution, article VIII, section 3, in the bill of rights, under the subject of religious freedom. After stating the rule as to religious freedom, the section continues as follows:

> Religion, morality and knowledge, however, being essential to good government, it shall be the duty of the legislature to pass suitable laws to protect every religious denomination in the peaceable enjoyment of its own mode of public worship, and to encourage schools and the means of instruction.

This provision remains in the present 1851 Constitution as article I, section 7. While this provision resembles ours, it is slightly clearer, in that it draws the distinction between religion and education, namely that religion is to be protected and education is to be encouraged. It is also more functional in that legislation is called for.

In Illinois the Constitutions of 1818 and 1848 contained no comparable provision; the Constitution of 1870 provides in article VIII, section 1, as follows:

> The general assembly shall provide a thorough and efficient system of free schools, whereby all children of this state may receive a good common school education.

This provision has the advantage of being straightforward in function and entirely clear.

The Indiana Constitution of 1851, article VIII, section 1, is also clearer and more functional, providing:

> Knowledge and learning, generally diffused throughout a community, being essential to the preservation of a free government; it shall be the duty of the general assembly to encourage, by all suitable means, moral, intellectual, scientific, and agricultural improvement, and to provide, by law, for a general and uniform system of common schools, wherein tuition shall be without charge, and equally open to all.

Finally the Wisconsin Constitution of 1848 provides in article X, section 3, as follows:

> The legislature shall provide by law for the establishment of district schools, which shall be as nearly uniform as practicable; and such schools shall be free and without charge for tuition to all children between the ages of 4 and 20 years; and no sectarian instruction shall be allowed therein.

This provision clearly negatives any possible link between religion and public schools and is entirely functional.

Thus, it will be seen that of the 5 states which derive from the northwest territory and the northwest ordinance, only 2 — Michigan and Ohio — employ words allowing any possible implication that religion and public education are compatible, and only one of these — Michigan — does so in the article on education; 2 — Illinois and Indiana — completely divorce language relating to religion from language relating to public education; and one — Wisconsin — affirmatively states that no sectarian instruction shall be allowed in public schools. Obviously, therefore, no other state deriving from the northwest territory has felt obliged to retain the northwest ordinance language relative to the encouragement of education in its original form or to allow it to be included in the article on education. Further, no state other than Michigan has ever readopted it after it once went without it. In fact, only one other state of the union — North Carolina — has adopted this language in its education article.

Thus, we can readily see that this language is not needed, particularly in the article on education, and that virtually every other state has done well without it. On this basis I can see no reason for including it within our constitution.

There are, however, affirmative reasons why I believe it ought to be omitted from the constitution. I have already pointed out that its original meaning and purpose has been misapprehended of late in Michigan. It was a call for public education. This has now been accomplished. If it is to mean anything — and under the canons of legal construction, it must be construed to mean something — it can only mean what it says or implies, namely that religion is necessary to public education. It is my opinion that this was indeed originally included within its meaning and that the connection between religion and education was taken for granted in 1787, even by such champions of separation of church and state as Thomas Jefferson. This, at least, was the opinion of Justice Reed in the 1948 United States supreme court decision of McCollum v. Board of Education, 92 L. Ed. 649, where he said:

> The "wall of separation between church and state" that Mr. Jefferson built at the university which he founded did not exclude religious education from that school. The difference between the generality of his statements on the separation of church and state and the specificity of his conclusions on education are considerable. A rule of law should not be drawn from a figure of speech.

We know that in 1787 when the northwest ordinance was written, education was largely religious, being confined largely to and for the purpose of reading the Bible. Jefferson's contribution was to separate church from state in providing that education should not be limited to private religious organizations but should be public and that public funds should not be used to support private religious activities. He did not, however, conceive that the teaching of religion should be removed from public schools. Since that time, however, there has been a gradual change of attitude on this subject. Thus, in the 1948 case of McCollum v. Board of Education, the United States supreme court for the first time held that under the fourteenth amendment to the United States constitution, there can be no religious instruction in state supported schools. The rationale given by Justice Frankfurter in that case was as follows:

> Designed to serve as perhaps the most powerful agency for promoting cohesion among a heterogeneous democratic people, the public school must keep scrupulously free from entanglement in the strife of sects.

Thus, it seems to me that the clear implication of the language of article XI, section 1, is that it was intended to mean — among other things — and in any event implies, that religion is necessary or desirable in the public schools. It may be that some delegates will disagree with my interpretation of this sentence, feeling that there is no connection between the first clause relative to religion and the final clause relative to education. If this were so, the entire first clause ought to be stricken as not only functionless in its present context but also as not being germane to article XI, all of which pertains to education. However, I believe that every word in a constitution must be interpreted in some meaningful way and that the implication of the language tends in a direction which is not now desired and which in any event would be illegal under the United States supreme court decision in the McCollum case. That this is not far fetched is indicated by the construction that such provisions have already been given in previous cases. Thus, in the 1872 Ohio case of Cincinnati v. Minor, 23 O.S. 211, the plaintiff claimed that the language of the similar Ohio provision required religious education in the schools; the Ohio supreme court held that religious education was not, however, required by this provision but was merely permitted. This, of course, would now be violative of the construction of the fourteenth amendment to the United States constitution given by the United States supreme court in the McCollum case.

In Michigan, in the case of Roman Catholic Archbishop of Detroit v. Village of Orchard Lake, referred to previously, the Michigan supreme court construed this provision to mean that religious education was to be encouraged in connection with the erection of a religious school even though this was not in itself decisive of the case. Thus, there is no question that there is a tendency to construe this provision in such a way as to operatively relate religion and schools and since the sentence also refers to government, there is certainly an implication that religion ought to be encouraged in schools operated by the government. Such a construction is no longer permissible under the United States constitution and we ought not even to appear to fly in the face of the law of the land. We ought to remove all mention of religion in connection with article XI, which relates entirely to public education, in order to avoid a provision which is either illegal or else which appears to be illegal.

To suggest that the present provision be deleted from the constitution obviously is not to be hostile to religion, morality or education. Insofar as I personally am concerned, for example, I am willing to match my religious background with those of any of the delegates here, in the firm belief that I will not be found in the lower half of the group. I have received a religious education, am a member of a religious congregation, am a leader of an organization of my coreligionists, have given my children a religious education, possess many religious books in my house, have made 2 visits to the Holy Land, teach in a law school in which every class session opens and closes with a prayer and have written articles on religious matters. I have actually spent a continuous period of 40 days and 40 nights in religious study and contemplation in the preparation of an article, which I believe ties the record set by Moses some years ago. (laughter)

I personally believe that certain principles of religion ought to be applied to governmental problems, such as in the area of criminal law, and have a written legal article in the University of Detroit Law Journal in this respect. When it comes to morality, I believe I am the superior of none here but the equal of all and I believe everyone here knows that I am conscientious in all I do.

And insofar as education is concerned, it has been reported that I am the most highly educated person here. I believe that to be a gross misunderstatement. Thus, I personally feel safe that no one can mistakenly believe that my motives for seeking to remove this section from the constitution are based on any antagonism to religion, morality or education. Quite the reverse; I wish each to be fostered but I believe with the supreme court of the United States that this can best be done by secular public education and religious private education.

Obviously, the hallmark of a person's protagonism or antagonism for various principles cannot be determined merely by knowing his views as to whether or not he wishes those principles to form a part of the constitution. If the only way to prove my adherence to my beliefs would be to move to introduce them into the constitution, I would immediately have to submit to this convention a proposal which is the same as the one I made to my wife when I asked her to marry me. I do not believe, however, that it would be proper for me to propose to introduce into the constitution the statement, "I love you, Eleanor", (laughter) even though it is a deeply held conviction. Such convictions are best kept private; they belong in a person's mind or heart or soul or home. They are not fit for public examination.

I would take it amiss if anyone were to propose to debate with me whether I ought to love my wife or whether I ought to adhere to my religious convictions. These are not debatable and are not open to public discussion. They must be kept private. Therefore, let no one think that I am opposed to religion or morality merely because I propose to remove these words from the section of the constitution relating to public education. I do not intend to throw them away; I intend to take them home with me to cherish in private.

Surely no one believes that we oppose every noble sentiment which we see fit to omit from the constitution. Obviously, the 46 states which have no provision resembling ours are not antireligious or immoral; nor is the United States supreme court; nor are we; for failing to include such characteristics in our educational article as are found for example in the Massachusetts constitution, chapter V, section 2, — namely: wisdom, virtue, rights, liberties, literature, sciences, agriculture, arts, commerce, trades, manufactures, natural history, humanity, general benevolence, public and private charity, industry, frugality, honesty, punctuality, sincerity, good humor, social affections and generous sentiments. Not everything belongs in the constitution. And I submit that, noble as is the sentiment which appears in our article XI, section 1, it has no place in our constitution and tends to cause unnecessary confusion and difficulties which nearly every state has seen fit to avoid, including our own state between the years 1835 and 1908.

For the foregoing substantive reasons I believe we ought not to adopt the present proposal, that is, because (1) it serves no useful function, (2) it contains materials not germane to public education, (3) it is likely to be misunderstood and (4) by its plain language and reasonable construction conflicts with the principle of separation of church and state, as embodied in the fourteenth amendment to the United States constitution as interpreted by the United States supreme court.

I am not, however, moving at this time that we decide this issue on the merits. I do not believe the committee on education has laid a sufficient foundation as yet for the delegates to reach a conclusion on this matter. Certainly I do not believe they can be expected to decide simply on the basis of the few days' homework I have been able to do over the weekend. It is rather my belief that this proposal should be sent back to the committee for much more careful and thorough consideration. I would hate to think that we are ready to adopt or or reject any part of the constitution with such a small amount of reflection as has thus far been afforded this subject.

In addition to the foregoing reasons for my urging the delegates to return this proposal to the committee for further study, I also have 2 further procedural reasons for urging the same. In the first place I have this day — jointly with Delegate Austin — introduced a proposal to amend the article in question and I believe it would clearly be a violation of the spirit of fair play in procedure for a committee to urge adoption of its proposal before any other proposals submitted by delegates have been considered. In the second place I object to the introduction of this proposal to the convention in the first place because I know of no rule which provides for the introduction of a proposal not to amend the constitution. So far as I am aware, the proposals provided for by the rules are limited to proposals for amending or revising the constitution, not for refusing to amend it. It may be that we shall ultimately decide to submit an entire constitution to the public for ratification but we have not as yet done so. Therefore, it is premature to submit a proposal to retain in its present form any provision of the constitution without amendment.

Mr. Chairman, for each of the above reasons, both procedural and substantive, I move that this proposal be sent back to the committee on education for further and more thorough consideration.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: The question is on the motion of Dr. Nord, that when the committee rises it recommend that this proposal be sent back to the committee on education. Are there any remarks?

Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman, it may be with a certain degree of temerity that I rise to argue and debate with the learned Dr. Nord inasmuch as during the past weekend I spent more time hunting than I did in the library. However, I do feel that I have been brought up to date. (laughter)

First of all, with regard to the argument as to establishing a precedent here in this convention, I would like to answer Dr. Nord and say that I believe that we should have a good and valid reason for removing or taking out any part of the constitution as well as amending or revising it. We may just as well create a legal conflict by eliminating a part of the constitution as we might by revising or amending it. I do not believe that the affirmative reasons stated for leaving it out are valid in that, with regard to the illegality or apparent illegality there is any merit in this proposition. I think Dr. Nord referred to the federal constitution as a basis for arguing the separation of church and state. If so, the federal law would control.

Now with regard to the second argument, that it serves no useful purpose, I would like to state most emphatically in support of the committee proposal that I believe sincerely that these words give heart and soul to the document which we are writing. It is my belief that a constitution should be a living spirit of the people of the state of Michigan — the spirit as well as the letter of the law — and I believe that these words should be retained for that reason.

Now with regard to the argument that the words conflict with substance of law and principle, Dr. Nord stated that he had examined 11 cases decided by the Michigan supreme court, 5 of which commented upon these words. He stated that in none of these cases did this particular provision decide the case. Wherein then, I ask, arises any conflict with substantive law when since 1908, apparently these words have stood and been an inspiration to the people of the state of Michigan and have led to no conflict as far as I can see with any substantive law in any court in this land? And for that reason I feel that the committee proposal should be adopted.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Any further remarks?

Mr. Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: Mr. Chairman, I think the whole thing can be simplified by the question whether a statement of principles which neither grants nor denies any powers serves some useful purpose, such as a guide to the courts in interpreting constitutional and statutory matters. I would like to hear from the committee chairman on this point.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, if I understood the delegate's question, it was whether the proposed inclusion of this particular article, which neither grants nor withholds any powers insofar as the courts are concerned for the purpose of judicial interpretation of the document, serves any useful purpose. Did I hear the gentleman correctly?

MR. STEVENS: I think not.

MR. BENTLEY: Will you restate the question, please?

MR. STEVENS: The question was whether such a statement, which neither grants nor denies any powers, is nevertheless useful to the courts and possibly the legislature as a guide to the courts in the case of construing other laws, constitutional or statutory.

MR. BENTLEY: I thank the delegate for restating the question and I certainly want to state my personal conviction, that my answer is in the affirmative. I believe, Mr. Chairman, that this section will serve as a guidepost to our courts, to our legislature, to our entire body of state government. In the past 54 years that has been a part of our constitutional document. I certainly hope very, very much that this present convention will see fit to continue this guidepost in the great field of education for the future.

I am not going to take the time, Mr. Chairman, to comment upon the very eloquent, very learned speech of Dr. Nord nor of the delegate who spoke earlier, Mr. Faxon. I must remark parenthetically that it should be apparent to the members of the committee that we know at least what 2 of our colleagues were doing over the past weekend. (laughter)

But I will say this: I will, I think, make one remark with respect to his inference that the committee on education did not give this question sufficient consideration before proposing it to the convention as a whole. And I will say: this, I believe, has stood the test of time in the past 54 years and we can go through all the documents of reference and research which we have been furnished. There has been no question and there has been no argument, to the best of my knowledge, as to the interpretation, as to the meaning and as to the significance of article XI, section 1. And acting on that basis and acting on the fact that Michigan has always been a leader in the field of education — and we hope, of course, always will remain a leader in the field of education — they found it wise and proper and fitting 54 years ago to write these historic words — and I claim no legal compulsion on us for doing so — into our document. I would hope very, very much, as I said earlier, that we see fit to indicate our continuation of purpose in this respect.

Now, I warn the committee on parliamentary procedure: if the Nord motion is adopted, this will come back to the committee on education. On the other hand, I propose before the committee rises, to offer a substitute motion to the effect that the committee of the whole report this with a reference that it be referred to the committee on style and drafting. If that committee receives this proposal and reports it back, then, of course, at that time, as I understand the rules, there will be a roll call vote on whether or not the proposal is to be contained in the new constitution. And so I warn the members of the committee again that this matter can be considered at a later date. It was actually considered and debated 3 times in the last convention before it was adopted. But I would hope very much that the motion which has been offered by the delegate, Mr. Nord, will not prevail and that the substitute, which I move at this time, Mr. Chairman, will.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Mr. Bentley, I think that your first statement of procedure was a little in error. If Dr. Nord's motion prevails here, the question of accepting the committee's recommendation will be before the convention for a vote before the matter can go back to your committee. Your motion is not necessary anyway because it goes to the committee on style and drafting automatically in case Dr. Nord's motion does not prevail.

MR. BENTLEY: I thank the chairman for that interpretation.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Dr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. Chairman, I would like to point out that there is pending before the committee on education a proposal — they probably have not yet received it but it was filed today. I mentioned this in my statement. I did not read the proposal. I would like to do so now. I wish to take out that language that refers to education and refer to substitute language that was taken from 2 sources: the model state constitution of the national municipal league and from Brown v. Board of Education, which states there shall be no discrimination in schools. This is the way the text would read in the proposal of Mr. Richard Austin and myself.

> The legislature shall provide for the maintenance and support of free public schools open to all children in the state without discrimination as to race, creed or color, and shall establish, organize and support such other public educational institutions, including public institutions of higher learning, as may be desirable, subject however to all other provisions of this article and the constitution.

Therefore, I want the committee of the whole to realize that what is at stake is not to remove encouragement of education, but to use different language which will not merely state the objective, but would be directing the legislature to do something about it.

The present language, while it was more noble in sentiment, is less practical in operation. The language I am proposing, which I think the committee sees accomplishes the same purpose without eloquence of language, does the thing functionally. It says the legislature shall encourage, whereas the present language doesn't say who shall encourage or how. It states how they shall encourage: by doing certain things. It also states that it shall provide free public schools. Obviously you want that but it doesn't say that in the present constitution. It says it shall be without discrimination as to race, creed or color. That is now a law of the land, which we wish in any event.

I believe there are other statements — perhaps not mine — which would be at the same time noble and practical and would compel somebody to do something.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Dr. Heideman.

MR. HEIDEMAN: Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise to urge the adoption of the proposal of the committee on education in regard to article XI, section 1, as contained in article

III of the Northwest Ordinance of 1787, one of 6 articles of the compact. This ordinance, of course, has centuries of history back of it.

Section 1 of the Constitution of 1908 has not been amended since the present constitution was adopted. It is significantly included in article XI, as section 1, as an historic introduction to the article on education. It is not included in article II, the declaration of rights. That is a confusion of the issues.

The northwest ordinance brought about a new approach to the governance of after-acquired territory — not that such territory be held as subordinate or in a colonial status but rather that newly acquired lands or territories be given an opportunity, when settled, to become equal states.

This was a new concept in history at the time, one which has had great meaning in American and world history since in the promotion of free societies, including those that are being born about us almost every day.

A constitution is not like a new car. It is a document which of necessity takes us back to our historic past. The difference between a civilized society and a barbarian people is that a civilized people look to their yesterdays and tomorrows. They do not merely grub for today.

James Bryce, the author of the American Commonwealth, said to be one of the 2 greatest works on the American political society, said — and I'd like to paraphrase this for the Michigan constitution:

> The American constitution is no exception to the rule that everything which has power to win the obedience and respect of men must have its roots deep in the past, and the more slowly an institution has grown, so much more enduring is it likely to prove.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Any further remarks?

Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: Mr. Chairman, I'd like to make a few comments on this discussion because I think it is a very fundamental discussion.

I would like to say at the start that if Dr. Nord had only made his procedural proposal, I might be inclined to concur with him. I am a member of the committee on education but a meeting of the officers was being held at the time this matter was being discussed so I had no opportunity to participate in the committee's discussion.

Might I say at the start that if Dr. Nord had only made his procedural proposal, I might have been inclined to concur with him. He has gone beyond that and he has attacked the substance of the language of this proposal and I think in doing so he has raised a question as fundamental as any we are going to deal with at this meeting. He has referred to the historical background of this language. I don't believe that the principal historical background for this language has been dealt with.

It is my recollection that the most basic document in American history is the declaration of independence and that the declaration of independence indicates that we hold certain truths to be self evident that all men are created equal and endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights.

Now, I believe that the principles that we are here to deal with are related to our belief in the existence of a Creator and that this language in the northwest ordinance and this language in the constitutions of the states is derived from this fundamental premise on which free society is based.

I believe, without any reservation, in the separation of church and state. I am unalterably opposed to the use of any public funds for teaching sectarian doctrines in any public institution and our state's constitution makes that provision in this respect in section 2, article II, as has already been indicated and that is not the issue here.

It seems to me that the principal issue here is whether we, as Americans, living in the state of Michigan, still believe that there is some relationship between the rights we have derived from our Creator and a free government. And, although the history of the United States can be properly taught without making general reference to the religious base on which our whole society is premised, I believe that if we should repudiate the idea that there is a relationship between the broad religious concept of our being the children of a Creator, that we would strike at the very foundation-stone of free government, not only in Michigan but elsewhere. Consequently, when that point is raised, it seems to me that it is time to recognize that perhaps we are confronted with the question of whether we are going to apply the sound principle of separation of church and state to the point where we render ineffective the teaching of the real history of the United States.

Now, it is for this reason that I rise. I am, as a result of the substance of this issue having been raised, in a position where I cannot support the motion that was made. If it had been made purely on a procedural basis, as I say, I would have reason for weighing the procedural question because I think we are only in the early process of organizing our work here and the committee work and I believe that the rules committee and the chairmen of committees still have work to do in determining the order that we are going to follow in dealing with such proposals. But I think that to do other than to support the committee at this point would be to raise questions about the appropriate teaching of the fundamental history of the United States and I don't think this relates to any question of teaching sectarian doctrines.

After all, our form of government is based on Judeo-Christian principles and it derives from Judeo-Christian principles. I am not here for the purpose of doing anything that will raise any question about the validity of those principles and the essentiality of Americans understanding them if we are going to have an effective operation over free society, including our educational system.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Any further remarks?

Mr. Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. Chairman, I want to rise to applaud member Romney's remarks and just briefly to remind the members that these words that we are talking about have, as has been admitted, no legal significance.

Member Higgs speaks of a spirit. If we are going to be brittle and icy in this meeting, we are not going to appeal to the electorate of Michigan. Our coins say "In God We Trust." The congressman in my district, member Rabaut, in congress a few years ago, introduced an amendment to the pledge of allegiance to the flag, in which he said: ". . . one nation, under God, . . ."

Another part of our constitution is now before the courts but it does infuse the courts as members of society as well as us and all of our colleagues in the length and breadth of the state with the spirit under which we live. This is the preamble. Today it reads as follows — the preamble of our Michigan constitution:

> We, the people of the state of Michigan, grateful to Almighty God for the blessings of freedom, and earnestly desiring to secure these blessings undiminished to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution.

Again referring to member Romney's remarks about the separation of church and state, I stand with him. But I don't think that we are going to get anywhere or do anything for ourselves or for the people of our sovereign state if we emasculate this organic law by deleting all reference to the Creator, the Supreme Universal Ruler, under which we all humbly live. And God knows we are living today with more tremor than ever before.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Mr. Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, regarding the judicial history, if anyone is interested in a bird's eye view, I suggest that you turn to pages 428 and 429 in Michigan Statutes Annotated. There are 7 cases, as I count them, and nowhere in the 7 cases has there been any question of the separation of church and state raised. However, in the first case that has been decided and annotated, it does contain the expression that this is our public policy; and I think, as has been expressed by most of the delegates here, that we wish this to be an expression of the public policy here in the state of Michigan. Therefore I favor the retention of the language in the constitution.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, I rise just briefly to address myself to the 2 procedural questions, as I recall, that were raised by Dr. Nord.

In the first place, I am certain that it is perfectly proper and parliamentarily proper to submit proposals pertaining to the retention of language already in our constitution. That was done in the last convention. I assume it is perfectly proper to do it in this convention.

In the second place, I did not have, of course, and I don't know that any other member of the committee had any awareness of the proposal contemplated by Delegates Nord and Austin. If those proposals had been introduced — and I refer to the education committee — of course, we would give them all the careful consideration they deserve. If they should be favorably considered by the committee, then, of course, there would be an appropriate time for their consideration and that is when we have further discussion and consideration of the proposal under consideration, when it is returned to the convention from the committee on style and drafting.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Mr. Faxon.

MR. FAXON: I just want to make one point. The fact is that the lawyers want a constitution that they can argue before the courts effectively, as agreed upon by lawyers. But I feel that a statement of purpose is something that the people need to better understand a document of this sort. Not speaking as a lawyer — because I am not one — but I know as a teacher, a statement of purpose in front of any article gives it meaning and gives the people something they can grasp on to. So I wish to favor the statement and I certainly don't feel that eliminating it would accomplish the purposes which were alluded to earlier.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Mrs. Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: I don't think we are any of us here tonight to discuss whether we are in favor of religion, morality and knowledge. I think we are all in favor of this.

I think the question, though, that has been raised is a legal question and the question is: Does the section do something that we really didn't intend it to do, nor did they intend it to do in 1907? This is a question that personally I would like to know a lot more about before I would vote one way or the other. I am not a lawyer. I didn't even spend the weekend reading the constitution. I just spent it straightening up the house most of the time. (laughter)

But I do think that just because this question never has been raised about the separation of church and state in regard to this action, does not mean that it might not be raised in the future. Therefore, I would like to speak to Dr. Nord's proposed motion. Thank you.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Mr. Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: I think that the injection of the issue of separation of church and state into a discussion of this particular article is without merit. There have been hundreds and hundreds of questions of separation of church and state. The attorney general has ruled on them hundreds of times but they come under other sections of the constitution. Article II, section 3, takes care of part of the problem.

The other part of the problem, if my memory serves me correctly, is taken care of by that section of the constitution which forbids the use of public money for private purposes. This section has stood the test of time — 50 years. In 50 years every conceivable question that could have been raised has been raised. The fact that it hasn't been litigated is because most people were satisfied with the attorney general's opinion and other attorney generals' opinions. If you change so much as a comma of this language, you start the litigation and the question all over again.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Are there any further remarks?

Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, just on the legal aspect of this provision, I rise to suggest that along the lines of Mr. Ostrow's talk, this question would undoubtedly have been raised perhaps many times if the provision that we are talking about which is before us for approval or disapproval had contained in it anything which was contrary to the provisions of article II, section 3 of the constitution. That section, of course — that latter section — deals clearly with the question of separation of church and state and it makes it clear that public moneys cannot be used for private sectarian purposes.

It seems to me that the section presented to us by the committee on education is a general statement of the general fact that religion has a place in our life, but certainly is not a declaration in any way that it can be combined with public education.

I think for that reason that the motion should not be supported and I feel sure that further debate on article II, section 3, when that matter comes before the convention, will make this matter equally clear.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Any further remarks?

Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: I wonder if we are not losing sight of Dr. Nord's actual motion to refer the matter back to the education committee. As I understand it, we are not asked at this time to decide yes or no on religion or any such important question but only to give more thought to a matter which obviously requires much thought.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Mr. Garvin.

MR. GARVIN: Mr. Chairman, in reference to Dr. Nord's statement and the proposal of the committee, I am just wondering if the delegates are not losing sight of the fact that maybe we are confusing the preamble and also the purpose in this whole idea.

If we would take, I believe, the beginning of the article that we were discussing, we would find that it is strictly under education, and in the first part, the subtitle is "encouragement of education." Now why we have to have anything by education in this particular part I don't know.

There seems to be a great bit of sentiment among the delegates because it came down from many years ago — in fact I believe it was in the paper — but I don't believe that we are here for sentiment. We are here to write a constitution that will stand up in the courts. If there is a doubt among this delegation about whether it will or whether it will not stand up, then it is wrong as it is written and it is time to write it so there will not be any question about it.

The fact that we put religion under education and anything else under education is wrong to start with. If we are going to talk about education, let's talk about education. Let's write our constitution on education. Let us write the article and section under education exactly where it belongs and then there will not be any discussion 10, 20, 30 years from now about whether religion shall come in or not. I support Dr. Nord.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Miss Andrus.

MISS ANDRUS: Mr. Chairman, I was the one who introduced that proposal in the education committee and I would like to say this to all of you: for years I have been teaching that we should have as brief a constitution as possible and I certainly agree with Dr. Pollock and the others who were speaking in favor of it and urging us to do it. However, this provision, the first section in article XI, is of great historical and sentimental value to all of the people of Michigan and so in our committee last Thursday we voted unanimously to propose this to the convention. Later we will propose details on education. This is just a statement, a very important and significant statement, which we would like to see retained in our constitution for our children and grandchildren in the future. It carries us from 1787 which, as Mr. Bentley said, was before our national constitution was drawn up. We feel it is very important that this be retained in our constitution.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Mr. Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. Chairman, I think possibly some of the delegates have lost sight of some of the problems that are before us. I have noted that there have been several cases that have been cited to us that have been decided by the Michigan supreme court regarding this particular section, with the inference that during the last several years there had been no decision which would create any idea that this section would be used to allow an encroachment upon separation of church and state. That would never happen.

And during the history of our courts I have found that many times the courts have changed their opinions and possibly at times seized upon words to bolster up their arguments in favor of a new idea. And I think it might merit us to consider this particular problem that Dr. Nord has raised. I can see no reason why the committee cannot reconsider this matter.

It would seem to me that it would be of some great merit to allow any proposal regarding this section to be first submitted to the committee on education — at least a reasonable time to have these proposals in — because I think that the committee might not give due consideration to proposals that are submitted which have already been decided and have been referred out to the floor and have been voted on by the convention proper.

I know it has been indicated that this can be changed after a report from the committee on style and drafting. However, I do not think that is the time to change our basic idea on what should be included in the constitution but that is the time that we should try to clear up any conflict between various sections that are reported out of the committees and have been voted on by the convention proper.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Mr. Iverson.

MR. IVERSON: Mr. Chairman, I find myself in agreement with Mr. Ostrow and I think that this committee would make a great mistake if we changed one word or one sentence or one comma or period in this declaration of principle. After all, that is what this section is, it is a declaration of principle. And I submit that it has stood the test of time for the last 50 years or more and if we proceed at this time to change any part of this section, we are inviting an interpretation which may mean that we will be sorry for the action we take. I hope that this committee will vote against the motion by Mr. Nord.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: The question is on the motion.

Reverend Dade.

MR. DADE: Mr. Chairman, I would like to speak in favor of retention of this section. Certainly, we live in a time when it is most important that we have these what we call sentiments. I would state the principle should be enunciated over and over again. I certainly cannot find any harm in my standing up and being counted, as one might say, on the side of God. But I am extremely concerned, with Dr. Nord, about whether there is any conflict where the courts are concerned. And I am asking myself: is there any need for undue haste? Or is there anything wrong with this being sent back to the committee on education that we may be thoroughly clear that there is no conflict in the matter of education?

It is my opinion, with Mr. Romney, that here we are spelling out that which is the very bedrock not only of the history of our state but of the history of our country and that it is good and that is as it should be.

But on the other hand, I find myself lacking the knowledge and praying that this convention be given that knowledge as to whether or not in the matter of a legal interpretation we are running into difficulty. To that end, I see no reason why the committee wouldn't welcome a restudy of the matter in bringing us further light.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: The question is on the motion of Dr. Nord, that when this committee rises, it recommend to the convention that this proposal be sent back to the committee on education. All in favor of the motion say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion does not prevail.

Are there any amendments to the proposal?

Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. Chairman, for the sake of the record and to enable the courts of the state of Michigan in the future to interpret our action correctly, I think for the sake of the record here today if there is any delegate who believes that our action is intended to contravene the doctrine of separation of church and state, I would ask him to rise and so state. And if not, then our action here in adopting this proposal of the committee on education would be construed as being merely the retention of the language as written and as interpreted since 1908 and eliminate any possibility of any argument or controversy in this regard.

I might say I have heard 3 lawyers and Mr. Faxon speak in favor of eliminating conflict and controversy.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Dr. Nord.

MR. NORD: I believe they have invited me to state whether or not there is an intention to violate the doctrine of separation of church and state. I do not believe there is any intention but I do believe the language has that tendency. I pointed that out. I see no reason to use language which anyone suspects. I don't care to raise the question. I will be satisfied, along with Mr. Higgs, if we leave this question at rest.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Are there any amendments to the proposal?

Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. Chairman, if there are no further amendments to the proposal, I move the committee rise.

CHAIRMAN BRAKE: Are there any amendments to the proposal?

If not, Committee Proposal 1 will pass. It is passed.

Mr. Bentley moves the committee rise.

All in favor say aye. Opposed, no. The motion prevails.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, President Nisbet resumed the chair.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration a certain proposal, on which the secretary will give a complete report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 1 from the committee on education and reports the proposal back to the convention without amendment, with the recommendation that it pass.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Under the rules it is referred to the committee on style and drafting.

For Committee Proposal 1 as passed and referred to the committee on style and drafting see above, page 197.

SECRETARY CHASE: That completes the report of the committee of the whole, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: There will be the following committee meetings:

A meeting of all committee chairmen will be held 15 minutes after adjournment of this session this evening in room E.

At 8:30 a.m. tomorrow, in room A, the committee on local government will meet. The chairman asks that the members of the committee bring their workbooks. (laughter)

The committee on judicial branch will meet in room B tomorrow, Tuesday, the 24th, at 9:30 a.m., Mr. Robert Danhof, chairman.

The committee on education will meet in room C Wednesday at 9:00 o'clock a.m., Mr. Bentley, chairman. There will be an informal discussion with Dr. Lynn Bartlett, the superintendent of public instruction.

The committee on administration will not meet this evening after the session. Walter DeVries, chairman. The committee on administration will meet in room G tomorrow at 9:30 a.m., Mr. DeVries, chairman.

I have the following requests for leave of absence:

Dr. Pollock for Thursday, October 26, due to a speaking engagement of 6 months' standing.

Mr. Shackleton for tomorrow, Tuesday, for the purpose of attending a directors' meeting.

President Nisbet asks to be excused from Thursday's session.

Mr. Mahinske requests permission to be absent from the meeting of Tuesday, October 24, as he is chairman of the united nations day dinner in Detroit.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be excused.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary has been requested to read the following announcement in regard to the contingency fund in the constitutional convention budget:

Due to a mechanical error there has been a mistake which shows itself only in the contingency fund of the convention budget submitted on October 18. The $31,000.00 figure for reimbursement of actual and necessary expenses for officers, delegates and staff of the convention is correct in the body of the report but the error will reflect itself in the total figure shown as the contingency fund. This figure should now read $42,075.03, the old contingency fund figure of $72,765.03 minus the figure of $30,690.00. This figure is arrived at by subtracting $310.00, which the machine recorded as $31,000.00, which the machine should have recorded. (laughter) Those figures are correct and remain the same. The committee on administration would like to thank the delegate who brought this error to its attention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I am chagrined to have to report the apparent loss of $30,690.00. This was a mechanical error; $31,000.00 was punched on the machine. It is shown on the tape but it was not shown on the total. So the change from $72,765.03 has been made. I may sweeten this mistake by telling you that through the efforts of Mr. Apol's negotiations with the television people, we were able to save $1500.00 on our TV contract and had it changed from $4200.00 to $2700.00.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the error will be corrected.

This correction has been made on pages 184 and 189 above.

Any further announcements?

SECRETARY CHASE: None are present here.

PRESIDENT NISBET: That completes the business of the day. What is the pleasure of the convention?

Mr. Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: I move we adjourn, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Those in favor say aye. Opposed, no. The convention is adjourned until 2:00 o'clock tomorrow.

[Whereupon, at 10:05 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Tuesday, October 24, 1961.]

TWELFTH DAY

Tuesday, October 24, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation today will be given by the Reverend Father John Slowey of the Catholic Social Service of Lansing.

REVEREND SLOWEY: Almighty God, divine legislator, guide our deliberations at this session of the constitutional convention. Grant us the patience, fortitude and wisdom which are most important to effectively work out the framework for good government in our state. At all times may we ever be aware that all power is delegated by Thee. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Before you do, ladies and gentlemen, will you please check any vacant seats next to you and see that the voting lever in the vacant seats is registered in the non-voting position.

Will everyone present please vote aye. Has everyone voted?

Mr. President, a quorum is present.

Absent with leave: Miss Hart, Messrs. Mahinske, McAllister and Shackleton.

Absent without leave: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, submits the following report and recommends the following persons to the president for consideration as staff members of the constitutional convention:

Sergeant at arms, Mr. John DesRocher

Assistant sergeants at arms, Mr. Michael Carl, Mr. Henry Verkaik, Mr. Clifford Stanley

Convention guides, Mrs. Harriet R. Schiff, Mr. Don Faber and Miss Jennie I. Veen

Committee clerks:

Mrs. Nancy Stay, committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule

Mrs. Beverly J. Kirksey, committee on style and drafting and committee on rules and resolutions

Mrs. Virginia Dierkes Schmidt, committee on local government

Mrs. Louise Parker, committee on public information and committee on administration

Postmaster and document clerks, Mr. James R. Bridges, Mrs. June Van Alstine

Duplicating clerk, Mr. Jack Ellis

Pages, Mr. Kern Tomlin, Mr. Alan Johnston, Mr. John Paul Dykstra, Jr., Mr. Wayne Ferry, Mr. Frederick Grasman, Mr. Gerald Plas

Stenographic chief clerk, Mrs. Judith E. Chelf

Stenographic clerks, Mrs. Jane Clark, Miss Patricia Ann Carlson, Mrs. Agnes Steffens, Mrs. Valerie A. Counard, Mrs. Arlene Groh, Miss Beatrice Carter, Miss Betty Kauffman, Mrs. Frances Marshall, Mrs. Jeanne Kingan, Mrs. Lois Mahoney, Mrs. Sondra Kosier, Mrs. Helen Varg, Mrs. Angela Kapuscinski, Mrs. Marvella Witt, Mrs. Mary Martha Lippincott, Mrs. Patricia Gorski

Secretary to codirectors of research and drafting, Mrs. Maritherese McGorrin

Librarian, Miss Mary M. Long.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, these are the unanimous recommendations of the committee on administration. I might briefly explain to the convention how we arrived at these decisions. A subcommittee of the committee on administration, consisting of myself, Mr. Gust, Mr. Mahinske and others, carefully reviewed about 400 applications for staff positions. Of the 400 applications received, 168 were reviewed and the applicants were not called in for interviews. A little over 200 applicants were interviewed by the subcommittee for the 76 positions on the constitutional convention staff. Of those interviewed about 90 were recommended to the entire committee on administration for its consideration.

Today's recommendations by the committee to the president will fill the staff positions with 3 exceptions. These are: 1 librarian, 1 assistant director of public information and the research assistants and consultants. It is our expectation that these appointments will be made later this week or next week.

In relation to the secretarial, committee clerk and stenographic positions, I might explain that 104 applicants took the civil service test. This was a 6 minute test designed to reveal stenographic ability as well as typing ability. Of this number of applicants, 60 passed the test and 44 failed or achieved a mark below that of 250. We considered that any mark below 250 was not a passing mark.

All those who have been appointed scored in the "excellent" to "superior" range, obtaining marks ranging up to 543. We have been advised by the civil service commission that it is highly unusual to have any scores above 500. Parenthetically, I should point out that approximately 45 people applied for positions after the deadline and their applications could not be considered.

In the interview situation the subcommittee tried to cover such points as the availability of the applicant and attempted to make clear the conditions relating to salary. It was explained that the hours would be irregular and that we required firm commitments for the length of the convention. In discussing the salary, it was explained that there were no fringe benefits, no overtime provisions, no insurance provisions, no retirement provisions—that it was a straight salary.

We attempted to explain and question them concerning the duties connected with the positions. We also attempted to evaluate the personality characteristics of the applicants and to make an assessment of their qualifications and their honest, genuine interest in the constitutional convention.

The applications of those who were interviewed were then subjected to another review by the subcommittee and what the convention has before it today is the result of our work.

May I point out that these staff members referred to were selected on the basis of competence, qualifications and personality characteristics. We believe we have the best staff that it is possible to obtain. The choice was not one between competence and incompetence. Almost without exception the more than 200 persons interviewed were of high calibre and the choice was between "very good" and "excellent". The interviewers were truly impressed and our choices were difficult.

Perhaps I might be allowed to make the following comments about certain of the positions. With reference to the guides, it might be explained that all successful applicants for this position have a B.A. or an even higher degree in political or social science. They are all articulate, personable and congenial.

The pages are all at least high school graduates and several are college students who wished to take leave from their studies to serve on the convention staff. Following the specifications outlined in the rules, the committee decided not to appoint any person as page who was still in high school. This was done primarily to avoid tutoring these students but also to avoid the possibility of behavioral problems with juveniles.

I might point out that we sincerely regret that the application of this specification outlined in the rules means the loss of the services of Mr. Bill Doyle, Jr., who has been faithfully serving the constitutional convention since the opening day as a page. If you do not mind, ladies and gentlemen, may I now call upon the convention to indicate by applause some public recognition of his services. (applause).

Stenographers will report for duty at 8:30 a.m. on Thursday. Tomorrow we will assign delegates to a stenographer. An arrangement has been made under which 8 delegates will be assigned to a stenographer who will be available in a stenographic pool located behind the library, commencing Thursday morning.

I might at this point suggest that all questions regarding personnel from now on should be referred to Mr. Apol.

With this report, the major portion of the work of the committee on administration is completed. Members of this committee have worked very hard and for many hours. I thank them for the former and apologize for the latter. (laughter) I wish to publicly thank them for not initiating a coup d'etat or other form of revolutionary activity during the past 4 weeks. (laughter)

If every committee tackles its task in the spirit and with the degree of bipartisanship in which the committee on administration has approached its task, this will indeed be a most fruitful convention.

I might point out, before concluding, that each applicant for a position on the staff of the constitutional convention will receive a personal letter from myself thanking them for their interest. We did appreciate their interest and we wish that more of them could have been placed on the staff. If members of the convention have any questions about why a person in which they had a particular interest was not appointed, I, or Mr. Gust, or Mr. Mahinske, will endeavor to answer them for you.

In any event, these appointments were the decisions of the committee on administration. Members of the convention need not take the brunt of any criticism—it can be placed on my committee. Or, if that is too impersonal, it may be placed on the committee and its chairman. We are so paranoid now, that a little more criticism will not seriously depress us! (laughter)

One final note. The committee wishes to publicly thank those staff members of the house of representatives who have worked with us during the past several weeks; and we wish to thank the speaker of the house, Mr. Don R. Pears, and the clerk of the house, Mr. Norman Philleo, for generously lending us parts of their staff.

Those who should be singled out for our appreciation of their services are: Mrs. Neva Mikesell, journal clerk of the house; Mrs. Betty Hathaway, assistant bill clerk; Mrs. Virginia Carey, house taxation committee clerk; Mrs. Mildred Hutchinson, committee clerk to the state affairs committee; and Mrs. Margery Archer who is now on the staff of the constitutional convention.

This concludes the report of the committee on administration and if members of the convention have any questions, I shall be happy to endeavor to answer them.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I know that all of us feel a deep sense of gratitude to the committee on administration and to all of those who have been associated with it for the wonderful work they have done in getting this convention off to such an expeditious and auspicious start.

The only question I wish to raise at this time is with reference to the report made by Dr. DeVries yesterday in which he referred to committee rooms J and K as being available on a tentative basis and said they would be made permanent by the time of tomorrow's meeting. I wonder if that assurance can now be given?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Bentley, I suggested last evening that we were awaiting a decision that was to be reached by the city council. That decision has been made and it was not favorable. We shall, therefore, have to cancel our plans for a room on the second floor.

Provision is being made to move one of the offices associated with the convention in order to give us additional room but I regret to report that again, this will take until the end of the week. However, we will end up with enough rooms, one for every substantive committee and there will be rooms for the 4 operational committees.

In the interval, however, certain partitions and furniture must be moved from one office to another and this will not be completed until the end of the week.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further questions?

If not, the recommendation of the committee on administration is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The president appoints, pursuant to authorization by the convention, and with the approval of the committee on administration, the aforenamed persons to the respective positions indicated.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they are approved.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary appoints, pursuant to the authorization of the convention, and with the approval of the committee on administration, the following:

Assistant proposal and enrolling clerk — Mrs. Doris Lambert.

This appointment is to replace Mrs. Louise B. Parker, who has been appointed to another position.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unless there is objection, that appointment will be approved. Carried, there being no objection.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only standing committee report, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the following are the proposals:

Mr. Madar introduces

Delegate Proposal 1085, A proposal to make the state responsible for aiding and assisting the indigent and needy.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Binkowski and Stopczynski introduce

Delegate Proposal 1086, A proposal to repeal the 10 year limitation on property owned by corporations. Amends section 5 of article XII.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Binkowski and Stopczynski introduce

Delegate Proposal 1087, A proposal to provide for executive reorganization. Amends article VI by adding a section.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on executive branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Stevens introduces

Delegate Proposal 1088, A proposal relating to the matter of succession of the lieutenant governor. Amends article VI, section 16.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on executive branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Daisy Elliott and Mr. Barthwell introduce

Delegate Proposal 1089, A proposal to provide for maintenance and support of a free public school system, including public institutions of higher learning. Amends article XI by adding a new section.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Suzore and Stamm introduce

Delegate Proposal 1090, A proposal to establish voter qualifications and to change residence requirements for voting for presidential and vice presidential electors. Amends article III, section 1.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Nord introduces

Delegate Proposal 1091, A proposal relative to equality of suffrage, derived from the bill of rights provisions of the articles of compact of the northwest ordinance. Amends article II, section 1.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Nord also introduces

Delegate Proposal 1092, A proposal relative to religious freedom, based on the language of the Wisconsin constitution. Amends article II, section 3.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: That concludes the proposals, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that order, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing there.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Van Dusen, Hutchinson and Romney offer

Resolution 21, A resolution establishing a deadline for introduction of delegate proposals.

Following is the body of Resolution 21, as offered:

Resolved, That after November 15, 1961, no delegate proposal shall be introduced, numbered or printed except upon authorization by the convention. This resolution shall not prevent any delegate or interested citizen from thereafter submitting to the appropriate committee any suggestion for revision of the constitution.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only resolution on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I think it might be worth noting, just for the information of the delegates generally, that the resolution which has just been offered, dealing with the deadline for the introduction of delegate proposals, proposes that after November 15, 1961, no delegate proposal shall be introduced, numbered or printed except upon authorization by the convention. In other words, no delegate proposal may be introduced, printed or referred to committee after that deadline without the authorization referred to.

The adoption of this resolution, however, would not mean, of course, that individual delegates or interested citizens could not thereafter make suggestions for the revision of the constitution to the committee; but it would mean that after that date no proposals could be formally introduced.

I make this comment on the resolution at this time, simply as a "word to the wise."

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Lewis T. Hubbs, who sits in the northwest corner of the hall, requests that all rotarians who are delegates please meet with him in that corner for 5 minutes after the convention session adjourns today.

There are the following committee meeting announcements:

The committee on local government, Wednesday, tomorrow, immediately following the session, in room A. Mr. A. G. Elliott, chairman.

The committee on judicial branch will meet in room B, on Wednesday, at 3:00 o'clock. Robert J. Danhof, chairman. The matter under discussion will be the proposed poll by the state bar association relative to the selection of judges.

The subcommittee on corporations of the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule will meet in room G today, 15 minutes after the close of the session. Mr. Raymond F. Clevenger, corporation and securities commission, and Mr. Don Weeks, executive director, economic development commission, will appear before the committee. Henry L. Woolfenden, chairman of the subcommittee.

The notice in regard to the scheduled meeting of the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule which was scheduled for 7:00 o'clock this evening has been invalidated. The meeting has been cancelled and in lieu thereof the committee will meet in room G tomorrow at 9:00 a.m. Claud R. Erickson, chairman.

The committee on executive branch will meet in room C Wednesday, immediately after the session. John B. Martin, chairman. The same committee, the committee on executive branch, will also meet in room C on Thursday at 8:30 a.m. John B. Martin, chairman.

The committee on legislative powers will meet in room H tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. T. Jefferson Hoxie, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further announcements?

SECRETARY CHASE: Yes, Mr. President. There have been filed with the secretary the following requests for leave of absence:

Delegates Dell and Karn have asked to be excused from the session on Thursday and Mr. Austin has asked to be excused from Friday's session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unless there is objection, they will be excused.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no further announcements on the desk, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Are there any announcements from the delegates? Any comments?

Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. President, since the convention convened, I have talked with a number of people who feel as I do, that some, if not all, of the committees will have ample reason to locate themselves on a temporary basis in places other than this hall in facilities that would make themselves accessible to larger groups of people who wish to appear and observe the committees as they consider the specific problems coming before them.

This morning I observed that already in such committees as the committee on finance and taxation there prevailed, for those wishing to observe the meeting of the committee, accommodation on a standing room only basis. Those of us who wished to appear as observers found that it was difficult even to get our heads in the door. If this is an indication of things to come, I should like to move that the Chair instruct the administration committee to make arrangements for circumstances where there are groups of people larger than we have had thus far in the meetings of the committees so that they can be accommodated. I also urge that they investigate the possibility, by meeting with the committee chairmen, of exploring the likelihood of securing other locations about the state where the committees might sit and make their hearings available and accessible to other citizens of the state.

I would ask that following the exploration of the aforementioned possibility, the administration committee report back to us within a reasonable length of time as to the facilities that are available and as to possible scheduling which might be available to the convention so that we can be prepared, if and when requests are made in other parts of the state, to make some sort of proper decision in respect to this matter.

PRESIDENT NISBET: I might say, Mr. Ford, that an investigation is already being made of rooms in this building for use for committee hearings where the number exceeds that which can be conveniently accommodated in our present committee rooms. That might take care of the matter. Mr. Apol is working on the problem and I think perhaps Dr. DeVries might wish to comment on it, if he knows anything about it. An announcement will be made about that in a very short time, as soon as the meetings are arranged. Is there any further comment?

Mr. De Vries.

MR. DeVRIES: Perhaps I might make this comment, Mr. President. The way the committees are meeting now on a staggered basis, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, it will be impossible to hold large hearings except in the evenings. Then it will be possible to take down the partition between rooms B and C to accommodate large crowds, I understand. I am informed that that is the only way we could do it in the evening session.

Mr. President, it has also been suggested that we use the plenary session hall for the committee meetings. I think I would be opposed to that because we, as delegates, have a number of documents and papers on our desks and to meet in the hall would mean receiving the public near and by our desks. I do not think that this would be a good procedure.

PRESIDENT NISBET: May I ask one question. Dr. DeVries, there was some suggestion about using the balcony or the gallery for the people appearing before the committee and the suggestion was made that the committees meet in that area of the hall, this side of the railing. Has that been discussed or considered at all, and are you able to comment on it?

MR. DeVRIES: Yes, Mr. President, it has been discussed. If we can arrange for microphones to be placed in the gallery so that the witnesses and people appearing before the committees do not have to appear on the floor, I think everything would be all right and we could make that arrangement.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: With this physical problem in mind, the problem of physical accommodation, I should like to move at this time that the administration committee be directed to procure such information as is available concerning available sites somewhere in the Detroit area, and preferably in downtown Detroit, where facilities could be made available to such committees, during the course of this convention, concerning which it is felt that the best interests of the citizens of the state would essentially and best be served by having the committees meet in that area.

I do not care about the selection of other areas such as Grand Rapids in relation to which it might be felt that large numbers of people might wish to attend hearings of the committees but I do think it is now apparent that our facilities here will not accommodate large groups of people.

I feel that it is hardly fair, when we get into the meat of the issues that will come before this convention, to turn away people who wish to attend those hearings simply because of a lack of adequate accommodation.

The citizens should not be deprived of the opportunity of attending the hearings and listening to what is going on. To turn people away due to lack of adequate physical accommodation would be extremely embarrassing to the convention and I think it would be extremely harmful in terms of the public image and the impression it would create.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Ford, as I understand it, the proper procedure here is this: if a committee wishes to take a trip to Detroit for the purpose of holding a public hearing, a resolution must be introduced to this convention which would refer it to the committee on administration. We would then make the decision and refer it back to the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, may I have permission to ask Dr. DeVries a question at this point? Dr. DeVries has raised a question about the difficulties involved in holding meetings of the committees about which he spoke and he referred to partitions between 2 of the committee rooms which partitions could be taken down to provide larger accommodation.

There are only 3 committees meeting at any one time I believe. This would mean that it would be possible for a meeting to be held at 8:30 in rooms B and C perhaps by opening them up and removing the partition. Unless the partitions are of such a nature as to render it difficult to easily dismantle and erect them, they could be taken down and the meetings could be held there. Is it possible? Has Dr. DeVries any comment to make?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Elliott, I frankly do not know the answer to that question. A study of it would have to be made and reported back to the convention. It will be difficult, however, to find a morning on which rooms B and C are not in use, one or the other of them. I think Mr. Apol told me that the only time we could do this would be in the evening. However, I will check and report back to the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: I wonder, Mr. President, whether Dr. DeVries' committee could investigate the possibility of using—at least for evening meetings—the rooms on the north side of the hall here which can be opened up and which could form a large room for hearings of one kind or another. There are obviously going to be some problems if every hearing is held in the evening in committee rooms B and C because I am sure Mr. Danhof may want to do some work or there may be meetings of subcommittees and so on.

I think the committee on executive branch may be in the same position and it really seems to me that we ought to have, if we can, a larger room or more than one where these larger meetings held in the evening could be accommodated with a minimum of discomfort and dislocation.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Martin, we have investigated that possibility, but not too thoroughly, because these rooms, as I understand it, are now under the jurisdiction of the veterans' organizations which were moved out of this part of constitutional hall. We will be happy to further investigate this possibility, although I do not think we can promise too much or hold out too much hope of success in this regard.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Powell.

MR. POWELL: Mr. President, I have not been a visitor to the second floor of the state capitol building recently but unless there is underway some renovation or decorating or something of that nature of which I am not aware, it seems to me there might be the possibility of obtaining space in the capitol building between now and the middle of January.

Of course that would not carry us through the entire period of the convention but it might work out very nicely in terms of carrying us through an awkward time during which we will have many hearings going forward, perhaps simultaneously.

In the state capitol building there is the senate chamber and the house chamber and to my knowledge other rooms in that building have been used for hearings of one kind and another. On some occasions hearings of one type or another have even been held in the supreme court chamber.

I simply throw this out as a suggestion and ask that the appropriate persons investigate the possibility of using the annex for the purposes of this convention.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Powell, that is a very good suggestion. I think we will check with the speaker of the house of representatives and the clerk. I am sure that these facilities might be made available to us. No doubt we would be required to furnish the electrician and no more. I think that suggestion is deserving of consideration and that there is a possibility of obtaining the use of such facilities. The possibility will be explored.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I just wish to make this comment. I hope that most of this discussion today is going into the record of this convention so that the next convention, even if it is held 50 or 100 years from now, will not be "taken" in the same manner as we have been.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gadola.

MR. GADOLA: Mr. President, may I suggest that the possibility be explored of using the Michigan state bar association building for our purposes. There is ample room there and it is not in use at all times I am sure. I believe they have ample facilities there and I urge that we investigate the possibility of making use of them.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, if I might reply to Mr. Madar, let me say this: this convention has not been "taken". On the contrary, it would appear, indeed, that we are "taking" someone else. Mr. Starr Hull, who is in charge of the facilities in this part of the building, has been extremely cooperative and has leased us additional space on the third floor for which we did not contract. He is moving his entire office into smaller quarters in order to accommodate us. I do not think it can be fairly said that we have been "taken" and it is my feeling that we should be extremely grateful for the kind consideration and cooperation we have received.

SECRETARY CHASE: Several of the delegates have asked a question as to whether or not the debates of this convention are being recorded. They definitely are, and they will be reproduced in separate volumes after the close of the convention. There seems to be some doubt as to whether the discussion in the committee of the whole has been recorded. It has been.

In point of fact, we maintain 2 sets of records. We maintain the action journal of the convention and that includes the action journal of the committee of the whole.

We also maintain the record of the debates and that includes the debates in the committee of the whole as well as in the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. President, may I make this anouncement? The committee on finance and taxation will be meeting tomorrow morning at 10:30 in room E and on Thursday immediately following the session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Are there any further announcements? If not, that concludes the business of the convention today.

What is your pleasure, ladies and gentlemen?

Mr. Doty.

MR. DEAN DOTY: I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The motion is on adjournment. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The convention is adjourned until tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, at 2:35 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m. Wednesday, October 25, 1961.]

THIRTEENTH DAY

Wednesday, October 25, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation today will be given by the Reverend John Murbach, of the Cavalry Evangelical United Brethren Church of Lansing.

REVEREND MURBACH: Let us pray. Almighty God, author of life, liberty, justice and truth, we humbly bow in Thy presence in this moment of reverent worship to acknowledge Thee and to seek Thy divine presence at this time. May we ever sense Thee near to us in this moment and every moment of our life.

Keep us aware that Thou art the source of all truth and that only as we seek Thy will shall we find truth. Grant unto these elected representatives of the people of this great state this purpose as they continue in the great responsibility committed to them. Deliver us from pettiness. Forbid that for selfish purposes we shall refuse to do that which we know to be right. Give us conviction in the purposes which are ours, but give us insight so that we may see where we are wrong, when we are wrong, and strength to persist when we are right. Help us to be men and women of purpose and destiny.

Again we pray for Thy divine guidance to be upon the president of this great gathering. Give him direction as he seeks to guide the affairs which are before us. Grant to us all the constant companionship of Thy spirit in this and every hour which we spend in the task to which we have been called. This we ask with humble gratitude for Thy constant guidance in all our lives. We pray in the great name of our God and Father. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Before you do, ladies and gentlemen, please be so kind as to check the vacant seats next to you and see that the voting lever there is registered in the nonvoting position. Have you all voted?

The machine will now be locked and the vote will be taken. Before this is done, however, may I make this additional announcement? You may now put your voting lever in the nonvoting position. If you will leave your lever in that position while we are in session, when you want to call a page, all you need to do is slip the voting lever over to the nay position and a red light will show on the board and a page will come to your desk.

Mr. President, a quorum is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

Mr. Farnsworth from today's session.

Mr. Stamm from today's session in order to be in Kalamazoo on business.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Farnsworth, McAllister and Stamm.

Absent without leave: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, submits the following report and recommends the following assignment of stenographers to the delegates of the constitutional convention.

For the body of this report, see below.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and delegates, I move that this report be considered read and that it appear in printed form in the journal of this day's session. The report consists only of a list of the stenographers and the delegates to whom they are assigned.

I might mention that the report will be available to the delegates within one hour. The duplicating machine broke down so we could not have copies prepared for distribution among the delegates before 2:00 o'clock. However, copies should be on the desks of the delegates within one hour.

The stenographers' pool will be on duty at 8:30 tomorrow morning. I would ask that the delegates check with the chief stenographer who will point out to them the stenographer to whom they are assigned.

I might also point out that stationery will be available on Monday. The proof came back from the printers today and we hope to have supplies of stationery available for the use of the delegates on Monday.

Perhaps I might also make this comment, Mr. President. We have inquired about renting or using some of the rooms in the veterans' section of the civic center and I am told that they are available. Furthermore, I have checked with the clerk of the house, Mr. Norman Philleo, who tells me that upon clearance with him the constitutional convention might be granted permission to use the house chamber for its committee hearings. However, this should all be cleared through Mr. Apol and any committee chairman wishing to make arrangements through the clerk of the house for use of the house chamber should approach Mr. Apol on this subject please.

Dr. Hannah has further volunteered the use of the facilities of the university. If anyone wishes to make arrangements for use of a room or any of the facilities of the university, I suggest that he contact Mr. Apol for further information.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the list shall be printed in the journal and without objection, the assignment of stenographers to the various delegates as recommended by Dr. DeVries, chairman of the committee on administration, will be approved.

Hearing none, the stenographers are so assigned and the list shall be printed.

Following is the report submitted by the committee on administration:

The committee on administration recommends the following assignment of stenographers to the delegates of the constitutional convention:

Delegate Proposal 1099, A proposal to provide equality in Michigan congressional districts.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Donnelly introduces

Delegate Proposal 1100, A proposal requiring the publication of supreme court decisions, contents thereof; and requiring the publication of index of all matters before said court and the disposal thereof. Amends article VII, section 7.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on judicial branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Brake introduces

Delegate Proposal 1101, A proposal with reference to the state board of escheats.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on executive branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Brake introduces

Delegate Proposal 1102, A proposal relative to the removal of state officers by the governor. Amends article IX, section 7.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on executive branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Austin, Buback, Douglas, Downs and Marshall introduce Delegate Proposal 1103, A proposal to establish a system of proportional voting in the house of representatives.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Beginski, Buback, Downs, Follo, Ford and Marshall introduce Delegate Proposal 1104, A proposal for earmarking funds for highways.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Buback, Douglas, Downs, Follo, Ford, Miss Hart and Mr. Marshall introduce

Delegate Proposal 1105, A proposal for earmarking funds for schools.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Austin, Buback, Douglas, Downs, Follo, Miss Hart, Mr. Marshall and Miss McGowan introduce

Delegate Proposal 1106, A proposal to retain civil service. Article VI, section 22.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on executive branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Faxon and Wanger introduce

Delegate Proposal 1107, A proposal regarding right of access to public educational facilities.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Baginski and Suzore introduce

Delegate Proposal 1108, A proposal to require election of county supervisors or their appointment from elected officials. Amends article VIII, section 7.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on local government.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Wanger and DeVries introduce

Delegate Proposal 1109, A proposal to create the office of legislative auditor general; to provide for his appointment and term; and to describe his powers and duties. Amends article V by adding a new section.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Wanger and DeVries introduce

Delegate Proposal 1110, A proposal to change the title of auditor general to state comptroller. Amends article VI, sections 1, 17 and 21. To be considered in connection with Delegate Proposal 1109.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on executive branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Wanger and DeVries introduce

Delegate Proposal 1111, A proposal to provide that the auditor general shall be ineligible for appointment to any other state office during the term for which he was appointed. Amends article VI, section 7. To be considered in connection with Delegate Proposal 1109.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: That completes the proposals presently before the convention, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that order.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. DeVries, on behalf of the committee on administration, offers

Resolution 22, A resolution commending the civil service commission.

For body of resolution, see below.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. DeVries, on behalf of the committee on administration, offers

Resolution 23, A resolution authorizing the appointment of a secretary's messenger.

Following is the body of Resolution 23, as offered:

Resolved, That the organizational chart of the convention staff be amended by adding to the office of the secretary an additional position to be named "Secretary messenger", as follows:

1. Amend Appendix A, under "OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY" after "finance clerk" by inserting "Secretary's messenger"; and

2. Amend Appendix B, after item "II-H" by inserting item "I. Secretary's messenger."

This person to serve as messenger to the president, to the secretary and his staff and to the press room manager.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, with respect to Resolution 22, may I say it is one in relation to which the convention should act at this time.

I would therefore move that the referral of Resolution 22 be rescinded, the rules be suspended, the secretary be instructed to read the resolution and that we act upon it at this point in our proceedings. We should certainly commend the civil service commission, without delay, for its assistance in creating the staff we are now enjoying.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there objection? I hear none. The referral of Resolution 22 is rescinded and the secretary will read the resolution.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. DeVries, on behalf of the committee on administration, offers

Resolution 22, A resolution commending the civil service commission.

Whereas, The civil service commission administered stenographic tests to 104 individuals over a period of 8 days, thus saving the committee on administration considerable time, effort and expense; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the delegates, on behalf of the constitutional convention, commend the civil service commission, Mr. Franklin DeWald, and his staff, for the competent and efficient service rendered the convention in the matter of testing stenographic personnel; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to members of the civil service commission and Mr. DeWald.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the resolution. All those in favor say aye. Those opposed, no.

The resolution is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no further resolutions on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further motions or resolutions? Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, I move that when the convention adjourns on Thursday, it stand adjourned until Monday evening.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Discussion? The vote is on the motion. Is there any discussion? If not, I will put the question. All those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

There being no opposition, the motion prevails.

Are there any further motions or resolutions? Is there any unfinished business?

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Howes.

MR. HOWES: Mr. President, may I have permission to make a statement?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, you may, Mr. Howes.

MR. HOWES: Thank you.

Mr. President and fellow delegates, much has been said about the amount of money being spent for this constitutional convention. The money that the people of Michigan are spending for this convention is money they are risking on an investment in their future.

It is for us here convened to determine the results of that investment, so let us here strive as delegates with all our collective ability to produce a document which will prove to all the people of the state of Michigan, as proof of our ability or inability unfolds, that they have made a blue chip investment in their future.

May we ask that the all-knowing, all-seeing Power help us to see ourselves as others see us and help us to realize, as we try to persuade our fellow delegates to our point of view, that there is one life we can always change—and that is our own.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you. Are there any announcements?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, there have been filed the following notices of committee meetings:

The committee on legislative powers will meet in room H tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. T. Jefferson Hoxie, chairman.

The committee on administration will meet in the conference room, next to the office of the president, Thursday, tomorrow, at 1:00 o'clock. Walter DeVries, chairman.

The subcommittee on corporations of the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule will meet in room G tomorrow, Thursday, at 10:30 a.m. Alfred F. Conard, professor of law, University of Michigan, author of the constitutional convention preparatory commission's study on Corporations and the Michigan Constitution, will appear before the subcommittee. Henry L. Woolfenden, chairman.

The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections will meet in room F tomorrow, Thursday, at 3:00 p.m. James K. Pollock, chairman.

The committee on judicial branch will meet in room B tomorrow, Thursday, at 8:30. Mr. Meredith Doyle, court administrator, will appear before the committee. Robert J. Danhof, chairman.

The committee on judicial branch will meet in room B next Tuesday, October 31st, at 10:30 a.m. The Honorable John R. Dethmers, chief justice of the Michigan supreme court, will meet with the committee on that occasion. Robert J. Danhof, chairman.

The committee on education will meet in room B tomorrow, Thursday, at 10:30 a.m. Dr. Ferris Crawford, assistant superintendent of public instruction, will appear before the committee. Alvin M. Bentley, chairman.

The committee on finance and taxation will meet in room E tomorrow, Thursday, immediately following the session. D. Hale Brake, chairman.

The committee on finance and taxation will meet according to the following schedule, until further notice: Every Tuesday, at 8:30 o'clock; every Wednesday, at 10:30 o'clock; every Thursday, immediately following the session. All meetings will be held in room F unless otherwise advised. D. Hale Brake, chairman.

The committee on rules and resolutions will meet in room B tomorrow, Thursday, at 10:30 a.m. Richard C. Van Dusen, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, may I offer a word of explanation? I scheduled that meeting before knowing of the intention of Mr. Bentley to hold a meeting with his committee in that same room. May I inquire if there are any other rooms we could use for the purpose of this meeting, as our own room is not yet available?

SECRETARY CHASE: What about the conference room?

MR. VAN DUSEN: I have just been advised by Dr. DeVries, Mr. President, that the conference room is available, and so we shall use it.

SECRETARY CHASE: The meeting, then, will be held in the conference room, next to the president's office, tomorrow, at 10:30 a.m.

There is one final announcement concerning committees. The committee on legislative organization will meet in room D today, immediately following the session. John Hannah, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, I wish to speak with reference to the notice of the meeting of the committee on executive branch that has been announced in the journal.

The meeting is scheduled at 8:30 a.m. in room C, tomorrow morning. On that occasion the committee will hear from Mr. Brake, and also from Mr. Higgins, the chairman of the civil service commission, and from Mr. DeWald, personnel diretor of the civil service commission.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: With reference, Mr. President, to the public hearing on the subject of earmarked funds in the constitution, may I say this. All delegates will be most welcome at that hearing which will be held in the 3 committee rooms, B, C and D.

However, if any delegate wishes to make a statement to the committee on this subject, we would appreciate if he would do so at another session of the committee rather than tonight when we will have present so many representatives of the general public who wish to be heard.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Are there any further announcements?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, there have been filed with the secretary the following requests for leave of absence: Mr. Donald Doty wishes to be excused from tomorrow's session; Mr. Figy wishes to be excused from the session on next Monday, October 30th; Mr. Pellow also wishes to be excused from tomorrow's session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be excused and they are.

Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, I simply wish to remind the members of the committee on local government that we will meet immediately after the adjournment of today's session in room A.

PRESIDENT NISBET: I wish to announce, ladies and gentlemen, that your president will be absent tomorrow. Mr. George W. Romney will preside at the session.

That completes the business of the session this afternoon. What is your pleasure?

Mr. Heideman.

MR. HEIDEMAN: Mr. President, I move that we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The motion is for adjournnment of the session. All those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails and we will now adjourn until 2:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

[Whereupon, at 2:20 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Thursday, October 26, 1961.]

FOURTEENTH DAY

Thursday, October 26, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Will the delegates come to order, please.

The invocation will be offered by the Reverend C. Oscar Leonardson, of the Grace Lutheran Church of Lansing.

REVEREND LEONARDSON: Let us bow our heads in prayer.

We thank Thee, Lord, for the privilege of beginning all our daily activities in Thy name. How vital it is to have Thee in our midst as we ponder the tremendous import of a new constitution for this great state of Michigan.

We pray for Thy continued blessings on each delegate and beseech Thee to keep the entire delegation and the other citizens of Michigan as well, mindful of the fact that if the new instrument is to be of utmost benefit and value to all of us, we must seek Thy guidance and wisdom in all deliberations and decisions.

Be with us, therefore, in these crucial days and months so that when the convention is closed, we may all join in much gratitude to Thee for a task well done by those dedicated to Thee. We pray all this in the name of Jesus Christ, our Lord, saviour and guide. Amen.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Thank you very much, Reverend Leonardson.

The roll call will be taken by the secretary.

SECRETARY CHASE: Those present please vote aye. Have you all voted? The secretary will lock the machine, and you may now return your voting lever to the non voting position.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following request for leave:

Mr. Perlich has filed a request that he be excused from today's session.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Without objection, the request is granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Dell, Donald Doty, Karn, Nisbet, Pellow, Perlich and Pollock.

Absent without leave: Mr. Bonisteel.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Without objection, Mr. Bonisteel is excused.

Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on rules and resolutions, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, submits the following report and recommendations regarding committee procedures:

Recommended Committee Procedures

The following basic procedure is recommended for each substantive committee:

1. Each committee shall review and study existing constitutional provisions in the area of its substantive jurisdiction to determine:

(a) The existing provisions, their origin, history and rationale, the manner in which they have been interpreted and the practice thereunder;

(b) The extent to which existing provisions adequately meet the state's needs; and

(c) Areas in which improvement seems desirable.

2. After substantial completion of such study, each substantive committee shall then proceed to consider all proposed changes in the present constitution, within its substantive area, whether embodied in delegate proposals or otherwise.

3. Each substantive committee shall then prepare its committee proposal or proposals, and its supporting reason or reasons setting forth all relevant facts and arguments relating to said proposals.

4. Each substantive committee shall maintain a calendar showing, insofar as possible, the proposed order and dates of consideration of particular substantive matters within its jurisdiction, witnesses to be heard and such other information as may in the opinion of the committee assist interested citizens in their presentation of suggestions and advice and their understanding of the work of the committee.

5. The action journal to be maintained by each committee shall contain, in addition to the record of formal action taken by the committee, the subjects discussed, witnesses heard and reports submitted. Copies of committee journals shall be furnished to:

(a) All members of the committee;

(b) The president, vice presidents, secretary and codirectors of research;

(c) Chairmen and vice chairmen of all other standing committees;

(d) The convention library; and

(e) The press room.

6. Each substantive committee shall present to the convention for the information of delegates not serving on such committee periodic informal reports of its progress and activities. The schedule for submission of such reports shall be fixed by the president.

7. Not later than November 8, each substantive committee shall file with the president, in writing, proposed dates for the completion by such committee of the steps described in sections 1, 2 and 3 above.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, this recommendation of the committee on rules and resolutions is the result of some careful and thorough consideration of the matter of committee procedures by the committee chairmen, by many of the committees themselves, by the rules committee, and its members; and it embodies the suggestions made by each of the committee chairmen. It embodies much of the work contained in a resolution offered by Dr. Nord, which was most helpful in the preparation of the recommendation.

It is not the intention of the rules committee by proposing these procedures to in any way hamstring or straitjacket the individual committees in their work. On the other hand, it is felt desirable that each member of the convention have a good idea of the order in which matters will be considered, the method of attack by which each committee will proceed to do its work.

The first 3 items propose 3 basic steps in the work of each committee:

First, the study step, in which we are now engaged.

Second, the consideration of proposals made by delegates, made by interested groups, made by interested citizens.

Third, finally, the development by each committee of its committee proposals to be reported to the floor, to be accompanied by committee reasons fully explaining and supporting the committee proposals.

Now, the remaining recommendations are designed to give as much communication to each of the members of the delegation as possible respecting the work of every one of the substantive committees.

The maintenance of a calendar is designed to inform all of the delegates what subjects the various committees are going to be considering and when and what witnesses are proposed to be heard, so that the delegates, if they want to be heard on a particular substantive matter, can come in and talk; and so that interested citizens can know when it is time for them to be present and heard.

The action journal, a little bit of backward communication, is to let all the delegates and the press as well know where the committees have been in the conduct of their work.

The distribution of the action journal, as set forth here, is of course not designed to be exclusive but is designed to simply cover those places where we feel it is important that the action journal certainly go.

I think that many of the delegates will be particularly interested in the recommendation of item 6, to the effect that each substantive committee shall make periodic reports to the convention as a whole in an informal manner, describing the work of the committee, where it has been, and where it proposes to go.

It is contemplated that these reports will start in the near future and that perhaps 2 committees will report at each session, so that on a continuing basis the entire convention will know what is going on in each of the 9 substantive committees.

The final recommendation with respect to the filing by substantive committees of proposed dates of the completion of the study step, the consideration of proposals and the development of reports is simply a prod in the direction of establishing a schedule for our work as soon as can be realistically estimated.

Mr. President, I move the adoption of the recommendation.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The question is on the committee recommendation.

Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, at this time I would like to move to amend as follows:

1. Amend the report by adding "8. that on November 15, no delegate proposal shall be introduced, numbered, or printed except upon authorization by the convention.".

MR. VAN DUSEN: Point of order, Mr. President.

I question whether Mr. Madar's motion is germane to the matter before us, which deals with the committee procedures, and not with the general convention business.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The secretary advises me that is correct, because the motion you made, Mr. Madar, is part of another resolution that has previously been filed and is being presented this afternoon for consideration.

Miss Donnelly.

MISS DONNELLY: Mr. President, I would like to move to amend item 5, to add:

1. "(f) All delegates.".

2. Amend item 7, after "than" by striking out "November" and inserting "December".

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I would like, Mr. President, to request that these be considered separately; and I would like first to discuss the proposal of Miss Donnelly that all delegates receive copies of all committee journals.

This was considered by the rules committee. Certainly, any delegates who would like to be furnished with all committee journals are welcome to them but you are asking for a blizzard of paper in your mail boxes every day.

I would think—and I request the advice of the secretary on this point—that it might be better to permit any delegate who wants copies of any or all committee journals to file a request with the secretary, who could then see that they would be furnished. Could that be done, Mr. Secretary?

SECRETARY CHASE: That could be done.

It has likewise been suggested that the delegate or the person interested make requests from the clerk of the committee in which they are particularly interested for copies of the action journal of that committee.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Either way, Mr. President. It seems to me superior to inflicting upon each delegate every morning 9 action journals of substantive committees. We already have quite a lot of reading.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Miss Donnelly, do you want to insist on your first amendment in light of that permission?

MISS DONNELLY: No, I wouldn't insist upon it as long as they are definitely available so that we don't have to chase over to each clerk each day and say we would like them.

So if they are automatically placed in the boxes of those of us who make this request, that would be satisfactory. I think it is an unusual burden for the delegate to have to go to each committee clerk, 9 in all, and ask for a journal. I think there should be a place where we can sign our name and have them automatically given to us.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I'm sure that Miss Donnelly's request can be accomplished. I also suggest that the rule provides for copies in the convention library where the delegates who are interested could go and get them.

But I'm sure that any delegate who wants to be furnished on a daily basis in his box the copies of the action journals of the committees, can have that done.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: As I understand it then, Miss Donnelly, you withdraw your first amendment?

MISS DONNELLY: Yes.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Now, there was the other motion to amend item 7; substituting "December" for "November", as I understand it, in that item.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Donnelly has offered the following amendment:

2. Amend item 7, after "than" by striking out "November" and inserting "December", so the language will read: "Not later than December 8, each substantive committee shall file with the President . . ."

MR. VAN DUSEN: Here, Mr. President, I would only suggest that these are only proposed dates. There's nothing definite or firm about the dates on which the committees will report.

However, it seems to me extremely important that each committee start thinking now, not in December, about when it is going to be able to complete its study; about approximately how long it thinks it is going to take to consider proposals; and when it thinks it can get the committee proposals out.

Quite obviously, if those dates later turn out to be inaccurate, or they can't be met, they can be revised. But I think it is not too early to require committees to think about this.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The question is on Miss Donnelly's amendment. Those in favor say aye. Those opposed say no. The ayes have it.

The amendment is adopted.

Dr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. President, relative to the recommendation, as amended, I would like to speak in favor of it in general and with an amendment in particular.

First of all, I would like to point out to those delegates who may not have had a chance to study this document that it is perfectly correct, as pointed out by Mr. Van Dusen, that I am, let's say, the instigator of some of the ideas or nearly all of the ideas in here, so it would be very difficult for me to oppose this resolution. I do not intend to oppose it.

But I would like to make this comment. Although it is really a great piece of work, there is one flaw. (laughter) At the committee meeting this morning I pointed out to the committee—and they agreed, and I believe they may have overlooked it in presenting it—that it is important that this document should not be in a separate category from every other document we receive.

For example, this one is headed "Recommended Committee Procedures". There is no resolution number before it. And whereas it came from a resolution, it was my understanding—and I believe it was agreed on by the committee—that this would be returned as a substitute for Resolution 10, which I offered.

The reason I move to amend that the title be stricken and no longer read "Recommended Committee Procedures" but be headed "Substitute Resolution 10", will be illustrated further when I point out the other half of my motion to amend.

The reason that I ask that this be in the form of a resolution of a standard type, so to speak, is this. All other resolutions state that they are resolutions and they are obligatory upon the entire convention. This one should be, too. In fact, it is vital that this one be, too. I say this because whatever else comes out of this committee this afternoon is based upon the understanding that this one will be obligatory—obligatory in a certain respect, as I'll point out in a minute.

The reasons it needs to be obligatory are these: In item 5

it is stated that copies of the committee journals shall be furnished to various people. It is absolutely indispensable that they be furnished. If that is optional with the committee, everything else we have done this morning in the rules committee will fail because it is all predicated on information that everything that is done will be absolutely available to people and cannot in any sense of the word be suspected of being secret.

I dare say that nobody has the guts to stand up in here and propose that anything be secret anymore, especially myself. But if we don't make this obligatory, we run the risk that someone will say that certain things that happened in the committee, such as suggestions which are not formal proposals, would not necessarily be reported back to the members and to the press. That is one of the reasons why I believe this resolution needs to be obligatory.

The other one is in item 6, where periodic reports are to be made to the delegates. It seems to me it is absolutely indispensable, and not just advisable, that there be such reports. It is indispensable for us to know what the committee thinks it's doing, how it is making out, and so on.

For that reason, I offer the following amendment, I move to amend as follows:

(1) That the title presently appearing, be stricken and changed to read "Substitute Resolution 10.";

(2) That the following words be added at the beginning of the resolution: "Be it resolved, That"; and

(3) That the first line shall be stricken in part, and the following words be added to it, so that it shall read as follows: "The following basic procedure shall be followed by each substantive committee insofar as feasible:".

Mr. President, I move the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Nord offers the following amendment:

1. Amend the committee report by striking out the heading "Recommended Committee Procedures" and the first line thereafter, and inserting "Substitute for Resolution 10.

Be it resolved, That the following basic procedure shall be followed by each substantive committee insofar as feasible:".

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I'm sure the committee on rules and resolutions has no objection to the amendments offered by Dr. Nord.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The question is on the amendment. All in favor say aye. Opposed?

The amendment is adopted.

The question now is upon the Substitute for Resolution 10. Those in favor, say aye. Those opposed, no.

It is adopted.

Following is Resolution 10 as substituted and adopted by the convention:

Substitute for Resolution 10.

Be it resolved, That the following basic procedure shall be followed by each substantive committee insofar as feasible:

1. Each committee shall review and study existing constitutional provisions in the area of its substantive jurisdiction to determine:

(a) The existing provisions, their origin, history and rationale, the manner in which they have been interpreted and the practice thereunder;

(b) The extent to which existing provisions adequately meet the state's needs; and

(c) Areas in which improvement seems desirable.

2. After substantial completion of such study, each substantive committee shall then proceed to consider all proposed changes in the present constitution, within its substantive area, whether embodied in delegate proposals or otherwise.

3. Each substantive committee shall then prepare its committee proposal or proposals and its supporting reason or reasons setting forth all relevant facts and arguments relating to said proposals.

4. Each substantive committee shall maintain a calendar showing, insofar as possible, the proposed order and dates of consideration of particular substantive matters within its jurisdiction, witnesses to be heard and such other information as may in the opinion of the committee assist interested citizens in their presentation of suggestions and advice and their understanding of the work of the committee.

5. The action journal to be maintained by each committee shall contain, in addition to the record of formal action taken by the committee, the subjects discussed, witnesses heard and reports submitted. Copies of committee journals shall be furnished to:

(a) All members of the committee;

(b) The president, vice presidents, secretary and codirectors of research;

(c) Chairmen and vice chairmen of all other standing committees;

(d) The convention library; and

(e) The press room.

6. Each substantive committee shall present to the convention for the information of delegates not serving on such committee periodic informal reports of its progress and activities. The schedule for submission of such reports shall be fixed by the president.

7. Not later than December 8, each substantive committee shall file with the president, in writing, proposed dates for the completion by such committee of the steps described in sections 1, 2 and 3 above.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 2. Recommendation relative to amendment of rule 56.

The committee recommends that rule 56 of the rules of the convention be amended by adding at the end of the first sentence after "them" a comma and the words "or shall originate as committee proposals", so that the first sentence of rule 56 will read:

All matters intended to become a part of any revised constitution or constitutional amendment shall be introduced by a delegate or delegates in the form of a proposal and endorsed by the delegate or delegates introducing them, or shall originate as committee proposals.

For the text of rule 56 as adopted by the convention see above, page 133.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, it was brought to the attention of the rules committee this morning that there might be some ambiguity in the rules relating to the requirement that committee proposals have their origin in delegate proposals.

I think I can speak for the committee on permanent organization and rules, which considered and promulgated these rules, in saying that that was not the intention of that committee; but that it was the intention of the committee that committees themselves would develop, as a result of their studies and consideration, proposals which might incorporate the substance of delegate proposals or might contain wholly original matter.

It is the purpose of this rule change to make sure that committees have the right to include in their proposals wholly original matter. I think it simply is designed to make the rules consistent with our original intention.

For that reason, I would move that the rules be suspended for the immediate consideration of this recommendation.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Without objection, the rules will be suspended and we will proceed to the consideration of the amendment. Is there objection? I hear none. It is so ordered.

The question is on the amendment. Those in favor say aye. Opposed?

The amendment to rule 56 is adopted.

Following is rule 56 as amended by the convention:

Introduction.

Rule 56. All matters intended to become a part of any revised constitution or constitutional amendment shall be introduced by a delegate or delegates in the form of a proposal and endorsed by the delegate or delegates introducing them, or shall originate as committee proposals. Five copies of any proposal shall be handed to the secretary not later than 3 hours prior to calling the convention to order. All proposals shall be introduced in accordance with the form prescribed by the secretary. Proposals shall be printed and distributed under the direction of the secretary.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 3. The committee on rules and resolutions respectfully reports back to the convention Resolution 21, A resolution establishing deadline for introduction of delegate proposals; with amendments, recommending that the amendments be agreed to and that the resolution, as thus amended, be adopted.

For the full text of Resolution 21, as offered, see above, page 210.

The following are the amendments recommended by the committee:

1. Amend the first sentence by striking out "November 15, 1961," and inserting "November 21, 1961,".

2. Amend the second sentence by adding at the end thereof a comma and "and if so requested in writing by any delegate, said committee shall acknowledge in its action journal its receipt of any such suggestion.", so that the body of the resolution will then read:

Resolved, That after November 21, 1961, no delegate proposal shall be introduced, numbered, or printed except upon authorization by the convention. This resolution shall not prevent any delegate or interested citizen from thereafter submitting to the appropriate committee any suggestion for revision of the constitution, and if so requested in writing by any delegate, said committee shall acknowledge in its action journal its receipt of any such suggestion.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I would like to state first, Mr. President, that, at least in part, the committee is indebted to Delegate Henry Woolfenden for this suggestion and I think it is perhaps regrettable that he was not joined as a cosponsor of it because certainly he is entitled to that recognition.

In support of the resolution I would like to say this. The rules committee considers it one of its important functions to assist the substantive committees and the convention in the orderly conduct of its business and, because at this stage most of our work is being done in committee, the rules committee believes that it is important that we be of such assistance as we can to the substantive committees in formulating measures which will be helpful to them.

Now in the committee procedures which we have just adopted, the first step is the study step, in which the committees study the substantive areas in which they are concerned.

The second step will be the consideration of proposals—proposals made by delegates, proposals made by interested citizens, proposals from whatever source derived. And this second step, most of the substantive committees have agreed, will be difficult to undertake without some assurance that as it is begun, the substantive committees will have before them most, if not all, of the proposals which are to be made to them by delegates, not members of the committee, for revision of the constitution in the area of their concern.

Accordingly, this resolution, as amended, is designed to see to it that by November 21 all formal printed and numbered delegate proposals are in.

Now, this should not impose serious hardship. All of us have known since April of this year that the convention was coming. We all went through campaigns in which the issues were thoroughly discussed and we formulated positions with respect to many of them. We have all known since September twelfth that we were going to be here and for nearly 4 weeks now we have actually been serving as delegates to this convention. The insertion of a deadline 4 weeks away should not therefore cause undue hardship on any delegate.

Now some delegates have indicated that they have been waiting up to now for professional assistance in drafting proposals for introduction. We have 3 codirectors of research who are waiting to serve you in this regard and as of Monday I'm advised by one of the codirectors there will be 2 assistant directors of research available on a full time basis to do nothing but help draft delegate proposals for introduction.

In other words, there's no reason why delegates who wish to present formal proposals can't get them ready for presentation by November 21. Incidentally, November 21 is the date picked by the committee in preference to November 15 because it gave a week longer to accomplish the purpose and because it will enable the printing of such formal delegate proposals as come in near the deadline in time so that the delegates can consider them over the Thanksgiving recess.

Now there has been some concern expressed about the meaning of this resolution. They say: what happens if I have a good idea in January which hadn't previously occurred to me? Well now, this should not, I submit, concern any delegate.

First, if it is so important that it justifies formal presentation, introduction, numbering and printing, then the convention can authorize that to be done under the express language of the resolution.

However, I suggest that most of these good ideas—these late blooming afterthoughts—will not require such formal treatment. They can simply be submitted informally to the appropriate committee, either in writing or orally, where they will, in common with formal delegate proposals, be considered by the committee, boiled down, and assimilated into the eventual committee proposal and report.

If a delegate is concerned about being sure his suggestion is acknowledged by the committee, under the amendment proposed by the rules committee, at his request, receipt of his suggestion will be duly acknowledged and will appear in the action journal of the committee.

If a delegate is concerned that a committee may not thereafter report out his proposal, I should refer his attention to the standing rule with respect to minority reports. If the suggestion has sufficient merit to attract the support of 3 members of the committee, even in a committee as large as 27, it can be incorporated in a minority report, printed in the journal of the convention, and presented before action is taken on the committee proposal itself.

Now in summary, this is a resolution which is designed to help us as a full convention, accomplish our work. It does not foreclose any delegate or interested citizen from bringing his proposals before a committee to be heard either before November 21, which is the suggested deadline, or thereafter.

The proposal had not quite the unanimous support of the committee on rules and resolutions but there was only one dissent. I respectfully urge the adoption of the resolution.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I would like to ask Mr. Van Dusen if the committee gave any thought to the fact that since Thanksgiving comes on the twenty-third, it would seem as though a very logical time then for the last introduction of proposals should be our session of the twenty-second, rather than the twenty-first. It would just seem logical that way.

That would give right up until the Thanksgiving recess, in other words, for the introduction of proposals and I dare say that if you cut off all proposals the day before, I wonder what we are going to do in our session of the twenty-second.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Well, Mr. President and Mr. Hutchinson, the committee was impressed with the logic of the twenty-second and an amendment was offered to make it the twenty-second. The twenty-first was finally agreed upon, on the premise that if the proposals were introduced on the twenty-first, they would be printed and available to the delegates on the twenty-second, which would be the last day we would be here and those delegates who were diligent enough to wish to give consideration to proposals over the Thanksgiving recess would then have them available in print during that period. This was the only reason for the change.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I would like to make further inquiry along that line then. I wonder if we can make a proper assumption that a proposal introduced on the twenty-first would be duplicated and on the desks of all the members on the morning of the twenty-second. I don't notice that I've gotton very many proposals on my desk yet.

I wonder if there isn't going to be such a tremendous volume of them perhaps, in the last couple of days, that the duplicating staff might not be expected to be swamped and they might better have until the following week, actually, in order to get them cranked out.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, certainly the committee is not going to dispute the matter of one day with Mr. Hutchinson. Obviously his point is well taken. If the twenty-second would suit better, we are happy to go to the twenty-second. I have given you the reasons why we suggested the twenty-first and we don't feet particularly strongly about it.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Are you accepting the twenty-second?

MR. VAN DUSEN: I think it would have to be proposed as an amendment.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I will offer that as an amendment. Not that I feel particularly strong about it, but it does seem to me that that is quite likely to happen—that those that are introduced on the twenty-first are not likely to be available on the twenty-second. So why not cut it off just before the Thanksgiving holiday?

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The question is on the amendment offered by Mr. Hutchinson to committee amendment 1, as follows:

1. After "November" strike out "21" and insert "22".

That is the immediate question.

Mr. Upton.

MR. UPTON: Point of information. If this is passed, does that mean the whole amendment is passed?

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: No. This is simply an amendment to the amendment; and if this is adopted, we will then vote on the committee amendment, as amended; and if that is adopted, we will then vote on the resolution.

Correct, Mr. Secretary?

SECRETARY CHASE: Correct.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: Mr. President, a point of information. After you take your vote on the amendment, are you going to have further discussion on the resolution or are you going to proceed with the vote?

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: There will be opportunity for further discussion once we have acted on the amendment to the amendment.

MR. SNYDER: Thank you.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Those in favor say aye. Opposed?

The amendment to the amendment is adopted.

Now the question is on the amendment, as amended.

Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, I think the committee has worked with what is a difficult problem and it is almost like: which comes first, the chicken or the egg?

As I understand this, they tried to get a cutoff date so the delegates would move faster but at the same time, through the idea of a suggestion for revision, permit a delegate who gets an idea after studying proposals to come in with that at a later date.

I would like to say now that what I think are the principles we need are to have an orderly process and protect the minority of one who may have an idea at a later time. I think the rule comes awfully close to it and I have 2 questions I would like to ask the chairman of the committee through the Chair.

I think, first, after the orderly deadline for the official proposals, there should then be the right to present any idea to a committee, which I believe is incorporated in the concept of the suggestion for revision.

Secondly, there should be the right of the individual to get a discharge motion on this in case he feels that nothing is happening.

Thirdly, the right to speak.

And, fourth, the right for a recorded roll call vote.

I am therefore asking the chairman of the committee if this could be accomplished by 2 things—and I do not know if it is in order now.

The first would be that rule 56 which, as we amended it, says that the method for changing the constitution is a proposal or a committee recommendation, should be amended to include the term "suggestion for revision." I believe that if that were done, it would make it clear that if the suggestion for revision avenue were followed, that that would then have the same status as a proposal.

The second would be an amendment to what I believe is rule 34, which says the discharge motion can be made on a proposal. If that can be amended to include the term "suggestion for revision", I think we would then accomplish the dual purpose, which seems conflicting at times, of an orderly process, plus the right of the individual who gets an idea later to have it fully presented to the convention.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, in response to Mr. Downs' suggestions, both of which were considered in the rules committee, let me suggest this.

First, you've got to have rules of some sort, and at some point I suppose they pinch. We have attempted to take as much of the pinch out of this rule as possible, consistent with keeping it an effective aid to orderly procedure, and not just a statement of organized anarchy.

If a delegate has a proposal, a suggestion or a brilliant afterthought, he has 2 avenues of bringing it before the entire convention, as distinguished from just having it considered in the committee.

The first is a request that his proposal be introduced, numbered and printed in accordance with the first sentence of this rule, which requires that after November 22, no delegate proposal be introduced, numbered or printed except upon authorization of the convention.

Now, if his proposal is so meritorious—but he is the only one who thinks of it—that it ought to be given the dignity of a formal delegate proposal, then it seems to me his request to have it printed is an effective, complete substitute for a discharge motion because he would have the same opportunity to argue the merits on such a motion as he would on a discharge motion.

Second, and a far more likely remedy for a delegate who makes a suggestion to a committee which he wants to have brought before the entire delegation, is his remedy of having his suggestion incorporated as a part of a minority report, which requires only that he obtain the support of 3 members of a committee. And if a suggestion is so lacking in merit that it cannot obtain the support of 3 members of a committee to be incorporated in a minority report, printed in the journal, and presented as an amendment ahead of the majority report, then it seems to me that we are wasting the time of the convention in further considering it.

So my response to Mr. Downs is that all of these points have been thoroughly considered and it was the feeling of the rules committee that adequate remedies were present in the existing rules without further weakening the present rule structure.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Downs, the Chair would like to inquire as to whether you made a motion?

MR. DOWNS: As I understand, would it be in order to make an amendment to the amendment at this time? This would be amending rule 56 and rule 34.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: No, it would not be in order, Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: It would not be in order. All right.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. President, as the lone dissenter on that committee, I appreciate the remarks of our chairman, Mr. Van Dusen, and I certainly don't mind being pinched, but I don't like to be pinched when I first arrive someplace.

I say this: I think that we, being a deliberative body, have got a responsibility not only to our constituents back home, but to ourselves and our fellow delegates. It has been my impression during the short time that we have been here that there has been much knowledge disseminated amongst the delegates through the proposals as introduced formally.

I say this: I say that with the rule that we adopted, this Substitute for Resolution 10—and I was sorry to see Miss Donnelly drop her amendment as far as the delegates receiving the journals—I feel that there's going to be a lack of communication between the delegates. I feel that we are going to miss a lot of the action and a lot of the studies of individual delegates.

I do not feel that the research department will have sufficient time with this deadline of November 22 to come forth with studious reports covering the various phases of the constitution. For this reason, Mr. President, I'm against it and I urge my fellow delegates to vote against a set deadline at this particular time.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mrs. Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: I too, am somewhat reluctant to impose a November 22 deadline on the delegate proposals. Before this morning I might not have considered it too important a matter but something happened in the meeting of our local government committee this morning that I personally consider rather interesting in that I think it might indicate some of the problems we might possibly get into.

As a result of discussing a present provision in the constitution, we found ourselves involved in a completely new area, which as far as we can see is not covered in adequate form in the present constitution, and as nearly as we can tell there is a question about whether it might not require the attention of a special committee of some sort.

Our chairman appointed a subcommittee to consider this and our subcommittee is going to report back to the committee. Where it goes from there I'm not completely clear. Anyway, we hope it will be brought to the attention of the convention that this is an area, which in the opinion of at least some of us, requires some serious consideration.

And I don't think that, actually—I know for myself I never had considered this in regard to the constitution before. In regard to other matters, yes; but not in regard to the constitution. Yet I think it is something that we should think of.

And if you can get into a completely new area like that after only a couple of weeks, it might be that there are other things, too, that might require this kind of consideration. I think this is the type of trouble that we might get into if we were not able to continue our delegate proposals.

You have almost an automatic limit on your delegate proposals and that is because of the fact that the committee, in its discussion, isn't going to want to go back and discuss the same thing too many times. It would do well for anybody to get that material in fairly early if they wanted adequate consideration.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I would simply say, Mr. President, in response to Mrs. Cushman, that I completely agree with her concern for the newly discovered area of substantive matter, but I believe the rule as proposed fully contemplates and fully protects the consideration of it.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Mr. President, this proposed restriction either serves a purpose or it doesn't. If it does not serve a purpose, then we shouldn't consider it. If it does serve a purpose, then I am against it.

If the purpose is to restrict proposals from being made after the deadline, I'm against it. I think that this gives the opportunity and gives the advantage to those groups that have vested interests in this constitutional convention and puts at a disadvantage those of us who have come up here to do some deliberation and thinking about the various items before us.

Therefore, Mr. President, I would propose an amendment to change the deadline date to January 1.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Mr. President, I don't know whether that amendment is seconded. I wanted to speak to the most recently made amendment.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: It doesn't need to be seconded, Mr. Woolfenden, so the amendment is before us. Is that right, Mr. Secretary?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hodges has offered the following amendment to the committee's amendment:

1. Amend committee amendment 1 by striking out "November 22, 1961" and inserting "January 1, 1962", so the language will then read:

Resolved, That after January 1, 1962, no delegate proposal shall be introduced, numbered, or printed . . .

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Mr. President, if I may, I will address myself to that amendment because I think it goes to the heart of this motion.

I oppose the amendment and I am in favor of the resolution as it has come from the committee. I may say that I would be heartily in favor of going even further than the committee has or the authors of this resolution.

However, it does constitute a long step in the direction in which I sought to induce this convention to go with my Resolution 7. At the time that resolution was introduced, Dr. Nord referred to it or drew the analogy of a railroad and said he did not want to buy a ticket on the railroad.

I appreciate that analogy because I think it is very pertinent. I don't know whether Dr. Nord has had any administrative experience in running a railroad or any other business enterprise but I can say to you that a railroad that attempts to run without a timetable will not be a very successful railroad.

I can also say to you that if we try to operate this convention without any self imposed timetable, it's a heck of a way to run a railroad or this convention. I think it's vitally important that we, as a matter of self discipline, impose upon ourselves a timetable to get the job done.

The people of the state of Michigan are looking to the 144 delegates assembled here to get down to business and do a job expeditiously and I think that we will make an inexcusable mistake if we just drift along and do not set a timetable for our deliberations.

This is the first step in the timetable. I strongly support it. But I oppose the most recent amendment and I hope the delegates will go along with me.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: Thank you, Mr. President. I am in receipt of some conflicting information as presented by the committee and I would ask Mr. Van Dusen to clarify the matter for me.

At a meeting at luncheon yesterday with various members of the research department, we were advised that committee requests will have priority and precedence over the requests of an individual. In addition to that we were advised that there is a heavy backlog of research work already requested by some of the committees and therefore it may be several weeks before some of the delegate proposals can be acted upon.

In view of this information, does the committee still hold to the rationale that they advanced in supporting the proposition?

And, while Mr. Van Dusen is there, I certainly would like to know where he got that fancy holder for his papers. I think that could be used on all the microphones.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Dealing with the second question first, Mr. President, it simply appeared here Monday evening. I suspect that perhaps some of the administrative people might have thought this was a convenient spot for Dr. Nord to speak. (laughter)

Lest I be misunderstood, I would like to state that Dr. Nord is a very constructive member of the rules committee, and

I'm very grateful to have him on it and I hope the spirit of levity may be welcomed.

On the second point, I spoke with Dr. Joiner after your meeting yesterday, Mr. Snyder. He had been concerned about the matters which you expressed, and after consultation with his codirectors of research, had determined that it was important that staff help be made available on a priority basis to individual delegates; and he assured me that as of Monday, he would have 2 experienced assistant directors of research available on a full time basis for that particular aspect of the work.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Upton.

MR. UPTON: Mr. President, I know there is a great deal of concern among many delegates concerning this deadline. I also realize that it is necessary to have some kind of a target date to go forward. I know Mr. Hodges selected January 1 as an arbitrary date, just as the committee selected the November date. I feel that we should have more time, perhaps, to consider this date, and let us have more experience as to what is required in making proposals. Most of us haven't made a proposal and don't know what it consists of.

Therefore, to give us more time to consider this proposition, I would move to table this resolution for 2 weeks.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The question is on the motion to lay the resolution on the table. It is not debatable. The question is on the motion to table. Those in favor say aye. Those opposed? The ayes have it.

Resolution 21 is laid on the table until Thursday, November 9.

Does that complete the rules committee's recommendations?

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 4. The committee on rules and resolutions reports back to the convention Resolution 23, A resolution authorizing the appointment of a secretary's messenger; and recommends that the resolution be adopted.

For Resolution 23, as offered, see above, page 215.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: This resolution, Mr. President, has been offered on behalf of the committee on administration by its chairman, Dr. DeVries, and amends the table of organization by creating the position of messenger to the secretary.

The rules and resolutions committee supports it heartily.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The question is on the adoption of the resolution. Those in favor say aye. Opposed? The resolution is adopted.

Are there any further reports of standing committees?

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: If not, reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Yeager introduces

Delegate Proposal 1112, A proposal to amend the legislative apportionment sections of the constitution. Amends article V, sections 2, 3 and 4.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The proposal is referred to the committee on legislative organization.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Faxon, Wood and Gust introduce

Proposal 1113, A substitute proposal pertaining to the inclusion of section 1 of article XI in the constitution. Amends article XI, section 1.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The proposal is referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Lawrence introduces

Delegate Proposal 1114, A proposal relating to the method of nomination for certain judicial officers. Amends article VII, section 23.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Referred to the committee on judicial branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. W. F. Hanna introduces

Delegate Proposal 1115, A proposal for the organization of county government and the division of county government into an executive, legislative, and judicial branch. Amends article VIII by striking out that part which deals with counties and substituting new material.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Referred to the committee on local government.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. W. F. Hanna also introduces

Delegate Proposal 1116, A proposal to establish a county judicial system and to abolish justice of the peace and municipal courts. Repeals all references in constitution to justice of the peace courts.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Referred to the committee on judicial branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Downs, Marshall, Austin, Buback, Ford and Hodges introduce

Delegate Proposal 1117, A proposal to provide equality in state representative districts.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Referred to the committee on legislative organization.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Downs, Marshall, Austin, Buback and Douglas introduce Delegate Proposal 1118, A proposal to establish a system of proportional voting in the state senate.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Downs, Marshall, Austin, Buback, Ford and Hodges introduce

Delegate Proposal 1119, A proposal to provide equality in state senatorial districts.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Referred to the committee on legislative organization.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Faxon and Upton introduce

Delegate Proposal 1120, A proposal to empower the legislature to take recognition of religious holidays in fixing the date of elections. Amends article III, section 1.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Stevens introduces

Delegate Proposal 1121, A proposal relating to the appearance in person or by counsel in any court in this state. Amends article II, section 12.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Stevens introduces

Delegate Proposal 1122, A proposal to change the per centum of qualified and registered electors required on the petitions to amend the state constitution. Amends article XVII, section 2.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Referred to the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Stevens introduces

Delegate Proposal 1123, A proposal to provide for legislative control of certain delegated powers. Amends article V by adding a new section.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Faxon introduces

Delegate Proposal 1124, A proposal to create a state department of public instruction under authority of the state superintendent of public instruction. Amends article XI, section 2.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Referred to the committee on education.

That completes the introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that order, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. DeVries offers

Resolution 24, A resolution regulating interest group agents at the Michigan constitutional convention.

Following is the body of Resolution 24, as offered:

Resolved, That any person employed by a person, persons, firm, association, or corporation; or by board, department, or agency of Michigan, or any political subdivision thereof, to engage in promoting, advocating, or opposing any matter before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof, or who is employed expressly for the purpose of promoting, advocating, or opposing any matter which might come before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof, shall be considered an interest group agent within the provisions of this resolution; and be it further

Resolved, That the terms "advocating," "promoting," and "opposing" shall be construed to mean any act or acts, performed directly with a delegate to the constitutional convention, for the purpose of influencing him to vote or to use his influence for or against any matter before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof; and be it further

Resolved, That the provisions of this resolution shall not apply to any person who merely appears before a committee of the constitutional convention in support of or opposition to matters before the committee; nor to any public official acting in his official capacity who has been requested to appear before any committee of the convention; nor in the case of any newspaper, news media, regularly published periodical (including any individual who owns, publishes, or is employed by any such newspaper, news media, or periodical) which in the ordinary course of business publishes or broadcasts news items; editorials or other comments, or paid advertisements which directly or indirectly urge the passage or defeat on any constitutional provision, if such newspaper, periodical, news medium, or individual engages in no further or other activities in connection with the passage or defeat of such constitutional provision, other than to appear before a committee of the convention in support of or in opposition to such constitutional provision; and be it further

Resolved, That all persons who come under the definition of interest group agent cited in this resolution shall:

(1) register with the office of the president of the constitutional convention;

(2) state in writing and under oath his name, business address, and the name and address of the person, persons, firm, association, or corporation or board, department, or agency of the state of Michigan, or any political subdivision thereof, by whom he is employed and in whose interest he appears;

(3) state in writing the exact article(s) or section(s) of the constitution in which he, acting as interest group agent, is interested;

(4) keep and report a record of all expenditures made by himself or his employer or employees for the following purposes:

(a) total amount expended on mailings, advertising, publications, or other publicity efforts intended to influence the deliberations of the constitutional convention; and

(b) total amount expended on the entertainment of constitutional convention delegates and staff; and

(5) state the names of papers, periodicals, magazines, other publications, and broadcast stations, in which he has caused to be disseminated any reports, articles, or editorials; and be it further

Resolved, That each such person so registering shall file with the office of the president a report of the above described expenditures made during the preceding month between the first and fifteenth days of each month that the constitutional convention is in session, and the total amount expended during the convention within 30 days of the final adjournment; and be it further

Resolved, That all information required to be filed under the provisions of this resolution with the office of the president shall be available to the public and shall be compiled by the administrative assistant to the president; and be it further

Resolved, That all reports and statements required herein shall be made under oath; and be it further

Resolved, That all persons who are defined and/or registered as interest group agents within the provisions of this resolution who violate the provisions of this resolution, if so judged by the office of the president, shall be deemed in contempt of the constitutional convention. His name and that of the person, persons, firm, association, or corporation, or board, department, or agency of the state of Michigan, or any political subdivision thereof, shall be published in the action journal of the constitutional convention proceedings; and if registered as an interest group agent, his registration card shall be revoked.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only resolution on file Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The following notices of committee meetings:

The committee on administration will meet in the conference room of the president's office immediately after the session today. Walter DeVries, chairman.

The committee on rules and resolutions will meet in room I on Monday, October 30, immediately following the session. R. C. Van Dusen, chairman.

The committee on local government would like to announce that Mr. Eckhardt, chairman of the tax commission, will be a featured speaker at our next meeting, which will be held Tuesday, October 31, at 10:30 a.m., in committee room A. Anyone who is interested may attend. A. G. Elliott, chairman.

The committee on legislative organization will meet in room D, Tuesday, immediately following the session. John Hannah, chairman.

The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections will meet in room F today immediately following the session. J. Harold Stevens, vice chairman.

The secretary is in receipt of the following requests: from Delegate Snyder, a request to be excused from Monday's session; from Delegate Ford, to be excused from the session of Monday, October 30th, and Tuesday, October 31st; and from Delegate J. B. Richards, to be excused from Monday night's session of October 30th.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Without objection, the requests will be granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary has also been requested to call your attention to the fact that the coat racks for the delegates are now found in the mail room, saving you the necessity of going up and down the stairs.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, the committee on executive branch will meet in room C on Tuesday, at 10:30 a.m., and Governor Swainson will be here as a witness before the committee to discuss the executive branch.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I would just like to announce to those delegates who have resolutions pending before the committee on rules and resolution that we will attempt to hear any of you who wish to appear at our meeting Monday evening. I would suggest this does not obtain, however, with respect to Dr. DeVries, whose resolution was just introduced. We will take that up at a later session.

Secondly, there are a few scheduling changes on which I would like to meet very briefly back in the corner with the substantive committee chairmen immediately after the session.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary appoints, pursuant to authorization of Resolution 23, and with the approval of the committee on administration, William Doyle as secretary's messenger.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: Without objection, the appointment is approved.

What is the pleasure of the convention?

Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: I move we adjourn.

VICE PRESIDENT ROMNEY: The question is on the motion to adjourn, Those in favor, say aye. Those opposed, no.

The motion prevails. We are adjourned until Monday night at 8:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, and in pursuance of the order previously made, at 3:05 o'clock p.m., the Convention adjourned until 8:00 o'clock p.m., Monday, October 30, 1961.]

FIFTEENTH DAY

Monday October 30, 1961, 8:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

The invocation this evening will be given by Elder J. M. Nerness of the Seventh Day Adventist Church of Lansing.

ELDER NERNESS: Our Father, we thank Thee tonight for the providences of God which have served to bring together these dedicated delegates. We also pause in thanksgiving for the high privilege which is ours to live in this great land of liberty and opportunity where we may have the privileges and opportunities to discuss the kind of government under which we desire to live. Help us to realize that all this is ours because dedicated men in times past established principles of good government.

Bless this convention and their work tonight. May each delegate sense the importance of the service which he may now render to our beloved state. Help all to be continuously conscious of the fact that the decisions made here will have farreaching effects upon the lives of many in days to come.

May the welfare of the small be as precious as the interests of the great. Add Thy blessing to every sincere endeavor to improve the government of our state, for we ask in Jesus' name. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

Miss McGowan asks to be excused from tonight's session and from the session of tomorrow; Mr. Suzore wishes to be excused from tonight's session; and Mr. Seyferth asks to be excused from this evening's and tomorrow's sessions because of a special meeting of the city commission.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Mr. Allen, Mr. Ford, Miss McGowan, Mr. Norris, Mr. J. B. Richards, Mr. Seyferth, Mr. Snyder and Mr. Suzore.

Absent without leave: Mr. Bledsoe.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, Mr. Bledsoe is excused.

Ladies and gentlemen, there has been some discussion since the leaflet concerning income tax deductions was prepared and distributed last week by Secretary Chase. I have asked one of our delegates, Mr. Austin, if he would offer, this evening, some explanation of the deduction of expenses from federal income tax as this applies to the delegates at this convention.

Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. President and delegates, I realize that we should not take up too much of the delegates' time discussing personal income tax but I have to confess that I am enough of a ham to want to take advantage of this opportunity to do a little commercial for my profession. (laughter)

Each of you has been given an outline of the requirements for the deduction of expenses for the constitutional convention while living at or attending the constitutional convention.

I think the first point I should make is that the deduction of expenses for federal income tax purposes is a personal matter and it is very difficult to deal in generalities or to give categorical explanations for the deduction of federal income tax expenses. The deduction of expenses for federal income tax purposes depends almost entirely upon individual circumstances and conditions pertaining to your own situation, your relationship with your employer, the distance that you live from Lansing, and the nature of the requirement that you spend your nights in Lansing. If you will check the outline, which has been distributed, I shall attempt to review that briefly and then give some additional information which I hope will be helpful.

First of all, it is necessary to point out to you that this information was secured from the local representative of the Lansing office of the internal revenue service.

Delegates are entitled to claim living expenses for attendance at the convention for the days actually in session. The memo states that receipted hotel bills should accompany the claim. It is not necessary, certainly, for your hotel bills to accompany the income tax return which you will file but you should most certainly have them available in the event of an examination. Claims for meals also can be submitted for the same number of days. Here it is suggested that the delegates keep a notebook and a list of the amounts paid for each meal each day of the convention sessions. This will be acceptable to the internal revenue service.

As for mileage, each delegate is given a mileage reimbursement. If a delegate does not feel it is fair to claim any expense in addition to the amount for which he is reimbursed, he can completely ignore the reimbursement and ignore the expense. However, if a delegate feels that his expense exceeds the amount of the reimbursement, then he must report the reimbursement and then claim the expense for operating his automobile.

There are 2 ways in which this can be done. One is to use the per diem figures that are shown under paragraphs 3a or 3b of the memorandum. In the general claim for automobile expense for the year, estimate under business expense the per cent of the expense of the automobile for convention business. All that means is simply this, that you report the full amount of your automobile expense and deduct that portion which relates to your actual travel in connection with attending the constitutional convention.

Now here you must be very careful, because many of the trips that you will make between your home and Lansing will not necessarily be business expenses. For example, if you were to receive a telephone call from your home advising you that your mother in law has some instructions to give you and if you were to make the trip back home, there is no question that this is an ordinary and necessary expense—(laughter)—but I doubt very seriously that you can press your luck so far as to reasonably expect an internal revenue agent to be sympathetic about your attempt to deduct it. He may be sympathetic about your mother in law problem but I doubt whether he would be sympathetic toward allowing you to claim this expense as a deduction on your federal income tax return.

The last item mentioned in the memorandum is item 4, which says: "In any event, it would be advisable to confer with your own tax consultant."

This actually cannot be stressed too much because each of you, as an individual, has an individual problem that cannot be dealt with categorically. It is absolutely essential that you discuss the matter with your own consultant because you may have circumstances that are peculiar and the general rules perhaps will not apply.

The deduction of traveling expenses which are incident to traveling away from home overnight—the language of the regulations—is an individual matter for each delegate as I have indicated. Individual circumstances incident to service here in Lansing will be the determinants. Some of these determinants are:

A. The place of your residence and the requirement to be away from home overnight. Ordinarily, Lansing residents would not be allowed to deduct hotel expenses and cost of meals. As to how far you need to live away from Lansing before you would be able to deduct these expenses is a matter which again can be determined only by close examination of individual circumstances and is a matter that each of you will have to determine. There is the question of conscience; the question of circumstances; the question of how aggressive you and your consultant are in claiming expenses on your income tax return. There may be, however, circumstances under which even a resident of Lansing may be able to deduct overnight expenses. However, the circumstances would have to be peculiar and I don't mind telling you that the revenue agent will think they are mighty peculiar. (laughter)

B. Another factor to be taken into account is the relationship of your service here in Lansing to your regular employment. Now, this is rather important. For example, some delegates may be privileged to charge all expenses incurred here to their employer. Others may be continuing in full employment status at home and accounting to their employer for compensation received at the convention. There are any number of combinations that may be in operation for each of you and it is obvious that you need to sit down and check with your own consultant and your own employer in relation to your peculiar, individual circumstances.

Regulation 1.162-17 of the internal revenue code provides the rules that govern the substantiation of travel and other business expenses for federal income tax purposes. The rules that I am going to refer to do not apply to incidental expenses such as office expenses, office supplies, and so on. These pertain only to expenses incurred in relation to traveling away from home overnight. The expenses for which an employee is required to account to his employer need not be reported on his income tax return if a full and itemized account is made to the employer and where he is reimbursed the exact amount of his expenditures.

In other words, if you are reporting to your employer the amount of your expenses here and your employer is reimbursing you in dollar amounts for those expenses, you need not report either the reimbursement or the expenses on your income tax return.

Now, if you do not report to your employer, then, of course, you must report to the internal revenue service on your income tax return. You must report: (a) the total amount received; (b) the nature of your occupation; (c) the number of days away from home on business; and (d) the amount of the expenses, broken down into broad categories as to transportation, meals, lodging, entertainment and any other expenses that you incur.

With respect to the substantiation of expenses—and now I am quoting from the regulations:

> (1) Although the commissioner may require any taxpayer to substantiate such information concerning expense accounts as may appear to be pertinent in determining tax liability, taxpayers ordinarily will not be called upon to substantiate expenses, . . . if information is available under the following categories:
>
> (a) The taxpayer who is required to account to his employer is not required to report on his federal income tax return;
> (b) The taxpayer whose expenses exceed his reimbursement but who does not expect to receive reimbursement, is not required to report;
> (c) The taxpayer who has an "arm's length" arrangement with his employer and who makes a full report, is not required to report.

Now, who is required to report? That leaves:

> (a) Those who do expect to claim expenses in excess of reimbursement;
>
> (b) A related taxpayer;
> (c) A taxpayer whose employer has inadequate records.

That is, an employer whose accounting records are inadequate, even though there has been an accounting.

Referring once again to the regulations:

> (2) The internal revenue code contemplates that taxpayers keep such records as will be sufficient to enable the commissioner to correctly determine income tax liability. Accordingly, it is to the advantage of taxpayers who may be called upon to substantiate expense account information to maintain as adequate and detailed records of travel, transportation, entertainment, and similar business expenses as practical since the burden of proof is upon the taxpayer to show that such expenses were not only paid or incurred but also that they constitute ordinary and necessary business expenses.
> One method for substantiating expenses incurred by an employee in connection with his employment is through the preparation of a daily diary or record of expenditures, maintained in sufficient detail to enable him to readily identify the amount and nature of any expenditure, and the preservation of supporting documents, especially in connection with large or exceptional expenditures. Nevertheless, it is recognized that by reason of the nature of certain expenses or the circumstances under which they are incurred, it is often difficult for an employee to maintain detailed records or to preserve supporting documents for all his expenses.
> Detailed records of small expenditures incurred for travel or for transportation, as, for example, tips, will not be required.

And continuing the quotation drawn from the regulations:

> (3) Where records are incomplete or documentary proof is unavailable, it may be possible to establish the amount of the expenditures by approximations based upon reliable secondary sources of information and collateral evidence.

For example, in connection with an item of traveling expense a taxpayer might establish that he was in travel status a certain number of days but that it was impracticable for him to establish the details of his various items of travel expense. And again:

> A reasonable approximation of meals and lodging might be based upon receipted hotel bills or upon average daily rates for such accommodations and meals prevailing in the particular community for comparable accommodations.

And still further:

> In cases where a taxpayer is called upon to substantiate expense account information, the burden is on the taxpayer to establish that the amounts claimed as a deduction are reasonably accurate and constitute ordinary and necessary business expenses paid or incurred by him in connection with his trade or business.

There is one more point I should like to make before I conclude, and that is that some of you may have been under the misapprehension that you may have been able to claim per diem amounts in lieu of itemizing your expenses on your federal income tax return.

The regulations provide that where there is an accounting to an employer—if there is an agreement between the employee and the employer to pay a per diem allowance rather than require the employee to itemize his expenses—then the employee need not report the items on his income tax return.

But the main point to remember here is that there must be an accounting either on a per diem allowance basis or on the basis of an itemization to the employer to avoid any reporting on your income tax return.

In no event will you be permitted to use a per diem deduction on your income tax return, even though the amount of your per diem deduction is less than the maximum amount that would be allowed by the treasury in the event of reporting to the employer.

If we delegates were required to report our expenses to the convention and to then receive a separate payment for expenses, we could report per diem rates in lieu of itemization, provided of course. that the convention were willing to accept per diem accounting.

It is important to remember that we do not account to the convention for our expenses, either on a per diem basis or on the basis of itemization. Consequently, in reporting our expenses on our federal income tax returns, it is absolutely necessary that we report detail.

If we could find some way to persuade the secretary of the convention to enter into an arrangement whereby we could account to him on a per diem basis, we might be able to convince the treasury department that it should accept that per diem accounting as the basis for reporting.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Austin. It might be well to see that we adjourn well before income tax time so we will have plenty of time in which to complete our income tax returns. (laughter)

Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, submits the following report and recommends to the president for consideration as staff members of the constitutional convention:

Research assistants:
Mr. William Roe
Mrs. Mary Ruth Johnson
Mr. Robert Bolton
Mr. Joseph Cox.

Research consultants:
Dr. Ferrell Heady
Dr. Daniel McHargue.

Walter D. DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the recommendations will be concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The president appoints, pursuant to authorization by the convention and with the approval of the committee on administration, the aforenamed persons to the positions indicated.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the appointments will be approved. Hearing none, they are approved.

Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: The following are the proposals, Mr. President:

Mr. Douglas introduces
Delegate Proposal 1125, A proposal relating to homestead exemptions. Amends article XIV, section 2, and corrects Delegate Proposal 1095.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Dade, Downs, Mrs. Daisy Elliott and Mrs. Hatcher introduce Delegate Proposal 1126, A proposal on right to earn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Binkowski introduces Delegate Proposal 1127, A proposal to provide that the credit of the state may be granted only at the directive of a legislative act. Amends article X by adding a new section.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. A. G. Elliott and Hutchinson introduce Delegate Proposal 1128, A proposal to assure rights of citizens in matters of conscience. Amends article II by adding a new section.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Dade, Downs, Mrs. Daisy Elliott and Mrs. Hatcher introduce Delegate Proposal 1129, A proposal on right to spend.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Dade, Downs, Mrs. Daisy Elliott and Mrs. Hatcher introduce Delegate Proposal 1130, A proposal on right to learn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: That completes the proposals, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Dean Doty offers
Resolution 25, A resolution regulating interest group agents at the Michigan constitutional convention.

Following is the body of Resolution 25, as offered:

Resolved, That any person employed by a person, persons, firm, association or corporation; or by board, department, or agency of Michigan, or any political subdivision thereof, to engage in promoting, advocating, or opposing any matter before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof, or who is employed expressly for the purpose of promoting, advocating, or opposing any matter which might come before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof, in the interests of his employer or employers, shall be considered an interest group agent within the provisions of this resolution; and be it further

Resolved, That all persons who come under the definition of interest group agent cited in this resolution shall:

(1) register with the secretary of the constitutional convention;

(2) state in writing and under oath his name, business address and the name and address of the person, persons, firm, association, or corporation, or board, department, or agency of the state of Michigan, or any political subdivision thereof, by whom he is employed and in whose interest he appears; and

(3) state in writing the subject or subjects in which he, acting as interest group agent, is interested; and be it further

Resolved, That upon application, the secretary of the constitutional convention shall issue to the applicant hereunder, a certificate showing the name and business address of the person to whom such certificate is issued. Certificates issued by the secretary of the constitutional convention in accordance with the provisions of this resolution shall be prima facie evidence of compliance with the registration requirements hereof; and be it further

Resolved, That every interest group agent, or his employer, or an agent appointed by either, shall keep in his custody and control at an office in this state, the address of which shall be filed with the secretary of the constitutional convention, a record of all expenses incurred and paid pursuant to his employment as an interest group agent, together with records of all compensation payments to him for his services. All such accounts and records shall be produced by such interest group agent, or his employer, or an agent appointed by either, upon subpoena issued by a court of competent jurisdiction or by the constitutional convention; and be it further

Resolved, That any interest group agent who, in his capacity as such, has any financial transaction with any member of the constitutional convention, other than in the course of regular business, shall within 5 days from the date thereof, file a sworn statement with the secretary of the constitutional convention giving in detail the nature of the transaction together with the name of the delegate to the constitutional convention. If he fails to file such affidavit, he shall be guilty of a felony. Upon receipt of any such sworn statement, it shall be the duty of the secretary of the constitutional convention to forthwith furnish a copy of said statement to the delegate to the constitutional convention mentioned therein.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

Mr. Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. President, I am sure that we are all indebted to Delegate Austin for his splendid exposition on the subject of income tax reporting.

I should like to move that the committee on administration of this convention consider that report, which I assume has been taken verbatim, and if it thinks it would be useful, to in due course prepare a summary for distribution among all members of this convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Cudlip. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President, I am wondering whether I could ask Mr. Austin a question concerning a point which I do not believe he covered in his discussion of this subject.

This does not apply to me, Mr. Austin, but I assume perhaps there might be certain delegates who are retired individuals and who do not maintain a business of any nature at home. A question arises in my mind as to their right to claim any expenses while attending this convention.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. President, Mr. Hoxie, whether or not a delegate can claim expenses will depend upon whether he is in overnight travel status away from home. For example, if a delegate resides in Detroit and finds it necessary to spend 3 or 4 nights a week here in Lansing, he is certainly entitled to deduct his hotel expenses, his food, and any other expenses incident to living here in Lansing.

If a delegate lives in Lansing, it is very difficult to determine whether that delegate would have any expenses. However, even though a delegate resides in Lansing—even for a Lansing delegate—there may be an opportunity to deduct some expenses if, for example, it becomes necessary for that delegate to remain in the downtown area at the civic center during the evening, thus not being able to go home for dinner or other meals. In such circumstances, certainly the delegate would be able to deduct his supper expense.

There might be some other expenses incident to convention business which could be deducted even by delegates who reside in Lansing. It is just a matter of whether the delegate is incurring expenses in connection with earning his compensation here at the convention. That is the question that determines whether or not he will be able to deduct.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None on the calendar for today, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The following announcements have been filed with the secretary, Mr. President:

There is the following announcement of resignations and appointments by the president:

Committee on Education
Resigned: Robert Tubbs
Appointed: Richard Kuhn.

Committee on Miscellaneous Provisions and Schedule
Resigned: Paul Goebel
Appointed: Miss Ann Donnelly.

Committee on Public Information
Resigned:
George Romney
Charles Anspach
Karl Leibrand
William Gover
Appointed:
Miss Vera Andrus
Bert Heideman
Mrs. Anne Conklin
Committee member Mrs. Ella Koeze, first vice chairman to replace Mr. Romney.

Committee on Rules and Resolutions
Resigned: Arthur Iverson
Appointed: William Gover.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, those appointments will be approved. Hearing none, they are approved.

Further announcements?

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary again wishes to call to the attention of the delegates the desirability of going to the research and drafting department for the drafting of any proposals the delegates have in mind for introduction. If you will go there first, this will expedite the handling of proposals and will ensure their being drawn in correct form.

Mrs. Tucker, the secretary to the president, is making a contribution of a new Webster-Merriam dictionary to the convention library and is requesting that when the delegates visit the library they sign the flyleaf in the dictionary. When the convention is over, the dictionary will then be presented to the state library and, later on, will become a part of the museum having to do with the constitutional convention.

We have received the following notices of committee meetings:

The committee on legislative powers will meet in room H, October 31, tomorrow, at 3:00 p.m. T. Jefferson Hoxie, chairman.

The committee on administration will meet in the conference room, adjacent to the president's office, immediately following the session tonight. Walter DeVries, chairman.

The meeting of the subcommittee on amendment and revision, which was scheduled for Wednesday evening at 8:00 p.m., has been cancelled due to the fact that Dr. Pollock has been unexpectedly called to Washington for Wednesday.

The committee on education will meet in room J, on Tuesday, October 31, at 8:30 a.m.; on Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. and on Thursday at 3:00 p.m. Alvin M. Bentley, chairman.

The committee on finance and taxation will meet in room E tomorrow, Tuesday, at 8:30 a.m. Appearing before the committee will be Mr. Sanford Brown, state treasurer; Mr. F. M. McLaury of the department of administration. Subject: state expenditures. Also appearing will be Robert W. Armstrong, Harold Martelle and Ransom Richards of the Michigan state library association speaking on penal fines for libraries. Mr. D. Hale Brake, chairman.

The committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule will meet in room G tomorrow at 3:00 p.m. Mr. Claud Erickson, chairman.

There are on file with the secretary requests to be excused from the sessions of the convention, and if the delegates will observe this practice it will expedite the handling of these matters. If the delegates at the close of the day, knowing they are going to be absent from the session of the following day, will file a request for leave of absence from tomorrow's session, that will be in the journal prepared that night and such delegates will be in the excused category for the following day.

Mrs. Butler asks to be excused from the sessions of Thursday and Friday, November 2 and 3; Mr. McLogan wishes to be excused from the afternoon session of Wednesday, November 1, in order to fulfil a public speaking engagement; Mr. Everett asks to be excused from tomorrow's session, Tuesday; Mr. Marshall requests leave to be absent tomorrow at 2:00 o'clock because of the necessity for him to attend a meeting of the civil defense advisory council.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, those requesting to be excused will be excused. Hearing none, they are excused.

SECRETARY CHASE: Those are all the items on the secretary's desk, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further announcements? If not, that concludes the business of the day.

Mr. Pugsley.

MR. PUGSLEY: I move that the convention adjourn, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Judge Pugsley moves that the convention adjourn. The question is on the motion. Those in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails and the convention stands adjourned until Tuesday, October 31 at 2:00 p.m.

[Whereupon, at 8:35 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m. Tuesday, October 31, 1961.]

SIXTEENTH DAY

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1961, 2:00 O'CLOCK P.M.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation today will be given by the Reverend W. Milton Lowery, pastor of Bethany Baptist Church, Lansing.

REVEREND LOWERY: O God, our heavenly Father, we thank Thee for this occasion. We thank Thee for Thy presence. May Thou make Thy presence known in the heart of each one present.

We supplicate Thy assistance to inspire our deliberations in these hours as we come together.

Assist us to a higher realization of the reality of life and a better understanding of our relationship to Thee. May we find a true love of Christ in our lives as we relate ourselves one to the other.

O God, bless our nation, bless our state, and bless us individually. Help us to better learn to live with men.

We thank Thee, heavenly Father, for Thy blessings. We thank Thee for wealth, for health and for happiness. We thank Thee for the power of Thy will that is performed through Thy creatures and placed upon them.

We seek Thy divine guidance this day in all that we undertake to glorify Thy name.

Unto Thee be the honor, the power and the glory, for it is in Jesus' name we pray. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? If so, the secretary will lock the machine. You may now clear your voting machines.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Absent with leave: Miss McGowan and Messrs. Everett, Ford, Marshall and Seyferth.

Absent without leave: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: As your president, ladies and gentlemen, I have been proud of the way in which the delegates of this convention are working in their committees.

I realize that because of the frequency of committee meetings and the volume of work they are carrying forward some of them may from time to time miss some of the discussion that takes place in various other committees.

Therefore, until such time as the committees are ready to report, we have asked the chairmen of the committees to make brief reports to the convention under the order of reports of standing committees on the basis of 2 of them reporting each day on the progress of their work, so that all of the delegates will have some idea of what is going on in the other committees.

We are fortunate to have Dr. Pollock, as chairman of the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections to present our first progress report.

Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: Mr. President and delegates, on behalf of the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections, I should like to make a very brief progress report.

Our committee, consisting of 15 very able, hardworking members, after some difficulty about having a fixed committee room, and securing a clerk, a typewriter and a filing cabinet, and all the other difficulties under which the committees have been operating, has been able, finally, to get down rather seriously to the work assigned to it.

We decided that naturally we have 2 principal areas of work. The first of these deals chiefly with article II and everything related to the bill of rights. The second field is that of suffrage and elections.

We have reviewed, with the assistance of members of the committee who themselves have considerable expertness in this field, the various leading problems with which the committee will have to deal.

We have already been successful in identifying the principal problems in both fields, and having done that we are now beginning to go through, section by section, the relevant portions of the constitution. Thus far we have completed our preliminary discussion and examination of the first 6 sections of article II and at each meeting we are proceeding to go forward with that assignment. When we have finished our preliminary discussion of the original sections — bringing up in the course of that preliminary discussion certain proposals which have relevance — we then, of course, will begin to put these decisions of the committee into final language.

I might say that the committee has been very fortunate in having the services of Dr. Kelly, one of the codirectors of research, who leads off by putting each one of these problems in an excellent setting not only historically, but legally, thus enabling the committee members to have something very definite, in addition to their own work, on which to base their discussions.

I cannot give any prediction as to how long this work is going to take, Mr. President, but within a few weeks we should be able at least to finish the preliminary consideration of half of our job, and then we will get down to elections.

We have called a few people before us but not very many. If there are any others who desire to testify, including the delegates, some of whom have expressed their desire to testify, I would be glad to hear from them.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Dr. Pollock.

Our second report today is on the committee on legislative organization, by the chairman, Dr. Hannah.

MR. J. A. HANNAH: Mr. President and delegates, this too, will be a brief report of the work done to date by our committee on legislative organization.

I should like to start off by making it clear at the outset that I did not particularly request the assignment as chairman of this committee, but I am pretty optimistic about the work the committee is doing and about the results I am sure the committee is going to accomplish before we are finished.

I can say about my committee, as Professor Pollock said about his, that it is a good committee made up of dedicated persons only interested — I hope and I believe — in doing the best they can with a very difficult assignment.

We are in the process of educating ourselves to learn all that we can about the background information that we must have in order to do an intelligent job based on facts and the historical experience in Michigan as well as on the experience in other states and on other appropriate factors.

We have been meeting every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for 2 hours each day and we have had appear before us, at our invitation, a number of able people, such as Professor Adrian, director of urban development, Michigan State University. Professor Adrian appeared before us to review the historical background of our present basis for legislative representation. Professor Shull of Wayne State University appeared before the committee to review, among other things, the advantages and disadvantages of a unicameral versus a bicameral legislature. Mr. Sneeringer of the state chamber of commerce who, with Professor Shull, was an author of the citizens research council reviews and proposals for representation in 1952 and in 1953. Professor Thaden, a distinguished demographer, who reviewed with us population trends in Michigan and probable trends of the future. And Dean Combs, who has discussed various factors with us.

Today, Professor Press and Professor Garfinkel will review the experience of other states in dealing with reapportionment in recent years. Others have been invited to appear tomorrow. On Thursday, Dean Combs will present charts reflecting the present basis of representation, applied to the 1960 census. Next Tuesday, Professor Pollock will give us his views.

Our plans beyond that are tentative, but we are planning, about a week from tomorrow, to begin having appear before the committee those with announced positions or suggestions, including Judge Creighton Coleman of Marshall, Gus Scholle, and others.

We invite the names of delegates who wish to appear before us, and of those persons in the state whom you think have views that should be presented to the committee, before we begin to give serious consideration to any definite proposal.

I am sure I speak for our entire committee in saying that it is our intention, and we hope it is the intention of all the delegates, to be concerned, first of all, with the best interests of the almost 8 million people now living in Michigan, and the additional millions who will be living here in the decades ahead, and to be willing to submerge the purely local, or prejudiced, or partisan, view.

If the delegates wish to keep posted on some of the things to which our thinking and attention are being directed, I invite them to visit room D. This is the meeting room of our committee.

Delegates will find on the wall of committee room D a number of charts that set out certain figures and that are extremely interesting. Four of the charts set out information on the following subjects:

(a) Congressional districts;
(b) House of representatives districts;
(c) Senatorial districts; and
(d) Population trends.

It may surprise some of the delegates, as it surprised some of our committee members, to know that there are very substantial inequities in some areas of the state. A great many people start with the notion that the basic inequity is an under representation for the people in the southeastern portion of Michigan and the big cities, and basically an over representation for the people in the rural parts of the state.

Essentially that is true, but there are 3 representative districts in Wayne county that are among the 10 smallest in population — Wayne 14 and Wayne 15 (that is, Highland Park and Hamtramck) and one of the city districts of Detroit, district 11, which has an average of just over 37,000 people, according to the present census, per representative.

At the other end of the spectrum, some of the most under represented districts are also in Wayne county. The largest single representative district, population wise, in the state is Wayne 21 with 188,000. Wayne 19 has 179,000, Macomb 2, 172,000, and Oakland, 151,000.

I will not bore you further with those details.

When you get into the senate, of course, it is recognized that there are several factors that perhaps should receive consideration. The committee has not as yet given consideration to all those factors to which consideration should perhaps be given, but there does exist a chart which outlines the 1960 population of all the senatorial districts of the state and, of course, the most under represented district is Oakland county with 690,000 people and a single senator. The smallest senatorial district in the state is district 32 with a population of 55,806.

There is a wide variation in the 7 senatorial districts in Wayne county, varying from a low of 246,000 to a high of 647,000 people in the same county.

Naturally, while we are concerned with equitable representation, taking into consideration all of the state, we are also concerned with equitable representation within counties, or regions, or areas, or cities.

I have already requested the president of the convention to give consideration to referring either to our committee, or jointly to our committee, a proposal that has already been introduced with reference to the population in congressional districts. That, of course, is not a matter of legislative organization, but when you are dealing with the matter of reapportionment and representation, it is a little difficult not to be somewhat concerned with equitable distribution so far as the congressional districts are concerned.

I think you would be interested in knowing that some of the smallest populations in congressional districts in this state are in Wayne county, and the very largest one is in Wayne county, as well. District 1 — congressional district 1 in Wayne county had a population in 1960 of 283,000 people, whereas congressional district 16 had a population in 1960 of 802,994 people in the same county. Our committee feels that this, too, is a matter with which it is somewhat concerned.

Now, just one other bit of information. In this very interesting material that Professor Thaden has already furnished to us — of course, this has to do with not only the past, but with predictions for the future — because if we are going to come up with some new basis of representation, the concern is not only adequate representation in 1960, but in 1970, 1980, 1990, — a basis for equitable representation as we go down the road. This material gives, among other things, the percentage of population for each county in the state, on the basis of the 1960 census, and indicates what these figures were in 1950, 1940, 1930, 1920 and 1910.

The material also sets out some predictions as to what the percentage of the population of Michigan is likely to be in every county in the state in 1970, 1980 and 1990. Now, of course these are to a degree, crystal ball predictions because there are other factors which cannot be foreseen which will change these predictions and affect the pattern, but the committee is concerned with all the material it can acquire. We are interested, even in relevant material produced by various commercial interests in the state.

I have already talked too long. I should say in conclusion: up until now the committee has been, and for the balance of this week and on next Monday the committee will be, concerned with self education. About Wednesday of next week — a week from tomorrow — we will begin to hear from those who have specific proposals. It will vastly assist us in the intelligent planning of our work if you will let us know if you wish to be heard by the committee or if you have others whom you think we should hear.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you very much, Dr. Hannah.

Tomorrow we will hear progress reports from Mr. T. Jefferson Hoxie, chairman, committee on legislative powers, and from Mr. John B. Martin, chairman, committee on executive branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on rules and resolutions, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 13, A resolution relative to students visiting the convention; without amendment, and with the recommendation that the resolution be referred to the committee on public information.

R. C. Van Dusen, chairman.

For the body of Resolution 13, see above, page 180.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, delegates, the substance of this resolution is that the convention would do well to provide a means for coordinating the visits of students who come to see our work, and to assist them to make their visit more meaningful.

The committee felt that the resolution had merit but that certain technical amendments were desirable. The general subject of those amendments and their detail falls more within the province of the committee on public information.

We therefore respectfully move that the resolution be referred to that committee.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the recommendation of the committee that the resolution be referred to the committee on public information. Is there any discussion?

If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in. The resolution is referred to the committee on public information.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on rules and resolutions, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 14, A resolution to establish a speakers bureau; without amendment, and with the recommendation that the resolution be referred to the committee on public information.

R. C. Van Dusen, chairman.

For the body of Resolution 14, see above, page 191.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Here again, Mr. President, the committee felt the resolution had merit, but that its execution fell largely within the domain of the committee on public information. We felt that the committee on public information should have a look at this resolution before it was presented on the convention floor.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the recommendation of the committee that Resolution 14 be referred to the committee on public information. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

It is concurred in, and the resolution is referred to the committee on public information.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on rules and resolutions, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 17, A resolution relating to the televising of our proceedings; without amendment, and with the recommendation that the resolution be referred to the committee on administration.

R. C. Van Dusen, chairman.

For the body of Resolution 17, see above, page 194.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, this is a matter on which the committee on administration has already held some hearings and to which it has devoted some time and consideration.

We felt it might appropriately consider this resolution along with the others presented to the committee on administration.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the recommendation of the committee that this resolution be referred to the committee on administration. Any discussion? If not all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in, and the resolution is referred to the committee on administration.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on rules and resolutions, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 19, A resolution relative to inclusion of delegates' names in the Michigan Manual; without amendment, and with the recommendation that the resolution be referred to the committee on administration.

R. C. Van Dusen, chairman.

For the body of Resolution 19, see above, page 196.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, here, in the course of our discussions concerning the resolution, we learned that the secretary of state advises that to include the names of the delegates to this convention in the current edition of the Michigan Manual, as proposed by the resolution, would involve an appropriation of $5,000 which would have to come from our contingency fund.

The committee on rules and resolutions makes no recommendation whatsoever in respect to the substance of this resolution, but feels, in view of the fact that it involves an appropriation, it should be reviewed by the committee on administration.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the recommendation of the committee that this resolution be referred to the committee on administration. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in, and the resolution is referred to the committee on administration.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on rules and resolutions, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 15, A resolution inviting foreign students to our convention; with amendment, recommending that the amendment be agreed to and that the resolution be referred to the committee on public information.

R. C. Van Dusen, chairman.

The following is the resolution:

Whereas, The work of this convention has received national and international attention; and

Whereas, There are many nations in the world today which face a task similar to our own here; and

Whereas, There are many foreign students attending schools in Michigan; and

Whereas, These students will be the future leaders in their respective countries; now therefore be it

Resolved, That this convention extend an invitation to these students to attend our meetings and meet our delegates in order that they may better their understanding of our American democratic process in action.

The following is the amendment recommended by the committee:

1. Amend the resolving clause, line 3, after "action" by inserting a semicolon and "which invitations shall be prepared for the president's signature and disseminated as soon as possible by the committee on public information".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment. Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, the committee felt that this resolution had great merit and that it was of some importance that we make those foreign students who are presently attending our Michigan high schools and universities feel particularly welcome in observing our proceedings.

We felt that the execution of this resolution also logically fell within the field of the committee on public information.

We have proposed this simple amendment which implements, to some extent, the resolution, and then we propose that the entire resolution be referred to the committee on public information.

I should think that first we should ask the convention to approve the amendment which the committee on rules and resolutions has recommended.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment just read by Secretary Chase. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

It is adopted.

The question is now on the recommendation of the committee that this resolution be referred to the committee on public information. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

It is concurred in. The resolution, as amended, is referred to the committee on public information.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on rules and resolutions, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 18, A resolution for the compilation of all suggestions and recommendations that are statutory in character for forwarding to the legislature; with amendments, recommending that the amendments be agreed to and that the resolution, as thus amended, be adopted.

R. C. Van Dusen, chairman.

Following is the resolution:

Whereas, In the process of presenting and evaluating proposals, many suggestions and recommendations emerge as statutory and discretionary matter for the legislature rather than as constitutional in nature; and

Whereas, Such suggestions and recommendations may have merit for statutory enactment; and

Whereas, It would be helpful if it be known to the public that even if many suggestions are regarded by the convention as statutory and not constitutional, such suggestions could nevertheless be consolidated and forwarded to the legislature; now therefore be it

Resolved, That suggestions and recommendations that are regarded by the committees and the convention as being statutory rather than constitutional in character be compiled and organized in a formal fashion as the convention proceeds for forwarding to the legislature upon conclusion of the convention.

The following are the amendments recommended by the committee on rules and resolutions:

1. Amend the third whereas clause, line 2, after "by the" by striking out "convention" and inserting "committees".

2. Amend the resolving clause, line 2, after "committees" by striking out "and the convention", so that the final clause, as amended, would read:

Resolved, That suggestions and recommendations that are regarded by the committees as being statutory rather than constitutional in character be compiled and organized in a formal fashion as the convention proceeds for forwarding to the legislature upon conclusion of the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, both of these amendments have the same purpose.

The committee on rules and resolutions felt that the resolution proposed by Mr. Norris had merit and that we should, as suggestions and proposals are made to the convention which are regarded as statutory in character, make a record of them and transmit them to the legislature for the information of the legislature.

We felt, however, as was perhaps implied by the language of the resolution, that to require the convention to make some determination as to whether a proposal was statutory in nature, as distinguished from constitutional, might unduly clutter our docket and our calendar, and that therefore we could leave to the committees, in their consideration of the proposals referred to them, the responsibility for determining whether a particular matter was statutory and therefore should be forwarded to the legislature.

The committee recommends the adoption of the amendments.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the amendments. Any discussion?

Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Point of information, Mr. President.

Does this resolution contemplate that the committees would indicate in any way their feeling on the recommendations that are made?

My understanding is that it only contemplates their indication of the fact that this is legislative matter, but that it does not contemplate any indication as to whether or not they think these particular suggestions are of value.

Would Mr. Van Dusen care to comment?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Your understanding is correct, Mr. Martin.

The understanding of the committee in recommending adoption of the resolution was that the convention would not presume to suggest to the legislature that any of these suggestions should receive favorable consideration, but only would indicate to the legislature that we thought they might be interested.

MR. MARTIN: It seems to me, that many of these suggestions are suggestions which come up in connection with and are related to matters which are being considered for inclusion in the constitution, and that the committees have a fine opportunity to consider whether or not at least certain of these have merit.

I think it would be of some value to the legislature and to the people of the state if the committees were to indicate, in passing on such recommendations, if they so desire, their feeling as to whether or not these are good recommendations.

Obviously, this would not be binding on the legislature in any way, in my opinion.

This morning in our committee we had advanced 2 or 3 suggestions which seemed to various members of the committee to make rather good sense. I would feel it was not only useful but desirable that we indicate, when we pass on some of these suggestions, whether or not they are of value.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I do not desire to speak on the amendments, but, I do desire to speak on the resolution after the amendments are adopted and before the resolution is acted upon.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendments proposed by the committee. Any further discussion?

Mr. Austin.

MR. AUSTIN: Mr. President, I would like to support Delegate Martin's suggestion.

I do so because there are some sections of the constitution that include what some of us may think of as legislative matter at this time. For that reason we may propose suggestions or advance proposals that will eliminate from the constitution certain legislative material.

At that time it would seem appropriate to indicate in some way to the legislature that it will be necessary to introduce legislation to take the place of this material that we take out of the constitution.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I might suggest to both Mr. Martin and Mr. Austin that there is nothing in the resolution which would preclude a committee from making such recommendations to the legislature as it chooses to. Neither is there anything in the resolution which would require a committee to make any recommendation.

I think, therefore, the opportunity which Mr. Austin and Mr. Martin seem to think desirable is present now in the language of the present resolution. There is nothing here that would preclude it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendments. Is there any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendments are adopted.

The question is now on the resolution as amended.

Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, simply for the record, I should like to ask Mr. Van Dusen a question in order to clear up this matter.

The recommendation is that all of this material is to be transmitted to the legislature. I do not know how voluminous this material might be, but let me ask this question. Is it the intention that enough copies would be prepared so that every member—every one of the 144 members—would receive it in toto? Or would it be transmitted addressed to the president of the senate and the speaker of the house?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Well, Mr. President, I think that matter would be largely within the province of the committee on administration.

However, in view of the size of our contingency fund, it would appear to me at the moment as though we should probably transmit this statutory material to the president of the senate and the speaker of the house and if the president of the senate and the speaker of the house deem it of such merit that they wish to have it duplicated for all their members they could do so.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Thank you, Mr. Van Dusen. I think that clears the matter on the record.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. King.

MR. KING: Mr. President, I would like to move to amend this resolution in such a way as to incorporate the ideas expressed by Mr. Martin and Mr. Austin. I think the idea they advanced is very deserving of consideration.

I think that the legislature is entitled to the benefit of our thoughts, or the thoughts of the committees, with respect to these various matters. I recognize, of course, that our recommendations would have no binding effect upon the legislature. We all realize that. However, I do think it would be helpful if the legislature knew what our thinking was.

I would, therefore, move to so amend. I do not have before me a copy of the resolution and therefore I am unable to put my amendment in writing.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. King, I think, according to our rules, your amendment should be presented in writing. Are you able to do that now?

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I should like to speak to Mr. King's point.

Last evening in the committee we had before us another resolution which dealt, I think, very closely with the kind of material he has in mind, suggesting that the constitution be drafted in 2 forms, one essentially constitutional and the other accompanying it to be substantially statutory and implemental in nature.

I think the resolution which we have before us—and perhaps Mr. Norris, who is its author, should address himself to this point—deals with that broad mass of statutory material which may or may not be related, directly, to the constitution as we ultimately propose it. I believe, to that extent, it is going to be somewhat presumptuous of this convention to suggest to the legislature that they should enact a law dealing with something completely outside our province.

There are likely to be, however, other matters dealt with in the constitution which require direct implementation through legislation which should be accompanied not only by our suggestions but by our recommendations.

I suggest for the consideration of Mr. King and also of Mr. Martin and Mr. Austin that perhaps the suggestion which they have in mind might more appropriately be made the subject matter of a separate resolution, rather than an amendment to this one.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Mr. President, like Delegates Martin and Austin, I believe that perhaps some of the most profound thinking that has been done for a long time in the state of Michigan with respect to these subjects will be done by this convention in relation to the many items that will come before it.

I think we would be losing a great deal if the important and constructive thinking on the part of the members of this convention and its committees were not transmitted to the legislature by some means.

I would, therefore, at this time move to refer this resolution back to the committee in order to have them come up with a resolution in amended form in language consistent with Mr. Martin's suggestion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Hodges to rerefer.

Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. President, I would speak against that motion of Mr. Hodges, for this reason. I believe that the language that is sought would be better left out. That is to say, the resolution ought to be adopted as it is.

My reason for stating that, is this. While we may more or less accidentally in our committee work come across material which we feel we do not wish to act upon but which we feel the legislature might like to know about, I think we should be very careful not to invite such material to be brought here.

If we were to state, point blank, in a resolution that material which comes before us which is statutory in nature will be considered by us and that we will make recommendations in regard to it even though we make clear that we will not always do that, I have the feeling—perhaps it is just a hunch—that a lot of people will waste our time bringing before us material which they know is statutory, and which we know is statutory, and which, although they and we may think is good material, we might not wish to consider and make recommendations in regard thereto.

It seems to me, therefore, that the best thing to do is to leave the resolution as it now stands, and leave it to the discretion of each committee. If they come across something concerning which they wish to make a recommendation, they should be free to do so, but let us not invite a flood of extraneous matter.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Hodges to rerefer this to the committee.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I would simply like to say that I concur completely with the remarks just contributed to this discussion by Dr. Nord.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further discussions? The question is on Mr. Hodges' motion. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion to rerefer does not prevail.

The question now is on the adoption of the resolution as amended. Any further discussion? All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The resolution, as amended, is adopted.

Following is Resolution 18 as amended and adopted:

A resolution for the compilation of all suggestions and recommendations that are statutory in character for forwarding to the legislature.

Whereas, In the process of presenting and evaluating proposals, many suggestions and recommendations emerge as statutory and discretionary matter for the legislature rather than as constitutional in nature; and

Whereas, Such suggestions and recommendations may have merit for statutory enactment; and

Whereas, It would be helpful if it be known to the public that even if many suggestions are regarded by the committees as statutory and not constitutional, such suggestions could nevertheless be consolidated and forwarded to the legislature; now therefore be it

Resolved, That suggestions and recommendations that are regarded by the committees as being statutory rather than constitutional in character be compiled and organized in a formal fashion as the convention proceeds for forwarding to the legislature upon conclusion of the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, on a point of inquiry, what did we just do? Did we adopt that resolution? I thought it was to be referred to the committee on administration.

MR. NISBET: Mr. Chase.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee report contained a recommendation that the amendments be agreed to and that the resolution, as thus amended, be adopted.

MR. HUTCHINSON: I beg your pardon—I was thinking of another one. I stand corrected.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, perhaps I might make this comment. I think the committee has passed the buck so often that Mr. Hutchinson felt we were going to do it all the time. (laughter)

This completes the report of the committee on rules and resolutions for today, Mr. President.

For the information and benefit of all delegates, I should like to state that our next meeting will be next Monday night, following the session, at which time we will consider the resolutions offered by Dr. DeVries and Mr. Dean Doty with respect to the regulation of legislative agents appearing before the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Perhaps I should offer a word of explanation, Mr. President.

The reason I went off on a tangent here was that in answer to an inquiry I made Mr. Van Dusen suggested it was a matter that probably the committee on administration would have to consider, as to whether they were going to prepare 144 copies or only one.

This is why I left the microphone thinking it was going to go to that committee.

The fact of the matter is that I went over and was so bold as to suggest to Mr. King that since the matter was going to go back and come before the convention once more, after having been considered by the committee on rules and resolutions, he could let the matter he raised go until then.

I misadvised him, and I am sorry for that. If he wishes to move to have the first matter raised reconsidered, I advise him that he would be in order.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on legislative powers, by Mr. Hoxie, chairman, reports Delegate Proposal 1061, A proposal relative to granting powers to the legislature. Amends article VI, section 22; with the recommendation that the proposal be referred to the committee on executive branch.

T. Jefferson Hoxie, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the recommendation of the committee. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

It is concurred in and Delegate Proposal 1061 is referred to the committee on executive branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, submits the following report and recommends the adoption of the following procedures on calling and reimbursing witnesses and special consultants:

It has become clear that some standardized procedure on committee witnesses is highly desirable. The following is a proposed mode of standardizing procedure thereto:

Committee witnesses and special consultants, in fact, fall into 2 categories:

1. Those who appear before a committee to testify as technical experts in response to a specific committee request; and

2. Those who appear before a committee on their own initiative or request or in response to some general committee invitation.

Category (1.) usually will require payment to the witness or consultant.

Category (2.) will not require payment to the individual in question.

The codirectors of research suggest that all committee requests for witnesses or consultants in category (1.) be channelled to them by committee chairmen. The director on duty will discuss and agree with the chairman on an appropriate fee, where necessary, and whether it is to be paid as a single sum or on a per diem basis.

The director will then "log" the committee request and report it to the executive committee of the administration committee.

This arrangement will make it possible to keep budget control over committee witnesses' and consultants' expenditures, to prevent gross inequities in fees and comparative committee expenditures, and to avoid "crossed wires" where 2 or more committees may be interested in the appearance or services of the same witness or consultant.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move the adoption of this report, and make these explanatory remarks.

We have a very limited budget of $6,000 for the calling of witnesses.

I address these words to all delegates: if you can obtain an expert without a fee or without the payment of expenses, we would appreciate it and it would help our budgetary problem immensely.

We would suggest to the convention that it adopt this report in the calling of all witnesses.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in of the recommendation.

Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Point of information: is this retroactive for those people who have already testified?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Hodges, my understanding is that nothing in this convention is retroactive, neither salaries, expenses nor fees.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further discussion? The question is on concurring in the recommendation. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

It is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, submits to the convention for its information the following policy statement regarding the staff of the constitutional convention: . . .

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move that we consider this report read and have it printed in the journal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is now on the motion of Dr. DeVries. Any discussion?

Without objection, the report will be considered read and published in the journal.

Following is the body of the foregoing report, as submitted:

To the staff of the constitutional convention:

We welcome you as an employee and staff member of the Michigan constitutional convention. For the next several months you will combine your talents and efforts with others to give service to the citizens of Michigan and provide assistance to 144 duly elected delegates.

It is essential that in order to derive greatest benefit from the appropriation for the convention, made by the state legislature, that we work in harmony and as a team. It is vital that high standards of both workmanship and attitude be maintained, and only through your wholehearted cooperation can we attain this objective.

While it is not the intention of this brochure to stereotype or standardize your conduct, certain minimum requirements must be outlined and we solicit your earnest cooperation in their observance. The following have been established for your guidance:

Remuneration and hours of service

Salary and wage scales approved by the convention were set higher than levels in commensurate governmental service. In arriving at these salary scales, the delegates took into consideration that no training period would be involved and employees would perform from the start at almost optimum efficiency. It should be clearly understood that because of the complexity of work assignments no standard hours can be set, and no overtime payments will be made. Every effort will be made to work reasonable and predetermined hours but because committee reports often must be prepared on short notice prior to convention sessions, work assignments can vary from time to time. Limitations on the availability of office equipment can also affect scheduling.

The hours of the staff, unless otherwise directed by the office of the president, shall be:

Monday—1:00 p.m. until the convention adjourns.

Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday—9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. or such time as the convention may adjourn after 5:00 p.m.

The convention staff may be required to work additional hours if so directed by the office of the president or committee chairmen. A one hour lunch period will be permitted each day at a time convenient with the business of the convention.

Employees will be paid twice a month on the first and fifteenth days. For bookkeeping purposes each half month is considered 15 days. Deductions for unauthorized absences will be computed on the basis of 1/15 of a pay for each day involved.

Attendance

Due to severe limitations on the size of staff, good attendance is mandatory. Unexcused absences and frequent tardiness can be basis for dismissal by the president.

Every reasonable effort will be made to accommodate an employee's request for excuse from work because of extenuating personal circumstances.

Confidence

While all business of the convention is open, delegates themselves want to report out their programs to the convention. For this reason, no employee will be permitted to discuss the work given him by one delegate with another delegate or person. All communications between delegates and staff shall be considered confidential. An employee will be expected to exercise normal routine security procedures to assure confidence and this includes safekeeping of reports and other documents while unattended and proper disposal of memos, notes and wastepaper.

Personal behavior, attitude, and appearance

The public will judge us by our conduct, personal appearance and courtesy. With pressures from many sources (and the pressures will compound as the convention progresses) self restraint and personal control must be exercised at all times. An intelligent, courteous attitude under even the most trying circumstances is expected and will be appreciated by the public.

Staff members shall not smoke on the convention floor, in the hallways or in the delegates' lounge.

The sergeant at arms, assistant sergeants, guides and pages shall wear their uniforms during working hours.

Parking

Parking spaces for 150 cars have been provided for the use of the delegates. Only convention delegates and those approved by the president shall be allowed to park their cars in the delegates' parking area.

Duties

There may not be a clearcut definition of duties and work assignments at all times. The staff will be expected to be flexible and to fill in for unusual and emergency situations. Efforts will be made to keep duties from overlapping wherever possible and the origin of authority will be limited to avoid confusion. Prime authority flows from the office of the president, but for practical reasons, if there is any conflict of assignment, contact the administrative assistant to the president, Mr. Apol, Dr. DeVries or your respective committee chairman for clarification.

It is the responsibility of the office of the president to provide and maintain for the physical arrangements of the convention. To best accomplish this, it is important that all contacts with the civic center commission, vendors and outside contractors be made through Mr. Apol, administrative assistant to the president.

General

There will be no discrimination of employees or separation thereof, because of race, color, religion, national origin, ancestry or because of partisan consideration.

The above rules are not all inclusive, and may be amended.

Walter DeVries, Chairman.

SECRETARY CHASE: That completes the reports of standing committees, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Daisy Elliott introduces Delegate Proposal 1131, A proposal to require the legislature to enact a minimum wage law. Amends article V.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Daisy Elliott also introduces Delegate Proposal 1132, A proposal to empower the legislature to create an intermediate appellate court. Amends article VII.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on judicial branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Boothby and J. B. Richards introduce Delegate Proposal 1133, A proposal to provide for county home rule in welfare administration. Amends that part of article VIII dealing with counties.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on local government.

SECRETARY CHASE: That completes the reference of proposals.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Lundgren offers Resolution 26, A resolution regulating constitutional convention agents at the Michigan constitutional convention.

Following is the body of Resolution 26, as offered:

Resolved, That any person employed by a person, persons, firm, association, or corporation; or by any board, department, or agency of Michigan, or any political subdivision thereof, to engage in promoting, advocating, or opposing any matter pending before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof, or who is employed expressly for the purpose of promoting, advocating, or opposing any matter which might come before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof, shall be considered a "convention agent" within the provisions of this resolution; and be it further

Resolved, That the terms "advocating," "promoting," and "opposing" shall be construed to mean any act or acts, performed directly with a delegate to the constitutional convention, for the purpose of inducing him to vote or to use his influence for or against any matter before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof; and be it further

Resolved, That any person who shall confine his activities in promoting, advocating or opposing any matter pending before the constitutional convention, or any committee thereof, to formal appearances before any constitutional convention committee, and who in writing identifies himself to the committee, together with each and every person, firm, association, corporation or other interest represented by him, shall not be deemed to be a "convention agent" within the meaning of this resolution; neither shall such term include any person whose contact with a delegate is limited to furnishing information at the request of any delegate or any constitutional convention committee regarding any matter pending before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof; and be it further

Resolved, That every "convention agent" shall file with the secretary of the convention on forms provided by that office, a sworn statement containing the following information:

1. Full name of applicant, place of residence and place of business;

2. Name of firm, corporation, association or governmental agency of which he is an employee, partner or owner, together with the position held, business address and principal occupation of the organization of which applicant is an employee or agent;

3. If the applicant mentioned in (2) is employed by more than one person, firm, corporation, association or agency, the names of such persons, firms, corporations, associations or agencies, business addresses, and principal occupation or occupations;

4. The name and address of the person, firm, corporation, association or agency who will keep the custody and control of the accounts and records required to be kept by further provisions of this resolution; and

5. When any change modification or addition of such employment is made, the applicant shall, within one week of such change, modification or addition, furnish full information regarding the same to the secretary of the constitutional convention on forms provided by that office; and be it further

Resolved, That the secretary of the constitutional convention shall record and index in his office the information required by this resolution and shall furnish copies thereof to all delegates of the constitutional convention. The records required to be kept by the provisions of this resolution shall be open to inspection in the office of the secretary of the convention or in such office as he shall designate; and be it further

Resolved, That upon application by any person who has complied with the provisions of this resolution, the secretary of the convention shall issue to the applicant an identification card showing the name and business address of the person to whom such identification card is issued. Certificates issued by the secretary shall be prima facie evidence of compliance with the registration requirements hereof; and be it further

Resolved, That every "convention agent" or his employer or an agent employed by either, shall keep in his custody and control at an office in this state his address which shall be filed with the secretary of the convention, a record of all expenses incurred and paid by him or his employer incident to advocating, promoting and/or proposing any matter pending before the constitutional convention or any matter which can properly come before the convention. All such accounts and records shall be produced by such "convention agent" or his employer or an agent employed by either upon request of the president of the constitutional convention after a resolution has been adopted by the convention requesting such report; and be it further

Resolved, That any person who shall wilfully violate any provision of this resolution as determined by a resolution of the convention, shall forfeit his identification card and shall thereafter be barred from entering the convention hall or any of the adjacent halls or rooms which are under the jurisdiction of the constitutional convention: Provided however, That before any such resolution of license forfeiture shall be placed before the convention, the person, firm, etc., shall be given an opportunity to be heard in a duly noticed public hearing which shall be conducted by the committee on rules and resolutions of the constitutional convention to which the forfeiture resolution shall be referred; and be it further

Resolved, That the names of all persons whose registrations have been revoked shall be certified to the convention delegates by the secretary of the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only resolution on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary has the following announcements:

The committee on administration will meet in the conference room of the president's office immediately following the session today. Walter DeVries, chairman.

The committee on judicial branch will meet in room B, Wednesday, tomorrow, at 8:30 a.m. and on Thursday at 3:00 o'clock p.m. Robert J. Danhof, chairman. On Wednesday Justice George Edwards will appear before the committee, and on Thursday Justice Thomas Kavanaugh will appear before the committee.

The secretary has been requested to announce that the apples on your desks today are from the Rush orchards at Lake Orion, by courtesy of Delegate Allen F. Rush.

The secretary has also been requested to read this announcement in regard to visits to the convention from schools:

The convention guides are here to help you. If you receive any requests for information about the convention or concerning tours, we will be happy to take care of such correspondence. The convention guides.

We will attempt from now henceforth to prepare for you a composite calendar of committee calendars each day which will give the total schedules for the days as they appear from now on, as furnished by your committee calendars.

I have one further announcement. Yesterday there were placed on your desks some blank amendment forms. These included forms relating to: amendment to strike out; amendment to insert; amendment to strike out and insert; and amendment to strike out the entire section and insert another. When the question of amendments comes before the convention, will you please prepare these in duplicate or triplicate and send copies to the desk. This will expedite the procedure and make certain that the secretary does not misinterpret anything you may have in mind in the language of an amendment that you propose to offer.

There have been filed the following requests for leave of absence: Mr. A. G. Elliott requests to be excused from the session on Thursday; and Mr. Pollock requests to be excused from the sessions of Thursday and Friday this week because of a meeting he must attend in Washington in connection with his work as vice chairman of the commission on intergovernmental relations.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the delegates will be excused. Hearing none, they are excused.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, on behalf of the committee on administration, I should like to remind all employees and the entire staff of the constitutional convention that they are to meet tomorrow, Wednesday, at 1:00 o'clock in the convention hall, at which time the president will administer the oath of office to the staff.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Are there any further announcements?

Mr. Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. President, perhaps I might be permitted to say this in the interests of equal representation. A few days ago Mr. J. Burton Richards placed apples on everybody's desks and there was no announcement made. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: This completes the business of the day.

Mr. Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: I move that the convention adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ostrow moves that we adjourn. The question is on Mr. Ostrow's motion. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

The convention stands adjourned until tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, at 2:50 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m. Wednesday, November 1, 1961.]

SEVENTEENTH DAY

Wednesday, November 1, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation today will be given by the Reverend Carl F. Graves, Pastor of the Mt. Hope Assembly of God Church, Lansing.

REVEREND GRAVES: Dear Father in heaven, we come to Thee in the worthy and wonderful name of Jesus Christ to thank Thee for all the rich blessings which Thou hast bestowed upon our nation and the great state of Michigan. Thy love and compassion have been shown toward us in many ways and we would like to show our appreciation of these mercies by doing our utmost to live as Thou wouldst have us to live.

Grant to this responsible body of delegates vision to see what should be incorporated in this new constitution, and wisdom to clothe these provisions in the right language.

May the Lord grant to each delegate the strength and willingness to act free from any selfish consideration or political bias, so that this new constitution may be a source of real satisfaction to all concerned and that it may meet the vital needs of our state of Michigan.

This we ask in the precious name of Jesus. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted?

The secretary will lock the machine and you may now release your voting stations.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Mr. Hatch had previously filed with the secretary a request to be excused from today's session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection he will be excused.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Mr. Hatch and Mr. McLogan.

Absent without leave: Miss McGowan.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, Miss McGowan is excused.

The oath of office was administered this afternoon to the staff of the convention.

The oath of office will now be administered to the officers of the convention, and will the secretary, the sergeant at arms, the administrative assistant to the president, and the official stenographer please present themselves before the president's desk?

[Whereupon, Secretary Chase, the sergeant at arms, the administrative assistant to the president, and the official stenographer approached the rostrum.]

Raise your right hand.

Do you each solemnly swear that you will support the Constitution of the United States and the constitution of the state of Michigan, and that you will each faithfully discharge the duties of your respective offices, according to the best of your ability?

OFFICERS — (en masse) : I do.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Following our custom of having 2 committee reports each day, under the order of reports of standing committees, I will now call upon Mr. Hoxie, chairman of the committee on legislative powers.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President, for the purpose of conserving my quota of words, I yield to Mr. Millard, who will make a report on the activity of our committee.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Millard.

MR. MILLARD: Mr. President and members of the convention, it is my privilege to make a progress report of the activities of the committee on legislative powers.

As has been said many times by many speakers in this convention, a constitution is primarily a statement of the powers and limitations of the legislature. However, this committee has been assigned certain definite powers and limitations which are now expressed in the present constitution for study and examination.

Because of the diversification of subjects assigned to the committee, it had been thought best to divide the work among subcommittees and assign definite parts of the present constitution to them for study and investigation. Accordingly, 4 subcommittees have been set up as follows:

Committee 1, chaired by Richard Kuhn, is to study article V — that's the legislative department — sections 1 to 23, inclusive, excepting sections 2, 3 and 4 which apply to apportionment and are assigned to the legislative organization committee, whose report you heard here yesterday. One of the main purposes of this subcommittee will to be to examine the initiative and referendum section which was probably the main cause for calling the 1907 Constitutional Convention.

Committee 2, chaired by Stanley Powell, is investigating the rest of article V, the legislative department, sections 24 through 40. This committee has at least one very controversial subject before it. That is the restriction in the present constitution against lotteries. I might add that I have been in receipt of several postcards and letters already opposing any changes in this section, and I understand that other members of our committee have been receiving such communications.

Committee 3, chaired by Claude L. Wood, has been assigned to study article IX, impeachments and removals from office, and article XVI, miscellaneous provisions, sections 5 and 7. Several new proposals defining legislative powers have also been assigned to this committee.

Committee 4, chaired by myself, has been assigned section 9, article XII, banking and trust company laws, regarding which this committee has concurrent jurisdiction with the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedules; also article XIV, exemptions on real and personal property, and section 11 of article XVI, on liquor control. This committee has already met with a subcommittee of the miscellaneous provisions and schedules committee to hear Dr. Alfred Conard of the University of Michigan discuss banking and trust company laws and whose written treatise on the subject has been presented to each one of you delegates.

Many proposals for alterations of present constitutional provisions and additions or new sections have been received by the committee and have been assigned to the various subcommittees in the areas above mentioned. Each subcommittee is now formulating a schedule for hearings on any controversial issues, which will be duly announced in the calendar. If anyone in the convention has any matter involving subject matters under the jurisdiction of the legislative powers committee, we will be glad to offer them an opportunity to appear before the subcommittee involved or before the full committee, as they so desire, to receive any statements they may wish to offer.

Thank you for the courtesy of hearing this report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Millard.

Now the committee on executive branch, Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, if I could have the opportunity, I would like to make each member of the convention, each delegate of the convention, a member of the executive branch committee for a few minutes this afternoon to take them into some of the problems, very briefly, that we are working with; so that as these matters come to the floor and before they come to the floor, they will have an opportunity to think about them and form their own opinions.

First of all, we are primarily interested in article VI of the constitution and, in that regard, the first thing the committee did was to prepare a definition of its responsibilities. It is short — one paragraph — which I would like to read to you:

The concern of the committee on executive branch includes all of those matters affecting the eligibility for, term of, compensation of, and succession to office within the executive branch of state govenrnment; the selection by appointment or election, and the removal of members of the executive branch; the authority, responsibility and powers of the principal officers of this branch within the branch; the relation to members of the executive branch to both the legislative and the judicial branches; the nature and scope of the civil service system, and the structure of administration within the executive branch including the budgetary process and the process of administrative reorganization.

The committee has a general objective: that is to provide for Michigan, insofar as this article of the constitution is concerned, the best and most effective government it can to carry out efficiently the will of the people of Michigan.

In that regard another definition which I think is useful is the statement made by the little Hoover commission, which spent two years studying this problem and others. Their statement was this:

> The underlying objective is a government responsible to the people, a governmental structure so designed that the citizens can understand it, can hold it accountable; simple enough to be kept within the citizens' grasp and, at the same time, permit effective execution of govenmental stewardship.

The committee proceeded, after defining its responsibility, to consider the subject matter of the committee. The committee will be considering it in some detail. It breaks down into 3 areas:

First of all, the governor, the office of governor, and his responsibilities and duties;

Second, the offices of the other members, who are generally designated as members of the state administrative board, and their duties and responsibilities;

And, finally, the general question of the administration of the executive branch.

In laying out the detail on these subjects, the committee is asking itself a number of questions. Those are the questions which we are asking the people who appear before the committee to discuss, and each of the witnesses is given in advance a statement of these questions. I thought they might be of interest to you.

Under the heading of "The governor", the first question of substance is qualifications. What age limit? 30? What length of citizenship? — Now 5 years — What length of residence? Should the requirement simply be that he be a qualified voter?

Second, the method of selection. And in this connection the question arises as to the relation of the governor to the lieutenant governor. Should the nomination of the lieutenant governor be by statewide primary or by party convention? Should the lieutenant governor be selected to run with the governor as a team, that is, to be elected by the same votes as are cast for governor? Is the lieutenant governor needed in the state structure? And should he serve as presiding officer of the senate or be freed for other duties assigned by the governor or the legislature, or can another state officer serve in his stead?

These questions don't indicate any position on any of these points. They are questions, however, which will be discussed in the committee.

Third, the term of office of the governor. Should it be 2, 3, or 4 years? The number of terms. Should there be any limit on the total number of terms? If so, should this limit be one, two, or more terms? And if so, should it be possible for a former governor to run again after an intervening term? Referring to the beginning of the term, should it begin on January 1, or on December 1 or other date in order to integrate the inaugural date with early preparation of the budget? For the year of the election, should it correspond to the presidential year or fall in between?

The question of compensation. Should it be fixed in the constitution?

The question of vacancy and succession. Specified officers. What should the order of succession be? And to what extent should it be specified in the constitution?

The question of disability, termination of disability: what procedure for determining disability is recommended? And who should determine it, the supreme court or some other body? Who should initiate the request for the termination? And how would you determine when the disability is terminated?

Then there are the executive powers of the governor, a long list of them, but I will just run down them quickly. The inaugural address, the exaugural address — is that necessary? How are the governors to execute the laws which are specified in our constitution? Should there be a power to enforce these, to investigate, or to require by court action the performance of duties within the executive branch? What should the appointment powers of the governor be? Should he have power to appoint presently elected state officers or other department heads or members of boards and commissions? And should the appointment powers be subject to confirmation by the senate or the house or neither? Should the confirmation procedure differ according to the type of the office, whether executive or regulatory?

Question of filling vacancies. Should it be subject to confirmation?

Question of removal powers. Should it be for cause only or for policy reasons? Should it be limited to the period when the legislature is not in session, as is now the case?

There are a number of other powers here: military, messages to the legislature, writs of election, calling of special sessions. Should these be limited to subjects specified by the governor or should the legislature have power to call special sessions?

Question of approval of legislation. How should that be done, by signature only or by failure to sign in a 10 day period as is now possible?

The whole question of disapproval of legislation — the pocket veto, the item veto — whether the governor should have the power to reduce items as well as to veto items, whether he should have the conditional veto or whether he may make suggestions which can be adopted by the legislature, if they so desire.

Then, getting briefly into the officers of the executive branch, whom, as you know, are the lieutenant governor, the secretary of state, the attorney general, the state treasurer, the auditor general, the superintendent of public instruction, the highway commissioner, and the members of boards and commissions including, actually, the members of educational boards; although this is doubtless a question for the education committee. Their qualifications, method of selection, term of office, year of election, compensation, vacancies, and duties: these are similar questions to those relating to the governor.

Finally, the administration of the executive branch, its structure. Should there be a limitation on the number of departments, as has been done in most of the recently revised constitutions? Should the maximum number be specified in the constitution? Should the departments be specifically named if the number is limited?

The question of executive reorganization. Who should have the power to initiate it? Should the governor have this power? And should this be specified in the constitution? If so, what should be the limitations on such powers? Should such plans of reorganization be subject to disapproval by the senate or house or both, or neither? And what should be the procedure for disapproval if allowed?

The civil service commission. Should any changes be made in the method of selection or term or other related items? What should be the position of the convention with regard to exempt positions? Should the present limits of 2 per agency be changed? Abolition of positions. Should this require commission approval?

Question of compensation. Should control of compensation be placed in the legislature instead of in the commission, or shared by the legislature and commission? Question of the mandatory appropriation. Should the 1 per cent mandatory provision be eliminated or reduced?

Finally, the problem of budget and fiscal management.

I realize that is a rather long list, but it gives you an idea of the questions we are taking up and I thought it would be of interest to you.

Now, very quickly, we are calling 2 kinds of witnesses before the committee: the practitioners — that is, the people who are now in government or who have served in government — and the students of government, that is, close observers and analysts who have had experience with other constitutional conventions, as well as this one, and who are well known in their fields.

We are calling 4 classes of witnesses. We are calling all the Michigan governors — I mean the Michigan governor and all former governors. All of the former governors have agreed to appear before the committee with the exception of Governor Kelly, for whom we have not yet fixed a final date but who is equally agreeable to appearing before the committee and that date will be fixed at a little later time. Then we plan to bring in some outside governors from the states where changes have occurred in constitutional revision long enough ago so that they have had some experience with the situation; that would be principally New York and New Jersey — Hawaii and Alaska are so recent that there has been no experience yet with those — possibly Missouri. The ad board members will be asked for their views, and the civil service's we are already studying.

In general we are asking first: how does Michigan's executive branch operate? And second: how do states operate where major changes have been made in their constitutions and what are the advantages and disadvantages? What improvements are possible?

Finally, I might say that the aims of the committee are:

One — this is only my own formulation — to maintain a clear separation of powers, insofar as the executive branch may be concerned, to strengthen all 3 branches. Our responsibility, of course, is only the executive branch, to cope with the multiplicity of modern problems. And finally, in the executive branch to achieve so far as possible what Mr. Hoover set forth in his statement in setting up the large, not the little, Hoover commission, which dealt with the problems of the federal government, in which Mr. Hoover said that the responsibility and accountability are impossible without authority; the power to direct the exercise of authority is impossible without a clear line of command from the top to the bottom and a return line of responsibility and accountability from the bottom to the top.

This is the problem that we are struggling with as to whether that can be achieved in our Michigan constitution.

Mr. President, I think if the committee achieves the major part of these aims, certainly if it achieves all of them, we will be satisfied, and I believe the convention — perhaps the constitution — will benefit.

Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Martin.

Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I thought that it might be of interest to the convention to note that in at least 1 standard of measurement we are not keeping pace with the 1907 convention. At the end of the sixteenth session of the 1907 convention, there had been 248 proposals introduced and yesterday at the end of our sixteenth session, we had only reached 133.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you for your information.

Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 8, A resolution requesting the transmittal of copies of convention proceedings to all secondary schools and libraries in the state; with a substitute therefor, recommending that the substitute be agreed to and the resolution as thus substituted be adopted.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

For the body of Resolution 8, as offered, see above page 171.

MR. DeVries: Mr. President, the following is the substitute:

A resolution requesting the transmittal of the action journals of the constitutional convention to certain institutions.

Whereas, The state of Michigan is now in the midst of a constitutional convention, the results of which, if adopted, will be the basic law of the state for many years to come; now therefore be it

Resolved, That copies of all convention proceedings be sent to all public and private high schools, public and private colleges and institutions of higher learning, libraries, daily and weekly newspapers, and radio and television stations.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the substitute recommended by the committee. Is there any discussion?

Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Just as a point of inquiry, with regard to this list compiled, I wonder if we aren't going to be doing a lot of duplicating in sending materials because I know we have pretty well covered these schools in our area.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Higgs, I think on every delegate's desk is a memorandum from the committee on administration which explains what we are planning to do.

If you adopt the substitute resolution, we shall send to every public and private high school in the state — and there are 744 of them — copies of the action journals of this convention. We shall, furthermore, send copies to all the institutions of higher learning, both public and private — and there are 73 of those — also to the daily and weekly newpapers and radio and television stations, for a total of about 600; and to the libraries — about 320 libraries — for a total of 1,737.

Each delegate is requested to submit, if he so desires, 25 names and this will total up to 3,600 copies of the journal. The grand total then of the institutions and the delegates' requests will be 5,337.

We anticipate using about 250 journals for convention use, and the rest will be in the document room and perhaps we can add some names to this later.

Does that answer your question, Mr. Higgs?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: First of all, does this now preclude any delegate from seeking more than the 25 that he originally was given?

MR. DeVRIES: We'll return to you the list that you originally filled out with the original blanks. We would like to have you check the list to make sure you have no libraries, public or private high schools or institutions of higher learning, daily or weekly newspapers, radio or television stations on your list. If you do, delete them.

MR. HODGES: There is another point: in our large metropolitan areas, many of our schools are of such a nature that certainly 1 copy is not going to be enough.

For instance, in 1 case, I have submitted 15 to 1 school because I really feel that they have a genuine need for this number. Will we be able to do this?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I don't think this will be possible. We have 6,000 copies of the action journal and that is all.

MR. HODGES: I would just like to speak on this point. I know we have already adopted this figure of 6,000. I don't know what the possibility is of changing it, but it seems to me that something as important as this convention is to the educational process — to Michigan schools — is something that we shouldn't dismiss too lightly.

Now I know very well that if 1 copy of this journal is sent into a high school in the Detroit metropolitan area, it will probably see no use whatsoever and will be filed in the circular file, probably. But if they are given sufficient copies of it to use for their political science and civics classes — maybe their high schools run as many as 70 civics classes in 1 school — if they are given sufficient quantities in order that they can have at least 1 for each instructor, so he can possibly do some work with this, then it would serve a beneficial purpose.

I would think that the expense of additional copies is worthwhile. The figure set at 6,000 was somewhat arbitrary, because we didn't know what the demand was going to be for them. I think we would be much better off in enlarging this figure if the cost is not prohibitive, rather than restricting the use of these journals.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Hodges, there is nothing to preclude you from sending your copies to the schools, if you like. Furthermore, I think that where there is an interest in the government in political science classes, they could be thermofaxed or duplicated in some other way. It would require a change in the rules to go beyond 6,000 copies.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Mr. President, Mr. DeVries, a point of information in regard to yesterday's comment that there would be nothing retroactive. Does that hold true on these journals also?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Sharpe, I don't want to be guilty of a pun, but that is a rather sharp observation in this case.

What we will do with the journals — and we have them at the printer — is that we will bind them and send all the previous copies to the people who are on this list and the institutions on this list.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Further discussion on the substitute? Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Now that I have my mailing list back here, just a further question: in arriving at your 6,000 total, Mr. DeVries, are you making allowance not only for the schools but also for those on our mailing list?

MR. DeVRIES: Twenty-five. Yes, sir.

MR. HIGGS: I would just like to note this inasmuch as we are coming close to the maximum that we have authorized. I have, for instance, indicated 4 for Delta College. Now I have covered the schools in my area, together with Delegate Karl K. Leibrand, and we have pretty well covered this particular area. I still wonder if we are not duplicating. I would like these particular professors and teachers individually to get these copies and by just blanket mailings I wonder if we are not duplicating the efforts of other delegates.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, may I suggest this: that you check over your list and see if you have any duplications and if you have any of these other institutions on it, please remove them from the list. You don't have to fill out 25 names on a list.

I would like to recommend that these lists be returned to the secretary's office no later than the middle of next week.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Question is on the substitute.

Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Just one more point of information. Mr. DeVries, would it be possible — or first of all, have we been printing at the rate of 6,000? Is that right?

MR. DeVRIES: That's right.

MR. HODGES: So any change in this number at this point would be quite a problem, is that right?

MR. DeVRIES: In terms of back copies also? No, it would not constitute a problem unless you wanted to make it retroactive.

MR. HODGES: Well, I'm assuming that anyone that we have on these lists now will receive all the back copies, isn't that right?

MR. DeVRIES: That's correct. But if you want to print more than 6,000 copies and you want copies of the original first 16 or 17 journals, that would present a problem.

MR. HODGES: Well, I don't want to belabor this, but I do think it is a fairly significant thing.

Is it possible, if we suggest that the committee review it again, to see how many actually will be used? I am sure many delegates might not use their total 25. Then some evaluation can be made to see how much the other delegates need — those whose demands are somewhat stronger — that may be able to be met within the next couple of weeks, so that we can see if actually we need more copies.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Hodges, we will be delighted to do that.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the substitute. Any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

It is adopted.

Question is now on the resolution as substituted. Any discussion? If not all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The resolution, as substituted, is adopted.

For the body of Resolution 8, as substituted and adopted, see above, page 239.

Further reports?

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only standing committee report, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, yesterday the convention adopted a staff policy which appears on page 85 of yesterday's journal, and I just wanted to point out that this statement for the most part was drafted by Mr. Snyder. I want to bring this to your attention and publicly commend him on behalf of the entire committee on administration.

This concludes the report of the committee on administration.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you.

Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Norris and Hodges introduce Delegate Proposal 1134, A proposal to reduce the number of signatures required in proposing legislation by initiative petition to 4 per cent instead of 8 per cent. Amends article V, section 1.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Norris and Hodges introduce Delegate Proposal 1135, A proposal to reduce the number of signatures required in proposing amendments to the constitution by initiative petition to 5 per cent instead of 10 per cent. Amends article XVII, section 2.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Danhof and W. F. Hanna introduce Delegate Proposal 1136, A proposal to elect governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, attorney general, superintendent of public instruction, and state highway commissioner, and the appointment of the state executive officials.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on executive branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Nord introduces Delegate Proposal 1137, A proposal to amend article I by eliminating the boundaries provision, providing for the seat of government, and recognizing the obligation of government to preserve and promote the human and natural resources of the state.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Upton introduces Delegate Proposal 1138, A proposal to eliminate article XI, section 13 from the constitution — salt spring lands.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ostrow introduces Delegate Proposal 1139, A proposal with reference to the appointment of successors in the case of vacancies in the office of judges of courts of record, permitting them to serve the unexpired terms of their predecessors. Amends article VII, section 20.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on judicial branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ostrow also introduces Delegate Proposal 1140, A proposal with reference to the legislation regulating the business of banking requiring an affirmative 2/3 vote. Amends article XII, section 9.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred jointly to the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule and the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ostrow also introduces Delegate Proposal 1141, A proposal to provide uniform compensation for all justices of the supreme court. Amends article VII, section 2.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on judicial branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ostrow also introduces Delegate Proposal 1142, A proposal relating to the increase of salaries of public officers, permitting increase of salaries of supreme court justices. Amends article XVI, section 3.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on judicial branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Wanger, White, Van Dusen, A. G. Elliott, Nord, Austin, and Baginski introduce Delegate proposal 1143, A proposal to retain the preamble to the constitution of 1908.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule.

Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None on the calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The following announcements of committee meetings:

The committee on legislative organization will meet in room D today immediately following the session.

There is an error in today's calendar as printed which needs to be particularly noted: legislative organization, room D, after the session today. Dr. John Hannah, chairman.

Committee on public information will meet in room J, Thursday, tomorrow, immediately after the close of the session. Mr. Ink white, chairman.

Committee on education will meet in room J, November 2nd, at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow. Alvin M. Bentley, chairman. This supersedes an earlier announcement.

Committee on legislative organization will meet in room D, Thursday, tomorrow, at 8:30 a.m. Dr. John Hannah, chairman.

Committee on finance and taxation will meet in room E today, immediately after the session. D. Hale Brake, chairman.

The committee on administration will meet in the conference room of the president's office tomorrow, Thursday, at 10:00 a.m. Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further announcements?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Erickson has filed with the secretary a list of the subcommittees and the work assigned to each of them for the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Erickson.

MR. ERICKSON: Mr. President, this is a rather long list and I request that the list be considered read and printed in the journal for the information of the delegates.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unless there is objection . . . . Hearing none, it is so ordered.

For list of subcommittee assignments, see above, page 192.

Judge Gadola.

MR. GADOLA: I move that the convention adjourn.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Upton has raised a question in a request to the secretary in regard to these verbal reports made by the chairmen of the respective committees, as to whether or not they should be printed in the journal.

The secretary has no feeling one way or the other. This is a matter, it seems to me, for the convention to determine. If these verbal reports are of enough interest, they can be printed in the journal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: It was the intent when we first started these reports that they were to be rather brief and concise as they are for information purposes only, but, as Mr. Chase said, what is the wish of the convention? It is in your hands.

Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, I might just suggest that if they were printed in the journal it would achieve this: that with the mailing of nearly 6,000 of them, the convention deliberations at least in a narrative form would then be brought to the attention of those people on the mailing list on a daily basis.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: I see no purpose, no good purpose, served by printing them. It is going to take a good deal of space. It is very tentative, fleeting material, for the tentative information of the delegates. I cannot see that it needs to be preserved.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further discussion?

Mr. Upton.

MR. UPTON: It was my idea, listening to the reports today, and the excellent ones yesterday, that it would not only give our delegates a record of the committee actions, but also provide the members on the mailing list, let's say, with what is happening at the convention, in convention committee meetings; and, if it is in order, I would like to move that these remarks by the committee chairman be placed in the daily journal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Upton. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion does not prevail.

SECRETARY CHASE: We have the following requests for leaves of absense: Mr. Perras asks to be excused from Thursday's session; Mr. Stamm wishes to be excused from the Thursday session; Mr. Pellow, Mr. Perlich and Mr. Sablich wish to be excused from Thursday's session; Mr. Iverson requests leave to be excused from Thursday's session so that he may attend a funeral; and Mr. A. G. Elliott asks to be excused from the session of next Monday evening.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests will be granted.

Mr. Suzore.

MR. SUZORE: If I am in order, I would like to make a motion that when the convention session adjourns tomorrow, it stand adjourned until 8:00 p.m. on Monday.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Suzore's motion. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. All opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Now I think we are ready for a motion that we adjourn.

MR. GADOLA: I made a motion. It was not debatable, so I move the previous question. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: All in favor of the motion to adjourn, please say aye. Opposed, no.

The convention is adjourned until 2:00 o'clock tomorrow.

[Whereupon, at 2:45 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Thursday, November 2, 1961.]

EIGHTEENTH DAY

Thursday, November 2, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

The invocation today will be given by the Reverend Ernest St. Andrew, pastor of St. Michael's Episcopal Church of Lansing.

REVEREND ST. ANDREW: Let us pray:

Almighty God, who hast given us this good land for our heritage, we humbly beseech Thee that we may always prove ourselves a people mindful of Thy favor and glad to do Thy will.

Bless our land with honorable industry, sound learning and pure manners. Save us from violence, discord and confusion; from pride and arrogancy, and from every evil way.

Defend our liberties, and fashion into one united people the multitude brought hither out of many kindreds and tongues.

Endue with the spirit of wisdom those to whom in Thy name we entrust the authority of government, that there may be justice and peace, and that, through obedience to Thy law, we may show forth Thy praise. In the time of prosperity, fill our hearts with thankfulness, and in the day of trouble, suffer not our trust in Thee to fail.

We humbly pray for the people of this state, and especially for this convention assembled, that Thou wouldst be pleased to direct and prosper all their consultations, to the advancement of Thy glory, the safety, honor and welfare of Thy people; that all things may be so ordered and settled by their endeavors upon the best and surest foundations, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, may be established among us for all generations.

These and all other necessaries, for them and for us, we humbly beg in the name and mediation of Jesus Christ, our most blessed Lord. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present, please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Have all present voted? If so, the secretary will now lock the voting machine and you may release your voting levers.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

The secretary has had previously filed with him a request for leave of absence from today's session for Mr. Garvin.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the request is granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Mrs. Butler, Messrs. A. G. Elliott, Garvin, Iverson, Pellow, Perlich, Perras, Pollock, Sablich and Stamm.

Absent without leave: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: This afternoon our first committee report, under the order of reports of standing committees, will be given by the chairman of the judicial branch committee, Mr. Robert J. Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. President and members of the convention, the committee on judicial branch at its original organizational meeting endeavored to ascertain what the aims and objectives of the committee should be in reporting back to this convention with respect to the judicial article.

We basically decided that our aim should be to maintain and strengthen the judicial system in our state and to continue to promote the impartial and efficient administration of justice. The rights and protections that are granted to us by the present constitution or by any document we may write here can be protected only by a vigilant judiciary.

In our consideration we have determined that we must ascertain the type of court administration that we desire, from the inferior court system straight through to the supreme court.

We will likewise consider the selection and tenure of judges, so that we may best submit to the convention what we believe to be the best method for obtaining able and dedicated persons to serve in our judiciary.

In our initial meetings we decided that the following procedure would be followed by the committee in determining the needs of the state:

First, we decided that we would study our present system and ascertain whether it has met the needs of the people in the past and is continuing to meet the needs of the people at this time. If the system has not met the needs of the people, then we would ascertain where it has failed and, naturally, we would strive to come up with a remedy. If the present system is proved adequate, we will study and endeavor to ascertain whether it will continue to meet the needs of the people in years to come; and finally, whether in any way we can make more efficient the administration of justice under the system that we have.

Our basic considerations will be concerning article VII of the Constitution of 1908 which encompasses the judicial article, our court system and the method of selecting our judges.

Our apparent greatest areas of interest to date — and I think, from correspondence, will continue to be — are:

1. The justice of the peace system;
2. The establishment of an intermediate appellate court;
3. The method of selecting our judges — that is, to continue on the basis of election or to go to an appointive system; and
4. The possible establishment of a court wherein there would be tried cases involving violations of the rules and regulations of administrative agencies.

To date our committee has heard from the chief justice of the Michigan supreme court, Chief Justice Dethmers. We have also heard from Justice Edwards, and Justice Kavanaugh is scheduled to appear this afternoon. We have also scheduled appearances of other members of the supreme court. Also, the court administrator, Mr. Meredith Doyle, has appeared before the committee to give facts and information.

It is apparent that meetings of this type where various individuals appear to express their views will continue to be held for some time. We will continue to hear from the judges of the supreme, circuit, probate and municipal courts, from justices of the peace and other court officials.

In weeks to come we will also have appear before us other people, agencies and associations interested in the administration of justice.

I should like to ask the members of the convention, when they are at home and amongst their constituents, to mention to various organizations and groups to whom they may be speaking that the judicial branch is one of the 3 major branches of our government, along with the legislative and executive. I have the feeling that it is too often overlooked and consideration of the judicial article is left largely to attorneys and other persons who have a specific interest, and that members of the general public have a tendency to ignore this vital arm of our government.

I would request that when you make your remarks before various groups and organizations, you relay to them our request to have them forward any recommendations, proposals, suggestions or complaints they may have so that they may come up for consideration by the committee in its deliberations.

For the benefit of those in the gallery — and I see a substantial number — may I say that the committee will meet this afternoon at 3:00 o'clock, or at the close of the session, to hear Justice Kavanaugh. The meeting will take place in committee room B.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Danhof.

Mr. D. Hale Brake, chairman of the committee on finance and taxation, will now present a progress report for that committee.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. President, and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, our committee, thus far, has spent nearly all of its time in trying to learn some of the fundamentals in our field, and we have done this both by engaging in some reading and by listening to experts in that field.

Among those from whom we have heard in the committee are the following: Sanford Brown, state treasurer; Ira Polley, controller, department of administration; Edward Kane, executive secretary, state tax commission, as well as Chairman Eckhardt, Mr. Barr, commissioner, and Sheldon Markel, staff member; Mr. Harold Brown, finance division, department of public instruction; B. J. Potter of the auditor general's department; Frank McLaury, chief accountant, department of administration; Rollo G. Conlin, state representative and chairman, taxation committee, house of representatives; Albert Champney, director, Wayne county bureau of taxation; Professor Raleigh Barlowe, department of economics, Michigan State University; Dr. Denzel Cline, department of economics, Michigan State University; and some representatives of interested organizations.

We have on the schedule for next week the chairmen of the house ways and means and senate appropriations committees, Representative Engstrom and Senator Porter; the chairman of the senate taxation committee, and several others.

Quite frankly, Mr. President, we would like to stop calling in experts, but we simply cannot do it. We have to keep on calling in experts until we get a majority of one on the same side of some issue. (laughter)

I think somebody, some time in the past, said that if you want a positive opinion with no qualifications, you have to ask an ignorant person to give it. The people we have talked with are not ignorant and they are plenty positive. But the difficulty is that that positiveness runs to every point of the political compass.

As I have listened to them and their differences of opinion, I have thought of the statement that Burke made in England almost 2 centuries ago: "Refined policy ever has been and ever will be the parent of confusion."

It may be that our committee will have to come up with some answers that will not be completely pleasing to some of the experts, but which will offer some possibility of being workable in the everyday business of running a government.

Our fields of controversy have largely centered around the socalled "uniformity clause" of the constitution; the statement which is not observed in the constitution which requires that property shall be assessed at 100 per cent of its value, expressed as fair cash value; the 15 mill limitation; the earmarking of funds by constitutional mandate, including the sales tax, road money, penal fines for libraries, and what have you. Those are the principal controversies.

We have listened to the municipal league today in one of our most interesting and useful sessions.

We have established for ourselves a deadline with respect to procedure. We propose, if it is possible—and we think it will be—that this matter of holding continuous hearings will come to an end the week of November 13, and commencing the week of November 20, insofar as their schedules permit, we will listen to those members of the convention who have proposals in our committee. Before we argue any about their proposals, we want their viewpoints. We hope their schedules will permit them to give us their viewpoints that week.

And then, the next week, we propose to lay in a supply of aspirin and start in on the business of coming to some conclusions.

There will be some people called before us from time to time, but we hope that during and after the week of November 27 we will devote nearly all our time to trying to reach conclusions to submit back to the convention on matters within our field.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Brake.

Mr. Beaman.

MR. BEAMAN: Mr. President, I have to catch a plane at 3:00 o'clock to attend a meeting in Washington. I should like to be excused for the balance of the session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, Mr. Beaman is excused. Hearing none, he is excused.

Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, recommends the following persons to the president for consideration as staff members of the constitutional convention:

Assistant director of public information: Stuart Kirvan,
Research assistant: Charles Ferry, Edward Walsh and Theodis Gay.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

Messrs. Snyder, Walker and Hood, a minority of the committee on administration, respectfully submit to the convention the following minority report:

At a meeting of the committee on administration held at 10:00 a.m., November 2, 1961, recommendations for appointments to the position of assistant director of public information and 3 research assistants, were discussed.

This minority report recommends that the convention concur with the following recommendations: Mr. Stuart Kirvan, assistant director of public information; Mr. Edward Walsh, research assistant; and Mr. Theodis Gay, research assistant.

It recommends also that the convention not concur with the appointment of Mr. Charles Ferry as research assistant.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: Thank you, Mr. President. In an effort to expedite this matter, I would request that we separate the issues, and I would offer a motion to concur with those 3 names upon which we have agreed.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Snyder's motion.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I will support Mr Snyder's motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Snyder's motion. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails, and that portion of the report is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Stuart Kirvan, Edward Walsh and Theodis Gay are appointed by the president to those respective positions.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I understood that we just divided the question. I did not know that we acted on the question of these 3 people being appointed. Messrs. Kirvan, Walsh and Gay are mentioned in the committee's report. I think we would have to make a motion to accept them in that that is also part of the minority report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, that part of the report, then, will be so entered into the journal. Hearing none, it is entered into the journal.

SECRETARY CHASE: The president appoints, pursuant to authorization by the convention, and with the approval of the committee on administration, Messrs. Stuart Kirvan, Edward Walsh and Theodis Gay to the respective positions indicated.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the appointments are approved.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Regarding the second part of the minority report, Mr. Ferry has the unanimous recommendation of the subcommittee which includes Mr. Gust, Mr. Mahinske and myself, and he has the recommendation of all but 3 of our 15 man committee.

We felt he was the best qualified man for this position. I urge that you vote down the recommendation in the minority report "that the convention not concur with the appointment of Mr. Charles Ferry as research assistant".

I urge that you vote no on this recommendation in the minority report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the recommendation of the committee on administration that Mr. Charles Ferry be appointed as research assistant.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: I understood that when the minority report was offered it became an amendment to the committee report, and that we separated the questions, first voting on the 3 appointments recommended in the minority report, and then next voting on the recommendation of the minority report regarding Mr. Ferry. I understood that that was the question before us.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Snyder did not move it to be an amendment to the majority report. His comment was an objection to the appointment of Mr. Ferry, and that is the matter now before the convention, the recommendation of your committee that Mr. Ferry be named as research assistant.

Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: Mr. President, it is my understanding of the rules that at this time it would be proper to move that the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole for the consideration of this matter.

PRESIDENT NISBET: That is right, Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: Then I so move, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Walker moves that the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole and that the report be discussed in committee of the whole.

MR. WALKER: Just that portion of the report that deals with Mr. Ferry, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The other is already passed; has been adopted.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: On a point of information, Mr. President, what is before us? Is it the second recommendation of the minority report, or the report of the committee on administration?

PRESIDENT NISBET: The report of the committee was divided into 2 sections, Mr. DeVries. The first 3 names have been approved by the convention, and the matter now under discussion is the approval of Mr. Ferry whose appointment is recommended in the report of your committee. That is the question before the convention.

Mr. Walker has since moved that the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole.

MR. DeVRIES: I would urge that you vote no on Mr. Walker's motion to resolve this convention into committee of the whole.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any discussion? The question is on the convention resolving itself into committee of the whole. If there is no discussion, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion does not prevail.

Mr. Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: Mr. President, am I in order in speaking in support of my amendment at this time?

PRESIDENT NISBET: You have not offered an amendment, Mr. Snyder. The question we are discussing is the recommendation of the committee on administration that Mr. Ferry be appointed to the position of research assistant. You may speak to that point.

MR. SNYDER: This, then, I take it, is the recommendation by the majority of the committee. Is that correct?

PRESIDENT NISBET: That is right.

MR. SNYDER: And therefore, in order to support my point of view, I must speak against the recommendation?

PRESIDENT NISBET: That is correct.

MR. SNYDER: There is a tremendous advantage, Mr. President, in working with another boy scout because we always get our courses straightened out and make sure we are going in the correct direction.

I feet we have a very important principle involved here, ladies and gentlemen. We have here not the question of an individual — and I regret that we must mention names on this matter — but one of far reaching consequences. I think we have a problem here that confronts not only us but, if I may plagiarize from Dr. Hannah's speech of the other day, we have "a trust to all the citizens of Michigan."

This is not a partisan issue. This is an issue that will ultimately affect all of us and our constituents back home. We have here a person who will, in many phases, from now until the conclusion of the convention, help mold the public image of this convention.

I am certain, from the degree of cooperation that has been displayed to date, it will be your feeling that this will not be a Republican convention, nor will it be a Democratic convention. This will be a bipartisan effort and at the conclusion of our efforts we will be able, as individuals, as a team, and as citizens, to say to our people: This is something that we agreed to.

I should like to go on record that this is not motivated by any partisan feelings. In fact, if you review the application of one of the key people among the persons whose appointments we did approve today you will find that his record is, by and large, a Republican record. But we felt that in this case his workmanship would not be affected by partisanship and with a clear conscience we were able to support, unanimously, his particular choice.

Now there is reason for me to suspect, because of some of the incidents that have occurred prior to this appointment being recommended, that the person we now have under consideration could not objectively, and could not with a degree of thoroughness, support the position of both parties. In fact, there is some dispute in my mind as to whether he would even take care of all the people within his own department with a completely unbiased point of view.

The other day at this convention we approved the list of duties of the committee on public information. I do not know how many of you delegates have taken occasion to read the broad powers that we gave to this committee. In view of this I think it is very important that we, as delegates, if we are to allow these powers to remain, have a responsibility to make certain that the people who will be on this committee and who will be the resource people and the research people will approach their work objectively and that they will not use this particular spot for any purpose other than for informing the public.

I feel that research and resource people should be just that — they should not be advocates. I feel that if we were to concur in the recommendation of the majority of this committee we would be putting on the staff a person who would be an advocate and who would not be giving us the service that we so rightfully need.

There are other facets of this matter which are quite nebulous and they would require a considerable amount of discussion but I feel that, from my own point of view, I have expressed for the minority of the committee some of the very serious objections we have raised.

Just one more point. It was made very clear to us in our committee meeting today that the research person we have discussed is one whose assignment had already been made, and he would end up nowhere other than on the committee on public information.

With this thought in mind, I had before me no other course than to support the request that we concur in the recommendation of this person. I felt, then, that this was a matter which I should bring to the attention of the entire convention with the assistance of my 2 colleagues, Mr. Hood and Mr. Walker.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. President, I am not a member of the committee on administration — and for that I should like to say publicly "Thank God!" — but I have been a member of the committee on rules which set up the committee on public information. I should like to make this comment at the start.

When the name of that committee came before the committee on permanent organization and rules, I made the comment at that time that the name of that committee scared the devil out of me. It reminded me of the French revolution, and being a rather conservative fellow, that did scare me. (laughter)

The title "committee on public information" suggests that they are the only source of information. Naturally we know that that is not so. Nevertheless, ever since that time, I have been very nervous about this committee and I still am. (laughter)

It is not that they have done a great deal of harm so far. As far as I know, they have not met yet and therefore it would be difficult for them to do great harm. (laughter) But, I am still concerned about this. If the information which has been given to us is correct — that this gentleman, whom I have never met, never seen and have no personal knowledge of and, as far as I know, is an extremely competent person — if the information I have been given about him is correct, my opinion is that he does not belong on an assignment in the committee on public information.

The reason I state that — and will I will state, very bluntly and frankly, as is my wont — is this: I believe the information we have so far does not state a good reason — but I believe there is a good reason — why this man should not be assigned to that committee. That being the case, I wish to present the reason, as I understand it, and let the chips fall where they may — and I suspect they may fall on me.

The real objection, as I understand it, to this gentleman being on the committee on public information — in any capacity, what ever it may be — is on the basis of a press release which was given out by the committee on administration, and on the basis of the translation of that into a press release which was, I understand, drafted from the original by the gentleman in question.

I should like to read the 2 press releases and point out why I take exception to the assignment of this person to this particular committee. Concerning his appointment to any other committees, I have no fear. This is the original release as I have it. It was released at 12:00 noon, October 10, 1961.

> Committee chairman Walter DeVries announced the committee on administration of the constitutional convention met today and discussed procedure for selecting stenographic help. After considerable discussion it was decided that competitive civil service type examinations would be held in Lansing in connection therewith. Applicants for stenographic help must contact Mr. Bernard Apol, assistant to the president of the constitutional convention, by Friday, October 13. The committee pointed out that the nature of the work required a high degree of skill and residence in Lansing.

I am not entirely clear as to whether this was the original press release or the one finally released. I believe it was the one finally released. But this was the information, as I understand it, that was originally to be released and which was actually released.

The other attempted release, or draft release let us say, which I am informed by members of the committee on administration was prepared or drafted by the gentleman in question reads as follows. I would like you to compare 2 things on which I shall comment. I might as well tell you now what they are. These are the 2 things: one is the length, and the other is the content. I might say that the length of the first release was 83 words — just a nice small number — and the length of the other release was 179 words, which is not a very nice, small number if we are concerned about expense. But that is not my principal objection. The content is what I am concerned with. The second release prepared or drafted by the gentleman in question reads as follows:

> Lansing—The committee on administration of the constitutional convention today ordered that civil service type examinations be held in the selecting of all stenographic employees.
> Committee chairman Walter DeVries made the announcement after a lengthy session of budgetary and staff matters.
>
> Rockwell T. Gust Jr., vice chairman of the committee, explained that the use of civil service facilities and procedures would —

And this is in quotation marks:

> facilitate the organization of the convention and provide us with a tested method of determining employee qualifications.

That concludes the quotation attributed to Mr. Gust. I continue:

> Gust said competitive civil service examinations will be held in Lansing October 11-16, inclusive. Applicants must apply to Bernard Apol, assistant to the president of the constitutional convention, by no later than Friday, October 13.
>
> Gust pointed out that the stenographic demands of the convention demand —

Again in quotation marks:

> a high degree of skill.

The quotation ends. I continue:

> Employees will also be required to reside in Lansing during their period of employment with the convention, Gust added. (laughter)

Again a quotation attributed to Mr. Gust:

> The convention has an urgent and immediate demand for skilled stenographic help, Gust emphasized. (laughter)

Again a quotation:

> We're hopeful that many competent persons will be eager to participate in the convention's historic work. (laughter)

I am informed that Mr. Gust is embarrassed by this, and I am sure he is, but it is not my intention to embarrass him. He had nothing to do with the drafting of this release and as I understand it he grabbed all the papers back and prevented this from going out.

I am the first one to release this publicly to my knowledge and I hasten to explain that I do not do so with a view to embarrassing Mr. Gust. My purpose is to prevent embarrassing the rest of us in the future.

I believe that the person who drafted this document is an enthusiast, all right, but I believe he is a super enthusiast. I believe this is not the correct approach to the job that we have.

Any job connected with public information is an extremely sensitive position. It is a very tough position, and I think many people would prefer not to be in such a position because it requires that you be purer than pure can be. I don't know who can be that pure, but I do know that it is not easy, and I believe that this gentleman has failed in his first effort. I would hate to see him have a chance at a second effort and as a result I believe that this gentleman—if he is appointed as research assistant, and I have no objection to that as an abstract proposition—in any event, if the understanding is that he is to be assigned to the committee on public information, I think that it should be prevented.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: Mr. President, I do not wish to delay the proceedings of the convention, but let me say this: I have watched the committee on administration work throughout the period of time we have been here and I have such faith in the ability and integrity of this committee that if this man is their choice, I will go along with this man, confident that if in the future there is any occasion for any doubt about this man in connection with his ability, integrity or the direction of his interest, the committee on administration will take care of the situation.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President, fellow delegates, I, too, agree partially with the statements made by Delegate Ostrow. I do not think that this is a matter of questioning the good faith or the integrity of the committee on administration. I, too, would like to commend the committee for the work that they have done here in this convention. However, I am speaking against the recommendation of the committee. Because of the broad discretionary powers that have been given to the committee on public information, this committee will be the one committee that will be in the position of not having to come back to the convention for approval of what they release. This is the committee that is supposed to report to the people of the state of Michigan from time to time—the committee that will, in the eyes of the people, cast the image of this convention.

I do not even know Mr. Ferry. I have not had the opportunity of meeting him. I understand from what I have been told that he is a very capable, qualified person. But if there is any committee in this convention wherein a bipartisan spirit should prevail—or a nonpartisan spirit, perhaps I should say—it should be this committee which is in a very sensitive position.

I know from experience that it is very difficult to cast yourself overnight, in a nonpartisan role and to lay aside your personal thinking after having been oriented over a long period of time in partisan, political activities.

I think we owe it to the state of Michigan to ensure that the people appointed to such a sensitive position are able to reach that degree of objectivity, are able to cast aside partisan positions and attitudes and work in a nonpartisan spirit.

I am told that there were other people who applied for this position and who met the qualifications but who did not receive serious consideration. It seems to me that equal consideration should be given to all people who applied who have had experience in this field, particularly former employees of the Detroit Times, (Ed. Note: The Detroit Times had recently suspended publication) who would be available to perform in a position like this, who have had no tag attached to them identifying them as being involved in partisan politics.

I have been informed that Mr. Ferry just recently resigned as the publicity director of the Oakland county republican committee. In his role as press agent for the Oakland county republican committee it was his responsibility and his duty to do what he could to enhance the political fortunes of the Oakland county republican organization. I do not quarrel with this, but I question whether or not anyone so oriented should be appointed to a sensitive position of the type we are discussing here. I do not believe, for example, that Jim Vinal or Paul Weber could take this job and be really and truly objective in their approach to it . . .

MR. DeVRIES: Point of order.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, on a point of order, I wonder whether, under rule 22, this delegate is in order and has a right to discuss personalities on the floor? I should like a ruling from the Chair on that point.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair would rule that in this case Mr. Marshall is not discussing personalities within the meaning of the word "personalities" as set forth in the rule referred to.

MR. MARSHALL: Thank you, Mr. President. I do not think, Mr. President, I was discussing personalities. I hasten to add that if my remarks were construed in that light, I would apologize to the entire convention. I was seeking to make an analogy between an extreme partisan democrat and an extreme partisan republican and attempting to outline the difficulty involved in casting either of them in the role under discussion—one requiring a high degree of ability to be nonpartisan. I was trying to establish through my analogy how difficult it would be for one who was politically oriented to be objective, and how important it is to be objective in a sensitive role such as that of research assistant connected with the committee on public information which creates the public image of this convention.

It seems to me that in this sensitive spot we would be much better off to try and come up with a recommendation for the appointment of a person who is well qualified and capable in this field but one who is nonpartisan, so called, or who had never been associated with either political party, in order to achieve objective reporting of the work of this convention to the people of the state.

If I would be in order at this time in so doing, I should like to move to have this tabled, at least for the time being. As I say, I do not know Mr. Ferry—I honestly do not know him. It might be that if we were to have a talk with him our concern about many of these things we have heard reported would disappear. If there were a hearing and if I were to listen to what was said there, I might feel otherwise inclined concerning his appointment. I would like to move at this time, if I am in order in so doing, that we table this matter until one week from today in order that we might request and hold a public hearing in order to go into this matter further. If I am in order in making that motion at this time, Mr. President, I move that we table this until one week from today.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Marshall to lay this on the table for a week from today, November 9.

Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, delegates, I would urge you not to vote for Mr. Marshall's motion. I should also like to speak on it—

MR. MADAR: Point of order.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I rise on a point of order. A motion to table is not debatable, and I think that Dr. DeVries should know that.

PRESIDENT NISBET: A motion to lay on the table is not debatable. The question is on the motion of Mr. Marshall to lay on the table for a week from today. All in favor—

Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I rise to a point of parliamentary inquiry. I wish to know whether it is in order to make a motion to lay on the table to a time certain.

This is something that in all my experience under Mr. Chase in the senate we never had and I would like to have the matter clarified.

PRESIDENT NISBET: We will ask Secretary Chase that question.

Will the convention please be at ease for a few minutes.

[Whereupon the convention stood at ease from 2:40 o'clock p.m. until 2:45 o'clock p.m.]

Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President, I should like first to thank Mr. Hutchinson for his gracious lesson in parliamentary procedure, but I should also like to point out that the other day in our proceedings a motion was made to table for a definite period of time the question of the cutting off of the deadline.

I think the question is whether or not it is debatable, so I will change my motion merely to lay on the table.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the revised motion of Mr. Marshall to lay on the table. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion does not prevail.

Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, delegates, several points have been raised to which I think we should address ourselves.

First of all, all the research assistants appointed by this convention are appointed as research assistants and they are then referred to the codirectors and the committee chairmen, and they are given their assignments.

In the case of Mr. Ferry, his appointment was a recommendation to the committee on administration, a unanimous recommendation from the subcommittee consisting of Mr. Gust, Mr. Mahinske and myself. It is a bipartisan recommendation. The vote was 12 to 3.

I have confidence in Mr. White, the chairman of the committee on public information, who concurs in this recommendation. The field of activity of this gentleman will be under his direction and I am convinced that their work will be objective in character.

I am satisfied with the objectivity, the qualifications, the competence and the experience of Mr. Ferry.

With regard to the press releases which Dr. Nord drew to our attention, I can briefly tell you the story behind that if you wish to hear it, but I think it has been told so many times already that it is becoming rather boring. This press release has been reproduced in a frenzied attempt at ridicule. It has been presented this afternoon. The same thing has been released at least twice and has been on your desks at least once.

The committee on administration, the day of its organizational meeting, decided that it would send out an appeal for applicants for positions on the staff of the constitutional convention because we felt at that time we did not have enough applications. I then appointed a subcommittee consisting of Mr. Mahinske, Mr. Snyder and Mr. Gust to draft this release. They drafted the release.

On returning to the committee room, Mr. Gust ran into Mr. Ferry, who was on the convention site for about 15 or 30 minutes. Mr. Ferry may have thought that Mr. Gust was chairman of the committee, so it does not bother me at all, Dr. Nord, that his name was in there 5 times. The point is that, through an honest mistake, the release was drafted and it did mention Mr. Gust's name 5 times. The subcommittee objected to this draft release. The end result was that we recalled all the copies and issued the original release. As far as I am concerned, this was an honest error.

I would suggest to you that Mr. Ferry by now is gun shy and will lean over backwards to prevent an occurrence like this happening again. Furthermore, I am curious about one aspect of this discussion. Everybody who is opposing Mr. Ferry seems never to have met him.

All the recommendations of the committee on administration have been unanimous up to this point. I like to think that the committee did a good job. We selected people purely on the basis of competence, qualifications and experience and I think we are doing the same thing here.

In regard to the number of applications received for the position, Mr. Marshall, about 30 people applied for the position of director of public information. About half of these obviously were not qualified and were not called in for interview. There seems to be a common misunderstanding among people that all you have to have in order to be a public relations man is a Brooks Brothers suit, a blue shirt with the collar buttoned down, a narrow tie, a thin briefcase, and you are in business. The net result was that we received a lot of applications that could not be considered.

We did, however, interview at least 15 people we thought were qualified after reviewing the files. Of this group, 6 were picked as qualified. Out of the 6, we picked these 2 as the most qualified men we could find among those applying for this position. Furthermore, as a concession to some of the members of the committee, last week, when we originally were going to make this appointment, we agreed to once again open up the applications. A lot of publicity was received over the weekend on this. The net result was 4 applications. Two of them were fairly good, one was written on the back of a postcard, and the other we could not consider, either. Of the 4, we considered one of these people and interviewed him. He was a very well qualified man, but we felt that of the other interviewees Mr. Ferry and Mr. Kirvan were the most qualified.

The committee on administration still maintains that position. We believe that we have done the right thing and we urge you to support the recommendation of the committee on administration with regard to the appointment of Mr. Ferry.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, it so happens that I am on a committee that has met once. That committee is the committee on public information. The only thing that was taken up at that meeting was the hiring of men for public relations work, and I do not think the discussion lasted for more than 2 or 3 minutes. In that time I was given one promise—that the committee on public information would be given the opportunity to discuss the merits and qualifications of the gentlemen seeking the position.

I have, on 3 or 4 occasions, spoken to Mr. White, the chairman of that committee, asking when we were going to hold any meeting. I heard yesterday that we were to have a meeting this afternoon after this session. I again spoke to Mr. White when he came to me just before going to lunch and told me about the fact that they were going to hire Mr. Gay, Mr. Walsh and Mr. Kirvan, and then we also discussed Mr. Ferry.

I have thought quite a bit about all of the individuals serving as delegates at this convention, and one of the men who stands out among us is Mr. White. Just by talking with Mr. White I could sense whether or not he was satisfied with any of these particular individuals. I was rather surprised to note that it seemed that Mr. White went along wholeheartedly with the appointment of the others, but that when it came to this particular instance and the appointment concerned, his conviction did not appear to be as wholehearted with respect to having Mr. Ferry doing our public relations work.

Now, so far as our knowing about this particular press release, yes, it was on our desks for about 2 minutes, and there was a great rush on the part of the pages to get the copies off our desks so that no one would see them. I grant you that there has been discussion of these things.

If you will remember, gentlemen, you have studied over the past years and you have read a lot. You know that it is the policy in an organization that amounts to anything that if you have a personnel man doing your hiring, the departments within that organization are given the opportunity to discuss with this man their qualifications.

But apparently the committee on administration did not think that we were capable and at this time I am going to ask you, as a fairminded group of individuals, to give us our right to interview applicants for positions relating to the committee on public information. Before deciding whether you are going to accept this man or reject him, give us the opportunity to find out what each and every member of the committee on public information would think about our hiring him, after we have talked to him.

At this time I move that this be done.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar, would you please rephrase your motion? Just what was your motion?

MR. MADAR: My motion, Mr. President, is that this recommendation be sent to the committee on public information and that we consider this man, that we interview him, and then our committee submit a recommendation to the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The motion of Mr. Madar is that this recommendation be referred to the committee on public information. Any discussion?

Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I submit that Mr. Madar's motion is out of order. Under the rules, the committee on administration recommends to the president, for his appointment, staff members of the constitutional convention. The fact that we call in committee chairmen as consultants is done in good faith with the committee chairmen.

I stick with the original recommendation of the committee on administration. It is our decision along with that of the president, and we think Mr. Ferry is a good choice.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Mr. President, I have a question, or a point of order. Is the chairman of the reporting committee exempt from the rule which holds that he may only speak once when we are not sitting as a committee of the whole?

PRESIDENT NISBET: I think the chairman can speak more than once.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Thank you, Mr. President. I just wanted to ask that question. And now, as to my remarks . . . (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Brown, are you now proposing to discuss Mr. Madar's motion?

MR. T. S. BROWN: No, Mr. President. I just had a question about whether or not Dr. DeVries was speaking in order.

PRESIDENT NISBET: I must now put the question before the convention.

MR. T. S. BROWN: I will yield the floor in order that you may do so, but I will remain standing.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Madar's motion that the recommendation be referred to the committee on public information. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion to refer does not prevail.

And now, Mr. Brown?

MR. T. S. BROWN: Just generally speaking, Mr. President and fellow delegates, the public relations man—the P. R. man, as he is popularly referred to—is strictly an American phenomenon. I do not believe there is any other country in the world where the P.R. man is elevated to the present status he enjoys here.

I reserve the right—I think perpetually— to always distrust P.R. men, because in any particular instance if you ask a man who is engaged in that particular line of work why his particular line of work is necessary, his answer always is a description of how his job works, and he is never able to answer the question because it is a particularly American phenomenon.

Now, beginning with that particular orientation, and without discussing the qualities of the instant gentleman, I suggest this: we may do everything conceivable in all good conscience over a period of many months in this convention to arrive at some objective document which is good for the people of the state of Michigan, and then impose upon our delegates, during the course of our deliberations in drafting, all sorts of cross checks to prevent any sort of misinterpretation of what we are doing, and then, in the final outcome, when the product is coming off the end of the assembly line, if you will, we do not have a check there. We do not have a final inspection.

I wish to read to you from appendix B of the journal of October 9, which is the job description of the position for which Mr. Ferry has applied, assistant to the director in charge of public information. It reads:

> This person would work closely with the committee on public information. He should be a competent researcher and writer who can write notices and reports of committee hearings and sessions; prepare press releases and other materials designed to inform the public of the activities of the convention and its delegates. He should be available to all delegates for the preparation of releases and speeches. He should keep all groups interested in convention proceedings (e.g., schools and service organizations) informed of the convention's meetings and activities.

At this juncture it is possible, theoretically, without discussing the individual in question and speaking only theoretically, that a man may fumble inadvertently and thus destroy a good portion of the work we have done over many months. If that is allowed as a matter of mechanics, then I think we are in error.

I have no objection to the individual in question, but I do think this: in some way, shape or form he ought to be made more responsible to the committee on public information and he ought not to be allowed, as this job description would imply, a free hand in writing press releases for delegates or for various committees, and he ought to be made to report back to the committee on public information before issuing any such press releases, and I so move at this time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Would you restate your motion, please, Mr. Brown?

MR. T. S. BROWN: Yes, Mr. President. I move to amend the job description of the assistant to the director in charge of public information as found in paragraph (c) of appendix B, to include a requirement that press releases be approved by the committee on public information.

I beg your pardon, Mr. President, but after consulting with one of the delegates I understand that my motion to amend is out of order.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Yes.

Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President and delegates, this matter of hiring these people to work with the committee on public information has been gone over many times in the committee meetings. I have been there, and I can tell you that the man is well qualified. We could sit here all afternoon and we would not know any more about the matter than we do right at the moment.

At this time, Mr. President, I move the previous question.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is the demand for the previous question seconded? Those in favor will rise.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are a sufficient number up, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The demand for the previous question is seconded. The question now is: shall the main question now be put? Those in favor will vote aye. Those opposed will vote no.

Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: I ask for a recorded roll call vote.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the demand for a roll call vote. Those in favor will vote aye.

Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, may I rise on a question of privilege? I should like to ask this question: is it not a rule of parliamentary procedure that when a delegate speaks on a question he cannot then ask to move the previous question? Am I correct in that understanding?

PRESIDENT NISBET: The qustion now is: is there a rising vote in support of the demand for ayes and nays? Those in favor of having the ayes and nays called, please rise.

SECRETARY CHASE: Forty-four, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: There are a sufficient number up. The yeas and nays are ordered.

The question is: shall the main question now be put? Those in favor, vote aye; those opposed vote no.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? The secretary will now lock the machine.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Snyder is rising to speak.

MR. SNYDER: This is a roll call vote, Mr. President, and I do not wish to go on the record as voting improperly. Will you please be so kind as to restate the proposition on which we are now voting, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on ordering the previous question. This is to decide whether or not the previous question shall be ordered. Those in favor of that, vote aye. Those opposed, vote no.

SECRETARY CHASE: Have you all voted? The secretary will now lock the machine.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

On the question of concurring in the recommendation of the committee on administration for the appointment of Mr. Charles Ferry as research assistant; the yeas are 94 and the nays are 37.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The recommendation of the committee is concurred in and the president appoints Mr. Charles Ferry as research assistant.

Without objection the appointment is approved.

Thank you very much for a parliamentary lesson. I have been somewhat confused.

I recognize Mr. Kelsey.

MR. KELSEY: Thank you very kindly, Mr. President. I should like to have some explanation from Dr. DeVries of some of the material I was examining on my desk shortly after the convention convened. There are no dates on these papers, and I made no notation in that respect.

In the journal dated October 9, we have under appendix A, "committee on administration," 3 positions. Under appendix B, we also have 3 positions in paragraphs a, b and c. Apparently we now have employed 4 people in this category.

I wonder whether Mr. DeVries can explain how the budget was used here and how he made room or provision for the extra person. Could he explain that to the delegates?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, Mr. Kelsey, the rules authorize the appointment of 9 research assistants, or more if authorized by the committee on administration. As I understand it, this brings the total number of research assistants we have appointed up to 9, and nothing beyond that.

If I may, Mr. President, I should like to comment on Mr. Brown's amendment offered just a moment ago. I think there is a mistaken idea here. Mr. Ferry was not considered and appointed as assistant director in charge of public information. Mr. Kirvan has already received that assignment earlier this afternoon. Mr. Ferry was recommended for appointment as research assistant to work with the committee on public information.

It is with great relief that I say this concludes the report of the committee on administration. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Are there further reports of standing committees?

SECRETARY CHASE: None on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Douglas.

MR. DOUGLAS: Mr. President, I have a question I should like to put to Dr. DeVries. Under the table of organization to which reference has been made, appendix A, this assistant to the director in charge of public information is shown as being responsible only to the director and to the president.

I think that in working as closely as he will with the committee on public information, it should be made clear and it should be made a matter of record that the assistant to the director in charge of public information and the assistant research men, are directly responsible to the committee on public information.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I have here in my hand a speech that was delivered last evening to the Michigan chapter of the public relations society of America. This speech was delivered by the chairman of our committee on public information.

So that we will go on record as showing our public relations people what we mean by nonpartisanship and nonpartisan writing, speeches and releases I would ask that this speech be printed in the journal so that they can compare it in the future with anything else they may be doing.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, it will be so printed.

MR. HUTCHINSON: I object.

PRESIDENT NISBET: There is objection.

Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, with respect to the comments made by Mr. Douglas, may I say this. I do believe the rules provide that the assistant director in charge of public information must work with the committee on public information. I suggest that if he wishes to make that tie stronger, he should introduce a resolution providing for an amendment of the rules in that regard to make it more specific in regard to the research assistant.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Balcer introduces

Delegate Proposal 1162, A proposal pertaining to alien property rights and providing an exception as provided in the federal law. Amends article XVI, section 9.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule.

SECRETARY CHASE: That concludes the proposals, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no resolutions on file, Mr. President.

Mr. Marshall has submitted the following parliamentary inquiry, under date of November 2, 1961:

1. If a section of the present constitution is not reported out by a committee, would that section automatically be excluded from any new constitution that is presented to the people as a result of this convention?

2. In other words, are we writing a brand new draft constitution, or are we simply amending the present constitution?

3. Does the term "proposed constitution or amendment" in section 4 of article XVII mean that anything that is desired to stay in the constitution must be reintroduced as a proposal or recommended by a committee for convention action?

I would like a ruling from the Chair on this in a reasonable time, and have such ruling printed in the journal as part of our official records.

William C. Marshall, delegate.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The president will take it under advisement and endeavor to give a ruling on the question early next week.

Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary has on file a variety of announcements this afternoon.

The Kent county delegation is requested to meet at the rostrum next Monday evening immediately after the session. Mr. Blandford filed this request.

The following committee meetings are now scheduled:

Subcommittee, 4, of the committee on legislative powers, will meet in room H at 3:00 o'clock p.m. on November 7 to hear representatives from the Michigan bankers' association, and at 9:00 o'clock a.m. on November 9 to hear a presentation by Robert E. Childs of Wayne State University, who will speak on the subject: real and personal property exemptions. Frank G. Millard, subcommittee chairman. T. Jefferson Hoxie, chairman.

The committee on rules and resolutions will meet in room I, next Monday, November 6, immediately following the session. Richard C. Van Dusen, chairman.

The committee on legislative powers will hold a public hearing in room H on November 8 at 10:30 o'clock a.m. on Delegate Proposal 1085, A proposal to make the state responsible for aiding and assisting the indigent and needy. Claude L. Wood, subcommittee chairman. T. Jefferson Hoxie, chairman.

On the composite calendar of committee calendars is the following information:

The committee on executive branch will meet immediately after the session today for the purpose of the appearance and presentation of Daniel McHargue, University of Michigan institute of public administration; Dr. Milton E. Muelder, dean of graduate school, Michigan State University, and former member of civil service commission.

The committee on judicial branch will meet immediately following the session for the purpose of the appearance and presentation of Justice Thomas Kavanaugh. Subject: study and investigation of the current court system.

The committee on local government will also meet this afternoon immediately after the session for the purpose of discussing article VIII.

The committee on public information will meet immediately after the session for the purpose of continuing discussions. The meeting will take place in room J on the third floor.

On next Monday, November 6, the committee on rules and resolutions will meet immediately after the session. The committee will consider Resolutions 24 and 25 proposing regulation of lobbyists. The meeting will take place in room I on the third floor.

The committee on legislative powers has filed their list of subcommittee assignments with the request that the same be printed in the journal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be printed.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary is delighted to announce that the salary checks and the mileage checks have been received. Mrs. Tomlinson will have them ready for you in the secretary's office after the adjournment today.

We have had filed the following requests for leave of absence:

From the session of next Monday; Messrs. Snyder, Boothby and Suzore;

From the sessions of next Monday and Tuesday; Messrs. Hood, and Murphy, Mrs. Hatcher, Messrs. Youngblood and Mr. Douglas.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be excused.

Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Mr. President, I think we should be eternally grateful to Mr. Hutchinson for giving us his assistance in pointing out the parliamentary puzzle we are involved in.

Some time ago I made the recommendation that we should all be provided with a copy of Mason's rules, the Manual of Legislative Procedure for Legislative and Other Governmental Bodies. If copies were provided to us then all of us, I think, could start becoming somewhat more familiar with parliamentary procedure. As much as I respect Mr. Hutchinson's knowledge, I rather prefer relying on my own sometimes. (laughter)

I wonder whether we have found out anything concerning the availability of such books?

PRESIDENT NISBET: The secretary has an announcement to make on this subject.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hodges, we received a report to the effect that Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure was available in a branch of a New York book store in Detroit. We canvassed that situation most thoroughly and found out that the proprietor of the store was in error in feeling that copies were available because the book is now out of print. I understand that he has put out flyers, I believe to various book stores all around the United States, in an effort to obtain additional copies. We will have these as soon as we can obtain them.

In the meantime, I have put through a long distance telephone call to my friend, Joseph A. Beek, secretary of the California senate, asking him from whom I could obtain copies. Paul Mason, the writer of the book, is a personal friend of his, and if there are any copies available in California, I am sure we will receive them.

MR. HODGES: Thank you.

SECRETARY CHASE: I have one further announcement: Mr. Sharpe has furnished the apples for today. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, after a lengthy conversation with my well known first vice chairman, Mr. Gust, it has been decided that the committee on administration will hold a group therapy session on Monday evening at 7:00 o'clock in the president's conference room.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: With very great sincerity and appreciation, I rise at this time to say that I fully agree with Mr. Hodges' remarks to the effect that we are all indebted to

Mr. Hutchinson, and I would ask that we now give a vote of thanks to Mr. Hutchinson for contributing his knowledge of parliamentary procedure at this convention. (applause)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Thank you.

Mr. President, I did raise in all sincerity an oral parliamentary inquiry. I think the record should show a decision of the Chair on that inquiry. I do not believe that it would be shown thus far in the record of our proceedings. I believe I already understand the answer, but I think the record should show it.

SECRETARY CHASE: In response to the inquiry of the senator from—(laughter) in response to the inquiry of the delegate with respect to the form of the motion to lay on the table, Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure has this to say:

> Section 334. Form of Motion to Lay on the Table
> . . . . A motion to lay the question on the table until a certain time is a motion to postpone definitely and takes a lower rank of precedence.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gadola.

MR. GADOLA: Mr. President, may I be permitted to say that we have discussed this matter of public information and the director of public information at some length. I believe that there may be some misunderstanding in the public mind over the matter as it has been presented here. It might appear from what has been said on this subject that there is only one source of public information, the director of public information, or the committee on this subject.

In the press gallery behind me we have another important source, a committee on public information without portfolio, if you will. They are a wonderful body of individuals. They are as fine as you could assemble anywhere. I am not bowing to Huntley, Brinkley or anyone else. This group back here in the gallery is the committee on public information.

I believe that this committee and this convention believes in their integrity and in the integrity of the members and staff of the information bureau whose function is to ensure that the information that is given out is accurate and fair.

PRESIDENT NISBET: That concludes the business of the day.

Mr. Anspach.

MR. ANSPACH: Mr. President, I rise to give expression to those familiar words which often are quite welcome—I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adjournment. All in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

The convention stands adjourned until Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, and in pursuance of the order previously made, at 3:30 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 8:00 o'clock p.m. Monday, November 6, 1961.]

NINETEENTH DAY

Monday, November 6, 1961, 8:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation this evening will be given by the Reverend Glenn Carpenter, Pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Lansing

REVEREND CARPENTER: Almighty God, our heavenly Father, we come into Thy presence this evening realizing that we are Thy children and that in ourselves we are very weak, but with Thy help we will be strong.

We thank Thee for our great country and for the opportunity we have of meeting here in freedom, without fear, in order that we might confer upon those things which are of paramount value and importance to us, not only in the present but particularly in the future.

We thank Thee for the history of the past, and for the devotion of those men who made possible the freedom we enjoy today. Enable us to go forward not on our own strength alone but assisted by Thy strength, Thy wisdom and Thy guidance.

May everything that is accomplished be done for the benefit of our great commonwealth, and may we as citizens realize that we have an obligation not alone to ourselves but as well to our whole state and our nation.

Keep us true and faithful until we have performed the task that has been given to us to do, and then receive us unto Thyself. We ask it in the Master's name and for His sake. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Have you all voted? The secretary will lock the machine and the vote will be recorded.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

Messrs. G. E. Brown, Dehnke, Ford and Knirk, from tonight's session, Monday, November 6, 1961.

Messrs. Dade and Greene, from the sessions of Monday and Tuesday, November 6 and 7, 1961.

Mr. Garvin, from the sessions of November 6, 7, 8 and 9, 1961.

Mr. Norris, from the session of Monday, November 13, 1961.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Allen, Boothby, G. E. Brown, Dade, Dehnke, Douglas, A. G. Elliott, Ford, Garvin, Greene, Mrs. Hatcher, Messrs. Hood, Knirk, Murphy, Norris, Snyder, Suzore and Youngblood.

Absent without leave: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Tomorrow at the convention session we will hear reports from 2 more of our committees. Mr. Arthur Elliott will present a report on behalf of the committee on local government and the chairman of the committee on education, Mr. Alvin M. Bentley, will present a report on behalf of that committee.

Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee on public information, by Mr. White, chairman, respectfully reports back to the convention Resolution 15, A resolution inviting foreign students to our convention; without amendment and with the recommendation that it be adopted.

Ink White, chairman.

The following is the resolution as amended and referred to the committee on public information:

> Whereas, The work of this convention has received national and international attention; and
> Whereas, There are many nations in the world today which face a task similar to our own here; and

Whereas, There are many foreign students attending schools in Michigan; and

Whereas, These students will be the future leaders in their respective countries; now therefore be it

Resolved, That this convention extend an invitation to these students to attend our meetings and meet our delegates in order that they may better their understanding of our American democratic process in action; which invitations shall be prepared for the president's signature and disseminated as soon as possible by the committee on public information.

For the body of Resolution 15 as offered, see above, page 191. For amendments, see above, page 231.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the resolution. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The resolution, as amended, is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Those are all the standing committee reports, Mr. President.

There have been filed with the secretary for reporting and registering in the journal, pursuant to the provisions of rule 65, 2 explanations of votes.

The first of these is dated November 6, 1961, and is offered by Delegate William C. Marshall. It reads as follows:

Delegate Marshall desires to explain his vote under rule 65 of the convention on the recommendation of the committee on administration relative to the appointment of Mr. Charles Ferry as research assistant at the session of Thursday afternoon, November 2, 1961.

I voted against the recommendation because I sincerely believe that no one should have been employed in the public information department who had been identified with extreme partisan politics with either political party. All of the delegates are aware of the broad powers given this committee and with the fact that they will exercise these powers arbitrarily without prior approval of the convention.

In an attempt to not be accused of making this a partisan political fight I voted to approve Messrs. Walsh, Kirvan and Gay even though Mr. Walsh was the campaign manager for one of the delegates to this convention during the recent con con campaign. We are all aware of the fact that Mr. Ferry just recently resigned as the publicity director for the Oakland county republican committee.

I question also whether we needed as many employees in this department as were employed and whether this was not an unnecessary burden upon the convention to say nothing of the taxpayers of the state of Michigan. Much has been said by individual delegates about polarization of the delegates along party lines, and this, of course, a great majority of us have tried desperately to avoid, realizing our responsibility to all the people of the state of Michigan whether they be republicans, democrats, or independents.

I sincerely believe that employing people in this particular department who are not identified with partisan politics would have been more conducive to bipartisan acceptance and cooperation than the action that was taken.

I regret that we were forced to accept in this department people who are obviously extremely partisan in their political beliefs, and I resent politicians of either party pressing to have their own political cronies or political "yes men" placed upon the payroll of this convention.

I sincerely hope that in the future a minority in the convention will be properly consulted in order to avoid a recurrence of this type of disagreement.

The following communication offering an explanation of her vote is from Delegate Adelaide J. Hart and bears the date of November 6, 1961. It reads:

In compliance with my rights as delineated in rule 65, I, Adelaide J. Hart, do hereby submit for publication in the journal my reasons for voting "nay" on the question of hiring Charles A. Ferry as a research assistant, the question being decided in session the afternoon of November 2, 1961.

It should be a matter of serious concern to all delegates that the paid staff of the constitutional convention not become the winter pasture for party professionals whose backgrounds do not suggest a natural tendency toward a history of objectivity.

The action in question and the prior action of hiring others to the staff of the convention strongly suggest that, based upon recent performances, at least one known aspirant to high political office in the delegation may now have two campaigners employed at public expense.

Too few delegates, republican and democrat, were made aware prior to balloting of the background of one new employee who had been campaign manager for a successful delegate.

Certainly his new post must be considered a worthy reward for past services, however questionable filling such a position might be regarded as a means for repayment.

Most disturbing, however, was the determination of certain leaders of one party to name three of their own to serve with this most powerful of committees with no effort whatsoever to curb the powers of the committee, making its actions directly responsible to the full convention.

This initial display of careless partisanship must be recognized as a serious move to negate the efforts of most of the delegates from both parties who strongly prefer that all deliberations be conducted in an atmosphere of mutual trust and respect.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Wanger introduces Delegate Proposal 1163, A proposal to make the board of state canvassers the chief election authority of the state. Amends article III.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Wanger introduces Delegate Proposal 1164, A proposal to delete section 13 of article XI, pertaining to salt spring lands, which now serves no useful purpose.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Wanger also introduces Delegate Proposal 1165, A proposal to delete section 20a of article X, pertaining to world war I veterans' bonus, which now serves no useful purpose.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Martin introduces Delegate Proposal 1166, A proposal to retain the uniformity clause of the constitution and clarify its wording to clearly forbid the enactment by the legislature of a graduated income tax. Amends article X.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Donnelly introduces Delegate Proposal 1167, A proposal to fix qualifications for all judicial officers and to prohibit the judiciary from receiving remuneration based upon litigation. Amends article VII.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on judicial branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Donnelly introduces Delegate Proposal 1168, A proposal to delete the constitutional status of the office of justice of the peace. Amends article VII and article VIII.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on judicial branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Balcer introduces Delegate Proposal 1169, A proposal to retain article X, sections 20a, 23a, 25, 26, pertaining to military service bonuses.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: That completes the proposals, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that order, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Perras offers Resolution 27, A resolution regulating constitutional convention agents at the Michigan constitutional convention.

Following is the body of Resolution 27, as offered:

Resolved, That any person employed by a person, persons, firm, association, or corporation; or by any board, department, or agency of Michigan, or any political subdivision thereof, to engage in promoting, advocating, or opposing any matter pending before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof, or who is employed expressly for the purpose of promoting, advocating, or opposing any matter which might come before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof, shall be considered a "convention agent" within the provisions of this resolution; and be it further

Resolved, That the terms "advocating", "promoting", and "opposing" shall be construed to mean any act or acts, performed directly with a delegate to the constitutional convention, for the purpose of inducing him to vote or to use his influence for or against any matter before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof; and be it further

Resolved, That any person who shall confine his activities in promoting, advocating or opposing any matter pending before the constitutional convention, or any committee thereof, to formal appearances before any constitutional convention committee, and who in writing identifies himself to the committee, together with each and every person, firm, association, corporation or other interest represented by him, shall not be deemed to be a "convention agent" within the meaning of this resolution; neither shall such term include any person whose contact with a delegate is limited to furnishing information at the request of any delegate or any constitutional convention committee regarding any matter pending before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof; and be it further

Resolved, That every "convention agent" shall file with the secretary of the convention on forms provided by that office, a sworn statement containing the following information:

1. Full name of applicant, place of residence and place of business;

2. Name of firm, corporation, association or governmental agency of which he is an employee, partner or owner, together with the position held, business address and principal occupation of the organization of which applicant is an employee or agent;

3. If the applicant mentioned in (1) is employed by more than one person, firm, corporation, association or agency, the names of such persons, firms, corporations, associations, or agencies, business addresses, and principal occupation or occupations;

4. The name and address of the person, firm, corporation, association or agency who will keep the custody and control of the accounts and records required to be kept by further provisions of this resolution; and

5. When any change, modification or addition of such employment is made, the applicant shall, within one week of such change, modification or addition, furnish full information regarding the same to the secretary of the constitutional convention on forms provided by that office; and be it further

Resolved, That the secretary of the constitutional convention shall record and index in his office the information required by this resolution and shall furnish copies thereof to all delegates of the constitutional convention. The records required to be kept by the provisions of this resolution shall be open to inspection in the office of the secretary of the convention or in such office as he shall designate; and be it further

Resolved, That upon application by any person who has complied with the provisions of this resolution, the secretary of the convention shall issue to the applicant an identification card showing the name and business address of the person to whom such identification card is issued. Certificates issued by the secretary shall be prima facie evidence of compliance with the registration requirements hereof; and be it further

Resolved, That any person who shall wilfully violate any provision of this resolution as determined by a resolution of the convention, shall forfeit his identification card and shall thereafter be barred from entering the convention hall or any of the adjacent halls or rooms which are under the jurisdiction of the constitutional convention: Provided however, That before any such resolution of license forfeiture shall be placed before the convention, the persons, firm, etc., shall be given an opportunity to be heard in a duly noticed public hearing which shall be conducted by the committee on rules and resolutions of the constitutional convention to which the forfeiture resolution shall be referred; and be it further

Resolved, That the names of all persons whose registrations have been revoked shall be certified to the convention delegates by the secrtary of the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only resolution on file.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, I rise to present a motion. Mr. President, I move that rule 72 be amended as follows:

1. Amend rule 72, after "shall be" by striking out " "Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure." " and inserting "any standard book on parliamentary or legislative procedure selected by the president and readily available in Lansing bookstores.". (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, Mr. Downs, this will be referred to the committee on rules and resolutions for their consideration.

SECRETARY CHASE: May the secretary make this comment? Today I received word from the secretary of the senate of California, Mr. Joseph A. Beek, that he had obtained, and there are being forwarded to us, 10 copies of Mason's Manual which will be available for use in the library and here on the convention floor.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary has the following announcements:

Mr. Blandford requests the delegation from Kent county to meet at the rostrum this evening immediately after the session.

Will the delegates please turn in to the secretary's office, as soon as you can conveniently, your revised mailing lists for receipt of the senate journal — (laughter) I mean the convention journal. These are in the process of preparation and the library and other lists are all ready. The printing office has provided us with enough copies so that these can be mailed at once.

This request is from the telephone company: there is at the foot of the stairs on the lower level a telephone station that has been provided by the courtesy of the telephone company. The phones there are for the use and convenience of the delegates and the guests of the convention in making local and long distance calls. This unit will continue, dependent of course upon the usage. At the present time they are making no charge for the use of this telephone service—it is there for your convenience.

We have the following notices of committee meetings:

The committee on public information will meet in room C this evening immediately following the session. Ink White, chairman.

The committee on finance and taxation will meet in room E tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. D. Hale Brake, chairman.

The committee on judicial branch will meet in room B tomorrow, Tuesday, at 10:30 a.m. Robert J. Danhof, chairman.

There will be a joint meeting of the corporation subcommittee of the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule and subcommittee 4 of the committee on legislative powers in committee room C, Tuesday, November 7, at 3:00 o'clock p.m. or immediately after the session. Mr. Henry L. Woolfenden and Mr. Frank G. Millard, chairmen.

The committee on education will meet in room J and will follow, in its meetings, the regular schedule of meetings previously announced: Tuesdays at 8:30 a.m., Wednesdays, at 3:00 p.m. and Thursdays at 10:30 a.m. Alvin M. Bentley, chairman.

The committee on rules and resolutions is meeting this evening to consider Resolutions 24 and 25 proposing regulation of lobbyists.

The committee on legislative organization will meet tomorrow immediately after the session in room D for the purpose of the appearance and presentation to be made by Dr. Pollock.

The committee on finance and taxation will meet tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. in room E—the appearance of Senator Elmer Porter, state senate; Representative Arnell Engstrom, state house; Professor Alfred M. Pelham, Wayne State University, Detroit.

The committee on executive branch will meet tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. in room C—the appearance of former governor Wilber M. Brucker.

The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections will meet tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. in room F for a discussion of the bill of rights with Dr. Kelly, codirector of research for the convention.

The committee on legislative powers will meet tomorrow at 3:00 o'clock p.m. or immediately after the session in room H. Subcommittee 4 of the committee will meet to hear representatives from the Michigan bankers' association.

A notice of a public hearing. The committee on legislative powers will hold a public hearing in room H. The date will be November 8, 1961, at 10:30 a.m. The hearing will take place on Delegate Proposal 1085, A proposal to make the state responsible for aiding and assisting the indigent and needy. Claude L. Wood, subcommittee chairman, and T. Jefferson Hoxie, chairman.

I also have the following announcements:

There is in the president's office an Elgin wristwatch that was found in the hall by one of the pages. It is a silver or white gold watch. If the owner will come in to identify it, it will be appreciated. Mrs. Tucker, the president's secretary, has it.

The secretary would like to call your attention to the fact that on your desks, in a black binding, is the first publication of our "status of proposals and resolutions", together with an index indicating who introduced the proposals and resolutions. This is our first effort in this regard.

The secretary would like to thank particularly his own staff, the stenographers downstairs, the pages and everybody else who worked like a bunch of busy beavers to get this put together for you for tonight's session. If it had not been for their help, this would not have been available.

Mr. Nisbet has asked that the following announcement be made, for those interested in football: the downtown coaches' club wishes to extend an invitation to the male members of the constitutional convention to attend the weekly Wednesday luncheons at the Jack Tar Hotel. Luncheon is $2:00 per person and is held throughout the fall football season. They convene at 11:45 a.m. and terminate at 1:30 p.m. Movies of the preceding game played by the Michigan State University spartans are shown, a scout report of the upcoming game is given, and awards are made. Those who are interested please register with Mr. Sleder.

The following requests have been filed with the secretary asking for leaves of absence:

Mr. Stopczynski and Mr. Upton request to be excused from tomorrow's session; and Mr. Follo requests to be excused from Wednesday's session, November 8, to attend a funeral following a death in the family.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be excused.

SECRETARY CHASE: If the delegates who know in advance that they will be absent will please file a request with the secretary, it will expedite the handling of the leaves of absence.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Are there any other announcements?

Mrs. Butler.

MRS. BUTLER: They say that all of these hurricanes which sweep the country are usually named after a woman, and I have noticed that they are.

Right at the moment I feel a little "hurricaney" myself. And I just want to make this statement. I was terribly disappointed when the appointments were announced that there was no person from the upper peninsula appointed to any job at this constitutional convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you.

Any other announcements?

Mr. White.

MR. WHITE: Mr. President there have been distributed on the desks of the delegates this evening copies of a brochure which are just fresh from the printers. We have only a limited quantity at this moment but by late tomorrow we will have many more of them and they will be available in reasonable quantities for distribution by the delegates among their friends, and so on, and when they are out engaged in keeping public speaking engagements. We trust that you will use them with some discretion, but they are available and will continue to be available in the office of the committee on public information for your use. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I have here this evening with me a copy of a speech that was delivered at a meeting of the public relations society of America, the Michigan chapter.

Last Thursday I made a motion that this speech be inserted in the journal so that all delegates could read it and read a speech that was as nonpartisan as ever a speech could be, and still be good. (laughter) I wanted this in the journal so that our public relations men could see it, so they could pattern their work after this speech.

As I said, I made a motion at that time but the motion was not really acted on because I did not state in my motion that I wanted unanimous action.

At this time I am again going to move that this speech be inserted in the journal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Madar's motion.

Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I was the delegate who was opposed on Thursday or who objected to the inclusion of this speech in the journal. My objection was based on the fact that the maker of the speech had not made any move or indicated that he desired it in the journal. I did not believe that the convention should simply proceed without first ascertaining his wishes. I understand that it is immaterial to the maker of the speech whether or not it appears in the journal.

I would like to know, however, how long the speech is, and how much it is going to cost to print it. I raise this policy question with the convention: if we permit ourselves to develop in this journal anything approaching the appendix to the congressional record, we will have to go to the legislature and ask for several million dollars more money.

I am serious in inquiring whether the maker of the motion can advise as to how long the speech is and about how much it will cost to print it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: I am extremely sorry that I cannot give you the cost. However, I can tell you that it is 6½ pages. And I can assure you of this: if all the delegates read it; if the public relations men read it and pattern their work after this speech, it will be worth 10 times what it might cost us to put it in the journal.

This speech was given by Ink White, the chairman of the public information committee. I did not think that we had to ask for permission to have it put in there but if Delegate Hutchinson feels that we should, why we might try to get permission of Ink White to allow us to print it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Upton.

MR. UPTON: Mr. President, I would like to amend Mr. Madar's motion. I move that we circulate this speech among the delegates by means of a special printing. This will, if adopted, save the charge of having it inserted in the journal and yet, at the same time, give the delegates a chance to read what I agree is a very fine speech. It will give us an opportunity to read these words and save us the cost of printing.

I therefore move to amend Mr. Madar's motion as follows:

1. Amend the motion by striking out "printed in the journal" and inserting "mimeographed and passed out among the delegates".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment of Mr. Upton.

Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President, I would oppose both the amendment and the adoption of the motion offered by Mr. Madar on the basis that Mr. Hutchinson mentioned. Obviously, anything that you will allow like this in the convention must go into the record and be printed, and that is expensive.

Now Mr. Madar asked that it be made available to 3 people —3 public information people. I suggest that he get 3 copies of it and give it to each of them, and save all that printing expense.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: I rise to express support for Mr. Farnsworth's statement. The very same result could be accomplished by giving copies to the public information men.

As I understood it, Mr. Madar's intention in making his motion was to make copies available so that the staff of the public information committee could pattern their work after this speech, so that something will not be prejudiced one way or the other. I am sure it will not, in the beginning, but I would feel much better if this sort of thing did take place and copies were given to the public information men, which would also save us the expense of printing this speech in the journal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar, do you wish to speak?

MR. MADAR: I would certainly go along with the amendment, but I am sure that it would not hurt the rest of you delegates to read it—at least a good many of you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President and delegates, I am inclined to agree with Mr. Hutchinson. I would not want to see us get in the position wherein we constantly have people coming in wanting to introduce speeches made by individual delegates into the journal for printing. Knowing the cost of printing these days, it would run into an enormous sum of money.

I also agree with Mr. Hutchinson that we would have to go back to the legislature and ask for several million dollars if we were to get ourselves in this position.

I do, however, rise in support of the amendment. I do not believe that it would be too costly to have this mimeographed and passed out to the delegates and to the staff of the committee on public information. And, since we had a slight controversy over the committee on public information, I would support the amendment. But I would not think it wise for us to start instituting a program of printing these in the journal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Lesinski.

MR. LESINSKI: Mr. President, I wish to comment on the cost of printing. I hold in my hand a recent copy of our action journal wherein there are practically 3 pages that we paid for and they are blank. Although they are blank pages, presumably we paid for them.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. White.

MR. WHITE: Mr. President, this is all very embarrassing to me. I have only one comment: "It ain't that good a speech!" (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: Mr. President, I would first like to commend Mr. White on his modesty.

Secondly, I would like to amend the amendment so that there would be sufficient copies distributed to make it possible to have copies of the speech available for those delegates who are very appreciative of Mr. White's efforts, to pass out among our friends and constituents.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. President, I find myself in a very peculiar position. I back what everyone has said so far. I would like to make this comment. I believe it is perfectly correct to say that we should not get into the habit of introducing into our journal speeches that were not made on the floor. We know that even if they are made on the floor, they are not put in our daily action journal, and this is the correct procedure.

The only other point I would like to add, is this. I think it is a very wise thing for democrats to take the position that we do not wish to have speeches inserted into the record because there are a lot more republicans around here than there are democrats. (laughter) I certainly think it would be a bad move especially to start out with one republican speech, even if it is a good speech. I think that it is the course of wisdom, and that the amendment should be adopted. Mr. Hutchinson has pointed out the consequences of indiscriminately placing in the journal speeches not made on the floor of this convention, and everyone else has agreed with him. I think that the amendment ought to be adopted.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further discussion? It looks like a good week. (laughter) The question is on Mr. Upton's amendment. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

The question is now on the motion as amended. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

This completes our business for this evening. What is your pleasure?

Mr. Barthwell.

MR. BARTHWELL: I move that we adjourn, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Barthwell moves that we adjourn. The question is on adjournment. Those in favor say aye. Opposed?

The motion prevails.

We are adjourned until tomorrow at 2:00 o'clock p.m.

[Whereupon, at 8:35 o'clock p.m., the Convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m. Tuesday, November 7, 1961.]

TWENTIETH DAY

Tuesday, November 7, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation this afternoon will be given by Mrs. W. B. Ver Meulen, National Chaplain of the National Federation of Republican Women, Grand Rapids.

MRS. Ver MEULEN: Our Father in heaven, Thou who art the Creator, the Ruler, Sustainer and the Savior of the race, we pause before Thee today to praise Thy holy name and to adore Thee for Thy greatness and Thy goodness. We bring our hearts to Thee full of gratitude for all Thou hast done for us and for the many blessings which we have received from Thy most holy hand.

We thank Thee for the many material blessings of life which we enjoy every day in a nation enjoying those things that many other nations long for and never have received and which are ours. We thank Thee for this nation of ours which is truly a land flowing with milk and honey.

We also thank Thee for the spiritual gifts which are ours, the gift of being Thy children and the gift of being a free people of which this meeting today is a sign and a symbol.

We ask forgiveness for the fact that all too often we accept Thy gifts and forget Thee, the Giver of every good and perfect gift.

We ask Thy forgiveness for all that we have done that is not pleasing in Thy sight. We beseech Thy blessing for the men and women who are gathered in this convention and thank Thee that they are willing to give of their time, their minds, their energies and their skills for the improvement of this, our beloved state.

We ask that Thou bless them in all their endeavors. Raise them to new heights as they struggle with these many problems. May they not deal in personalities, or in self, or in partisan interests, but may they so labor that at the end of these many long and weary months they may produce a document which the people of this state can adopt with pleasure, with gratitude, and with thanksgiving.

We would also pause for a moment to bring before you the peace of this world. We live in a world which seems to grow darker every day. We recognize that all things are in Thy hands; and that it is Thy will that we live in this age in which a power has been released — a power which, if used rightly, can bring untold blessings to all mankind, but a power which, uncontrolled, can bring untold horror and suffering, and even total destruction itself. So we ask for all those who must deal with the great problems that lie before us as we struggle to bring about peace in this world.

Bless our president. Grant to him good health, strength of mind and body, as he grapples with all these problems. Bless all of those who rule with him, both in this land and the united nations, and in all the conferences that are being held.

We would pray especially for those who represent us as a nation whose God is the Lord, that they may not rule in their own strength but recognize Thee; that it is only as they come to Thee that that superhuman wisdom can come which will solve these problems.

And we would ask for ourselves that we may also remember that this nation is no stronger than its citizens, and so may we strive to so live that the peace which we desire may flow from our own lives through living in peace with Thee, our God, and with all those around us. Now bless us further this afternoon we pray, in the name of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All those present, please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: The voting machine is now locked and you may release your voting lever.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Absent with leave: Messrs. Dade, Douglas, Garvin, Greene, Mrs. Hatcher, Messrs. Hood, Murphy, Stopczynski and Youngblood.

Absent without leave: Mr. G. E. Brown.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, Mr. G. E. Brown is excused.

I would like to ask the permission of the convention this afternoon to excuse from the balance of this afternoon's session Vice President Downs, Delegate Page and myself. I have been asked to speak on the constitutional convention at the annual meeting of the citizens' research council of Michigan. This is the organization which has provided much of the material for study by this group, so I hope, without objection, we may be excused. Hearing none, we are.

Will Vice President Hutchinson please take the Chair?

[Whereupon, Vice President Hutchinson assumed the Chair to preside over the convention.]

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Pursuant to the order of business heretofore set up, whereby on certain days we receive progress reports from committees under the order of reports of standing committees, the Chair recognizes the chairman of the committee on education, Mr. Alvin M. Bentley, for a progress report at this time.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, fellow delegates, ladies and gentlemen, the committee on education found itself at the outset of the convention with a most unique advantage in having among its membership a great many people who had long and distinguished backgrounds in the field of education at various levels. However, those backgrounds were, for the most part, confined to one or another of the levels in the field of education.

There were also many of us on the committee, including the chairman, whose knowledge of and background in the field of education was somewhat rudimentary, to say the least. Therefore, it was felt by the committee that it would be best to devote the first few weeks to a general study and review of the entire field of education in the state of Michigan, and to that end we have primarily devoted our efforts during the first few weeks of our committee hearings.

Our initial witness, for example, was Dr. Lynn Bartlett, state superintendent of public instruction, who discussed with us the work of his department. He was followed by Dr. Ferris Crawford, one of the assistant superintendents, who discussed in particular the role played by the community colleges, the former junior colleges, in this state. We also heard, during the course of our committee meetings, from 2 of our own committee members, Dr. Hannah and Mr. Bonisteel, who discussed governing boards of control and the administration of the 3 institutions of higher learning which have constitutional status. A discussion was also led by our convention president, Mr. Nisbet, who for many years was president of the state board of education, and who dealt with that particular function.

It is our intention in the time ahead to continue in this field in reviewing generally the question of education, turning perhaps from the levels of higher education more to the primary and secondary levels.

For example, tomorrow afternoon at our committee meeting, to be held immedately following the adjournment of the session in room J, we will have the pleasure of hearing from Dr. Samuel M. Brownell, superintendent of Detroit public schools, and we are asking other interested parties and experts in these related fields to come before the committee, both people who are holding official positions in the field, and those who are not holding official positions of an educational nature or otherwise but who show a particular interest in and have particular qualifications in this field.

At the same time we are scheduling, subject to the approval of the convention, 3 socalled public hearings. While, of course, all the meetings of the committee are open to the public, committee room J on the third floor where the committee on education meets is not a large room and does not permit a large attendance. With the cooperation of Michigan State University we have been able to make arrangements, at no cost to the convention, for the use of the main auditorium of the Kellogg center at Michigan State University for these public hearings to which I referred.

It is our hope to hold meetings on Wednesday afternoons and, if necessary, in the evenings, beginning a week from tomorrow, November 15. The committee felt that the following Wednesday, being the day before Thanksgiving, would hardly be conducive to a good attendance.

We have tentatively scheduled for the dates November 15 and November 29, public hearings in the main auditorium of Kellogg center, from 4:15 p.m. to 6:15 p.m. and, if interest and attendance should warrant it, we purpose to resume the hearings at approximately 7:30 p.m., following the dinner hour.

At this time, incidentally, pursuant to rule 34, I should like to request, on behalf of the committee on education, permission of the convention to hold open hearings as stated at Kellogg center at no expense to the convention.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the request of the chairman of the committee on education that his committee be permitted to hold public hearings at Kellogg center at no expense to the convention, Kellogg center being just outside the city of Lansing, on the dates requested. Is there objection?

Hearing none, the request is granted. And now you may resume.

MR. BENTLEY: As of this morning, also, we appointed — I say "we", the chairman and the 2 vice chairmen have made these appointments with the approval of the full committee — 4 subcommittees: one on higher education; one on elementary and secondary education; one on school financing at all levels; and one on libraries and related provisions. I shall hand this list of the subcommittees to the secretary of the convention and ask that it be printed in the journal.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Without objection it will be printed.

Following are the preliminary subcommittee assignments for the committee on education:

A—Higher education committee (including governing boards and administrative structure, community colleges and adult education)
Bonisteel, Roscoe O—chairman
Andrus, Vera (Miss)
Conklin, Anne M. (Mrs.)
Follo, Charles
Hannah, John A.

B—Elementary and secondary committee (state superintendent of public instruction, state board of education, certification, school districts, lands)
Romney, George—chairman
Balcer, Frank A., Jr.
Douglas, Edward L.
Richards, Leslie W.
Spitler, H. Carl

C—School finance committee (bonds and borrowing, sales tax, earmarking, escheats, etc.)
Page, G. Keyes—chairman
Barthwell, Sidney
Karn, Dan E.
Rush, Allen F.
Bonisteel, Roscoe O.

D—Committee on libraries and other provisions (charitable institutions, culture, training schools, trade and vocational schools, mentally afflicted)
Andrus, Vera (Miss)—chairman
Brown, Theodore S.
Faxon, Jack
Kuhn, Richard D.
Heideman, Bert M.

Ex-officio members on all committees
Bentley, Alvin M.—chairman, education committee
Anspach, Charles L.—vice chairman, education committee
Hart, Adelaide J. (Miss)—vice chairman, education committee

MR. BENTLEY: Thank you. Finally, it is our intention to offer this afternoon, for probable reference to the committee on administration, a resolution cosponsored by 3 of our members, requesting permission for the committee on education, or part of it — I believe not to exceed 12 members — to make a trip for the purpose of holding public hearings in the upper peninsula at some date to be fixed hereafter. As I say, I am sure that resolution is on the secretary's desk and will be offered, I presume, and referred to the committee on administration. I merely announce that at this particular time as another example of the activities of the committee on education.

To conclude my report I will only say that, as of course the convention is aware, the committee on education was the first substantive committee to come forth with a committee proposal — an event which I am sure we all will remember took place a few weeks ago on a Monday night.

For the information of the convention, Mr. President, I might remark that research into the proceedings of the 1907-1908 Convention shows that this particular proposal, relating to section 1, article XI, with which the convention is familiar, was the most controversial part of the constitution on the subject of education before the convention in that year. There were 4 roll call votes on it. And so, in that respect, we apparently are following an established precedent.

We are following the plan of holding our usual hearings following the regular schedule of meetings published in the composite calendar and interested parties will continue to appear before and make presentations to our committee. Possibly we will be adding additional meetings, if interest warrants, in addition to the public hearings already announced to take place at Kellogg center.

It is the chairman's hope that we can complete our public hearings perhaps within the next 4 or 5 weeks and then undertake a substantive study of the issues involved and the studies which will be engaged in, in large part, by the subcommittees I have named.

That concludes my report. Thank you, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Thank you, Mr. Bentley.

The Chair now recognizes the chairman of the committee on local government, Mr. Arthur G. Elliott, for a progress report at this time.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, and delegates, the committee on local government held its organizational meeting on October 17. At this meeting the general approach to the problems confronting our committee was decided upon. The pattern follows the basic outline of the other committees as reported to the convention earlier.

As of today, November 7, we have held 10 committee meetings and several subcommittee meetings. All but 2 of these committee meetings have been devoted to a review of the provisions of article VIII of the present constitution. This article, which relates to local government, contains 31 sections which run the gamut from metropolitan districts, referred to in section 31, to villages, reference to which can partially be found in section 20. As of today we have completed the initial discussion through section 17.

After the first few meetings, it became obvious that much of our work was intertwined with questions of local finance. We therefore heard from Mr. Eckhardt, chairman of the tax commission, along with Mr. Kane and Mr. Markle, his aides. This meeting took the entire 2 hours of our committee session. As a result of Mr. Eckhardt's presentation and the report of his aides, I am sure that all 27 members of the committee on local government have a much clearer concept of the problems of local taxation, equalization, and of the 15 mill limitation.

We also had the pleasure of having a report from one of our own committee members, Mr. Ford, in which he discussed in detail the problems of township government, particularly the urban townships.

In other discussion and study of article VIII a question was posed by one of the members of the committee which opened an entirely new field of thought. This involved Michigan's natural resources. A subcommittee has been appointed to be chaired by Dorothy Judd and to work under the supervision of one of the committee's vice chairmen, Mr. Figy. The result of this study is nearing completion and we may be making a report to you, as a convention assembled, if it is found advisable, in the next few days.

Several temporary subcommittees have been appointed touching specific areas of inquiry involving the present article VIII. In addition, 2 permanent subcommittees have been appointed. The first is to record all points of interest which might more properly be legislative in nature. This committee is charged with the preparation of a report to the legislature as part of our final responsibilities. The chairman is Mr. McLogan and its membership includes Mrs. Cushman and Mr. Leslie Richards. The second permanent committee is charged with the responsibility of recording all subject areas of constitution modification that we may come across in our general discussions. They have an important task, as many subjects are being touched upon during these preliminary discussion periods. The chairman appointed here is Mr. Farnsworth and its membership includes Mr. Ford and Mr. Tweedie.

Our 2 vice chairmen have been asked to accept the responsibility of keeping our calendar published as far in advance as possible, which we hope will be helpful to all here as well as to the news media and to all interested citizens. They are also preparing a committee time table for the committee's consideration later this week.

We would welcome your suggestions and visits to our committee sessions. I feel that our progress to date has been very satisfactory and that we have worked together most harmoniously.

It is our intention to complete, by the end of next week, the initial study of article VIII, and to then begin to hear testimony from people who have particular interest in these areas of local government.

I might point out that on Thursday morning at our 8:30 a.m. session we will be pleased to have with us Mr. John Bebout as our speaker and that tomorrow at the session one of our own members of this convention, Mr. Millard, will speak to us on the subject of navigable streams.

Mr. President, this concludes the report of the committee on local government.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Thank you very much, Mr. Elliott.

Further reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on rules and resolutions, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 24, A resolution regulating interest group agents at the Michigan constitutional convention; Resolution 25, A resolution regulating interest group agents at the Michigan constitutional convention; and Resolution 26, A resolution regulating constitutional convention agents at the Michigan constitutional convention; with a substitute therefor, recommending that the substitute be agreed to, and that the resolution as substituted be adopted.

Richard C. Van Dusen, chairman.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is on the substitute.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I think probably some detailed explanation of the substitute is in order. You will all find copies of the substitute for the resolution before you. They were placed on your desks this morning.

The committee on rules and resolutions has had before it for upwards of a week 3 separate resolutions offered by Delegates DeVries, Dean Doty and Lundgren, each dealing with the same subject matter: the regulation of persons who appear before and work with the convention as representatives of various groups, associations or others interested in the work of the convention.

Prior to our meeting last night, the 3 sponsors of the separate Resolutions, 24, 25 and 26, had conferred and were able to present to us last night a proposed substitute which embodies the best features, in the judgment of the committee, of all 3 separate resolutions.

I think I should emphasize at this point that there is nothing new in the substitute. All of the material contained in the substitute was found previously in one or more of the several resolutions which have been before the committee and the convention for over a week.

Now, perhaps I should outline for you — and you may wish to follow on the copies of the substitute before you — just what these resolutions seek to accomplish.

First, it is, of course, a simple routine matter of regulating the people who do business with our convention. The first resolving clause defines "convention agent" as > any person employed by a person, persons, firm, association, or corporation; or by any board, department, or agency of the state of Michigan, or any political subdivision thereof, to engage in promoting, advocating, or opposing any matter pending before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof, or who is employed expressly for the purpose of promoting, advocating, or opposing any matter which might come before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof, in the interest of his employer or employers shall be considered a convention agent within the provisions of this resolution.

Several persons and types of activities are exempted from the provisions of the resolution. The resolution does not apply to those who confine their activities to appearing before any constitutional convention committee. It does not apply to public officials who at the request of a committee appear before that committee to make presentations.

The resolution does not apply to any person whose contact with a delegate is limited to furnishing information to a delegate at the delegate's request. In other words, if you, as a delegate, desire some particular information from someone in your home district who is particularly knowledgeable in the subject and you call him and ask him for that information, it is not necessary for him to register or be defined as a convention agent in order to answer your question.

The resolution does not apply to accredited correspondents of news media who are defined in our rules, nor does it apply to newspapers, other news media, radio and television agencies, those who publish periodicals on a regular basis — house organs would apply, for example — who in the ordinary conduct of their business make editorial comment, either in print or on the air, about the work of the convention.

Convention agents, as so defined, who are not specifically exempted, are required by the resolution to file with the president of the convention their names, the name of the person or organization which they represent and a specification of the particular article or section of the constitution in which they are particularly interested. There may be many such convention agents who are interested in the entire constitution, and they may so indicate.

The second particular requirement of the resolution with respect to the conduct of convention agents is that each must keep and report, on a regular basis, expenditures made by himself or by his employer in 2 general categories: first, the total amount spent on mailings, advertising, publications or other publicity efforts having as their principal purpose influencing the deliberations of the constitutional convention or of any delegate thereto; and second, the total amount expended on entertainment of constitutional convention delegates and staff.

Here I might pause to point out that these are 2 separate bulk reports, the amount spent on publicity and the amount spent on entertainment. Quite obviously it would be unfair to any interested organization which spent quite a lot of money in one month, for example, preparing a brochure to simply make a lump report because it might appear that they had spent a lot of money on entertainment which was not the case.

These reports are required to be filed monthly on or before the fifteenth of the month following the month in which the expenditures were made. They are to be made under oath, and they are to be maintained in the office of the president and will be open to the public following the fifteenth of the month in which they are filed.

There are provisions designed to enforce the regulations so imposed. If there is someone who is within the definition of a convention agent and therefore required to register and make reports but fails to do so, and this is brought to the attention of the convention, the person will be accorded a hearing before the committee on rules and resolutions on the question of whether he has wilfully violated the provisions of the resolution, and if the committee so determines, it will bring forward a resolution to the floor of the convention charging the person with contempt of the convention.

If the convention adopts the resolution, the name of the individual and his employer will be published in the journal of the convention and the person thereafter will be barred from constitution hall, a rather stringent remedy, I would think, and one purely within the jurisdiction of this convention.

Now, I would like to point out that there is nothing in the action of the committee on rules and resolutions in favor of reporting this substitute resolution which implies or in any way infers that the committee is of the opinion that we doubt whether convention agents will conduct themselves with propriety. We recognize the great importance of their work to the whole convention through having ably presented to it the views of groups interested in the subject matter of the convention, and we fully expect that those views will be presented with propriety, with clarity and with great benefit to the convention.

By the same token, I should indicate that there is no intent on the part of the committee on rules and resolutions to imply, by recommending this resolution, that we doubt the ability of our fellow delegates to properly weigh and evaluate all information which is presented to them, regardless of the context in which it is presented. The resolution simply recognizes that there are a great many groups who are interested in the matters coming before the convention, that they will present their views in many cases through agents employed for that purpose, and that these convention agents are together with the delegates and the general public and the press, an important part of the work of this convention; and that just as the delegates have subjected themselves to rules, and have subjected the press to rules, we think it is reasonable to subject the representatives of these interest groups to careful and reasonable regulations. The regulations proposed by the resolution are, in the judgment of the committee, fair, thorough, far reaching and carefully conceived.

The committee reported the substitute for the resolutions by a vote which was nearly unanimous. There was one negative vote cast in the entire committee.

The committee strongly recommends the adoption of the substitute for the resolutions.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the substitute. The secretary will read the substitute.

SECRETARY CHASE: Following is the substitute for Resolutions 24, 25 and 26 which were offered by Messrs. DeVries, Dean Doty and Lundgren:

A resolution regulating convention agents at the Michigan constitutional convention.

Resolved, That any person employed by a person, persons, firm, association, or corporation; or by any board, department, or agency of the state of Michigan, or any political subdivision thereof, to engage in promoting, advocating, or opposing any matter pending before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof, or who is employed expressly for the purpose of promoting, advocating, or opposing any matter which might come before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof, in the interest of his employer or employers shall be considered a convention agent within the provisions of this resolution; and be it further

Resolved, That the terms "promoting", "advocating", and "opposing" shall be construed to mean any act or acts, performed for the purpose of influencing a delegate to the constitutional convention to vote or to use his influence for or against any matter before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof; and be it further

Resolved, That the provisions of this resolution shall not apply:

(1) To any person who shall confine his activities in promoting, advocating or opposing any matter pending before the constitutional convention, or any committee thereof, to formal appearances before any constitutional convention committee;

(2) To any public official acting in his official capacity who has been requested to appear before any committee of the convention;

(3) To any person whose contact with a delegate is limited to furnishing information at the request of any delegate or any constitutional convention committee regarding any matter pending before the constitutional convention or any committee thereof;

(4) To news media correspondents accredited in accordance with rule 7 of this convention;

(5) To any newspaper, news medium, regularly published periodical (including any individual who owns, publishes, or is employed by any such newspaper, news medium, or periodical) which in the ordinary course of business publishes or broadcasts news items, editorials or other comments, or paid advertisements which directly or indirectly urge the passage or defeat of any constitutional provision, if such newspaper, periodical, news medium, or individual engages in no further or other activities in connection with the passage or defeat of such constitutional provision, other than appearances described in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph; and be it further

Resolved, That every convention agent shall:

(1) File with the president of the convention on forms provided by that office, a statement containing the following information:

(a) full name of applicant, place of residence and place of business;

(b) name of any and all firms, corporations, associations, or governmental boards, departments, or agencies of which he is an employee, together with the position held, business address and principal occupation of the organization(s) of which applicant is an employee or agent;

(c) the article(s) or section(s) of the constitution in which he, acting as convention agent, is interested;

(2) Keep and report a record of all expenditures made by himself or his employer or employees for the following purposes:

(a) total amount expended on mailings, advertising, publications, or other publicity efforts having as their principal purpose influencing the deliberations of the constitutional convention or of any delegate thereto;

(b) total amount expended on the entertainment of constitutional convention delegates and staff;

(3) File on or before the fifteenth of each month a report of the above described expenditures made during the preceding calendar month;

(4) File on or before 30 days following final adjournment of the convention a report of the total amount so expended during the convention;

(5) When any change, modification or addition of such employment is made, the convention agent shall, within one week of such change, modification or addition, furnish full information regarding the same to the president of the constitutional convention on forms provided by that office; and be it further

Resolved, That all information required to be filed under the provisions of this resolution with the office of the president shall be available after the fifteenth of each month to the public and shall be compiled by the administrative assistant to the president; and be it further

Resolved, That all reports and statements required herein shall be made under oath; and be it further

Resolved, That upon application by any person who has complied with the provisions of this resolution, the president of the convention shall issue to the applicant an identification card showing the name and business address of the person to whom such identification card is issued and the name of his employer(s). Identification cards so issued by the president shall be prima facie evidence of compliance with the requirements hereof; and be it further

Resolved, That any person who is defined or registered as a convention agent within the provisions of this resolution, who shall willfully violate the provisions of this resolution, if so determined by resolution of the constitutional convention, shall be decreed in contempt of the constitutional convention, and if registered as a convention agent, his identification card shall be revoked: Provided however, That before any such resolution shall be placed before the convention, any person so defined or registered as a convention agent shall be notified in writing and shall be given an opportunity to be heard in a duly noticed public hearing which shall be conducted by the rules and resolutions committee of the constitutional convention; and be it further

Resolved, That the name of any person so determined to be in contempt of the convention and the name of his employer(s) shall be published in the action journal of the constitutional convention, and such person shall thereafter be barred from entering constitution hall.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is on the adoption of the substitute for the resolutions. All those in favor will say aye. Opposed?

The substitute is adopted.

Mr. Kelsey.

MR. KELSEY: Mr. President, much has been said about this resolution in many forms. I wish to go on record as voting against the resolution.

I should like to take issue with Mr. Van Dusen on the basis of his saying that it is now in a form comprising or incorporating the text of all 3 resolutions.

I dislike very much, and object very strenuously to some of the words used in the press. I feel it has cast a doubt by inference on the integrity of every delegate in this convention by suggesting that they could be bought for a dinner or a drink. Let me say speaking for myself, that I am a very moderate eater and a very moderate drinker. Certainly I feel I am here at this convention because of the respect in which my integrity is held by the people in my representative district.

I should like to see Dr. DeVries' original resolution brought before us. Whoever these lobbyists are—and incidentally I have never met one in 10 years in public life—they should be made to file an expense account to include itemized details. If they should spend any amount of money on any particular delegate, that should be included in view of what has been said.

In conclusion, I repeat that I wish to go on record as voting against the resolution.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The Chair would like to inquire of you, Mr. Kelsey, whether you want your nay vote to be recorded on the vote just taken which was on the adoption of the substitute, or whether you want it recorded in opposition to the next question, which is upon the adoption of the resolution as substituted?

MR. KELSEY: I suppose I would be against both of them.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: All right. Without objection, the statement will be entered in the journal.

Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President, I rise to speak in support of the recommendation of the committee. I think that the regulations as adopted here are fair. I do not think that they cast any suspicion over the delegates unless we want to take it that way.

I would say that Delegate Ford and I should have a complaint, if anyone should. About a week ago, we were taken out with a group of people including a known lobbyist, who has been lobbying over on capitol hill. I do not know how it happened, but Delegate Ford and I got stuck with a $50 tab. Everyone had their dinner and when it came time to leave the Capitol Park, the lobbyist rose and left with friends of ours who had come with us, and there was nothing left for Bill and I to do except to dig down and pay the check. So we might need protection against that. (laughter)

I see nothing out of line here. I think this is a fair set of regulations and I rise in support of the recommendation.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I should like to speak to Mr. Kelsey's point, if I may. It has been charged that these regulations suggest that a delegate may be purchased for the price of lunch or dinner. All I say in reply to this point is that nobody really believes this, and nobody ever will. It is not my intention to cut off any delegate from free lunches and dinners, although I cannot resist saying that in my own case I have noticed a drastic reduction in the number of invitations I have received in the last few weeks. (laughter) Either the lobbyists do not want to take me out or they cannot afford to be seen with me by the other lobbyists—I don't know which the case is.

In any event, this is a regrettable situation, because they do contribute very valuable advice and information and often this is done by breaking bread at the luncheon or dinner table.

Seriously, all regulatory legislation suggests something about human behavior. Very few would seriously argue that we must do away with all regulatory legislation and agencies, just because it might suggest that we cannot trust all human beings all of the time.

I think the substitute resolution is a good one and I will be glad to see the convention adopt it.

MR. KELSEY: Mr. President. . .

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: For what purpose does the gentleman rise? Mr. Kelsey, you have already debated on this particular issue, have you not?

MR. KELSEY: I have further remarks to make, Mr. President, but if I am to be deprived of that opportunity, that is your decision.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Under the rules, every delegate may speak only once, unless there is unanimous consent.

Is there objection to Mr. Kelsey speaking further? The Chair hears no objection. You may proceed.

MR. KELSEY: Thank you very kindly.

Possibly everyone has read Senator Porter's remarks in the News and read everything that was said about lobbyists. Certainly one could interpret that it is an inference on the integrity of each delegate.

If these lobbyists have any valuable information to contribute, let them bring it before the respective committees. That is all, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the resolutions as substituted.

Mr. Allen.

MR. ALLEN: A point of inquiry, Mr. President. A question was raised earlier today, if this is passed, as to the effective date. I should like to ask Mr. Van Dusen of the committee on rules and resolutions this question. I would assume the effective date, if this is passed, would be today, so that on the monthly expenditures, the record would start as of today.

I notice in paragraph 4 of the substitute resolution that after the convention adjourns a report is turned in as to the total amount. I would assume that that total amount would apply to the total expenditures from the time the convention started until the end, but the monthly report would commence as of today. Would that be correct?

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Do you care to reply, Mr. Van Dusen?

MR. VAN DUSEN: Thank you, Mr. President. I think Mr. Allen's interpretation is correct. There is no intent here that this would apply retroactively. I would think that if persons have not kept a record of expenditures up till now they would not be required to report them. If they have kept them and can report them, however, they should do so. But there is no intention to apply this retroactively. It becomes effective as of the date of its adoption.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon the adoption of the resolutions as substituted. All those in favor of the resolutions as substituted will say aye. Those opposed will say no.

The resolutions, as substituted, are adopted.

Further reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, recommends to the constitutional convention the adoption of the following report regarding convention library services:

1. That the library hours should be as follows:

Monday thru Thursday—8:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m.

Friday—8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

Saturday—8:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon.

2. The library staff should be on duty during the following hours:

10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon—2 librarians on duty.

2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.—2 librarians on duty.

Other hours—1 librarian on duty.

3. That the financial arrangements for the library staff be as follows:

a. One convention librarian (a convention employee paid from the convention budget).

b. Two state library employees (who will remain state library employees on loan to the convention—total salary of approximately $1,000 a month).

It is further recommended that the convention, by interdepartmental transfer of funds, turn over to the state library the necessary appropriation to provide for the completion of this arrangement.

4. The committee further recommends that the state board for libraries, and its acting secretary, Mr. Charles L. Higgins, be commended for their willingness to cooperate with the constitutional convention in making their facilities and experienced personnel available to the convention.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Just a brief word of explanation, Mr. President. The rules of the convention call for 2 librarians. We have employed Miss Mary Long as our convention librarian. She is a member of the convention staff, employed full time, and paid from the budget.

We have arranged to borrow 2 employees from the state library, Mary Armstrong on a half time basis, and Lila Colby full time. These employees will be loaned to the convention from the state library.

Mary Long, who is a convention employee, will be paid from the convention budget. Mary Armstrong and Lila Colby will remain state library employees, on loan to the convention. Their total salary is approximately $1,000 a month.

The convention, by this interdepartmental transfer of funds, should turn over to the state library the budgeted funds for the second library position, $4,000, for the rest of the convention. From these funds, they will hire part time help to do some of the things in their library that Miss Armstrong and Miss Colby do there. They will absorb the additional cost of the salaries of these 2 persons in their budget.

I recommend that the convention approve this transfer and commend the state library board for its cooperation with the convention.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The question is upon concurring in the recommendations contained in the report of the committee on administration. All those in favor say aye. Those opposed, no.

The recommendations are concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the standing committee reports, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Faxon offers

Resolution 28, A resolution regarding the announcement and time of public hearings.

Following is the body of Resolution 28, as offered:

Whereas, The work of this convention is to be made known to the public; and

Whereas, The public ought to have an opportunity to participate in whatever manner they deem possible; and

Whereas, Public hearings are to be scheduled which involve public participation; and

Whereas, Many people who work during the daytime may desire to appear before these committees; now therefore be it

Resolved, That all public hearings be announced at least one week in advance and that all such public hearings be arranged in the evening hours whenever possible.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Heideman, Follo and L. W. Richards, on behalf of the committee on education, offer

Resolution 29, A resolution requesting authority and funds for the committee on education to hold hearings in the upper peninsula at Houghton and Marquette.

Following is the body of Resolution 29, as offered:

Whereas, Some parts of the upper peninsula are as far away as 600 miles and since many people concerned with schools in that area have expressed a desire to attend a hearing of the committee; and

Whereas, The committee on education feels it necessary to get the opinions of people from all over the state and get an overview of the state as a whole; and finds it important to hold public hearings in Houghton at the Michigan College of Mining and Technology and in Marquette at Northern Michigan College or at such other place as may appear desirable for the purpose of permitting the educators at these colleges and the community colleges, those in the elementary and secondary schools of that area, librarians, and other interested persons of the upper peninsula, an opportunity to be heard concerning their problems pertaining to education and libraries, and for the further purpose of informing the people of the upper peninsula of the developments at the constitutional convention; and

Whereas, The rules of this convention require convention approval before a committee can conduct such a hearing at places other than in Lansing; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the convention grant authority to the committee on education to hold the hearings described at the places indicated, and that the convention appropriate the necessary funds to defray the costs of travel for not more than 12 members of the committee to and from the places indicated, and other expenses necessary and incidental to the holding of such hearings.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Referred to the committee on administration.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Pollock offers

Resolution 30, A resolution for a select committee to deal with proposals not presently within the jurisdiction or consideration of any committee.

Following is the body of Resolution 30, as offered:

Whereas, Many of the emerging problems of state and local government may not be dealt with by the present standing committees; and

Whereas, Several of these new and emerging problems should be given careful consideration; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the president appoint a select committee consisting of the president, the vice presidents, and 5 other delegates to deal: (1) with proposals not presently within the jurisdiction of any of the substantive committees, or (2) which are not being considered by present committees because they refer to new or emerging problems; and be it further

Resolved, That this committee be also charged with arranging for the joint consideration by 2 or more committees or subcommittees thereof of any matters which require such joint consideration.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the resolutions on file, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Announcements and notices.

SECRETARY CHASE: The following are the notices of committee hearings:

The committee on legislative powers will meet in room H tomorrow at 10:30 a.m., and in room H on Thursday at 9:00 o'clock a.m. T. Jefferson Hoxie, chairman.

The subcommittee on eminent domain will meet on Wednesday, November 8, at 10:45 a.m. Judge Pugsley will speak to the subcommittee. Claud Erickson, chairman of the committee, and Paul Mahinske, chairman of the subcommittee on eminent domain.

The committee on finance and taxation will meet in room E tomorrow, Wednesday, immediately following the session.

The committee on administration will have a brief meeting immediately following the session today in the conference room of the president's office. Walter DeVries, chairman.

The committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule announces that the meeting planned for 3:00 o'clock this afternoon has been cancelled due to conflict with another committee. This committee will meet at 9:00 a.m. on Thursday, November 9, instead.

Notice of a public hearing: The committee on legislative powers will hold a public hearing in room H. Date will be November 8, 1961 at 10:30 a.m., on Delegate Proposal 1085, A proposal to make the state responsible for aiding and assisting the indigent and needy. Claude L. Wood, subcommittee chairman, and T. Jefferson Hoxie, chairman.

The apples today were provided by Delegate Turner. (applause)

We have the following requests for leave of absence: Mr. Rush wishes to be excused from the session of Thursday; Mr. Erickson wishes to be excused from tomorrow's session due to a speaking engagement in Detroit; Mr. Austin wishes to be excused from Thursday's session; and Mr. Ostrow wishes to be excused from the session of next Monday evening, November 13.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Without objection, the several requests will be granted. The Chair hears no objection, and the requests for leave of absence are granted.

Further announcements?

Mr. Powell.

MR. POWELL: Mr. President, I wish to announce that subcommittee 2 of our committee on legislative powers will meet in room C immediately after the session this afternoon.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Hannah.

MR. J. A. HANNAH: Mr. President, the calendar of the committee on legislative organization should be corrected. We have appearing before us this afternoon Dr. Pollock; a representative of the Consumers' Power Company; and Mr. August Scholle of Detroit.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Millard.

MR. MILLARD: Subcommittee 4 of the committee on legislative powers, in conjunction with the subcommittee of the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule, will meet immediately after this session and hear witnesses in room C.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, I wish to correct a statement I made in my report given earlier this afternoon in which I said that Mr. Millard would be speaking to us on Thursday. He will be speaking to us tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. and Mr. John Bebout will speak on Thursday, immediately after the session.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Any further announcements or notices?

Mr. Allen.

MR. ALLEN: Mr. President, I move we adjourn.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The gentleman from Kalamazoo, Mr. Allen, moves that the convention do adjourn. The question is on the motion to adjourn. Those in favor say aye. Those opposed say no.

The convention stands adjourned until tomorrow at 2:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, at 2:55 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m. Wednesday, November 8, 1961.]

TWENTY-FIRST DAY

Wednesday, November 8, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

The invocation today will be given by the Reverend Guy N. Bridges, of the United Missionary Church of Lansing:

REVEREND BRIDGES: Our Father, we are thankful that Thy hand is still over the affairs of men. Though sinister forces seem to threaten this world, Thou art still in control of Thy creation. We are grateful that there are those with strong faith who are a part of this body. Give them wisdom to know what is good, and give them strength to perform it.

Remember those who are under pressure to make decisions against their better judgment. Help them to be true to themselves. Help us all to remember that Thou art a shelter in the time of storm.

May the work accomplished today be such that Thy blessing may rest upon it. This we request in the name of the Lord Jesus, Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All those present, please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? If so the secretary will record the vote. The voting machine is now locked and you may release your voting lever.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Absent with leave: Messrs. Erickson, Follo and Garvin.

Absent without leave: none.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees. According to our program of the last 2 weeks of hearing committee reports, our first report today will be by William Cudlip, chairman of our committee on style and drafting.

Mr. Cudlip.

MR. CUDLIP: Mr. President and delegates, the committee on style and drafting I have termed the caboose of this assembly. We are ready to move and will move when the locomotives are ready. We are ready to go. We have a fine committee, as all the committees are. Our room is high on the third floor and our clerk is Mrs. Kirksey.

That is the extent of our committee report, except that I would remind you that this assembly on October 9, by rule, outlined the scope of our jurisdiction and power. It is one of the few committees of this convention that can have its powers so prescribed. That is Journal 3 of our body. I am going to read it because it is going to become more and more prominent in our deliberations. This is what you told us we could do:

> The comittee on style and drafting shall examine and edit all proposals for inclusion in the constitution which are referred to it, for the purposes of avoiding inaccuracies, repetition, inconsistencies or poor drafting, and shall consider and make recommendations on any differences, conflicts, or unresolved matters of substance. The committee shall have the authority to rephrase or to regroup proposed language or sections of the proposed constitution but shall have no authority to change the sense or purpose of any proposal referred to it. The committee shall also be empowered to recommend referral of proposals submitted to it to any committee which may have an interest in the proposal. Where a proposal has been already acted upon favorably by the convention at second reading, the committee shall undertake to resolve any inconsistency or conflict in conference with the substantive committee concerned. If the committee on style and drafting shall fail to resolve any such inconsistency or conflict, it shall notify the convention and await its instructions.

Mr. President and members, I took the liberty of reading this language because as all of us go forward with the committee work and as committee proposals come to this floor, I think it behooves all of us to carefully understand the function of this particular committee because we are a seamless web—it is all related—and this way you will get guidance that will alleviate our work and pressures. Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Cudlip.

Our other committee report today is from the committee on public information, of which Mr. Ink White is chairman.

Mr. White.

MR. WHITE: Mr. President and fellow delegates, this must necessarily be a somewhat sketchy report of the activities of the committee on public information.

I am sure that you are all aware that it was not until last week that the permanent membership of our committee was established, there being a considerable shift in membership of this particular group due to rearrangement of committee assignments.

You are aware too that it was not until Thursday of last week that we were assigned a professional staff to assist us with the myriad of details involved in doing a proper public information job for the convention and for you delegates. I should like to report now that there have been 2 meetings of the committee as permanently constituted during the past week, and we are presently engaged in study and discussion of our problems.

We have determined to divide our group into a total of 11 subcommittees, covering pretty generally the wide spectrum of activities in which we will be engaged. I think a listing of them and a minimal description of their duties may be of interest to the convention.

Our first subcommittee will be charged with the responsibility of newspaper liaison. It will maintain contact with the newspaper personnel and assist them with their problems of communication with delegates and staff of the convention. Included in their duties also will be keeping proper relationship with the community weeklies and other periodicals published for special groups within the state.

Our second subcommittee will have to do with radio and TV. Again, here it will maintain proper liaison with radio and TV personnel and assist them with their problems of communication with delegates, committee chairmen and the officers of the convention.

Our third subcommittee will be charged with the responsibility of convention hall courtesies. It will work in cooperation with the sergeant at arms and the convention guides to assure courteous treatment to convention visitors.

Our fourth subcommittee will have to do with public hearings. It will arrange proper news coverage for committee hearings in Lansing and elsewhere in the state if they are so ordered.

Our fifth subcommittee will be concerned with service to delegates. It will offer and arrange for the committee's service to individual delegates in matters pertaining to their own public information problems: newspaper columns, press releases, background for speeches, radio and TV appearances.

Our sixth subcommittee will set up a speaker's bureau. I think that matter is self explanatory.

Our seventh subcommittee will have to do with schools and colleges. Here again, it will maintain proper liaison with the state's schools and colleges and offer our services to them for a better understanding of convention procedures.

Our eighth subcommittee will have to do with civic, labor, fraternal and community groups, in an effort to promote better understanding of the convention and its work among these people.

Our ninth subcommittee will have to do with government groups. Here again it will attempt to promote better understanding of the convention and its work among townships, villages, cities, county and state officers and their employees.

Our tenth subcommittee will be involved with the production of a documentary film, in which we will have the cooperation of the 3 major state universities. This will be available, we hope, soon after the adjournment of the convention for use in public gatherings.

Our eleventh subcommittee will be engaged in surveying public opinion trends, maintaining a clipping bureau which will be available to all of us, and also make some regular reports to committee chairmen as to public opinion on the matters before their particular committees.

Now, as to what you may expect soon from our staff: in preparation at present are 3 basic talks on the convention and its problems, which we hope to distribute to all delegates before they leave for the weekend recess. Accompanying these talks will be an outline of statistical data about the convention and its facilities, which may be interesting to groups before whom you are asked to speak.

Tomorrow the first of a regular weekly review of convention activities will go out to all of the state's weekly newspapers. This will assure us of regular publicity in an important segment of the state's press.

When we have acquired complete mailing lists, we shall also plan to send regular releases to labor and religious periodicals, and publications for the several ethnic groups of the state. Industrial and commercial house organs will also be included in our mailings. In this connection, we are also planning a suggested weekly column which you may adapt to your own use for publication in your community publications. The first of such columns will be ready, we hope, before you go home tomorrow.

Our staff is also prepared to help you individually with preparation of your own news releases for distribution to the media which you specify. I am sure you can understand, however, that with our 3 man staff and the present volume of work we are a little handicapped in this respect. We urge that you give us a day or two notice, if possible, on these individual releases. We want to accommodate all of you, but with 144 delegates to service, we obviously can't handle all of you at once.

Also in the works are plans for a weekly intraconvention bulletin to delegates and staff, carrying informal items of general interest. Included, we hope, will be a listing of each delegate's past and future speaking engagements. We will need your help in accumulating information for this bulletin and we will have future announcements to you about it.

With the help of the sergeant at arms and his staff and the 3 convention guides, we are making every effort to accommodate and make welcome visitors here to constitution hall. We are suggesting that the larger groups who plan to visit us notify our staff by telephone or letter prior to their arrival. This will give us an opportunity to notify interested delegates when folks from their home communities will be here for our sessions.

Ample arrangements have been made for school bus parking in areas adjacent to constitution hall. We have also provided for the serving of a hearty, warm meal to school youngsters for 75 cents at the Mason cafeteria. Delegates are not eligible for this meal. (laughter)

I call your attention briefly again to the brochure which has been prepared. These are available in reasonable quantity to all delegates and may be taken with you for distribution when you go out on speaking engagements. Some of us are also including them with our personal correspondence with constituents and others.

May I say, in conclusion, that our committee is grateful to all of the news media of the state for the splendid coverage which they have accorded the convention to date. Without the day to day help and understanding of the men and women who sit over here in the press box, our public information job would be a completely impossible task.

I also wish to express my heartfelt appreciation to the members of our committee for their patience and understanding in these early days of formulating policy and gathering unto ourselves a qualified staff.

That concludes my report, Mr. President. Thanks for your attention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. White.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 29, A resolution requesting authority and funds for the committee on education to hold hearings in the upper peninsula at Houghton and Marquette; without amendment, and with the recommendation that it be adopted.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

Following is the resolution:

Whereas, Some parts of the upper peninsula are as far away as 600 miles and since many people concerned with schools in that area have expressed a desire to attend a hearing of the committee; and

Whereas, The committee on education feels it necessary to get the opinions of people from all over the state and get an overview of the state as a whole; and finds it important to hold public hearings in Houghton at the Michigan College of Mining and Technology and in Marquette at Northern Michigan College or at such other place as may appear desirable for the purpose of permitting the educators at these colleges and the community colleges, those in the elementary and secondary schools of that area, librarians, and other interested persons of the upper peninsula an opportunity to be heard concerning their problems pertaining to education and libraries, and for the further purpose of informing the people of the upper peninsula of the developments at the constitutional convention; and

Whereas, The rules of this convention require convention approval before a committee can conduct such a hearing at places other than in Lansing; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the convention grant authority to the committee on education to hold the hearings described at the places indicated, and that the convention appropriate the necessary funds to defray the costs of travel for not more than 12 members of the committee to and from the places indicated, and other expenses necessary and incidental to the holding of such hearings.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and fellow delegates, this resolution has the unanimous recommendation, first, of all of the committee on education, and second, of the committee on administration.

The committee on education members testified that this was necessary for several reasons:

One, they felt it would bring its work close to the people; Secondly, they wanted to study higher and other educational institutions of the upper peninsula, particularly in regard to various proposals in regard to independent boards and the merging of the 2 colleges in the upper peninsula; and Three, many delegates are not familiar with the educational institutions of the upper peninsula, and they want a chance to study them first hand. The feeling was that they are pretty familiar with the educational institutions in the lower part of the state and not with those of the upper peninsula.

Twelve members of the committee will make this trip at economy rates. The total estimate for this is about $1300 for the 3 day trip and hearings. The convention has a budget of $31,000 for this kind of activity.

The committee on administration is satisfied it is a worthwhile activity and urges the adoption of this resolution.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the resolution. Any discussion?

Mr. Heideman.

MR. HEIDEMAN: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I would just like to make a short statement. Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes used to say it is sometimes more necessary to explain the obvious than to elucidate upon the obscure.

With this in mind, may I again remind you that our state of Michigan is unique geographically. It is long and narrow. The only other state which is comparable to it is the state of California. But Michigan is even more unique than California in that it is composed of 2 peninsulas almost surrounded by water, one jutting north and the other jutting east, both peninsulas connected to the United States by land but separated from each other by water at the straits of mackinac. We now, of course, have a wonderful bridge spanning the straits. But because of the fact of these 2 separate peninsulas and their physical separation, we need always to do all that we can to unite their people and to keep them conscious that we are all "Michiganders" and "Michigeese." Thank you. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any other discussion?

Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: I do not desire to oppose this resolution but I feel sure that we will now have a rash of applications to the committee on administration to go here and there, either where there are votes or where there aren't many votes. There will be some good reason. I question whether this is the most efficient way to utilize the small sum at the disposal of the committee on administration.

I have nothing but fondness for the upper peninsula and if it feels neglected, it must be neglected in ways in addition to education. And I am sure that the whole problem of constitutional revision as it affects the upper peninsula is not quite as important as the question of education.

I should think therefore, instead of waiting for energetic chairmen to put forward resolutions for hearings, that the committee on administration might work out some systematic schedule by which not only the upper peninsula, but the whole state is considered.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. McAllister.

MR. McALLISTER: I want to support the resolution offered in favor of this trip to the upper peninsula. We here in the lower peninsula often pay too little attention to this great part of our state. And I say that $1200 is not an excessive amount to investigate education in the upper peninsula. And I heartily endorse it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERETT: Mr. President, being on the committee on administration, we heard the hearings just prior to this session. Miss Hart, I thought, made a very good explanation in justification of this trip because she stated that most of our hearings will come from people within approximately a 2 hour drive or trip, and they can appear before us here. This, of course, is much farther than 2 hours, and it appeared to us that it was necessary to have a special trip to the upper peninsula.

Now, I would like to point out that it has been handled very economically by Mr. Heideman, and with a rough calculation, while we were in the committee meeting, I figured that we could make approximately 24 or 25 such trips.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I am not up here to oppose it. Frankly, I'm for giving the voters an opportunity to see us in action. However, I would like to know just why we are going to Houghton. I know that this isn't going to be a "dear trip"—an expensive trip, I meant to say—pardon me. (laughter) I would like to know, however, the dates.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries, will you answer the question, please?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Mr. Madar, the point was raised in the committee as to whether this didn't correlate with the opening and closing of the deer season. It does not. This will be the first week in December.

If I may, Mr. President, talk to Dr. Pollock's point, the committee on administration would be delighted to work out a systematic schedule of trips as soon as the resolutions are in. I suggest that we try to do that in the next couple of weeks.

If I may further interpret Mr. Sterrett's remarks, I don't think because we can probably get 25 trips out of a $31,000 budget, that this would be considered carte blanche and that we should now try to get as many resolutions as we can for trips. We want to limit it as much as possible.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further discussion?

Mr. Richards.

MR. L. W. RICHARDS: Mr. President, I feel that I would be lax—being from the upper peninsula—if I didn't speak on behalf of this resolution.

I am happy the 2 gentlemen stood and said definitely they were unopposed to it. I hope the delegates realize they made that statement when they vote.

Certainly, we feel that we would like an administrative group—I'd like the whole 144 delegates—to come to the U.P. We believe it would simply be worthwhile to see what the other part of Michigan is, what we have to offer. We certainly feel the committee on education is more justified probably than the others, due to the extensiveness of our 2 larger schools up there.

A lot of our people who were definitely interested in our constitutional convention will not have the opportunity of coming down, and we would like to go to them. I think there will be some of the committee on education that have never been to the U.P. and they will come back and sell you folks who have never been up there and encourage you to come up.

I think whether expenses are paid or not, it would be a worthwhile investment to personally come and visit us and meet some of the fine people that are up there. They aren't all down here as delegates, I assure you.

I talked to a lot of of both our democratic friends and republican friends and they all intend to be up there, whether or not the committee on education goes up, and that will be a fine representation, I think, of all the various committees that are represented here.

I hope that all of you delegates will support us. Certainly it is not a selfish interest on anyone's part. And certainly, we've been happy to work with our committee on education. Their interest is in a good constitution. I've never seen any partisan politics and I've certainly been happy to serve them, and I hope you support this resolution. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: Mr. President, as a delegate from Wayne county, I should be happy to support a trip of any of our members to that wonderful part of the state, the upper peninsula.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the resolution. All in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

The resolution is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only standing committee report, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Madar and Baginski introduce

Delegate Proposal 1176, A proposal to amend article VIII, section 2; townships in county; city as separate county; by providing that cities over 1,000,000 may become separate counties by a vote of its populace.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to committee on local government.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Madar, Baginski and Buback introduce

Delegate Proposal 1177, A proposal to add to article VIII a section providing for the office of county assessor who shall have the duty to determine the valuation of all property within the county subject to county, township, school and municipal taxes of any nature.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on local government.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Perlich and Pellow introduce

Delegate Proposal 1178, A proposal to add a new section to article X providing for the creation of an economic development council for the upper peninsula and the appropriation of 1 per cent of the total revenue for said council.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Barthwell introduces

Delegate Proposal 1179, A proposal to add an additional section to article XI, providing for a community college system within the state, which system shall provide 2 tuition free years of collegiate work for its pupils.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on education.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hodges introduces

Delegate Proposal 1180, A proposal to amend article VI, section 19, president of the senate. Office of lieutenant governor, right of same to appoint committees.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Millard introduces

Delegate Proposal 1181, A proposal to add a new section to article V, the legislative department, providing that the legislature shall not set a date of adjournment more than 5 days prior to such date.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Faxon introduces

Delegate Proposal 1182, A proposal to authorize the legislature to establish a research and administrative staff and to provide itself with adequate office and storage facilities. Amends article V.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing there.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Snyder, Walker and Perlich offer

Resolution 31, A resolution asking the convention to review the salary of a research assistant assigned to the committee on public information.

Following is the body of Resolution 31, as offered:

Resolved, That the convention review the salary of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) per month granted to Charles Ferry, research assistant, by the committee on administration, because of certain serious deviations from policy and precedent set by the convention; and be it further

Resolved, That the review take in consideration all of the facts surrounding the salary determination, some of which are as follows:

The organizational chart adopted and amended by this convention provides that the 9 research, drafting, and public information assistants and consultants come within the jurisdiction of the 3 codirectors of research, drafting, and public information. As a matter of policy and precedent salary recommendations for the positions involved in all cases excepting the case of Charles Ferry have been made by the 3 codirectors. In no case did the salary recommended exceed eight hundred dollars ($800.00) per month. The 3 codirectors did not have the opportunity to offer a salary recommendation after a review of Charles Ferry's qualifications. The one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) salary in question was not discussed by the committee on public information prior to it being presented to the committee on administration. It should be noted that the committee on administration, in setting the salary at one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) and in concurrent action, completely ignored the fact that Mr. Theodus Gay, former dean of law at South Carolina State, was most eminently qualified for a similar top rate of one thousand dollars ($1,000.00), but had his salary set at eight hundred dollars ($800.00) per month; and be it further

Resolved, That the action minutes of the meeting held by the committee on administration, on November 7, 1961, be printed in the daily journal, so that all may have benefit of the full discussion held on the problem involved; now therefore be it

Resolved, That this convention reconsider the action of the committee on administration and either pay both Mr. Gay and Mr. Ferry one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) per month, if it is to be recognized that high standard of training and qualifications entitle a person to the top rate, or that if the extraordinary background of Mr. Gay entitles him to receive only eight hundred dollars ($800.00), this should be applied uniformly to all other research positions.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: May I speak to this resolution?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Yes, you may, Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: Due to the urgency of the subject matter of this resolution and in view of the fact it will undoubtedly take at least 1 day to duplicate this resolution and distribute it to the body, might I at this time move for the suspension of the rules so that we might immediately consider this matter and dispose of it?

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Walker that the rules be suspended and the question be considered at this time.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I would respectfully oppose that motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further discussion on the motion of Mr. Walker?

Mr. Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: Thank you, Mr. President. The intent of Mr. Walker's motion was this: we have involved here an item of salary and if we prolong it through a long and devious course in our procedures, it may be several days before we come to some conclusion. It was merely Mr. Walker's intent to get the subject matter on the floor as rapidly as possible. I think he probably intended to hold the discussion on this thing until the resolution was actually printed and distributed to all of the delegates. This is what we feel should be done in order to get an urgent item on the agenda disposed of properly.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President, I might say this matter should be handled in committee. This convention has set up a regular procedure for handling these things. I would most certainly have to oppose suspension of the rules at this time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Prettie.

MR. PRETTIE: I also rise to oppose the suspension of the rules. I think orderly procedure in a matter of this sort is certainly indicated. I see no urgency because it is a salary matter; and should the salary be readjusted why could it not be adjusted by a future adjustment should a change in salary be made? I heartily oppose the consideration of the suspension of the rules in this matter.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Walker that the rules be suspended. Any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion does not prevail.

The resolution is referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only resolution on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Last Thursday, Mr. Marshall presented a parliamentary inquiry to the Chair. Mr. Chase will read the answer.

SECRETARY CHASE: In answer to the parliamentary inquiry propounded by Mr. Marshall on November 2, the Chair is of the opinion that this convention is engaged in writing a new constitution, and Mr. Marshall's second question is so answered.

The reply to Mr. Marshall's first question is that every clause in the document to be presented to the people must be affirmatively acted upon by this convention.

The answer to question 3 is that anything that is desired to stay in the constitution must be reintroduced as a delegate proposal or recommended by a committee for convention action or incorporated as an amendment to a committee proposal.

The Chair does not intend to limit the power of this convention to decide for itself what course of action it shall pursue. The convention retains the power to determine that it will submit amendments to the present constitution and the convention also has the power to determine the manner in which it will present either a new constitution or amendments to the present constitution to the people. Conceivably, the convention might decide to submit a new constitution in several parts and as separate questions to the people.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Howes.

MR. HOWES: Mr. President, I move that when the convention adjourns on Thursday of this week, it stand adjourned until Monday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any discussion on Mr. Howe's motion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, there has been considerable inquiry about the holiday adjournment. The president and vice presidents have conferred about the matter, and the motion that I am about to make, while a little bit complex, will accomplish this: it will provide for a Thanksgiving recess from Wednesday before Thanksgiving until the following Monday night. There would be a Wednesday morning session on the twenty-second of this month, and that session would commence at 10:30 o'clock in the morning and obviously would not last very long, but would meet at 10:30 a.m. in order that a group of committees which would want to have an 8:30 a.m. meeting could carry on their session on that date.

The motion also would provide for a Christmas recess which would commence after our Thursday session on December 21, and continue through until Wednesday, January 3. This would mean that we would have an afternoon session on Thursday, the twenty-first, to permit all of the delegates to get home either after the session on the twenty-first, or on Friday, the twenty-second, Christmas being on the following Monday. It would provide that we would be in recess throughout all of Christmas week and that nobody would have to start back to the convention on new year's day. Those from the upper peninsula would perhaps have to get started on January 2, unless they want to travel through the night. We would have a regular session on Wednesday, January 3, at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon.

Therefore, Mr. President, I move that when the convention meets on Wednesday, November 22, it meet at 10:30 o'clock in the morning; that when it adjourns on Wednesday, November 22, that it stand adjourned until Monday, November 27; that when it adjourns on Thursday, December 21, 1961, it stand adjourned until Wednesday, January 3, 1962.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Hutchinson.

Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: I will second the motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further remarks? (laughter)

Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, so far as the adjournment on December 21 is concerned, I hope that the committees which are scheduled to meet on that Thursday afternoon can have their meetings. In other words, if everybody just takes off, we will have no quorum in those committees, and time is very much of the essence. I hope that those committees will meet, certainly ours.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Martin.

Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: Mr. President, I have a similar question. If we are to meet for the 2:00 o'clock session on January 3, does this mean that there will be no committee meetings on January 3 prior to the 2:00 o'clock session?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, in answer to Mr. Sterrett, it would mean that if the members of the committee, at the request of the committee chairman, are willing to cooperate with him—and I hoped they would be—and if in the opinion of that committee it was desired to have a meeting of that committee on Wednesday morning, January 3, that the committee would assemble itself and proceed.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Point of information, please. I assume that the committees can meet at other hours on other than those days when there is a general session. You made a point, Mr. Hutchinson, of the fact that the Wednesday session at 10:30 a.m. would make it possible for those committees to meet at 8:30 a.m. on the morning of that date.

Thinking of our friends from the upper peninsula, if it is a problem for them to travel in one direction coming down, is it not also a problem for them to travel up on Thanksgiving? Would it not be wise for us to adjourn after the Tuesday session, letting those committees who feel they want to, hold their committee sessions on Wednesday in any event?

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I suppose Mr. Elliott asks just to get a reaction. My reaction to it—though my mind is not closed—my initial reaction to his suggestion would be negative in that if you are going to adjourn on Tuesday, why not adjourn on Monday? If you are going to adjourn on Monday, why come at all that week? (laughter) You see, it is just a practical matter of a cutoff date. Of course, I say to you again, Mr. Elliott, that if a delegate from the upper reaches of the state found it necessary or desirable from his standpoint to leave after the Tuesday session, he quite obviously could get excused from the Wednesday session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Perras.

MR. PERRAS: I would like to direct a question to Mr. Hutchinson concerning our returning here on January 3. Is it your opinion that we will meet on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday through Saturday or will we adjourn on Thursday evening again? Because it wouldn't pay for us driving 400 miles or more to drive down here on Wednesday, then turn around on Thursday to go back.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I would hope that by that time we will be having Friday sessions. I would hope that that would be the situation. And I would suggest that perhaps this particular combination of circumstances might be just the thing that would break into that idea and that we begin to have Friday sessions on that weekend and from there on.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Lundgren.

MR. LUNDGREN: Mr. President, on behalf of the upper peninsula, I would say we'll take care of ourselves. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Any other unfinished business?

Mr. Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. President, I note that we have made certain efforts to bring the public within the informational orbit of the convention. I am not so certain, however, that we have taken all of the steps necessary to bring the public within the deliberative orbit of this convention. I have received several calls from community organizations, asking how and to whom they might submit recommendations and make requests for appearances before the convention. I think it might be in order for the Chair, on behalf of the convention, to indicate through the press to the public the ways and means by which the public can become part of the deliberative process of this convention.

There are 2 reasons for this: first there is, after all, the right of the people to know, and in the second and last analysis, the document is going to have to be submitted for ratification; and to the degree that we have an intimate, creative, constructive, participating response on the part of the public in the deliberations of this convention, to that degree we will get that kind of response to the final document that does emerge from the convention.

Accordingly, may I respectfully suggest that the Chair do prepare some announcement to the public with regard to at least these 2 points. That is, first of all, when recommendations might be submitted by members of the public and interested community organizations, and second, to whom, so that there might be an appropriate appearance before the committees.

I might indicate that if the committees knew, too, which members of the public, what committee the organization wanted to appear before, they could better gauge the timing of their own deliberations.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The president will act on your suggestion, Mr. Norris.

Any other unfinished business?

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Danhof has filed with the secretary a list of the subcommittees of the committee on judicial branch, with a request that the list of subcommittees be printed in the journal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be.

Following is the list of subcommittees of the committee on judicial branch:

Subcommittee on inferior court systems:
Mr. Pugsley, chairman
Miss McGowan, vice chairman
Mr. McAllister
Mr. Bledsoe
Mr. Iverson
Mr. Prettie

Subcommittee on courts of original jurisdiction:
Mr. Mosier, chairman
Mr. Krolikowski, vice chairman
Mr. Barthwell
Mr. Higgs
Miss Donnelly
Mr. Everett

Subcommittee on appellate courts:
Mr. Tubbs, chairman
Mr. Ostrow, vice chairman
Mr. Garvin
Mr. Lawrence
Mr. Woolfenden
Mr. Cudlip

The chairman of the committee on judicial branch, Robert J. Danhof, and the 2 vice chairmen, Karl Leibrand and William Ford, shall be ex officio, with vote, to all subcommittees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on legislative organization will meet tomorrow, Thursday, at 8:30 o'clock in the morning to hear the leaders of both houses of the Michigan legislature — both parties — in room D tomorrow at 8:30. Senator Beadle and Senator Ryan from the senate, and the house members will be speaker Pears or his representatives and house member Kowalski. John Hannah, chairman.

The committee on education will meet in room J today, Wednesday, immediately after the session to hear Dr. Samuel Brownell, superintendent of schools in Detroit. Alvin M. Bentley, chairman.

The committee on finance and taxation will meet in room E tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. D. Hale Brake, chairman.

Subcommittee 2 of the committee on legislative powers will meet in room H at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow, Thursday, to consider Delegate Proposal 1064, which would permit lotteries by charitable or fraternal organizations after a referendum. Stanley Powell, chairman.

The committee on education has already been announced. A meeting this afternoon immediately after the session.

The committee on finance and taxation will meet immediately after the session today in room E. Appearance and presentation of Keith Wilson, of Michigan waterways commission; members of the Michigan state association of supervisors; and Joe Parisi, of Michigan townships association.

Tomorrow the committee on judicial branch will meet in room B immediately after the session. Appearance and presentation of Justice Theodore Souris in a discussion of the state court system.

The committee on executive branch will meet in room C tomorrow immediately after the session. Appearance and presentation of George Higgins and Franklin DeWald to continue the discussion of the earlier presentations on the civil service commission; appearance of Mr. Robert Grosvenor to continue his discussion of his earlier presentation.

Are there any other committee meeting announcements that the secretary may have overlooked?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Millard.

MR. MILLARD: Mr. President, subcommittee 4 of the committee on legislative powers will meet tomorrow morning. It is on your list there but you didn't announce it. We will hear Professor Robert E. Childs, Wayne State University, who wrote the treatise on Real and Person Property Exemptions. We will hear him on that subject. Anybody that is interested, we will be glad to have them there. That is in committee room H.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Immediately after the session tomorrow we will be privileged to hear Mr. Bebout, professor of urban planning from Rutgers University, speak to the committee on local government.

SECRETARY CHASE: I think the other committee meeting announcements have been listed on the committee calendar.

I have the following requests for leave of absence: President Nisbet asks to be excused from the Thursday session because of a company directors' meeting.

Mr. Hoxie requests a leave of absence from the convention sessions of next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, November 15, 16 and 17, due to a prior commitment of several months' standing to attend a conference.

Mr. Tubbs requests leave of absence from the session of tomorrow; and Mr. Heideman asks to be excused from the session of tomorrow.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests for leave are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: I have one additional request on the part of the secretary and president's offices: some 46 delegates — this has been revamped just a little because some have been turned in — but at the time this was written, some 46 delegates still had not turned in their journal mailing lists. Please do this as soon as possible so that we may complete the mailing machine address plates.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Vice President Tom Downs will preside at tomorrow's meeting.

Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President, I have had several inquiries. I have to advise some of the folks that are on my list as to when they can expect these journals. I wonder if the secretary could apprise us of that fact.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary is informed that the journals have been printed. A number of them, I think, have already been mailed. Quite obviously we cannot mail those for whom the lists of names have not been turned in as yet. It will take a day or so to process these address plates so that they may then be mailed, but certainly over the weekend, I would say.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hubbs.

MR. HUBBS: Mr. President and my fellow delegates, I notice that Mr. Tubbs, T-u-b-b-s, has requested a leave of absence and I wish to make it absolutely clear to the delegates and all those present that I, Hubbs, do not request leave of absence. I intend to be present here for the next 2 weeks. Thank you. (laughter)

SECRETARY CHASE: This completes the convention business of the day.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Page.

MR. PAGE: Mr. President, I am always glad to use some portion of my 17,000 words for any purpose that seems to be in the common good. I move that we adjourn. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion to adjourn. Those in favor, say aye. Those opposed, no.

The convention stands adjourned until 2:00 o'clock tomorrow.

[Whereupon, at 2:50 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Thursday, November 9, 1961.]

TWENTY-SECOND DAY

Thursday, November 9, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The convention will please come to order.

The invocation will be given by the Reverend Harold Jacobs, Grand Ledge Methodist Church, Grand Ledge.

REVEREND JACOBS: Let us unite in prayer. O God, our heavenly Father, as we pause at the beginning of this session, we first acknowledge Thee as the author of man's faith. We recognize that Thou art the giver of every good and perfect gift and in this faith we find the basis of a good life.

With our thanksgiving we also come with a sincere request for divine direction and guidance without which man's deliberations may become distorted and without proper perspective.

For every member of this constitutional convention we solicit maximum understanding, strength of purpose and strength of body, soul and spirit. May Thy blessing rest upon the homes and communities from which our elected delegates come.

May Thy blessing be upon our nation and our world, giving peace in our time through the Prince of Peace. Again, for the work of this afternoon hour we invoke divine guidance, gratefully praying through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Thank you, Reverend Jacobs.

For the roll call, will all those present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has every delegate present voted? The machine is now locked and you may release your voting levers.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

Mr. D. Hale Brake wishes to be excused from today's session on account of illness; Mr. Page asks to be excused from today's session; and urgent, unexpected company business compels the absence of Delegate Romney.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Austin, Brake, Garvin, Heideman, Nisbet, Page, Romney, Rush and Tubbs.

Absent without leave: None.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Kelsey.

MR. KELSEY: Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The delegate will state his point of personal privilege.

MR. KELSEY: Thank you, Mr. President. In the Detroit Free Press of yesterday, November 8, 1961, appeared the following statement:

> John T. Kelsey, a Warren democrat, said he voted against the resolution because he felt that lobbyists should be permitted to come in and talk to the convention without registering.

This statement is completely erroneous, to say the least. So again let me state for the record unequivocally my position:

I voted against the combined resolutions 24, 25, and 26, because it failed to include itemized expense accounting of moneys spent on each individual delegate. Nowhere in my remarks and explanation of voting against the combined resolutions did I say that the lobbyist should have a right to come before the convention or any other committee without registration, as quoted by the press.

Let me ask at this time, Mr. President, before I leave the verbatim record, that we pause in respect and gratitude to the inventor of the tape recorder.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Is the delegate requesting that his statement be read in the journal as an explanation of his nay vote, or simply that it be read into the journal?

MR. KELSEY: That it be read into the journal in connection with both the nay vote and that it be read in.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Is there any objection to the statement being read into the journal? Hearing none, it is so ordered.

MR. KELSEY: This, Mr. President, is the verbatim record of the tape recorder as to my remarks of Tuesday, November 7:

> Much has been said about this resolution in many forms. I wish to go on record as voting against the resolution.
>
> I should like to take issue with Mr. Van Dusen on the basis of his saying that it is now in a form comprising or incorporating the text of all 3 resolutions. I dislike very much, and object very strenuously to some of the words used in the press. I feel it has cast a doubt by inference on the integrity of every delegate in this convention by suggesting that they could be bought for a dinner or a drink. Let me say, speaking for myself, that I am a very moderate eater and a very moderate drinker. Certainly I feel I am here at this convention because of the respect in which my integrity is held by the people in my representative district.
> I should like to see Dr. DeVries' original resolution brought before us. Whoever these lobbyists are — and incidentally I have never met one in 10 years in public life — they should be made to file an expense account to include itemized details. If they should spend any amount of money on any particular delegate, that should be included in view of what has been said.
>
> In conclusion, I repeat that I wish to go on record as voting against the resolution.

Nowhere, Mr. President, can I see where the press could misconstrue my remarks.

For further clarification, I have submitted a resolution amending the combined resolutions, which is on today's calendar in proper procedural form, so it will be impossible to misconstrue my position in reference to lobbyists.

Mr. President, at this time I move that the president of the convention instruct the press room manager, or whoever was responsible for this misquote, to print a retraction correcting the previous statement of November 8, and I ask my fellow delegates for their unanimous support of this motion. Thank you very kindly, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: We will stand at ease while the Chair confers with the secretary on whether the fact that you have made a motion means this should come under motions or now, because you asked for unanimous consent. Will you be patient with the Chair while he checks the parliamentary procedure on this? You still have the floor, Delegate Kelsey.

MR. KELSEY: My record in the past 5 weeks, I am sure, demonstrates one of patience, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Thank you. Mine demonstrates one of inquiry.

Will the convention please come to order.

The Chair rules that on the question of personal privilege the delegate had the right to make his statement. However, the question on the motion should properly come under the agenda where the item "motions" is, which would mean that when we come to motions on the agenda, the delegate can make that motion. However, the statement of personal privilege stands as it was stated.

Now, in case you do not agree with the Chair, you have the opportunity to appeal the decision of the Chair. And I might add for the benefit of the delegate, that my very wise consultant disagrees with me on this point. So you have sound authority for appealing the decision of the Chair.

Do you accept the ruling?

MR. KELSEY: Mr. President, with all respect to the President, I accept the ruling, which is, if I understand correctly, that at the proper time in today's proceedings of the convention, I will have the opportunity to then make the motion.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Under item 10 of the order of business, you will have the opportunity to make the motion, Delegate Kelsey.

MR. KELSEY: I accept the ruling, Mr. President, and acquiesce until item 10 appears.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Reports of standing committees.

The committee on rules and resolutions. Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President and fellow delegates: We have before us this afternoon, as a result of action taken 2 weeks ago, Resolution 21, introduced by myself, and Vice Presidents Hutchinson and Romney, which proposes that after November 22, 1961, no delegate proposal shall be introduced, numbered or printed, except upon authorization by the convention.

The resolution contains further provisions about which I might speak for a moment: the matter was tabled on October 26 until today, and at the time it was tabled there was a pending motion to amend the resolution by substituting for the date November 22, 1961, the date January 1, 1962.

I rise at this point in opposition to the motion to amend because I believe that the date November 22 is the date which should properly be adopted by this convention.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Van Dusen, under the order of unfinished business, we will have Resolution 21 which was postponed to a day certain, today. I believe that your talking about the pros and cons of that would more properly come under unfinished business when that will be brought up. The purpose of this presentation is a summary of the actions of the committee, or a progress report.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Excuse me, Mr. President. I had not been previously advised this was my date to report. The only thing the committee on rules and resolutions had pending before the convention was Resolution 21. I apologize for misunderstanding.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: That is accepted. We will hear from you under unfinished business.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I can report briefly to the convention that the work of the committee on rules and resolutions, a housekeeping committee of the convention dealing with matters of organization and matters of order, has been pretty thoroughly exposed to the convention as we have gone along.

We are completely current in our work. Every resolution which has been referred to us, or which had been referred to us up to the date of our last meeting, which was Monday evening, has been acted upon by the committee in one way or another. We have 2 or 3 resolutions currently pending before us which have been referred to us subsequent to Monday.

As you know, the function of the committee on rules and resolutions is to deal with matters pertaining to the organization of the convention, matters pertaining to the order of business of the convention, and such miscellaneous business as is from time to time referred to us.

I am happy to report, Mr. President, as I said before, we are completely current in the disposition of the matters before us and all of the subject matters with which we have dealt are fully known to the convention because it has been reported here from time to time.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Thank you, Mr. Van Dusen.

The next report is on the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule, of which Mr. Erickson is chairman. Do you care to report at this time, Mr. Erickson?

MR. ERICKSON: There are 8 subcommittees working on this section and they have had several meetings.

The subcommittee on preamble, Mr. Leppien, chairman: that sounds like a very simple thing but they have had quite a bit of discussion. I think they spent a good 45 minutes this morning just talking on those few words.

The subcommittee on corporations, under the chairmanship of Mr. Woolfenden, heard Professor Conard of the University of Michigan, discussing corporations. They had a meeting with the subcommittee on legislative powers on section 9 of article XII, and they heard several of the bankers from the state and the banking commissioner.

The subcommittee on eminent domain, under the chairmanship of Mr. Mahinske, heard Judge Pugsley yesterday. On November 15 they will hear Mr. Bienenfeld, who prepared the preparatory commission report, and he informs Mr. Mahinske that he has quite a bit of new data. Our chairman expects to have the Wayne county road commission, state highway department, and many others who are interested in the matter of eminent domain, before the committee shortly.

The subcommittee on the militia, under Delegate DeVries, has completed a schedule to call many of our military personnel in the state, and also interested citizens in on this section.

Delegate Hutchinson is chairman of article XVI, miscellaneous provisions, and he has been discussing with the delegates their proposals prior to calling a meeting.

The boundaries and the seat of government subcommittee is under the chairmanship of Miss Donnelly. She is really going into this very thoroughly, even to the extent of finding out what the condition of our state capitol is. (laughter) She isn't missing very much. (laughter) And of course, there is a question that came up before this committee whether the boundaries should be indicated by metes and bounds or some other way. Dr. Nord has a very interesting proposal which contemplates taking cognizance of our natural resources.

The subcommittee on amendment and revision of this new constitution that isn't written yet, under Don Habermehl, has heard Professor Pollock. This morning he had a meeting with Dr. McHargue and he is sending out several letters to people who may be interested in appearing.

The schedule is under Delegate Durst's chairmanship, and that is the section that deals with the transition from the old constitution to the new. They have done quite a bit of work in research, comparing it with other constitutions.

When a cutoff date is determined on the various subcommittees, we will be in a position to report out promptly. They are withholding their recommendations to the full committee until they get all the proposals in, and I am sure after that date it won't take this committee very long to have something very definitely before the convention.

That is the report, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Thank you, Mr. Erickson.

Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The next item — and I wish to make a statement on this — is the introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

Delegate Ostrow has requested privilege of the convention for saying a few words to explain his proposals. If there are no objections, Delegate Ostrow will be given an opportunity to explain the broad purpose of these proposals.

Is there objection? Hearing none, the permission is granted. Mr. Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: Mr. President and members of the convention, I thought that I owed you an explanation as to why I am introducing 17 proposals, one covering each article of the present constitution. Rule 56 provides that all matters intended to become a part of any revised constitution or constitutional amendment shall be, when introduced by a delegate, in the form of a proposal.

I have only one concern in this matter, and that is that every part of our constitution be properly before some committee and eventually reach the floor for discussion and ultimate adoption or rejection. I wanted to avoid any possible parliamentary or technical positions, because conceivably some parts of the present constitution might be overlooked and somebody might raise a technical question as to what the committees' powers were in that particular area. I thought it was much simpler, instead of introducing a resolution to amend rule 56, with the consequent discussion, amendments and amendments to the amendments, to introduce each of these proposals.

In this connection, I would like to ask a parliamentary question, if it is in order now; or if the chairman will tell me when the proper time is, I would like to ask that question then.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: What is your parliamentary inquiry?

MR. OSTROW: Mr. President, in each of these proposals I propose that the present section of the constitution, together with any changes, amendments and additions, deletions or substitutions, become part of the new constitution. Parenthetically I might say I am not in favor of all of these being adopted, but I wanted to put them in a technical position where each committee would have full jurisdiction.

My question now is this: with such a proposal before each committee, is each committee then in a position to consider the entire range of that subject and is a minority of that committee, that is, the minority of 3 provided by the rules, in a position to make a minority report if my proposal is either accepted or rejected by the particular committee?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The inquiry is accepted and the Chair will take this under advisement presumably to answer Monday or Tuesday. Would you please submit your inquiry in writing for the convenience of the Chair in answering? Mr. Powell.

MR. POWELL: I have no desire to appear as a parliamentarian or anything like that, but with reference to this whole batch of proposals that have just been mentioned, it seems to me that they are entirely needless. It has been my understanding that every one of our committees had entire jurisdiction to originate their own reports, based on the material in the constitution or that the thing should be in the constitution and that a delegate proposal has no particular status as we have been told that it sort of dies aborning. It has no value unless it is acted upon affirmatively by a committee.

It looks to me as though we are just incurring a little extra printing expense here without any necessity therefor.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The Chair will rule that any delegate may introduce any proposal and the need or lack of need of a proposal is not the function of the Chair to determine, but that of the convention to determine.

Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Motions and resolutions.

Mr. Kelsey.

MR. KELSEY: Mr. President, complying with the previous ruling of the Chair, I now rise. Before I restate my motion, Mr. President, let me first make a public apology because it was an erroneous assumption depending on my memory. I did not want, in absolute candor, to accuse any member of this delegation of being unfair. That refers to the remark of wanting to take issue with Mr. Van Dusen. He was absolutely correct in saying that the resolution as proposed Tuesday was in complete conformity with the 3 resolutions. I was erroneously, as I mention, under the impression — relying on my memory — that the original resolution by Dr. DeVries included my resolution, which will be read later. So I would personally like to apologize to Mr. Van Dusen, and on the ninth day of November I do not want to take issue with you, Mr. Van Dusen.

Because I am sure that by the verbatim tape — which is now again in the record — I have proved a case beyond a reasonable doubt to the 143 jurors of this delegation, I ask your unanimous support in my motion. Mr. President, at this time I move > that the president of the convention instruct the press-room manager, or whoever was responsible for this misquote, to print a retraction correcting the previous statement of November 8.

I ask my fellow delegates for their unanimous support of this motion. Thank you.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The motion has been made. Discussion is in order.

Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Point of information.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: What is your point of information, Delegate Hodges?

MR. HODGES: Does the Chair have the power to instruct the press on a motion of this sort? It seems to me that we are getting into quite a hazy area here when we start this.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: May I just have a short recess here? (laughter) Are you asking for a ruling on the question?

MR. HODGES: Yes.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Will you be patient during a short recess.

Will Delegate Kelsey please come to the podium.

[Whereupon, the convention stood in informal recess for 5 minutes.]

Will the convention be in order, please.

The Chair did not make a ruling on the question. However, Delegate Kelsey asks permission to withdraw his motion and make another one. Is there any objection to his withdrawing his motion? Hearing none, the motion is withdrawn and I recognize Delegate Kelsey for the purpose of making another motion.

MR. KELSEY: Mr. President, at this time I move that the president of the convention request the pressroom manager to note the inconsistency of the previous statement of November 8. I ask my fellow delegates for their unanimous support of this motion.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Is there any discussion on the motion?

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, first let me thank Delegate Kelsey for his kind and gracious remarks, which would seem to suggest in and of themselves that the human recollection may be faulty. It occurs to me that if on each occasion on which the recollection of the press in its reporting appears to have been in mild variance with our statements here on the floor we choose to take such violent issue with them, we will be here probably until this time next year, if not considerably thereafter. For that reason it occurs to me that we should probably vote nay on this resolution.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Kelsey.

MR. KELSEY: Mr. President, let me say that I have no intent to take issue with the press. They have more pencils than my ability to afford to keep up with them. I, in absolute candor, was erroneous in some of my remarks yesterday, depending on memory. I was willing to put them on the record to correct them and apologize to Mr. Van Dusen personally. I see no reason why the press should not be of the same candor and make the correction.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Any further discussion?

Mr. Plank.

MR. PLANK: I agree with Delegate Kelsey, but I don't think you ought to demand from the press that they do this. I think if he gives them an opportunity after the convention recess, they will probably do that. I don't believe that we in the convention should go on record as demanding anything of the press. To my knowledge, they are free and I think they ought to remain that way.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Kelsey.

MR. KELSEY: Let me thank the delegate for his support of my motion. Let me remind him that I amended my motion to use the word "request."

Let me further say for the purpose of the record that I talked to Mr. Ken McCormick, who acknowledged that he would make some correction. However, I want this as a matter of record for the journal, which my people receive.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and fellow delegates, a question to Delegate Kelsey, if I may: why is this being directed to the pressroom manager, who is nothing more than a member of the constitutional convention staff?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Kelsey.

MR. KELSEY: Mr. President, I assume again it is risky for the error that I made in my memory, but we do have rules and regulations for the press to follow. I only suggested that I think this is the proper person that we should deal with the pressroom manager in this case. He is the person that we should deal with, in accordance with the rules adopted by this convention.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. White.

MR. WHITE: Mr. President, I am not quite aware of Delegate Kelsey's reasons for wanting this motion to prevail. It appears to me that the matter has been thoroughly aired here on the floor. The correction will be made through the journal, I assume. I understand that the newspaper in question has agreed to properly retract. It appears to me that this matter has gone far enough.

As a matter of policy and principle, it is my personal feeling it is hardly incumbent upon us or anyone else to presume to instruct, directly or indirectly, the newspapers as to what they should or shouldn't do.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, if we followed this policy in every case we would find ourselves having to vote to request the president to make such instruction perhaps on numerous other occasions. It seems to me that this is calling on the convention to do more than it has a responsibility for doing. Since Mr. Kelsey has presented his case, the press knows how to handle it, and I think they are fair and they will do whatever is necessary. I think we ought to drop the matter.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President and fellow delegates, it seems to me that we are wasting a lot of valuable time and I do not take exception to Mr. Kelsey's request. However, I do think — and I think all the delegates here will agree — that the press has done a reasonably good job to date in reporting accurately the conduct of this convention and the issues before it. The gentlemen of the press are human, like all the rest of us, and they too can make errors. I read the same story that Mr. Kelsey refers to and I did not take it in the same vein that he did. I do not believe that it would be wise for us to interfere. As I read the story, I might say it was not a direct quotation; it was a story that had been written. I did not take it in the same light that Mr. Kelsey did.

I do not believe that this convention should be on record as demanding or requesting, as the case may be, a retraction. I think that the gentlemen of the press have been informed of this by now as the discussion has gone on, and I think that they themselves will make the necessary correction. I would not want the convention to cast any reflection that the press has not been more than fair and most of the time accurate.

I have been misquoted many times in the press and if I took time to question every time I was misquoted, I wouldn't have time to do anything else. So I'd like to move the previous question, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Kelsey.

MR. KELSEY: For the sake of expediency I will withdraw my motion but let me make some remarks: I followed the instructions of my law professors and I have made my record. Let me say to Delegate Marshall that if he had the name of Kelsey, I am sure he would take my position. But I have made the record clear.

I withdraw my motion for the sake of expediency so we can go on with the next order of business. Thank you, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The motion is withdrawn. With that, the motion for the previous question dies.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Kelsey now offers Resolution 32, A resolution to amend the substitute for Resolutions 24, 25 and 26.

Following is the body of Resolution 32, as offered:

Resolved, That the substitute resolution be amended as follows:

Under the resolving clause "Resolved, That every convention agent shall:" item (2) (b), amend the language to read "(b) . . . itemized amount expended on the entertainment of individual constitutional convention delegates and staff.".

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. King offers Resolution 33, A resolution relative to delegate immunity.

Following is the body of Resolution 33, as offered:

Resolved, That delegates to this constitutional convention shall in all cases, except for treason, felony or breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during sessions of the convention and for 15 days next before the commencement and after the termination thereof; and they shall not be subject to any civil process during the same period; and they shall not be questioned in any other place for any speech delivered from the floor of the convention.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the resolutions on file, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Before we have our next item of business, which is unfinished business, I would like to ask the secretary to read the matter before us.

Briefly, for the delegates' assistance, 2 weeks ago a resolution was postponed until a day certain, today. There are 2 amendments pending. For the convenience of the delegates this is listed on the calendar but, since it is in 2 places in the journal, I am going to ask the secretary to read the resolution and point out the amendments to it, so as to help us in our parliamentary procedure. Mr. Chase, would you read Resolution 21, including the amendments that have been offered.

SECRETARY CHASE: Resolution 21, by Messrs. Van Dusen, Hutchinson and Romney, this is the resolution as originally offered: A resolution establishing deadline for introduction of delegate proposals.

Resolved, That after November 15, 1961, no delegate proposal shall be introduced, numbered, or printed except upon authorization by the convention. This resolution shall not prevent any delegate or interested citizen from thereafter submitting to the appropriate committee any suggestion for revision of the constitution.

The committee on rules and resolutions reported this with 2 amendments. The first amendment was to change the date from November 15 to November 21. To that amendment Mr. Hutchinson offered an amendment to change the date to November 22. This amendment to the amendment was adopted and subsequently the committee amendment, as amended, read:

1. Amend line 1 by striking out "November 15, 1961, and inserting November 22, 1961".

There was also pending a committee amendment which reads:

2. Amend the second sentence by adding at the end thereof a comma and "and if so requested in writing by any delegate, said committee shall acknowledge in its action journal its receipt of any such suggestion.".

Mr. Hodges then offered an amendment to committee amendment 1 as follows:

1. Amend committee amendment 1 by striking out "November 22, 1961,", and insert "January 1, 1962,". This amendment to the committee amendment is now pending, together with the committee amendments.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: If I am in order at the present time, I would like to offer a substitute for Resolution 21. May I send it to the secretary's desk?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: I am going to ask the secretary to read this.

I wish to advise the convention that before the substitute is acted upon, the pending amendments to Resolution 21 must be disposed of to perfect that resolution.

Would you, Mr. Chase, then please read the substitute resolution offered by Delegate Ostrow.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ostrow offers the following substitute for Resolution 21, A resolution establishing deadline for introduction of delegate proposals and processing by co-directors of research.

Resolved, That all delegate proposals shall be filed by January 15, 1962, and that all requests for drafting or preparation of delegate proposals shall be processed and considered timely filed for the purposes of this resolution if they are filed with the codirectors of research by 5:00 p.m., on January 15, 1962, except upon authorization by the convention for a later date. This resolution shall not prevent any delegate or interested citizen from thereafter submitting to the appropriate committee any suggestion for revision of the constitution, and if so requested in writing by any delegate, said committee shall acknowledge in its action journal its receipt of any such suggestion.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Now Mr. Chase, would you read the amendment we have before us?

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment pending at the present time is the amendment to the committee amendment offered by Mr. Hodges to strike out "November 22, 1961" and insert "January 1, 1962".

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The question is on the amendment to the committee amendment. Is there any discussion? Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President and fellow delegates, speaking on the amendment, I think, after a time gap of 2 weeks, it may be necessary to review briefly the reasons for this resolution itself and the necessity for establishing a deadline, first of all, for the introduction of delegate proposals.

The committee on rules and resolutions, which reported the resolution with only one dissenting vote, was of the opinion that in order to assist the substantive committees in the handling of their work, it would be necessary to establish, at as early a date as possible, a point in the course of our work at which the substantive committees would know that they had before them substantially all of the proposals which they would receive from delegates respecting revision of the constitution because I believe it is generally agreed — and the resolutions of the convention so provide — that after the study phase of the work of the substantive committees is completed, they will then take up delegate proposals and it will be difficult for them to begin their consideration of delegate proposals in a sensible, orderly manner unless they have reasonable assurance that all those proposals are before them.

Now, there is another important reason for the establishment of some cutoff point for the introduction of delegate proposals, and that looks toward the conclusion of the work of the convention. This was another matter which the committee on rules and resolutions had very much in mind in submitting the resolution in its present form.

As any of us who have had experience in deliberative bodies which carry their work through a several months' period know, the most serious problems in terms of giving thoughtful and careful consideration to the matter at hand come at the end of your work, when very frequently a log jam of work builds up, which results in long sessions of the entire body, and unless those sessions are carefully scheduled this can result in inadequate consideration of the matter before the body.

Now, certainly, in the revision of the constitution of this state we want at the conclusion of our work to make provision for the most orderly, most thoughtful, most careful consideration by this entire convention of the committee proposals brought before us. That means that we will want the committee proposals brought before us in ample time so that we will have a long and adequate period for their consideration on the floor. Thus, I think it beyond question that the establishment of deadlines for the orderly conduct of our work is very much in order and that the first deadline which must logically be established is for the introduction of delegate proposals.

Now, when this matter was last before us 2 weeks ago, the question came up: to be sure, the establishment of a deadline is desirable, but how about the brilliant afterthought which comes to the delegate's mind only after the deadline for submission of proposals? How can that new idea be brought before a committee and be brought before the convention for its consideration? Well, now, the resolution in its present form provides 2 ways for any delegate to bring his afterthought to the attention of the convention.

First, if he deems it of such great importance that it requires formal introduction, printing and numbering in the same manner as other proposals, he may request the convention that it be formally introduced, numbered, printed and referred to a committee in the same manner as we are doing now. If the convention deems it of the same importance, they will grant that request.

Second — and this is the more likely fashion in which these proposals will be in — if the delegate so desires, he may bring it directly to the attention of the committee, either as formally or informally as he might desire, and the committee amendment which is pending following the amendment which we are currently discussing provides for the formal acknowledgment by the committee of its receipt of the late blooming suggestion.

No delegate should consider himself foreclosed, nor should any interested citizen, for that matter, from submitting to the appropriate committee, or submitting to the convention, his ideas, despite the passage of the deadline.

Finally, we get the question — to be sure, a deadline is desirable; to be sure, the resolution provides adequate safeguards for the late blooming idea — why this date, November 22?

This convention has been in session since October 3. By November 22 it will have been in session for nearly 2 months. The resolution has been pending before us since October 24. By November 22 the resolution itself will have been before us for nearly one month. I think this is ample time for every delegate who has a proposal which he wants to formally introduce to have prepared it, submitted it, gotten it formally introduced.

Now one final question: how about the problem of a log jam in the drafting office? I am informed that Mr. Hutchinson has on the secretary's desk an amendment designed to cover the problem of the log jam in the drafting office, which will provide for the establishment of appropriate treatment for ideas which are in the hands of the codirectors of research on November 22, but with respect to which they have not been able to complete their work, which will permit their introduction in the usual and orderly fashion.

Therefore, it seems to me that the resolution as reported by the committee, with the committee amendments pending, with Mr. Hutchinson's amendment pending, adequately provides for all of the problems which have been called to our attention with respect to the establishment of a deadline and I don't think that anyone can seriously argue that it is not necessary and that it is not desirable for this convention to establish the most orderly procedure possible for the conduct of our work.

This has been a long discussion, Mr. President, for which I apologize, but it brings me around to the logical conclusion that I would urge the delegates to vote against the Hodges' amendment and vote for the November 22 date.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Mr. President, I would like at this time not to speak on any of the motions or substitutions or amendments to date, but simply to ask Mr. Van Dusen, as the exponent of the principal resolution, some questions that I am terribly concerned with.

I am not concerned with the guarantee of the ingress of proposals or ideas or suggestions into the committee. There is nothing magic about attaching your name to a formal document and having it labeled as proposal number so and so. An idea of any sort, as far as I am concerned, could come into any committee wrapped in a wet paper bag full of garbage. Now, I am concerned about the egress of an idea, after the cutoff date, from such committees. I wonder if Mr. Van Dusen would care to elaborate on the protection that the idea of egress has as he understands it.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, Mr. Brown, I believe when this matter was last before us I discussed 2 means by which any delegate who wanted to bring to the floor — and I presume that this is the problem which you envision — a proposal which he had not formally introduced, 2 methods by which any delegate could bring such matter to the floor.

First there is the simple procedure of offering the proposal and requesting the permission of the convention to have it formally introduced. This accomplishes ingress, Mr. Brown, and also provides the only means we currently have of ingress of the proposal into the committee. It would therefore be treated in exactly the same manner as any delegate proposal now being introduced.

Second — and I think this is far more to the point: the rules of the convention provide, as you know, for minority reports, which means that whenever 3 members of a committee, — regardless of whether the committee is as small as 15, which is as small a committee as we have, or if it is as large as 27, our largest committee — whenever 3 members of the committee deem a matter before that committee of such great importance that it should be brought to the floor, they may do so by means of a minority report presented to the convention and, if properly moved, acted upon by the convention in advance of final action on the majority report. Therefore, it seems to me that quite aside from the deadline proposed by the resolution currently before us, the rules provide ample means for achieving the withdrawal of any proposal from a committee.

Now let me make one further comment. I think it has been said before that the only means by which proposals are going to reach the floor, once they come before a committee, is by their incorporation in a committee proposal or by their incorporation, as I just said, in a minority report. The delegate proposal as such, once in, never emits.

MR. T. S. BROWN: I have a further question then in that regard: if you indicate that protection for egress is had through the medium of the minority report, then I might ask you for this further clarification, Mr. Van Dusen. In the instance of an idea which is novel and original — and it seems to me we certainly need those ideas — in the instance of that type of an idea, which is submitted in the form of a suggestion to a particular committee after the cutoff date, is it possible for this idea to be submitted to the floor for general debate as a minority report even though it may not be germane to the majority report? In other words, in the usual context of the language you would have to have a minority of something and I envision the possibility that the majority members of a committee might say to the 3 minority members:

> Well, you have an idea here but it is not germane to the proposals that have already been submitted and therefore it does not enjoy the status of a minority report and therefore it does not go to the floor.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Delegate Brown suggests a truly novel question. I would state first that Delegate Ostrow's action today of introducing the entire present constitution puts before the substantive committees of convention everything which anyone has to to date thought it necessary to include in a constitution for this state. It is difficult for me to conceive of a matter so novel that it would not be germane as an amendment to something currently before a committee and which would not therefore be the appropriate subject of a minority report. I do not mean to indicate that it is not possible to have something which is so foreign and unrelated to anything reported by any committee that it could not be the subject of an appropriate minority report, but it is very difficult for me to envision it at this point. For that reason it would seem to me that our convention rules adequately protect the submitter of any idea, regardless of how novel, as long as it is reasonable.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Actually, Mr. Van Dusen, can I interpret your answer as not being an answer because of the possibility that this is so remote? You see, I would like to preclude an argument which I am afraid we are going to get into, an argument which is going to consume a lot of our time, which appears to me and several other people to be a matter of great import. If an assurance is given to this ultimate question, I'll be very happy to sit down and not take part in your discussion about the ultimate cutoff date.

I'm concerned with this: that a minority of 3, be they members of the majority party or minority party, shall always — if this convention lasts 3 months, 4 months, 5 months — always, up until the last day of the convention, have the power to bring an idea that they feel has validity to the floor of this convention and say, "Look, this is what we want. This is what we think is good. Let's debate it."

Now, as a practical matter, because of the way in which this body is constituted, it would seem as though it could be construed that the majority party here, after the cutoff date, could effectively still the voice of the minority party's right to come to the floor with proposals. And this is what I am concerned with.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I don't wish to belabor this point. I would suggest first that Delegate Brown's question with respect to the right of a minority of 3 to bring totally novel matter to the floor may not be completely germane to the matter before us. I would like to suggest further, however, that a minority of one, if he chooses, may present his proposal to this convention on its very last day, regardless of how novel, and may request the authority from this convention to have it introduced, printed, numbered and referred, and he will therefore obtain the same debate with respect to his proposal which he would be able to obtain on a motion to discharge a committee if the matter had been introduced on the first day. Therefore, a minority of one is going to have an opportunity for the consideration by this convention as a whole of his proposal, regardless of how novel and regardless of how late blooming.

MR. T. S. BROWN: But as a practical matter, now we are getting down to the mundane aspects of it, Mr. Van Dusen. I would simply like an answer and I would like to get the consensus of this delegation concerning this point.

Effectively — because of the fact that members of the minority party may have ideas which are not consonant with the ideas of the majority party — effectively, if you have to ask the total body for permission to bring a matter up, you may be saying "No, you can't even discuss it."

Now, I'm concerned — and I think Mr. Hutchinson and many other republicans on our legislative organization committee are concerned — with the protection of minorities. Now we see here the minority party as a true minority in this particular convention and we would like not to have our voice stilled if a matter is of extreme importance to us.

We are not here to obfuscate the issues or to act in a dilatory manner and as I say, I am not concerned with the exact date on which you cut off proposals because a proposal is nothing more than a formal introduction of an idea. But if, for instance — and I'll put it right down the line now; I am on the legislative organization committee. After the cutoff date, if 3, say 2 other democrats and I, get an idea which we think is germane — which may not be germane; it may be novel — if we want to bring this matter to the floor formally as a minority report, even though it has no connection with any other proposal ever submitted in that committee, do we have the right to do that and does every member of this delegation have the right to sit and listen to what we have to say?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: In view of the fact that the entire discussion of the last 10 minutes has been totally nongermane to the issue before us, I would suggest that Delegate Brown already has his answer; that he can make the entire delegation sit and listen, regardless of the absence of germaneness.

I would only suggest further that a minority of one will have the opportunity to offer an amendment on the floor to any proposal brought out by the committee on which you sit, Mr. Brown, or any of the other substantive committees and have it debated on the floor.

I think that our entire discussion for the last 15 minutes, however, has been entirely beside the point of whether or not there should be a deadline for delegate proposals, but has rather been directed to a consideration of other features of the convention rules. I suggest that if Delegate Brown wants to bring these to the attention of the body, he should bring them to us as members of the rules committee, or request a ruling from the Chair.

MR. T. S. BROWN: I might add, Mr. President, I am not getting anywhere in pursuing this course, my one turn at these particular resolutions in this past series of questions being simply a series of quesions to clarify the issue.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Ostrow.

MR. OSTROW: Mr. President, I believe in a deadline. I believe we ought to set a deadline. However, I also believe that the people of the state of Michigan waited 50 years for this constitution. I am more concerned with the quality of this constitution. I want to be able to brag about what we did and not how fast we did it.

I am not a member of a large law firm. I practice by myself and am just as anxious to get back to my law practice as everyone else is to get back to their business. I also happen to be very fond of my wife and I'd like to see more of her. But when I undertook this job — and nobody grabbed at me — I knew it might take a long time. No committee has been dragging its feet. We have been working so fast that I for one — may be I'm slower than everybody else here — have been unable to digest all of the material that has come before us. We are going to have these long 2 weeks from December 21st to January 3rd. That would give us time to review what we have been hearing. Out of the whole 144 delegates, if we come up with one single worthwhile idea, I think that the delay, if you can call it that, would be worthwhile.

I'm for a deadline, but let's not rush. This is not a legislative session, where if you don't take care of it this session you come back next session and it will be taken care of. I oppose any of these shorter periods. If we err at all, let's err on the side of taking a little bit longer and let's do a good job.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I would like permission first to answer, if I may — and I hope to his satisfaction — the question raised by Mr. Brown of Wayne. He made a specific proposal, that is to say, he asked the specific question: Suppose that he had a very novel idea about the organization of the legislature — that is to say, on the apportionment issue — and it hadn't been introduced as a formal proposal; he hadn't mentioned it at all to the committee on legislative organization. Now, how does he get that considered? Well, here is another course of action, Mr. Brown, which I do not think has been clearly indicated to you.

The committee on legislative organization will report its proposal to the floor and it will be first considered in the committee of the whole, where debate cannot be limited. It would be in order for you to offer any kind of an apportionment proposal — that had then occured to you — on the floor in the course of that debate. And it is hard for me to conceive that it would be not germane for the reason that at that time the question before the committee of the whole would be, let us say, the composition and the apportionment of the senate of Michigan. Now, any amendment that you might offer would be germane, it would seem, so long as it touched upon the organization and the apportionment of the senate of Michigan — no matter how novel, no matter how different from the committee proposal.

And suppose you didn't get your idea across to the committee of the whole. Now, the committee has to rise and the question would be upon concurring in the recommendations made by the committee of the whole. You may have disagreed with what the committee of the whole wanted to do. So there again, the question being upon concurring in those recommendations, you would again be able to put yourself on the record.

Then it goes to style and drafting and you have an opportunity to go before style and drafting, and while style and drafting doesn't have any power to make an substantive changes, it certainly has power to consider the way in which things are stated. Well, you are not satisfied with what style and drafting did either. So it comes back to the floor on second reading. And I submit to you that there again you may make the same suggestion as an amendment, or, lo and behold, if you have a later one, you can make that.

And maybe that isn't enough. Then it goes to style and drafting again. And in the end, the whole article on the make-up of the legislature comes before us on third reading and, Mr. Brown, you have an opportunity even then to offer still another novel suggestion.

Now, in pointing these things out, I hope to make clear to you that in the parliamentary process of writing a constitution you will have numerous opportunities not only to present your position, but to place this convention on record with regard to your position on anything, no matter how novel it is, no matter whether it was originally covered in a delegate proposal, or whether it was originally covered in a committee proposal.

A committee proposal, once it gets out onto the floor, is subject to amendment and you can offer anything you want to, as I say, of course, within the rule of germaneness, but don't let that worry you too much because there is going to come a time when anything you might want to offer — in the field of legislative apportionment, for instance — would be germane to the subject under discussion.

I would like to now, if I might, get back onto the immediate question before us, this question of a proper date for cutting off delegate proposals. I think that Mr. Van Dusen has covered the subject admirably and I think very clearly, and I don't want to repeat anything that he has said, but I think that there is one aspect that I don't recall his covering, to which I want to invite the attention of the floor.

At the present time, our drafting and reasearch staff properly is concerning itself with delegate proposals. All of its thrust, all of its effort should be toward the working out of delegate proposals. This staff, these same people, are also going to have to work on committee proposals. And it is only orderly — and in fact, from an administrative standpoint, seems to me to be the only reasonable approach to take — that until you can get this research staff — this phase of delegate proposals — behind it, not until then will it really begin to work upon committee proposals.

So what I am saying is we cannot expect anything really to start in this convention until after delegate proposals have been cut off and committee proposals start. And those of us who have had experience in these parliamentary bodies such as the legislature — and I suppose the congress is the same way but I speak from legislative experience — know that floor debate requires a great deal of time and when we get busy on the floor, my fellow delegates, you will find that it is going to be necessary for this convention to be in session on the floor all morning and all afternoon, and I hope not all evening and not all night, but certainly all afternoon and all morning. And the point that I want to make is that when that time comes, there will be no time for committee meetings.

Consequently, we have to keep in mind that an orderly process of bringing our work to a conclusion means that the committee work of this convention has to be completely finished, certainly not any later than the end of January, and hopefully before the end of January. And only after the committee work is finished will you find that you can devote the time necessary for full and thorough floor debate in writing a constitution.

The people of Michigan and, I know, each and every one of you feels that in the end, the most important part of this convention is going to be the thoroughness of floor debate and we must reserve at least 2 months, and preferably more than 2 months, for that work alone. And you aren't going to get committees wound up unless you start in on this process.

We have no desire to cut you off or to be unreasonable in this first phase but, after all, we will have been in session 7 weeks by Thanksgiving time and it does seem as though that is a reasonable time in which to receive original delegate proposals. I submit to you that until we arrive at this cutoff date — until we actually set it, abide by it — we can't really get started in this convention. And for that reason, I oppose Mr. Hodges' motion which is before us. I would certainly oppose extending the thing until the fifteenth of January. It is our considered opinion that it is a proper time to close it as of the beginning of the Thanksgiving recess, on the twenty-second of November.

I hope that the delegates present will vote against the amendment immediately before us.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: May I direct a question to Delegate Hutchinson? Some time ago, in the earlier part of Mr. Hutchinson's dissertation, he spoke of the multitude of opportunities of one delegate or a group of delegates to, by various means, bring forth an idea. One of these things he spoke of was asking for a committee of the whole. If you remember, a few days ago I asked for a committee of the whole so that we might consider, on its merits, rather than on a partisan basis, one matter. If you recall, the motion did not prevail. What then, Mr. Hutchinson?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President. Under the rules, Mr. Walker, every committee proposal will, as a matter of course, go to the committee of the whole. It takes no motion to resolve into a committee of the whole for the consideration of matters on general orders. The only way you can get to them is to go into the committee of the whole. You are confusing the orderly procedure of substantive proposals with a procedure on resolutions of organization. There is a difference there.

Under our rules, resolutions coming forth in the form of a resolution are immediately before the body on third reading status for final adoption. Proposals under our rules, as a matter of course, go to committee of the whole and they will be there, and you have to go into the committee of the whole to get them unless you want to suspend the rules. I don't think we want to suspend the rules.

MR. WALKER: Thank you, Mr. Hutchinson. It sounds real good but I'm still bloodied and bruised. (laughter)

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Douglas.

MR. DOUGLAS: I don't think that, Mr. Hutchinson, you have answered the real problem, the question by Mr. Brown. It is not a question of whether the committee proposal comes on the floor and there is an amendment or some modification which is germane. The question is: if minority members of the committee or anyone else of the delegation want to bring a matter to the floor after the cutoff date and it is not germane, we have no way to do it under the rules here. Now, the best thing that I have heard you say so far is that you do not want to cut us off.

Now, I think that we should have some definite proposal here, or resolution or rule, that will spell out the thing that we want—and the real thing that we want. We want to be able to come before this convention right up to the last day—and it does not concern just the members of the minority party here—it concerns every delegate here, because there are some of us, after we go home for Thanksgiving and for Christmas, after we talk to our many neighbors and constituents, we are going to come back with some more ideas.
So far we've only heard the experts. The experts as a group won't really pass this constitution. We've got to go back to the people and sell this constitution to them. After we have heard from them we might have some very good ideas and we want to make sure that we can get them before this convention.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. President, first of all, I would like to say on the general subject of any cutoff date, I think we must have a cutoff date. I will say I did not always think so but I believe many of the arguments Mr. Hutchinson made cannot be avoided, and I have come to that conclusion independently within the last few weeks. Some cutoff date, obviously, will be needed. The main question before us at the moment is whether we know now what that cutoff date should be.

I feel that we are in difficulty in determining whether we know yet what that cutoff date should be because we are a little bit uncertain as to what the effect of cutting off the proposals at an early date would be. For example, we have heard that there are a great many ways of getting an idea on the floor and before committees. That is true, although each one of them has some kind of problem.

The rule of germaneness is a problem to some of them. There are questions about germaneness also, possibly, on rules of order; if a delegate seeks to get the permission of the convention to introduce a proposal, whether he can debate his proposal. I don't know whether we know the answer or not. There may be some problems, but nevertheless, there certainly are a lot of possibilities of introducing ideas in one form or another. Assuming that to be so, then I wonder what we accomplish by having a cutoff date. If we have a cutoff date at a time when we believe there might be still quite a few ideas to come, then those ideas will come, and they will come after the cutoff date. And if they come, they will come in an extremely unhappy form. They will come in a most time consuming and complicated and confusing form.

If they have to be brought to the floor every time somebody wishes to make a point, that will be extremely time consuming. If they are brought to a committee by suggestion, which is the simplest procedure, there the difficulty will be nobody will have any record of what is going on. We will be really floundering. If we should get a big flood of suggestions to committees, I think we would regret it very much. And similarly, if we should get a great deal of debate on the floor about whether or not a proposal should be introduced, that would be terrifically time consuming. So as a result, my conclusion is this: we do need to get to a cutoff date.

I think the correct approach is to find out when we are likely to find a cutoff date which we can make really final, a cutoff date which would cut off the introduction of new proposals, even by approval of the convention; some cutoff date which will really allow the committees to function almost entirely secure in the knowledge that unless somebody suspends the rules, they will not have any more proposals except by committee members.

I don't believe we are at that date as yet. I don't know what the statistics are, but I remember Mr. Hutchinson saying, either this week or last week, that we had only about half as many proposals in as in the previous convention. I believe we may be 100 or so short.

On that basis, it is hard for me to believe that we now know that we are coming near the end of this proposal process. I believe that the motion to table that we had the last time was based on a good concept, but I am not moving to table again—I didn't move last time to table. But I believe it was based on this question: did we have enough knowledge at that time to know what date was a good date, or should we wait a little while to find out what date is a good date? Now we have waited 2 weeks to find out. I don't know. Nobody has told me that they now have the experience—that they now know that the flood of proposals is nearly at an end.

As a result, it appears to me that the remarks made by Mr. Ostrow are very pertinent. Some date must be established. It seems to me a date which is far enough in the future—January 15—to be reasonably certain that nobody is going to come forward with a flood of unofficial proposals afterwards—would be a good thing.

So, as a result, I am in favor of a cutoff date. I would prefer it to be something later than November 22.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: If we follow Mr. Nord's views, we will be here forever because there isn't going to be any time when sound ideas are not going to develop in this convention right up to the time when we vote on the final draft. So that if we need to make a decision, we are in just as good a position to make that decision today as we will be 2 weeks or 4 weeks from now.

As to the problem that is bothering Mr. Douglas and Mr. Brown, the situation, I think, is this—that the question they are raising is: What do you do if 3 people of a committee want to bring a matter which is not germane out on the floor? That problem is just as much of a problem with respect to proposals which are formally introduced now as it would be with respect to any proposal which was made after the cutoff date. This is not a problem that has to do with the question of a cutoff date at all. But if they want to have some provision for that sort of situation, then they need to introduce a resolution for an amendment of the rule which would correct that if the convention sees fit.

It seems to me we have explored the problem as far as we can. I don't like to move the previous question, but unless there are further problems, Mr. President, I would move the previous question.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The previous question has been moved.

Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Seconded.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no. The motion prevails and we are now voting on the amendment.

Will the secretary please read the amendment upon which we are now voting.

SECRETARY CHASE: The amendment upon which the convention is now voting is the amendment to the committee amendment offered by Mr. Hodges to strike out "November 22, 1961" and insert "January 1, 1962".

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: All those in favor, signify by saying aye.

Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President, I request a record roll call.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: A request has been made for a roll call vote. Is the demand for the yeas and nays seconded? Those in favor please rise.

SECRETARY CHASE: A sufficient number.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: A roll call will be made. Will those in favor please vote yea. Those opposed, nay.

Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. President, I'd like to ask a question of procedure here. Is it correct that Mr. Ostrow's substitute resolution will be considered after the vote on the amendments, the one proposed by Mr. Hodges, and, in the event the Hodges' amendment fails, secondly on the amendments proposed by the committee, and thereafter, before voting on the resolution itself, as amended, we will vote on the substitute resolution of Mr. Ostrow?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: We will vote on the substitute resolution after the present resolution has been perfected. That means the vote is on the existing amendments and any other amendments.

Those in favor of Mr. Hodges' amendment, vote aye. Those opposed vote nay.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted?

The Secretary will lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—40

Baginski	Hart, Miss	Murphy

On the question of Mr. Hodges' amendment, the yeas are 40 and the nays are 92.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The amendment is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Now pending are the committee amendments to change the deadline date and to add at the end of the language of the resolution a comma and "and if so requested in writing by any delegate, said committee shall acknowledge in its action journal its receipt of any such suggestion.".

The language in the last sentence would then read:

> This resolution shall not prevent any delegate or interested citizen from thereafter submitting to the appropriate committee any suggestion for revision of the constitution, and if so requested in writing by any delegate, said committee shall acknowledge in its action journal its receipt of any such suggestion.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Any discussion on the amendments?

We are having an informal recess on whether the previous question that was moved on the other amendment applies also to these. If you will be patient, we will make a ruling very shortly.

[Whereupon, the convention stood in informal recess for 6 minutes]

The convention will please come to order. Rule 52 says:

> The effect of the previous question shall be to put an end to all debate and bring the convention to a direct vote upon the pending question or questions in their order down to and including the main question: Provided however, That when the previous question shall be ordered, amendments then on the secretary's desk shall be disposed of.

Under that we now, without further debate, vote on the next question.

MR. WALKER: Point of information, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: State your point.

MR. WALKER: I would like to ask of Mr. Van Dusen if the intention of the last amendment is to make the so called gag rule a little more palatable or a little less obnoxious to certain of us?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: This is out of order because the debate has been closed.

Would you read the amendments again, Mr. Secretary, so there will be no confusion as to what we are voting upon.

SECRETARY CHASE: The question now is upon committee amendments, which are:

1. Amend line 1 by striking out "November 15, 1961,", and inserting "November 22, 1961,".

2. To add at the end of the resolution a comma and the following language: "and if so requested in writing by any delegate, said committee shall acknowledge in its action journal its receipt of any such suggestion.".

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: All those in favor, signify by saying aye. Those opposed, nay.

The committee amendments, as amended, are adopted.

Under the same rule we have another amendment that is on file, which the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hutchinson offers the following amendment to Resolution 21:

1. Amend the resolving clause, following the first sentence, after "convention.", by inserting "By a subsequent resolution, the convention will provide for the introduction of delegate proposals in preparation on November 22 in the office of research and drafting.", so the first resolving clause of the resolution will then read,

> Resolved, That after December 1, 1961, no delegate proposal shall be introduced, numbered, or printed except upon authorization by the convention. By a subsequent resolution, the convention will provide for the introduction of delegate proposals in preparation on November 22 in the office of research and drafting.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: All those in favor, signify by saying aye. Those opposed, nay.

The amendment is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Now the question is upon the substitute offered by Mr. Ostrow, which reads as follows—

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry. Is my understanding correct that the effect of the motion for the previous question at the time that we had 2 amendments pending and one upon which we have had no debate at all, which was sitting on the secretary's desk and not previously read, was to preclude us from having any debate on the merits of Mr. Ostrow's substitute resolution?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: I read again from rule 52, on method of ordering:

> The effect of the previous question shall be to put an end to all debate and bring the convention to a direct vote upon the pending question or questions in their order down to and including the main question: Provided however, That when the previous question shall be ordered, amendments then on the secretary's desk shall be disposed of.

Under this, my understanding, Mr. Ford, would be that we get to the main question, the resolution, without further discussion and to get to the main question, we go through or to the substitute before voting on the main question, but that the previous question applies to that also.

You may appeal the decision of the Chair. That is my understanding and that is the ruling.

MR. FORD: Deferring to you as one of the 2 or 3 people in the room who have a copy of the complete rules, I simply want to ask a question of Mr. Chase through the Chair: I hope that the thoughts now running through my mind about the manner in which we have been precluded from debating Mr. Ostrow's substitute are not entirely well founded. I wonder if he could suggest to me the proper way now to open the floor for debate on the merits of Mr. Ostrow's substitute, which I don't believe any of us had an opportunity to debate.

MR. MAHINSKE: Point of information, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: We have a parliamentary inquiry on whether this can be opened. There is a point of order here, and then Mr. Bentley.

Mr. Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: I understand, Mr. President, that under the rules we can only have an amendment to an amendment and nothing else is in order. Would our third motion or substitute resolution be within the consideration of the Chair after we have 2 amendments?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: My understanding is that we can only have 2 amendments before the body at once but when those amendments are disposed of, another amendment is in order.

I will ask the secretary to read the rule on that for the clarification of the delegates.

SECRETARY CHASE: As the secretary understands the situation, it is this: the resolution was before the convention for consideration. Amendments were in order, were considered and, as the president has indicated, an amendment to the main question is in order, and an amendment to that amendment is in order. When disposed of, other amendments to the body of the resolution are likewise in order.

Now, in regard to a substitute resolution, the situation is this: the original main question or resolution should first be perfected by amendment. Following that, a substitute may be offered and it may be perfected by amendment, if any are desired to be offered. Then the question goes upon the adoption of the substitute and after the substitute is adopted or rejected, then the question reverts to the main question, either as amended or as substituted. And of course, the moving of the previous question under the rules precludes all debate down to and including the final vote upon the main question before the body.

This also precludes, after the ordering of the previous question, any and all amendments except those that may have been on file upon the secretary's desk.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, a parliamentary inquiry: would a motion permit debate on the substitute if moved and adopted at this time, to reconsider the moving of the previous question?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: I want to see if I understand your question, Mr. Bentley. You are asking if a motion to reconsider the motion to close debate or the previous question would, if passed, permit debate to be reopened. Would you please pause for just a moment while I confer with Mr. Chase. (laughter)

Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President, perhaps I could clarify it.

Mr. President, I would like to move that we reconsider the vote by which the previous question was ordered.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: I would say that if this is passed by unanimous consent there will be no problem. (laughter)

Is there any objection? Hearing none —

MR. STEVENS: I object.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: An objection has been heard. (laughter)

Will you please bear with us while we now check the rules a little bit further. I don't know why the delegates never did this when someone else was in the Chair. (laughter)

[Whereupon, the convention stood in informal recess for 3 minutes.]

The convention will please come to order.

A delegate, I believe, is rising to a parliamentary point.

Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: While we were in informal recess, I was looking up something. I would hope in the wisdom of the Chair and the secretary there would be found some method of making a debate on the substitute resolution possible.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: We are looking hard, Mr. Elliott.

Mr. Bentley, did you want to wait until a ruling has been made?

MR. BENTLEY: I'll wait for the ruling, and if favorable, I will move the reconsideration.

[Whereupon, the convention stood in informal recess for 3 minutes.]

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Will the convention come to order, please.

Delegate Bentley has pointed out under rule 52 the following sentence:

> When a motion to reconsider is taken under the previous question and is decided in the affirmative, the previous question shall have no operation upon the question to be reconsidered.

Therefore, it is the ruling of the Chair that a motion to reconsider is in order and if it passes, then the previous question is rescinded.

MR. BENTLEY: I will move to reconsider, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: A motion has been made to reconsider the vote by which the previous question was ordered. All those in favor, signify by saying aye. Those opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

The secretary will read the substitute resolution.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Ostrow offers the following substitute for Resolution 21, A resolution establishing deadline for introduction of delegate proposals and processing by codirectors of research.

> Resolved, That all delegate proposals shall be filed by January 15, 1962, and that all requests for drafting or preparation of delegate proposals shall be processed and considered timely filed for the purposes of this resolution if they are filed with the codirectors of research by 5:00 p.m., on January 15, 1962, except upon authorization by the convention for a later date. This resolution shall not prevent any delegate or interested citizen from thereafter submitting to the appropriate committee any suggestion for revision of the constitution, and if so requested in writing by any delegate, said committee shall acknowledge in its action journal its receipt of any such suggestion.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The question is on the adoption of the substitute.

Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. President, what we have now before us is actually Mr. Ostrow's substitute. When viewed in light of Senator Hutchinson's amendment, when you look at the two, it is difficult at first to see the distinction; but the one thing that the Ostrow substitute does that the other doesn't is determine right now that any matter that is in the hands of the research personnel and the drafting personnel at the time that whatever deadline that is adopted — if one is adopted by this convention — takes effect will be considered to have been filed for the purpose of the resolution.

Now, we don't have to come back here and argue about what we would do with the resolutions or the proposals that are in that status. The alternative to this, should the other one be adopted — and I don't want to get into the other one since it isn't this moment on the floor — as I understand it, would be that at some future date we would meet this problem. And I think that all we are doing — at least in my mind — is adding doubt upon doubt about the real purpose of the cutoff date as it is set up now.

First of all, I've got serious reservations about whether cutting off delegate proposals — why not cut off any other kind of proposals? — is going to accomplish the purpose that the exponents of this cutoff are espousing. If it is the principal desire of Mr. Hutchinson and Mr. Van Dusen, as the authors of this proposal, in the first instance to expedite the business of the convention by providing an orderly method of proceeding and encouraging the delegates to put their proposals in without undue delay, then I submit that the proper way to serve this purpose without endangering in any way the effective right of the minority to be heard — whether that minority consists of 1 person or 45 persons, or in fact 72 persons — is to place effectively before this convention, and in thus doing, the people of the state of Michigan, any idea that comes to light as a result of the study we have been undertaking.

I feel just a little bit disturbed about the fact that there is some feeling that many of us came to this convention with our minds so firmly set and geared with respect to those particular things we wanted changed or retained as they are in the constitution that we perhaps are closing our eyes to the real value of the tremendous amount of work that all of the delegates have been doing in this convention to date. Many people on this floor have commented, and many people on the outside have commented on the diligence of the delegates and the hard work that has gone into studying the problems. And in neither of the committees on which I have served are we at the stage where we have considered proposal A — not one single proposal — and we aren't going to be there for some time at the present rate. This is because both those committees are going very carefully through a study process.

And I have already discovered, at least in the local government committee, that areas are being exposed to my limited field of thought on the subject that I had not contemplated in any respect at all before I came to this convention. And before I get into a position to put a proposal in, I should like to hear a lot more from a lot of people whom I have had the opportunity of meeting here, because I think we have assembled for the first time in over 50 years in Michigan in one place the best cross section of brains and ability, in terms of the literally centuries of public service that some of these men have accumulated behind them in a cumulative sense that the people of the state of Michigan are going to have the benefit of for some time, and I think we should take advantage of this to the fullest.

As Mr. Douglas has stated, the experts have talked, but the experts are not going to pass final judgment on the document we are here to write. I think that any thought that goes out of this convention to the effect that individual delegates reach a point where their initiative to have independent and novel thoughts is stopped by an artificial rule would be very bad in the public image and would accumulate with the objections that I have to the cutoff in the first instance.

One other thing that is particularly alarming is when you notice that there are delegates here who make statements to the effect that delegate proposals are really unnecessary since the committee shall initiate such matters as are approved by a majority of the members of each respective committee, and this is really what we will vote on when we get to the convention.

Secondly, if there are people here who have serious disillusionment about the dignity that will be afforded to independent thoughts that arise after the cutoff date, I call your attention to these words that have been used, and I trust that they were used in a sense of levity, but they nevertheless created in me the fear that this might be typical of the feeling of the delegates relative to any one of the alternative ways that Senator Hutchinson has mentioned: late blooming suggestions; brilliant afterthoughts; late blooming ideas. These were used in such a way as to indicate, at least in my mind, the thought that already we are beginning to consider matters being brought to the attention of the convention through the alternative means, through the introduction of a delegate proposal, as not having the dignity of delegate proposals themselves.

I can't think, as has been stated here, of a single specific novel idea that shouldn't be thought of before November 22 or December 1 or any other date that is brought on. But that seems to me to prove the very point, that to say that we are going to spend months here studying this matter and preclude the possibility of any mind in this room having the imagination to come up with a novel idea simply because any one of us at this particular time cannot think of anything novel, seems to me to be begging the question.

Now, novel doesn't mean that it has to be radical. We have already been exposed to the fact that there is a serious disagreement in this convention as to those things that should be in the constitution in the first instance and in many areas, and those things that should be left entirely to the legislature. And this is where I think the real strong argument about germaneness is going to occur, and it is going to be something that we have an obligation to the people of the state of Michigan to air thoroughly when it does happen.

Now, it has been mentioned that there are several avenues, one of them being the minority report. Now, as I understand the rules at the present time, the minority report has to in some way relate itself to the majority report. I can't conceive of properly having a minority report initiated by any minority of this convention up to and including 72 of the delegates that should be placed in a position of facing the test of whether or not it fits into the germane pattern of what the committee majority covering a particular part of the constitution has determined to be the scope of their activity.

There is some disagreement within the committee. As a matter of fact, we had last week a serious disagreement between 2 committees as to which one should properly handle a particular matter. And I submit that on the particular question that was the subject of the jurisdictional dispute last week, I would like to ask somebody to tell me to which committee it is germane when there is a legitimate difference of opinion at the present time.

Mr. Hutchinson has stated that the most important part of the convention process will be the open floor debate, and this is the most important thing to the citizens of the state of Michigan. I think anything that endangers this open floor debate, leaving any doubt as to whether or not any of it will occur as to all possible aspects of the proposed documents from this convention, should be avoided.

Now, with respect to the particular date involved, we had a motion passed here yesterday — there was no objection to it of any magnitude — which cuts 2 weeks out of the next month of this convention. But this 2 weeks is certainly not going to be wasted by the delegates because we already have ample material to keep us busy in that 2 weeks and many more to come. I think that the real merit of waiting until after the holidays to tie ourselves down to this sort of a rule lies in the fact that during that time we have the best chance of coming up with these novel or new ideas or coming up with areas that haven't previously been touched on.

Nobody can argue the necessity for the orderly conduct of his business. But as we face the problems before us, if it is our intention that under no circumstances anyone should be precluded from having his proposal considered because of a possible flood of proposals at the eleventh hour of the filing date, then the Ostrow proposal makes it eminently clear what the status of such proposals would be, and it doesn't leave us to come back at some future date and try and determine what we ought to do about them. I submit that there should be no doubt that any proposal — even if it is written on a piece of tissue paper — that is presented to the research people prior to the filing date should have the dignity of being carefully considered by them and put into proper form and ultimately finding its way into the hopper as a delegate proposal, even if the flood of work that they have causes it to be delayed for 2 or 3 weeks. The Ostrow proposal clearly sets this up to be the rule.

The other alternative that we are presented with here leaves this question as much up in the air when we leave here today as it was when we came in.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. McCauley.

MR. McCAULEY: Mr. President and delegates, speaking in favor of the substitute resolution, I want to say this: that I certainly appreciate Mr. Hutchinson's remarks, especially about this vacation that we are going to have.

The only trouble with some of the late blooming people that I have in the downriver area — some 190,000 — the only time I'm going to have a chance to talk to these people will be over these vacations, for which I want to thank Mr. Hutchinson. However, when I attempt to tell them — after discussing the various pros and cons of what happened here about proposals or ideas or suggestions that they might have — I have to tell them > well, there are 3 ways we can do it, but I as your duly elected delegate can no longer do it. If you are going to give it the dignity of a proposal, I can put it into the back door through a committee, or you can come up. If you are recognized by the committee, you might be able to come up, or in the event I can get a majority of the delegation here elected to listen to me, I might be able to put it on the floor.

I think this: I think that we need the opportunity to talk to our people to find out what their thinking is. I don't know about the rest of you delegates, but I've been pretty busy up here doing my homework, attending committee meetings and hoping that over this vacation period we'll have an opportunity to get next to the people and find out what they think about it. After all, they're the ones that are paying our salaries up here and I think we ought to listen to them just a little bit. Thank you.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: I've heard this several times, Mr. President, that we want to speak to our constituents when we go home Thanksgiving to get some ideas. I would like to know what some of these people have been doing for the 21 days they haven't been in the convention.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Is there any further discussion? Are you ready for the question? The question is on the substitute resolution. All those in favor, signify by saying aye. Those opposed, no.

The substitute resolution is not adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Marshall has now offered an amendment to the original resolution to substitute the date of December 8 for November 22. His motion is to

1. Amend line 1 by striking out "November 22" and inserting "December 8" so the language will read in the original resolution:

Resolved, That after December 8, 1961, no delegate proposal shall be introduced, numbered, or printed except upon authorization by the convention.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I offer this amendment because we have wasted the entire afternoon. I don't mean to imply that the discussions were wasted, but it was rather obvious to me in the beginning, without all of the discussion, what the outcome of the vote would be.

However, in consideration of the question that some of the delegates raised about the little time in which to study the wealth of material that they have before them and to prepare to meet this deadline, it seems to me this amendment would give them to the Thanksgiving holiday weekend in which to consider this and to be prepared.

I think in all fairness that we should adopt this amendment to the original resolution, and I would sincerely solicit support of this delegation, which merely moves us from November 22 to December 8, giving us the Thanksgiving weekend in which to do some more work, and I would appreciate the support of the delegates on the amendment to the main resolution. Thank you.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Any further discussion on the amendment?

Mr. Suzore.

MR. SUZORE: Mr. President, I ask for a recorded roll call vote.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Is the demand for the yeas and nays seconded? Raise your hands.

SECRETARY CHASE: There is sufficient number.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: There is sufficient number. The yeas and nays will be taken. Please vote on the machine.

SECRETARY CHASE: The question is upon the amendment offered by Mr. Marshall to change the date to December 8. Have you all voted?

The secretary will now lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—50

Mr. President, on Mr. Marshall's amendment, the yeas are 50 and the nays are 80.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The amendment is not adopted.

Now the question is on the adoption of the resolution, as amended. Would the secretary read the resolution as amended? Then we will have the vote.

SECRETARY CHASE: The resolution now reads as follows:

Resolution 21, A resolution establishing deadline for introduction of delegate proposals.

Resolved, That after November 22, 1961, no delegate proposal shall be introduced, numbered, or printed except upon authorization by the convention. By a subsequent resolution, the convention will provide for the introduction of delegate proposals in preparation on November 22 in the office of research and drafting. This resolution shall not prevent any delegate or interested citizen from thereafter submitting to the appropriate committee any suggestion for revision of the constitution, and if so requested in writing by any delegates, said committee shall acknowledge in its action journal its receipt of any such suggestion.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The question is on the resolution. All those in favor, signify by saying aye. Those opposed, nay.

The resolution is adopted.

Mr. Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: I am sorry, Mr. President, I understood debate was not foreclosed on the original resolution. We passed a motion to reconsider which contravened our previous action, bringing our consideration down to the original resolution. I am prepared now to speak on the original resolution.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The Chair was in error. Mr. Brown was seeking recognition, and so was Delegate King.

Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: What is your question?

MR. KUHN: Isn't it true when you moved the previous question on the amendment before this that you revived it and took everything that was on the table at that time; and if that is true the previous question was in order and it would close debate for everything that was on the table.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Except that Delegate Bentley made the motion to reconsider the previous question and then that opened up everything we had.

MR. KUHN: True. But then after Delegate Bentley's motion to reconsider the previous question, there was a new previous question which was adopted.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: I don't believe there was. We will check the records of the secretary.

Mr. Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: I understood there was no previous question. It was adopted by a voice vote.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: There was not. The Chair was in error.

Do we have consent for the 2 delegates who were trying to get the floor, Delegate King and Delegate Brown, to speak? And then what do we have to do? (laughter) Will you please be patient?

We could reconsider the vote by which that was taken and reopen the discussion, or do it by unanimous consent.

Without objection, the 2 delegates who were trying to get the floor could be recognized to speak. Is there objection to the 2 delegates who were trying to get the floor, speaking?

MR. YEAGER: I object.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The resolution has been adopted, but a motion to reconsider is in order.

Mr. Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: I should like to object to the decision of the Chair. The Chair reversed itself the last 2 times after consultation with Mr. Chase not 30 seconds ago. You agreed you were in error in calling for the vote on the main question. Mr. King and I were standing and asking for recognition at that time. Now, as far as I am concerned, the main question is not passed, and I will object to that.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: You are correct. You were standing for recognition, and the Chair was in error in not recognizing the 2 delegates.

Mr. Everett.

MR. EVERETT: Mr. President, I move we reconsider the vote.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: A motion has been made to reconsider the vote by which the resolution, as amended, was adopted. All those in favor, say aye. Those opposed, no.

The motion to reconsider prevails.

Of the 2 delegates, I believe Delegate King was up first. I will recognize him, then Delegate Brown.

Mr. King.

MR. KING: Mr. President, I would move to insert the date "December 1" in place of the date "November 22" in the now pending motion before this convention.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. King offers the following amendment to Resolution 21:

1. Amend the resolving clause by striking out "November 22" and inserting "December 1".

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Is there any discussion?

Mr. Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: I would support the tenor of Mr. King's amendment except to amend the date to November 29, the twenty-ninth being a Thursday, I believe, and the first being a Saturday, which would make it more commensurate with our work week.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Brown moves to amend Mr. King's amendment by striking out "December 1" and inserting "November 29".

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. King.

MR. KING: I concur in that change.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Is there any discussion on the amendment? The secretary will again state the amendment as it now stands.

SECRETARY CHASE: By agreement between Messrs. King and Brown, it is to strike out "November 22" and insert "November 29".

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Is there any further discussion on the question?

Mr. Faxon.

MR. FAXON: Mr. President, I am just looking at the calendar here. I see the twenty-ninth is Wednesday, and I believe Mr. Brown said the twenty-ninth was Thursday. Now, the original amendment made by Mr. King was for December first, which is Friday, which is the proper closing of the week.

I am supporting Mr. King on this (laughter) because the first is the time. (laughter)

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Mr. President, I will be only too happy to withdraw my amendment. (laughter)

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Brown has withdrawn his amendment, which was done with the permission of Mr. King.

We now have, I believe no amendment before us. Does somebody wish to make an amendment? (laughter)

Mr. King.

MR. KING: Mr. President, I am sorry, but I didn't quite get the full tenor of the remarks of Delegate Faxon. Would you repeat them?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Will Delegate Faxon repeat his comment?

MR. FAXON: I'm just supporting Delegate King. He originally proposed December 1, which is Friday, which is the proper closing of the week. So if this amendment is still on the floor, then I am rising to support his, and I just wanted to call attention that there was an error made by Mr. Brown.

MR. KING: I will renew my amendment of December 1.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Will the secretary read the amendment?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. King offers the following amendment:

1. Amend the resolving clause by striking out "November 22" and inserting in lieu thereof "December 1".

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Any discussion on the amendment?

Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, I don't think that there is any intention or desire on the part of the majority in this convention to ram this thing through against the reasonable objections of the minority. I see no reason why we should not accord them this later date. I propose to vote for the date of December 1.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Suzore.

MR. SUZORE: Mr. President, I ask for a recorded roll call vote.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: A request has been made for a roll call vote. Is there a demand for the yeas and nays? Please raise your right hand for the yeas and nays.

SECRETARY CHASE: Forty-two.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: There is a sufficient number to demand for the yeas and nays. Those in favor of Mr. King's amendment will vote aye. Those opposed will vote nay.

SECRETARY CHASE: Have you all voted? The secretary will now lock the machine and record the vote.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

On the adoption of Mr. King's amendment to change the date from November 22 to December 1, the yeas are 78; the nays are 43.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: The amendment is adopted. Now the question is on the adoption of the resolution, as amended.

Mr. Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: Mr. President, I would like to explain my abstention on the vote. I think that this is in order with the procedure; is that correct?

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Will you wait just a minute? We are going to check it.

Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I believe that this is supposed to be announced prior to voting and I would suggest and ask Mr. Snyder to hold his explanation until Monday evening. I say it for this reason: Mr. Bebout is here from New Jersey and has been here this latter part of the week to discuss with the delegates an important subject. He represented several states in their constitutional work and he is going to appear before the committee on local government yet tonight, and I think that it is important that we get along with the proceedings so we do not show discourtesy to our guest.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Snyder.

MR. SNYDER: It is a very logical request and I will be most happy to comply.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Thank you. We are now ready for the vote on the resolution, as amended. Are you ready for the question? All those in favor, signify by saying aye. Those opposed nay.

The resolution is adopted.

Following is the resolution as amended and adopted:

Resolution 21.

A resolution establishing deadline for introduction of delegate proposals.

Resolved, That after December 1, 1961, no delegate proposal shall be introduced, numbered, or printed except upon authorization by the convention. By a subsequent resolution, the convention will provide for the introduction of delegate proposals in preparation on December 1 in the office of research and drafting. This resolution shall not prevent any delegate or interested citizen from thereafter submitting to the appropriate committee any suggestion for revision of the constitution, and if so requested in writing by any delegate, said committee shall acknowledge in its action journal its receipt of any such suggestion.

Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Announcements.

Mr. Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: Mr. President, I would like to ask leave of the convention for the committee on judicial branch to be excused to meet with Justice Souris, who is impatiently waiting. As an attorney, I think that some day I may have to practice before the Justice and I would like to meet with him yet this afternoon.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Hearing no objection, leave is granted.

Any other announcements?

SECRETARY CHASE: We have the following announcement of committee meetings and several announcements of general interest.

First, the committee on administration will meet in the conference room of the president next Monday at 7:00 o'clock p.m. Walter DeVries, chairman.

The subcommittee on corporations of the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule will meet in room G on November 14, Tuesday, at 10:30 a.m. Henry Woolfenden, subcommittee chairman.

The committee on finance and taxation will meet in room E next Tuesday, November 14, at 8:30 a.m. D. Hale Brake, chairman.

The committee on judicial branch will be meeting this afternoon immediately after the session for the appearance and presentation of Justice Theodore Souris.

The committee on executive branch will meet in room C immediately after the session today for the appearance and presentation of Mr. George Higgins and Franklin DeWald to continue the discussion of earlier presentations on the civil service commission; and the appearance of Mr. Robert Grosvenor to continue discussion of his earlier presentation.

The committee on local government is meeting in room A immediately after the session for the appearance and presentation of Mr. John Bebout.

Monday, the committee on rules and resolutions will meet immediately after the session in room I, and the Committee on education will meet on Monday at 4:30 p.m. in the capitol room at the Capitol Park Motel.

Will the delegates please turn in to your secretary, down in the steno pool the black bound copies of your status, and they will be brought up to date over the weekend.

The secretary of state, James Hare, advises that he can pull out license numbers CC 9001 through CC 9144 for assignment to the delegates, if you are interested. The numbers will correspond with your delegate seat numbers and these papers may be processed through Mr. Apol's office and the plates delivered to your desk.

The secretary wishes to announce that 10 copies of Mason's Manual purchased by the convention have been received. The president and the 3 vice presidents each have a copy. The other 6 copies are on file in the library for your use. And in addition to that, 4 copies borrowed from the clerk of the house of representatives, Norman Philleo, are on file for use in the library.

We have the following requests for leaves of absence:

Mr. McCauley wishes to be excused from the evening session of next Monday, November 13, and the session of November 14.

Mr. Figy wishes to be excused from the session of November 13.

Mr. Haskill asks to be excused from the sessions of November 15, 16 and 17;

Because of a previous commitment, Mr. Millard asks to be excused from the session of Tuesday, November 21;

Mr. Sablich requests to be excused from the sessions of November 20, 21 and 22;

Mrs. Conklin, Messrs. Stevens, Sterrett, Iverson, and Yeager request to be excused from next Monday evening's session to attend an important meeting in northwest Detroit; and Delegate G. E. Brown requests to be excused from the session on Monday because of a speaking engagement.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Are there any objections? Hearing none, the delegates are excused.

Are there any more announcements?

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the announcements on the secretary's desk, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I think you have had a difficult afternoon in the Chair and I move the delegates congratulate you on your baptism of fire. (applause)

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Thank you, Mr. Van Dusen. I'd like to thank the delegates for their good natured patience and cooperation this afternoon.

A motion to adjourn is in order.

Mr. Perras.

MR. PERRAS: I move that we adjourn, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT DOWNS: Those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. We are adjourned.

[Whereupon, and in pursuance of the order previously made, at 4:35 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 8:00 o'clock p.m., Monday, November 13, 1961.]

TWENTY-THIRD DAY

Monday, November 13, 1961, 8:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will come to order, please.

Our invocation this evening will be given by the Reverend Paul Arnold, Pastor of the Mason Presbyterian Church in Mason.

REVEREND ARNOLD: Our heavenly Father, we come unto Thee this evening with renewed thanksgiving in our hearts for the bounties of life and the privileges of this land and of this state, and we come to ask Thy benediction upon this body and its concern for the welfare of the state in the future.

We pray that Thou wilt guide us. In the midst of the varied interests within our state, we are often in conflict with one another, because we, as people, are in conflict even within ourselves many times. We would pray that the compulsion that may be ours may be that inner compulsion for the welfare of every man. We are unable to realize this prayer in our own wisdom and strength, and we ask of Thee, who giveth to all men liberally when they ask, and we pray in the name of Him who manifested supremely the meaning of this inner compulsion to do the will of His heavenly Father for the welfare of all mankind. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? The machine is now locked and you may release the voting lever.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

Mr. Bledsoe called in this evening. He has been detained en route by adverse weather; Mr. Lundgren wishes to be excused from tonight's session. He ran into bad weather en route; and Mr. Brake asked to be granted indefinite leave because of illness.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Mrs. Conklin, Messrs. Allen, Bledsoe, Brake, G. E. Brown, Figy, Garvin, Iverson, Lundgren, McCauley, Norris, Ostrow, Sterrett, Stevens and Yeager.

Absent without leave: Mr. Suzore.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, Mr. Suzore is excused.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: I have no reports on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Norris introduces

Delegate Proposal 1216, A proposal to require equal protection of the laws for all persons and prohibiting discrimination in civil rights. Amends article II.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Norris introduces

Delegate Proposal 1217, A proposal to amend article II, section 10, providing for security against unreasonable searches and seizures and interceptions.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Iverson, Leibrand, McAllister, Mosier, Pugsley and Prettie introduce

Delegate Proposal 1218, A proposal to group the 41 judicial circuits of Michigan into 7 judicial districts, numbered consecutively from 1 to 7, and to elect 3 justices of the supreme court from district number 1, which is judicial circuit number 3, Wayne county, and 1 from each of the other 6 districts. Amends article VII.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committeee on judicial branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Millard introduces

Delegate Proposal 1219, A proposal to guarantee all persons against discrimination in employment and wages on account of age. Amends article II.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hoxie introduces

Delegate Proposal 1220, A proposal to empower the legislature to provide by law for the imposition of specific taxes by counties, which shall be uniform within the counties upon which they operate. Amends article X.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hoxie introduces

Delegate Proposal 1221, A proposal to permit bills and resolutions to carry over to the next session upon adjournment of sessions held in odd numbered years. Amends article V, section 13.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: That concludes the proposals, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that order, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and Resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. McCauley and Miss McGowan offer

Resolution 34, A resolution regarding submission of the constitution to the people for ratification.

Following is the body of Resolution 34, as offered:

Resolved, That the constitution shall be submitted in entirety to the people of the state of Michigan for ratification, rather than in sections.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only resolution on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Perras.

MR. PERRAS: Mr. President, may I have your consent to make a brief statement?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, you may proceed.

MR. PERRAS: The other night, during our regular skirmishing over the public information department, my colleague, Mrs. Butler, rightfully expressed her concern over the fact that none of the convention employees is from the upper peninsula. As a representative of that remote and ofttimes overlooked appendage of the state of Michigan, I share Mrs. Butler's concern.

However, as a member of the committee on administration, I feel compelled to point out certain facts. Of the hundreds of applications for employment received by the committee on administration, only one was from a resident of the upper peninsula. And, unfortunately, that lone applicant did not measure up to the requirements of the position applied for.

I think the lack of U. P. applications is understandable. Convention employment is temporary, and the upper peninsula is a long way away. However, I want to assure Mrs. Butler that the upper peninsula had a vigilant watchdog on the administration committee to safeguard the interests of that fair part of our state. And had there been any qualified U.P. applicants, you may rest assured they would be holding down staff positions today.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you.

Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The following committee meeting announcements:

The committee on public information will meet in the conference room next to the president's office this evening immediately after the session. Ink White, chairman.

The committee on rules and resolutions will meet this evening immediately after the session in room I.

The following announcements are for tomorrow:

The committee on executive branch, which usually meets in room C, will meet, instead, in parlors A, B, C, and D, off corridor A at the north end of the civic auditorium, tomorrow at 10:30 a.m.

The committee on legislative organization will meet immediately after the session tomorrow in room D. Mr. John Huss and other representatives of the Michigan municipal league are scheduled to appear.

The committee on judicial branch will meet in room B at 10:30 in the morning. Appearance and presentation of Noel P. Fox, circuit judge, chairman of the constitutional convention citizens advisory committee, judiciary department.

The committee on local government will meet at 10:30 tomorrow morning in room A. Appearance and presentation of Dr. Arthur W. Bromage, head of the political science department of the University of Michigan, on problems of local government, exclusive of metropolitan areas.

The committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule will meet tomorrow morning at 10:30 in room G, corporation subcommittee.

The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections will meet tomorrow morning in room F at 8:30. General review of the declaration of rights by Dr. Kelly.

The committee on finance and taxation will meet tomorrow morning at 8:30 in room E. The appearance and presentation of Harry Hall of the state chamber of commerce, and Bernard N. Ward, CPA, Bay City.

The committee on executive branch, already announced, has a change of meeting place tomorrow morning: parlors A, B, C, and D at the north end of the building, appearance and presentation of former Governor Williams.

The committee on education will meet tomorrow morning in room J at 8:30. The appearance and presentation of Mr. Clyde Campbell, executive secretary of the Michigan association of school administrators, and several others.

The committee on legislative powers has 4 subcommittee meetings scheduled as follows:

Subcommittee 1 will meet in room H at 3:00 o'clock, Richard D. Kuhn, subcommittee chairman; subcommittee 2 of the committee on legislative powers will meet in room K tomorrow at 3:00 p.m. Stanley M. Powell, subcommittee chairman; subcommittee 3 of the committee on legislative powers will meet in room H tomorrow at 3:00 o'clock. Claude L. Wood, subcommittee chairman; and subcommittee 4 of the committee on legislative powers will meet in room H tomorrow at 3:00 o'clock. Frank G. Millard, subcommittee chairman.

The committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule will meet at 3:00 o'clock tomorrow or immediately after the session in room G.

There is a public hearing scheduled for Wednesday, November 15, by the committee on education, in the main auditorium of the Kellogg center at Michigan State University from 4:15 to 6:15 p.m.

The following announcements of general interest to the delegates:

All of the telephones on the switchboard here have now been connected by direct lines to the capitol switchboard, so that if you want to place a call to Detroit over the state leased lines, or to reach anyone on the capitol telephone exchange, all you need do is ask the switchboard operator here for the capitol operator, then give your request.

An announcement was made last Thursday in regard to license plates for the delegates. This is being arranged through the courtesy of Secretary of State James Hare, and you may obtain the necessary forms and other information from Mr. Apol, the administrative assistant to the president.

The Ingham county medical society has provided a well equipped first aid facility which will be located in the west end of corridor A. Available for your needs will be a registered nurse, the daughter of Dr. Cummings of the state health department.

The secretary sometime ago received from the Virginia commission on constitutional government, which is an official agency of the commonwealth of Virginia, created by act of the Virginia legislature to assemble, publish and distribute material relating to the state and federal relationship, with particular emphasis on material upholding the reserved powers of the state mailed out a little pamphlet called Socdolager! A Tale of Davy Crockett. After the president read this, he enjoyed it and appreciated it so much, he suggested that we obtain copies. In your mailboxes tomorrow you will each receive one of these.

We have the following requests for leaves of absence from the session: Mr. Bonisteel requests to be excused from the session of Wednesday of this week to attend a directors' meeting; Mr. Perras wishes to be excused from the meetings of November 20, 21, and 22 due to prior commitments; Mr. Goebel requests to be excused from the sessions of November 15, 16, and 17; Miss Hart requests to be excused from the session of tomorrow. It is necessary for her to attend a white house conference in Detroit; Mr. Anspach requests leave to be excused from the sessions of Monday evening, November 20, and November 27, in order to keep previous speaking engagements; and Mr. Norris has filed a request to be excused from the sessions of Monday, November 20, and November 27.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, those requests will be granted. Hearing none, they are.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all the items on the secretary's desk, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Are there any other announcements? If not, the Chair recognizes Miss Andrus.

MISS ANDRUS: I didn't think it would come so soon, Mr. President. I move that we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

We are adjourned until tomorrow at 2:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, at 8:20 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Tuesday, November 14, 1961.]

TWENTY-FOURTH DAY

Tuesday, November 14, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation today will be given by the Reverend Bruce Huffer, Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Lansing.

REVEREND HUFFER: Our heavenly Father, we thank Thee for the privilege that is ours to live in this country, to be a part of it. We ask Thy blessing to rest upon the deliberations this afternoon that we might always keep in mind the presence of almighty God in the universe that we live and share in, and that we might be conscious too of the needs of our neighbors and friends whom we represent. Guide and direct and use each one of us as servants of Thine, for this we would ask in Jesus' name. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present, please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? The machine is now locked and you may return your voting levers to the neutral position.

Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no resolutions on file.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mrs. Butler.

MRS. BUTLER: Mr. President, today, in talking to a number of our delegates, we noticed that most of us are not wearing our badges. I think this is because we have become familiar with each other.

It was the consensus that a number of the guests and visitors to the constitutional convention might like to know who the delegates are, and it was suggested that a request be made by the president that we wear our badges while we are at the constitutional convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mrs. Butler. That is a very fine suggestion. I think it would be well if we all did it, and if any of you have had your badges broken, please refer them to Mr. Apol. Thank you, Mrs. Butler.

Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration will meet in the conference room of the president's office immediately after today's session. Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: I notice a typographical error on the composite calendar report for today, which had the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections, the appearance of delegates on proposal regarding article I. It should be article II, declaration of rights.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Please note the correction. Thank you, Dr. Pollock.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on legislative organization will meet immediately after the session today in room D. Mr. John Huss and other representatives of the Michigan municipal league will be present.

The committee on legislative powers will meet at 3:00 o'clock or immediately after the session today, subcommittee 2, in room K, on Delegate Proposals 1131 and 1160, sponsored by Mrs. Daisy Elliott and Mr. Wanger, respectively. Subcommittees 1, 3 and 4 in room H will meet to discuss assignment.

The committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule will meet at 3:00 o'clock or immediately after the session in room G.

Tomorrow, Wednesday, the committee on executive branch will meet at 8:30 a.m. in room C. Dr. Pollock will present an analysis of the questions on which committee decisions will be required.

The committee on judicial branch will meet at 8:30 a.m. in room B.

The committee on local government will meet at 8:30 a.m. in room A. Committee discussion concerning article VIII, sections 23 through 28.

In room A, also, the committee on local government will meet tomorrow evening at 7:30 for a complete discussion of article VIII.

The committee on legislative organization will meet at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow in room H. Full committee meeting to hear subcommittee reports.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Hannah.

MR. J. A. HANNAH: I apologize for the problems we seem to have in getting this calendar straight. The committee on legislative organization will meet at 10:30 a.m. That part is correct, but it is in room D. Tomorrow we are going to have appear before us Mr. Apol, Mr. Montgomery and Mr. Carroll, to give us some information as to why it is important—if it is important—to stick to county lines in apportionment of the legislature; and also Delegate Downs will appear before the committee.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule will meet at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow, subcommittee on boundaries, and the subcommittee on eminent domain, in room G. The speaker will be Mr. Saul Greenfield, author of the con con preparatory commission report on this same topic.

The committee on finance and taxation will meet tomorrow immediately after the session in room E. Appearance and presentation of Commissioner Mackie of the highway department.

The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections will meet immediately after the session tomorrow in room F. Appearance of delegates on proposals referred to this committee regarding article II of the declaration of rights.

A notice of a public hearing: committee on education will hold a series of open hearings in the main auditorium of the Kellogg center at Michigan State University on Wednesday, tomorrow, from 4:15 to 6:15 p.m. The request has been made that notice be given that all committee meetings at all times are open to the public.

One other request for announcements: There have been some inconveniences occasioned by the fact that delegates have neglected to hang their coats and hats in the cloakroom according to their seat numbers. If you would observe the seat number and file your coats and hats accordingly, those who were inconvenienced would be most pleased.

We have the following requests for leaves of absence:

Mr. Krolikowski requests leave to be excused from the session of tomorrow, November 15; Mr. Radka requests to be excused from the Wednesday and Thursday sessions of this week; and Mr. Romney asks to be excused on Thursday, November 16, for a company board of directors' meeting.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be excused.

Mr. Lesinski.

MR. LESINSKI: Mr. President, the proposals given to us for signing have been mixed up. First of all, the proposal I had was in someone else's mailbox. Secondly, the first 5 sheets were my proposal, the one on the blue sheet was another proposal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Lesinski, after adjournment will you please come up here and we will see if we can get it straightened out with the secretary.

Are there any other announcements?

Mr. Baginski.

MR. BAGINSKI: I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. All in favor say aye. Opposed, nay.

The convention is adjourned until tomorrow at 2:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, at 2:20 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m. Wednesday, November 15, 1961.]

TWENTY-FIFTH DAY

Wednesday, November 15, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

It is my pleasure today to have the pastor of my own church here to give the invocation; the Reverend Eugene Cotton, Pastor of the First Congregational Church of Fremont.

REVEREND COTTON: Will you pray with me?

Our heavenly Father, we do pause to offer unto Thee our thanksgiving; thankful, God, for the privilege of a freedom of the land in which we might gather together in seeking to serve Thy children.

Grant upon our hearts, we do ask of Thee, that we are Thy hands that labor, that we are Thy heart that feels, that we are Thy mind that seeks Thy wisdom. Permit us, our God, to do a service to our constituents, to Thy children, that our labors may not be in vain, that they might show forth Thy glory, Thy concern. For this, our God, and countless unspoken prayers of each of our hearts, we do ask in the name of Thy Son, our Lord, even Jesus Christ. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. Those present, please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Have you all voted? The machine is now locked.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

From today's session by Mr. Dean Doty; and a call from Mr. Seyferth asking to be excused from the sessions of today and tomorrow, as he was called away to Florida on urgent business.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Bonisteel, Brake, Dean Doty, Goebel, Haskill, Hoxie, Krolikowski, Radka and Seyferth.

Absent without leave: Mr. Romney.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, Mr. Romney is excused.

Mr. Danhof.

MR. DANHOF: I rise to speak to the convention on a matter which was brought before the committee on judicial branch this morning, and a matter which has appeared in the morning paper. The committee felt, and took a unanimous action, that a statement should be made in order to correct any erroneous impression which might have arisen.

In the Wednesday, November 15, 1961, issue of the Detroit Free Press the editorial appears as follows: "A high court bench chosen by district."

The opening paragraph reads:

> Supplementing other proposals for changing the method of electing state supreme justices, members of the constitutional convention judiciary committee have introduced a plan to elect the justices from districts.

In the second paragraph, one sentence reads as follows:

> The committee's plan includes the nonpartisan feature so strongly urged by Justice Eugene Black and discussed on this page Tuesday.

The committee on judicial branch wishes to make it absolutely clear that the plan or proposal introduced, to which the editorial refers, has not in any way been endorsed by the committee on judicial branch of the constitutional convention; that the committee has taken no action on any plan or proposal that has been introduced; and the committee objects to the use of the committee's designation, calling this the committee's plan.

In the order of business of this convention, the committee's plans will only be those which are reported from the actual committee after we have discussed all of the ideas and proposals.

I am not sure this was done intentionally, but we would point out that neither this plan nor any other plan has been approved by our committee, and we would hope in the future they refer to the specific proposal by the delegate's name or some other designation. Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Danhof.

Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, recommends to the president for consideration for a staff appointment Dr. Charles Adrian as research assistant. Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the committee's report. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The president appoints, pursuant to authorization by the convention, and with the approval of the committee on administration, the aforenamed person to the position indicated.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the appointment is approved.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss McGowan introduces Delegate Proposal 1263, A proposal to empower the legislature to create a family court.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the proposals, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that order.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Danhof and Ford, on behalf of the committee on judicial branch, offer Resolution 35, A resolution requesting authority and funds for the committee on judicial branch to hold hearings in the city of Detroit.

Following is the body of Resolution 35, as offered:

Whereas, The committee on judicial branch is engaged in the study of the problems confronting the judiciary of the state of Michigan; and

Whereas, The city of Detroit and the county of Wayne involve the largest and most complex court system in the state of Michigan; and

Whereas, There exists in the city of Detroit a system of courts not found in the remainder of the state of Michigan and whose problems must, of necessity, be given considerable study by the committee; and

Whereas, It is the unanimous opinion of the committee that it would be more advantageous to the committee, to the convention, to the people of the city of Detroit, to the county of Wayne and the surrounding metropolitan area, if an on the spot survey and examination were made; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the committee on judicial branch does herewith request the permission of the convention to hold committee hearings in the city of Detroit on or about the fifth day of December, 1961; and be it further

Resolved, That the convention appropriate the necessary funds to defray the costs of travel for the members of the committee and staff to and from Detroit and other expenses necessary and incidental to the holding of such hearings.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on administration.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Perras, Stopczynski, Binkowski, Walker, Young, Austin, Lundgren, Upton, Leibrand and Dell offer Resolution 36, A resolution requesting authority and funds for the committee on finance and taxation to hold hearings in the upper peninsula at Ironwood and Marquette.

Following is the body of Resolution 36, as offered:

Whereas, Delegates Pellow and Perlich of the upper peninsula have introduced a proposal to add a new section to article X providing for the creation of an economic development council for the upper peninsula and the appropriation of 1 per cent of the total revenue for said council; and

Whereas, Many people concerned with the economic development of the upper peninsula have expressed an urgent desire to attend hearings of the finance and taxation committee; and

Whereas, The movers of this resolution believe that it is necessary to obtain the opinions of people from all over the state of Michigan including the upper peninsula; and

Whereas, The movers of this resolution believe that it is necessary for the finance and taxation committee to hold public hearings at Ironwood, Michigan or such other places as may appear desirable for the purpose of permitting people who are interested in the economic development of the upper peninsula to appear concerning the above mentioned proposal and for the further purpose of informing the people of the upper peninsula of the developments at the constitutional convention; and

Whereas, The rules of this convention require convention approval before a committee can conduct such a hearing at places other than Lansing; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the convention authorize the committee on finance and taxation to hold hearings at the places indicated and that the convention appropriate necessary funds to defray the cost of travel for not more than 15 members of the committee to and from the places indicated and other expenses necessary and incidental to the holding of such hearings.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on administration.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the motions or resolutions on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: Mr. President, I move that when the convention adjourns on Thursday, November 16, 1961, that it stand adjourned until Monday, November 20, 1961.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Lawrence. Those in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

This completes the business of the day.

Mr. Balcer.

MR. BALCER: Mr. President, I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. All in favor say aye. Those opposed, no.

The motion prevails. We are adjourned until 2:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

[Whereupon, at 2:20 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m. Thursday, November 16, 1961.]

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY

Thursday, November 16, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation today will be given by the Reverend Marvin Zimmerman of the Mt. Hope Methodist Church of Lansing.

REVEREND ZIMMERMAN: Almighty God, our Father, we pause at this moment to give Thee thanks for life's many blessings. Surely Thou hast placed us in a good land. We are in great debt to those who have given to us a great heritage. Thy blessings upon our nation have been great because our forefathers sought to be obedient to Thy will. As this became known to them, they responded and received wisdom that far surpassed the thoughts of their day.

We pray for the leaders of our nation and of this great state that they, too, may seek Thy face and thereby acquire great wisdom. Grant that in the writing of this great document, a reflection of Thy will, Thy goodness, may be made known to all people. In Thy name we pray. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. Those present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Have you all voted? The voting machine is now locked and the vote will be recorded.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following request for leave:

Mr. Buback phoned in earlier today that due to the exceedingly heavy rain in Detroit he was unable to make it and asked to be excused from this session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the request is granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Brake, Buback, Davis, A. G. Elliott, Goebel, Haskill, Hodges, Hoxie, Romney and Seyferth.

Absent without leave: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, respectfully recommends to the president for consideration for appointment to the constitutional convention staff, Dr. Charles Press as research consultant.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the committee report. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The president appoints, pursuant to authorization by the convention, and with the approval of the committee on administration, the aforenamed person to the position indicated.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the appointment is approved.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, recommends that delegates of this convention, who make trips on convention business, shall file individual expense accounts with the finance clerk in the secretary's office.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, this report advises the filing of individual expense accounts for authorized committee trips. This is necessary for your own records as well as the records of the convention. If you are making an authorized committee trip, I would suggest you file your individual expenses with Mrs. Tomlinson, the finance clerk in the secretary's office.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the committee report. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed no.

The recomendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 35, A resolution requesting authority and funds for the committee on judicial branch to hold hearings in the city of Detroit; without amendment and with the recommendation that it be adopted.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

The following is the resolution:

A resolution requesting authority and funds for the committee on judicial branch to hold hearings in the city of Detroit.

Whereas, The committee on judicial branch is engaged in the study of the problems confronting the judiciary of the state of Michigan; and

Whereas, The city of Detroit and the county of Wayne involve the largest and most complex court system in the state of Michigan; and

Whereas, There exists in the city of Detroit a system of courts not found in the remainder of the state of Michigan and whose problems must, of necessity, be given considerable study by the committee; and

Whereas, It is the unanimous opinion of the committee that it would be more advantageous to the committee, to the convention, to the people of the city of Detroit, to the county of Wayne and the surrounding metropolitan area, if an on the spot survey and examination were made; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the committee on judicial branch does herewith request the permission of the convention to hold committee hearings in the city of Detroit on or about the fifth day of December, 1961; and be it further

Resolved, That the convention appropriate the necessary funds to defray the costs of travel for the members of the committee and staff to and from Detroit and other expenses necessary and incidental to the holding of such hearings.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and fellow delegates, this resolution has the unanimous recommendation of the committee on judicial branch and the committee on administration. The committee recommends that morning and afternoon and, if necessary, evening meetings in Detroit be held, using the board of supervisors room in the city-county building of the city of Detroit. The purpose of the trip is to hear judges of the Wayne circuit and probate courts and other courts in the Wayne county area. The per man appropriation for the cost of the trip is $300. The committee on administration has now authorized $1,600 of its $31,000 appropriation for this purpose.

Mr. President, that concludes the report of the committee on administration.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the resolution. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The resolution is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on legislative powers, by Mr. Millard, first vice chairman, reports back to the convention Delegate Proposal 1159, A proposal to amend article XII, section 4, providing an extension of stockholders' liability to all debts incurred on account of employment and to benefits of employment; with the recommendation that the proposal be referred to another committee.

Frank G. Millard, first vice chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, this proposal will be referred to the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule.

SECRETARY CHASE: Also, the committee on legislative powers, by Mr. Millard, first vice chairman, reports back to the convention Delegate Proposal 1180, A proposal to amend article VI, section 19, president of the senate. Office of lieutenant governor, right of same to appoint committees; with the recommendation that the proposal be referred to another committee.

Frank G. Millard, first vice chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, this proposal will be referred to the committee on executive branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: That completes the reports of standing committees, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Van Dusen, Hutchinson and Downs offer

Resolution 37, A resolution to amend rule 36 of the standing rules of the constitutional convention.

Following is the body of Resolution 37, as offered:

Resolved, That rule 36 of the standing rules of the constitutional convention be amended at the end thereof after "Day.", by inserting a new sentence to read as follows: "No committee proposal shall be considered by the committee of the whole until the third day following the day of its reference to the committee of the whole.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Daisy Elliott and Mr. Young offer

Resolution 38, A resolution requesting a public hearing on the rights of minorities.

Following is the body of Resolution 38, as offered:

Whereas, In view of the intense interest of residents of the Detroit metropolitan area in constitutional provisions affecting the rights of minorities; and

Whereas, In consideration of the numerous requests from constituents expressing interest in this subject and a desire to be heard; now therefore be it

Resolved, That such hearing be held preferably in Cobo hall, or some other suitable place of adequate capacity in order to guarantee the possibility of the maximum participation of interested citizens in the Detroit area and that the public be given sufficient notice.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on administration.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. King and Durst offer

Resolution 39, A resolution expressing sympathy and paying tribute to the memory of the Honorable Sam Rayburn, speaker of the United States house of representatives.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. King.

MR. KING: Mr. President, I rise to request the unanimous consent of this convention to consider Resolution 39 at this time.

I should like to have the secretary, who was a personal acquaintance of the speaker, read the resolution at this time in order that we may consider it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, unanimous consent is given.

SECRETARY CHASE: Resolution 39, A resolution expressing sympathy and paying tribute to the memory of the Honorable Sam Rayburn, speaker of the United States house of representatives.

Whereas, The assembled delegates of the constitutional convention of the state of Michigan have learned of the passing of the Honorable Sam Rayburn of Bonham, Texas, a member of the United States house of representatives for 48 years; and

Whereas, Mr. Rayburn has contributed immeasurably to the orderly growth of constitutional government in these United States of America by faithful and dedicated service to the democratic process, earning the respect of all persons by his capable service as Speaker of the House of Representatives of the United States congress during 9 congressional sessions; now therefore be it

Resolved, That this convention here assembled arise and express its deep regret by one minute of silent tribute to the memory of this great American, the Honorable Sam Rayburn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the resolution. All in favor say aye.

The resolution is adopted. Will you therefore please stand for one minute as a tribute to this great American.

[Whereupon, for one minute the delegates stood in silent tribute.]

Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The following are notices of committee meetings in addition to those on the calendar:

The committee on administration will meet in room F, next Monday, November 20, at 7:00 o'clock p.m. Walter DeVries, chairman.

The committee on legislative powers will meet in room H on November 21, Tuesday, at 3:00 o'clock p.m., for a hearing with the chairman and the commissioners and other officials of the state liquor control commission. Frank G. Millard, vice chairman.

There are the following announcements that appear on the committee calendars for today:

The committee on executive branch will meet immediately after the session today in room C for the appearance and presentation of Senator Elmer Porter, chairman of the appropriations committee of the senate.

The committee on judicial branch will meet at 3:00 o'clock or immediately after the session today in room B for the appearance and presentation of Judge Michael Carland, the president of the Michigan judges' association.

The committee on local government will meet immediately after the session in room A, for appearance and presentation of Dr. Louis L. Friedland, department of political science of Wayne State University. Topic: the problems of local government in metropolitan areas.

The committee on education will meet at 4 o'clock Monday in room J for the appearance and presentation of Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, president of Eastern Michigan University.

The committee on executive branch is to meet Monday immediately after the session in Room C for the appearance and presentation of former Governor Murray D. Van Wagoner.

The committee on public information will meet next Monday immediately after the session in the conference room.

The committee on rules and resolutions will meet next Monday immediately after the session in room I, to consider pending resolutions.

Additional notice, or further information on the meeting of Tuesday, November 21: The committee on legislative organization will meet at 3:00 o'clock or immediately after the session for the appearance and presentation of Delegates Harold Norris, Glenn Allen, and Edward Hutchinson.

Also, on next Wednesday, November 29, the committee on education will hold a public hearing at the main auditorium of Kellogg center at Michigan State University, from 4:15 to 6:15 p.m. and from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m.

The president has asked that the following notice be given: Last week Mr. Norris suggested that effort be made to apprise the general public of their opportunity to participate through their suggestions in the convention. A news release is being issued today that suggests methods by which this can be accomplished. If any delegate would like a copy of the release, please see Ink White, the chairman of the public information committee.

There is a request from the sergeant at arms that when delegates know of school groups that are coming to visit the convention, please leave a note about it with the sergeant at arms so that he can make some preliminary arrangement for the visit of these students while they are here.

There are the following requests for leaves of absence: Mr. Donald Doty requests leave from the session of Monday, November 20, because of a township board meeting; Mr. Joseph Snyder asks to be excused from next Monday's session; and Mr. Mosier desires to be excused from the session of next Monday evening because of a speaking engagement.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, those requests will be granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all the items on the secretary's desk, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Hannah.

MR. J. A. HANNAH: Mr. Chairman, I would like to announce that the committee on legislative organization decided to hold a public hearing on Tuesday evening, November 28, either in this building or in the state capitol, and if there are delegates who know of organizations that would like to make their appearance, we would appreciate it very much if you would leave the names of the organizations and the addresses so that we can get a formal invitation to them so that they may have an opportunity to be heard.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Are there any other announcements?

I might say for the delegates to the convention that at a meeting of committee chairmen this week a request was made to them to survey their committee to see if it would not be possible for them to report sections of their articles to the convention floor sometime during the month of December, so that we might get started on some of the discussion of these articles that could be handled by that time.

I would also like to say that the committee chairmen have been very cooperative in this. If any of them think it would be possible for them to do it, you will be given ample opportunity to know what articles or what sections will be presented, but right now, I think we can say we have every confidence that we will be able to get some of these substantive matters before the convention at least during the month of December.

I thought you ought to know that, because our committees have been working very diligently on their articles and their part of the constitution, we will not be forced to take the time from January first on debating some of these issues that can be handled before then. We are going to be very pressed for time anyway, when you consider the number of sections of the various articles that will need to come forth from the committees. So I think we ought to be very grateful to our committee chairmen and our committees if they could bring to us as much of these matters as possible before December.

Incidentally, I might say that there is every indication that when that times comes, we will be expected to meet the full 5 days of the week and it would not be at all surprising if we were to have evening sessions as well as afternoon sessions. I thought you would like to hear that before you go away for this weekend. (laughter)

Any other business before the convention? If not, Mr. Batchelor.

MR. BATCHELOR: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The convention is adjourned until Monday night at 8:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, and in pursuance of the order previously made, at 2:25 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 8:00 o'clock p.m., Monday, November 20, 1961.]

TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY

Monday, November 20, 1961, 8:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation this evening will be given by Rabbi Philip Frankel, Shaarey Zedek Congregation, of Lansing.

RABBI FRANKEL: Our God and God of our fathers, with hearts both grateful and reverent, we ask Thy favor in our gathering this evening. At this, the fall season of the year, we recall with genuine delight the spirit of our nation. We recall with genuine delight a national heritage for which we are grateful and thankful.

O heavenly Father, as we thank Thee for the blessings of the past, so make us aware of our responsibilities for tomorrow. Give us, we pray Thee, a portion of Thy wisdom in our deliberations and help us to create a world in which there will be more people who will be thankful and more things for which to be thankful. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. Those present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted?

The machine has now been locked and we will record the votes.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

From the session of this evening, Messrs. Suzore and Seyferth.

We are also in receipt of a report from Sergeant Glenwist of the Lansing state police post, who said that Mr. Bledsoe was involved in an accident on Novi road going west and is at the Redford Community Hospital, condition unknown. The report at 6:15 reported that he was bleeding profusely from the mouth when he was removed from the car.

Prior to receiving this report, Mr. Baginski called that he had come through the expressway and had noted Mr. Bledsoe standing in the center of the pavement having been involved in this accident with a truck. He said he was apparently wanting and almost determined to come on ahead but, because of his bleeding condition, he insisted upon taking him to the hospital; so Mr. Baginski also asked to be excused from tonight's session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Anspach, Baginski, Bledsoe, Donald Doty, Mosier, Norris, Pellow, Perlich, Perras, Sablich, Seyferth, Snyder and Suzore.

Resolution 40, A resolution to amend rule 52 of the standing rules of the constitutional convention.

Following is the body of Resolution 40, as offered:

Resolved, That the sentence in rule 52 which reads "The effect of the previous question shall be to put an end to all debate and bring the convention to a direct vote upon the pending question or questions in their order down to and including the main question: Provided however, That when the previous question shall be ordered, amendments then on the secretary's desk shall be disposed of.", be amended by striking out "or questions in their order down to and including the main question". The amended sentence shall read: "The effect of the previous question shall be to put an end to all debate and bring the convention to a direct vote upon the pending question: Provided however, That when the previous question shall be ordered, amendments then on the secretary's desk shall be disposed of.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Miss Hart and Mr. Downs offer

Resolution 41, A resolution concerning referral to committees and reporting by committees.

Following is the body of Resolution 41, as offered:

Whereas, The successful operation of the convention requires an orderly review of the existing constitution and a report to the voters of the action of the convention on each section of the present constitution; and

Whereas, The voters must constantly be kept aware of the final recommendations of the convention; now therefore be it

Resolved, The following procedure be followed:

1. The secretary shall place in the journal the article and section of each provision of the present constitution that has been referred to a substantive committee, with the name of the committee or committees to which such provision has been referred.

2. The president shall assign the preamble and any section of any article not so listed to a substantive committee or committees and the journal shall show such assignment.

3. Each committee shall report to the convention each section of each article referred to it in the following manner:

a. Continuation of such section and article unchanged.
b. Elimination of such article and section.
c. Revision of such article and section.

The recommended action and reasons therefor shall be submitted in writing and printed in the journal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: That's all the resolutions on file.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders.

The committee on legislative powers will also meet in room H on November 29 at 3:00 p.m. to hear Representative Arnell Engstrom, chairman of the ways and means committee of the house, and Mr. Sanford Brown, state treasurer, on Delegate Proposal 1085. Claude L. Wood, chairman of subcommittee 3. Mr. Hoxie, chairman.

The committee on legislative powers will meet in room H on November 29 at 10:30 in the morning for a hearing on Delegate Proposals 1072, 1131, 1171 and 1215. T. Jefferson Hoxie, chairman.

And there is the following request: If the delegates will leave their status booklets on their desks, their secretary will revise and bring them up to date, either this evening or the first thing tomorrow morning, and again at the end of this week's sessions.

I have the following requests for leaves of absence:

Mrs. Butler requests leave of absence from the session of Wednesday, November 22; Mr. Austin wishes to be excused from the session of Tuesday, tomorrow, to attend a community leadership conference in Detroit; Mr. Everett requests leave from the session of Wednesday, the twenty-second; Mr. Cudlip requests leave of absence from the sessions of November 27 and 28. The Wayne county circuit court has set for trial on these dates a suit in which he is a party; and Dr. Hannah asks to be excused from the sessions of Tuesday and Wednesday, November 21 and 22. He will be conducting a meeting of the federal commission on civil rights in Washington on Tuesday and conferring with the president and the attorney general on civil matters on Wednesday.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests will be granted.

Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I submit the names of those members of the education committee who have been designated as traveling to the upper peninsula next week on December 1 and 2, for the purpose of public hearings in Marquette and Houghton. I request that the delegates so designated be excused from the session of December 1, that their names be considered as read, and ask that they be printed in the convention journal.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be so considered. Hearing none, they are.

Following is the list of delegates excused at the request of Chairman Bentley:

Andrus, Vera (Miss)
Barthwell, Sidney
Bentley, Alvin M., chairman
Brown, Theodore S.
Conklin, Anne M. (Mrs.)
Douglas, Edward L.
Faxon, Jack
Follo, Charles L.
Hart, Adelaide J. (Miss) vice chairman
Heideman, Bert M.
Kuhn, Richard D.
Richards, Leslie W.

Miss Hart has indicated that there is a substantial interest on the part of delegates in the rapid reading course. I think you can all appreciate that . . . (laughter) This will be offered through the continuing education service of the Michigan State University. Plans are being completed to offer this course at a time and location convenient to delegates. Delegates who are interested will please contact Miss Hart.

We are very happy today to welcome back Mr. Brake from a leave of absence due to illness. Hale, we are glad to have you back with us.

This completes the business of the convention for today. What is your pleasure?

Mr. Beaman.

MR. BEAMAN: Mr. President, I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion for adjournment. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The convention is adjourned until 2:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

[Whereupon, at 8:25 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Tuesday, November 21, 1961.]

TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY

Tuesday, November 21, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation today will be given by one of our own delegates, Mr. Stanley Powell. Will you please rise.

MR. POWELL: Let us join in prayer.

Our gracious heavenly Father, we pause at the threshold of this, our daily session, to voice our dependence on Thee for all that we are and have.

We thank Thee especially for our great heritage of freedom and opportunity. Give us the vision and wisdom to preserve these precious liberties for our fellow men and to pass them on, undiminished, to future generations.

We come to Thee today in a spirit of praise, of gratitude, and thanksgiving. We ask that Thy special blessing may be upon us.

Reduce our prejudices and our pettiness. Purify our motives and our aspirations. Clarify our vision and grant us a double portion of discretion, understanding, and wisdom. Help us to be ever true to our highest and most worthy principles. In the name of Thy dear Son, our Savior, we pray. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present, please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? If everyone has voted, the secretary will now lock the machine.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

MR. NISBET: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. President, Delegate William Marshall, who is a regional representative on the civil defense organization and also a member of the state commission on civil defense, was called to Battle Creek this morning for a meeting, and he asked me to request that he be excused and I neglected to write this out as a written request.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Ford. Without objection, he is excused.

SECRETARY CHASE: With reference to Delegate Bledsoe, the president's secretary called the hospital this morning and was informed that he is in fair condition. He is in the intensive care unit of the hospital in order to be watched closely. He is allowed no visitors or gifts at the present time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Balcer.

MR. BALCER: I move that Mr. Bledsoe be granted an indefinite leave of absence.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the motion prevails.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Downs called in and informed the secretary that he would be in Detroit on business this morning. He will be detained until 2:15 or 2:30 p.m. and asks to be excused from the early part of the session.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the request is granted.

Incidently, I might add this to Mr. Chase's announcement about Mr. Bledsoe: The 12:00 o'clock report was that he was still in the same condition in the intensive care unit and listed as fair.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Austin, Bledsoe, Downs, J. A. Hannah, Karn, Marshall, Millard, Pellow, Perlich, Perras and Sablich.

Absent without leave: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on rules and resolutions, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 37, A resolution to amend rule 36 of the standing rules of the constitutional convention; without amendment and with the recommendation that the resolution be adopted.

Richard Van Dusen, chairman.

For Resolution 37 as offered, see above, page 296.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I believe that under the rules as they exist an amendment to the standing rules of the constitutional convention may not be considered until it has been in the possession of the convention for 2 days. Therefore, it is not in order for us to consider it at this time, and I presume that we will get to it Monday evening in the ordinary course.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The resolution will be considered next Monday evening.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only standing committee report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading and reference of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Page introduces Delegate Proposal 1301, A proposal to protect the right of the people pertaining to the sale, rental or leasing of property. Amends article II.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. W. F. Hanna introduces Delegate Proposal 1302, A proposal to provide for an annual state wide election, to be held on the first Tuesday of November of each year. Amends article III, section 1.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Erickson and Mahinske offer

Resolution 42, A resolution requesting public hearings in Detroit on the problems of eminent domain.

Following is the body of Resolution 42, as offered:

Whereas, In view of the intense interest of the residents of the Detroit metropolitan area in constitutional provisions affecting the power of eminent domain; and

Whereas, There is in the Detroit metropolitan area a large number of public officials and attorneys who have great expertise in the area of eminent domain; and

Whereas, There have been numerous requests from these officials and attorneys and the public expressing interest in this subject and a desire to be heard; now therefore be it

Resolved, That hearings be held preferably in the veterans' memorial building in Detroit or in the city-county building in Detroit or in some other place of adequate capacity in order to guarantee the possibility of the maximum participation of interested citizens in the Detroit area and that the public be given sufficient notice; and be it further

Resolved, That the convention authorize the holding of this meeting in Detroit and that the convention appropriate the necessary funds to defray necessary and incidental expenses of such hearing.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on administration.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only resolution on file, Mr. President.

Will you please remember that the dinner tonight at the Jack Tar hotel will be held at 6:30?

Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I move that the convention stand adjourned.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The convention is adjourned until 10:30 tomorrow morning.

[Whereupon, and in pursuance of the order previously made, at 2:20 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 10:30 o'clock a.m., Wednesday, November 22, 1961.]

TWENTY-NINTH DAY

Wednesday, November 22, 1961, 10:30 o'clock a.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation this morning is to be given by one of our own delegates, J. Burton Richards. Will you please rise?

MR. J. B. RICHARDS: O, God, our Father, creator of the universe, giver of every good and perfect gift, we bow humbly before Thee, thankful in our hearts for all of the blessings we have received, for all the goodness of this earth, for the privileges that we have in this country, for the opportunities that we have to serve Thee.

We pray that Thou wilt give us open minds and hearts—open to Thee that we may receive Thy will and do Thy will. Give us wisdom and knowledge, integrity, and courage that we may go about our business here, that what we produce may be acceptable in Thy sight and before all men. Guide us and keep Thy strengthening hand on us as we go to our homes this week and protect us that we may enjoy our loved ones and come back to serve Thee. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted?

The secretary will lock the machine and take the record.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

Mr. Romney has previously filed a request for leave of absence from today's session; and this morning Mr. Kuhn phoned in to announce that his wife had given birth to a 7 pound, 13 ounce girl and he wishes to be excused from today's session. (applause)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Mr. Bledsoe, Mrs. Butler, Messrs. Everett, J. A. Hannah, Haskill, Mrs. Judd, Messrs. Kuhn, Pellow, Perlich, Perras, Romney and Sablich.

Absent without leave: Messrs. T. S. Brown and Ford.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the delegates are excused.

I would like to congratulate the delegates at this convention for the fine attendance the day before a holiday. It is a little bit better than we do in industry. I know that.

I would like to report we have just received word from the nursing supervisor at Sparrow hospital that Mr. Bledsoe's condition is still listed as fair. There is no change indicated. She said that the condition is quite static. If any of you people are interested in medicine, you know what that means.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Judge Dehnke.

MR. DEHNKE: Mr. President and fellow delegates, on behalf of the members of the committee on legislative organization, I rise to a question of personal and committee privilege, which I would like to preface with a bit of convention history.

On October 17, Mr. Hoxie called attention to a report in the Detroit Free Press which inaccurately described a proposal introduced by him.

On November 9, Mr. Kelsey protested inaccuracies in a report in the Detroit Free Press which attributed to him statements which he had not made.

On November 26, the chairman of the committee on judicial branch, Mr. Danhof, found it necessary to correct an article in the same newspaper which repeatedly referred to a delegate proposal as one having been presented by the committee.

What we feel obliged to add is, on November 16 the committee on legislative organization adopted a resolution authorizing public hearings in Lansing on matters within the jurisdiction of the committee and defeated, by a roll call vote of 11 to 4, a proposal that public hearings be also held elsewhere. In the report on which the action was passed, it was stated in part:

> Initially, there were several members who were disposed to agree to holding one such hearing in Detroit provided we could be assured, first, that all members of the committee would accept this as satisfactory to them and, second, that it would not lead to a rash of proposals for other hearings away from Lansing.

It developed that neither of these assurances could be given. First, the minority group presented their minimum demand to include Flint as well as Detroit. Second, many members made it clear that their own areas would insist on hearings there if any were held away from Lansing and that mayors, city councils, and boards of supervisors were ready to present such requests.

The conclusion was, first, the time and effort involved in holding such hearings around the state would not be justified; second, the committee would be in a bad light if it held a hearing in Detroit and refused to respond to calls from other areas; and third, that Lansing, by reason of its central location, is reasonably accessible to much the greater part of the population of the state, giving every interested person an opportunity to be heard at the public hearings there, as well as to communicate his opinions to the committee by letter or petition.

The report of this meeting in the Detroit Free Press of November 17 stated, first, that the action was by a party line vote which the recorded roll call vote refutes. Second, the report was onesided in that it reported at length statements by members of the minority group with no attempt to balance it by statements made on the other side, some of which have been mentioned. Third, it quoted an inflammatory remark made in the discussion by a member of the minority group in such a way as to give the casual reader the impression that it was based on remarks made by members of the majority group.

At yesterday's meeting of the committee, consideration of a motion to reconsider the earlier action was postponed to November 29 following the public hearing at Lansing scheduled for November 28. The Free Press report this morning carries the headline, GOP Again Denies Dems' Bid and erroneously states in substance that the vote was again along party lines. In fairness, this error may be excusable, because it was not a recorded roll call vote. This cannot, however, be said about other portions of the report such as, first, it conveys the idea that the motion to reconsider was rejected, which is not true. What eventually happens to it we do not know at this time, but it was not rejected yesterday.

Again the quotes from one group are grossly disproportionate to those from the other.

In the interest of historic accuracy, I suggest — as Mr. Hoxie said on October 17 — I think we, as delegates should be sure that every newspaper article which is inaccurate is called to the attention of the press.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: A point of information, Mr. President. I didn't understand whether Judge Dehnke was speaking as a matter of personal privilege or the committee's.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Both, I think; yes.

MR. HODGES: Well, I think it is out of order for him to speak for the committee inasmuch as we have had no committee meeting on this. I think it is all right for him to speak as a matter of personal privilege.

MR. DEHNKE: Mr. President, perhaps I should state that I was speaking for the majority group members of the committee.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you.

Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: I would like to respond, if I may, on the same basis, as a member of the minority group. Mr. President, I was not prepared to debate this subject at this time, but if the convention believes this ought to be debated on the floor, I will be glad to oblige; but I don't believe this is the time to do it. I would suggest, however, that I have read the articles in the newspaper mentioned and in my opinion it was accurate.

If there is anything which, as he says, is unfortunate in the statements to the press, it is not because it was reported improperly but because the action taken was improper, and I believe I have asked the committee to reconsider its action. I have asked the committee to change its action, and I believe the correct way to cure this is not to change the statement in the paper but to change the action of the committee.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motion and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. DeVries, on behalf of the committee on administration, offers

Resolution 43, A resolution relative to transfer of the constitutional convention records to the Michigan historical commission.

Following is the body of Resolution 43, as offered:

Whereas, The records being created and received by this convention will be of value to governmental officials and researchers for years to come; and

Whereas, The statutes provide for the Michigan historical commission archives to preserve the records of the state and local governments which are of historical value; now therefore be it

Resolved, That all documentary materials, including reports, testimony, photographs, motion picture film, recordings, correspondence, and published items, which are or have been created or received by any committee, officer, or employee of this convention and which relate to its organization, functions, policies, decisions, or procedures, be sent to the Michigan historical commission archives and be transferred to its custody for preservation upon the adjournment of this convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on administration.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only resolution on file.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration will meet Monday, November 27, at 7:00 p.m. Walter DeVries, chairman.

There will be a public hearing held by the committee on finance and taxation in rooms B, C and D the evening of Wednesday, December 6, beginning at 7:30 p.m. This hearing will be for taxpayers on both state and local levels who wish to be heard on anything that should or should not go into the constitution with reference to taxation. D. Hale Brake, chairman.

The following announcements are from the composite calendar:

Monday, November 27, the committee on rules and resolutions will meet immediately after the session in room I, to consider pending resolutions.

On Tuesday, November 28, the committee on education will meet at 8:30 a.m. in room J, for the appearance and presentation of Philip Buchen, the vice president for business affairs of Grand Valley State College; N. P. Ralston, director, cooperative extension service at Michigan State; Everett Soop, director of extension service of the University of Michigan.

The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections will meet at 8:30 on Tuesday morning in room F, for a review of committee work by Dr. Kelly.

The committee on local government will meet on Tuesday morning at 10:30 in room A. Metropolitan government. Dr. William Gable of the University of Michigan will appear.

The committee on legislative powers will meet Tuesday at 3:00 p.m., subcommittees 1 and 2, in room K. Joint meeting of the subcommittees to discuss several proposals.

Notice of public hearing by the committee on legislative organization, which will hold an open hearing on Tuesday evening, November 28, the time and place of the hearing to be announced. Those wishing to appear, please contact Mrs. Margery Archer, extension 117, if you wish to appear before the committee.

The committee on legislative powers will hold a public hearing in room H on Tuesday, November 28, at 3:00 o'clock or immediately after the session, for the purpose of discussing article XIV, exemptions.

The committee on education will hold an open hearing in the main auditorium of Kellogg center, Michigan State, on Wednesday, November 29, from 4:15 p.m. to 6:15 p.m., and from 7:30 p.m. to 9:00 o'clock p.m.

The committee on legislative powers will hold a public hearing in room H of constitution hall on Wednesday, November 29, at 10:30 a.m., for the purpose of discussing several proposals.

If the delegates will again leave the status books that they have on their desks, their secretary will revise and bring them up to date by Monday evening.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Dehnke.

MR. DEHNKE: With reference to the public hearing of the committee on legislative organization scheduled for next Tuesday evening at 7:30, it will be held in room D and the adjoining rooms downstairs in this building.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. White.

MR. WHITE: The first in a series of releases of information will be in your mailboxes at the conclusion of this session. Because of the short week, this current issue will necessarily be unscheduled. Our staff would appreciate your suggestions as to how this service may be improved for your benefit.

I should like further to add that a new summary of the convention activities is being sent out from our office on Thursday of each week to all weekly newspapers in the state. It might be helpful if you delegates would mention this weekly release to your editors and suggest that they use it, unless you have submitted copies or comment of your own. Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: In addition to the committee meetings already announced, the committee on education will meet in committee room J, at 4:00 p.m. Monday afternoon, November 27, for the purpose of hearing witnesses from the American association of university professors. There are other witnesses tentatively scheduled for this meeting at 4:00 p.m. on Monday afternoon, but they will not be announced, since they have not been confirmed. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the committee on administration will meet on Monday at 7:00 o'clock and will discuss the reinstallation of closed circuit television in constitution hall. Delegates who would like to appear on this matter are invited to testify on Monday evening at 7:00 o'clock.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Chase.

SECRETARY CHASE: I have the following requests for leaves of absence:

Judge Dehnke wishes to be excused from the session of Monday, November 27; Dr. Pollock wishes to be excused from the session of Thursday, November 30, in order to attend sessions in Washington of the advisory council on intergovernmental relations, of which he is vice chairman and Mr. Bonisteel wishes to be excused from the meetings of December 4 through 7, inclusive.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be excused.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the items on the secretary's desk, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: May I have the personal privilege of expressing to the delegates, and to our staff and the news media, congratulations for their very constructive work in this first phase of our constitutional convention. I think the work that has been done by all of our delegates has been exceptional. It has been very constructive and very helpful in building this foundation.

I want to say that a few years ago it was my privilege to visit Plymouth Rock with my family. Historically, I am a rather sentimental fellow and I was standing there looking down at this rock with "1620" carved on it and through my mind came this feeling of gratitude for the pilgrims and for their coming here and giving us this country and for the Mayflower compact which has been so important in our history.

A couple came up, stood beside me, looked over the railing and left with the remark, "Hmpff, we have bigger rocks than that at home." (laughter) It seemed to me that they entirely missed the conception of what that stood for.

At this Thanksgiving period, as we are about to adjourn to go home, I think we all feel a great sense of gratitude for our great government and our great state and the great personal privilege and opportunity that we have.

I say this because I want us all to go home with the feeling of solid satisfaction for a good job done in these early stages of our convention. I hope that you have a period of very pleasant relaxation and come back next week with a feeling that we are now entering the second phase of this convention with a terrific job ahead of us, and I am sure you will be just as dedicated to it as you have been to the first part of this convention. (applause)

The Chair recognizes Mr. Binkowski.

MR. BINKOWSKI: Mr. President, I move that we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. Those in favor, please say aye.

The convention is adjourned until 8:00 o'clock p.m. Monday night.

[Whereupon, and in pursuance of the order previously made, at 11:00 o'clock a.m., the convention adjurned until 8:00 o'clock p.m., Monday, November 27, 1961.]

THIRTIETH DAY

Monday, November 27, 1961, 8:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation this evening will be given by one of our own delegates, Mr. Thomas Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Our heavenly Father, we thank Thee for the opportunity we have to come tonight to this convention. We thank Thee for the many blessings Thou hast bestowed upon us through the days gone by; and we ask, Lord, that Thou wilt be with each of us tonight specifically, and in this convention from now until adjourment that we may do the things that may be pleasing in Thy sight, as well as pleasing in the sight of the people of the state of Michigan. We ask that Thou be with our good president here, and our vice presidents and the many committee chairmen. May we do the thing Thou wouldst have us do, and be the citizens of this state that it would be admirable for us to be. We ask that Thou wilt guide and direct us in everything that is said and done, and we will give Thee praise. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Will you flip your voting lever, please? Have you all voted? The machine is now locked and your attendance will be recorded.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

Mr. McCauley wishes to be excused from tonight's session so that he may attend a city council meeting; Mr. Woolfenden was unavoidably detained because of professional commitments in Detroit; Mr. Murphy was called out of town because of a death in his immediate family, and would like to be excused from Monday's and Tuesday's sessions; Mr. Knirk is in the hospital with 2 lumbar vertebrae misplaced. He is in traction and requests an indefinite leave; Delegate Walker phoned. Due to illness he would like to be excused from the sessions of tonight and tomorrow; Mr. Gust had some mechanical trouble. He will be late or possibly not be here for the evening. He asks to be excused; (laughter) and Mr. Ford requests leave from the session of this evening because of the necessity of addressing a business session of his luncheon club.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted, and Mr. Knirk is granted indefinite leave.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Anspach, Dehnke, Ford, Gust, Knirk, McCauley, Murphy, Norris, Walker and Woolfenden.

Absent without leave: Mr. Suzore.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, Mr. Suzore is excused.

Mr. Bledsoe, we are happy to have you back with us.

MR. BLEDSOE: Thank you very much, Mr. President. I do want to thank my beloved and distinguished colleagues for the very fine and magnificent concern that was manifested through their prayers, their letters, their telegrams, and their thoughts. I assure you that they were very sustaining. I am happy to report that with the prayers and your thoughts and your good will, the doctor said that my spare tire surrounding my torso contributed to no little degree (laughter) when it came in contact with the steering wheel of my car. I wanted to pass that on to the older boys that all is not lost. (laughter)

I also want you to know that the real hero of what might have been a statistical tragedy was my good friend Martin Baginski, who was the first colleague to my side. He came and I was dancing around trying to get flares by my car, to stop the traffic on the expressway, to keep a similar accident from piling up, and poor Mike came there to help me direct traffic and to divert any further trouble. I want to tell you I can see him now dancing around through the dark there having given legs to his country. I said to myself, we'd both make a couple of good country constables directing traffic on Fifth Avenue in New York. (laughter) The state police — God bless them — came, and they were angels of mercy. I want you to know you have every reason to be proud of your state police. I thank you so much. (applause)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Bledsoe.

Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on legislative powers, by Mr. Hoxie, chairman, respectfully reports back to the convention Delegate Proposal 1263, by Marjorie McGowan, A proposal to empower the legislature to create a family court; with the recommendation that the proposal be referred to the committee on judicial branch.

T. Jefferson Hoxie, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, it will be referred to the committee on judicial branch.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, respectfully reports back to the convention Resolution 42, by Messrs. Erickson and Mahinske, A resolution requesting public hearings in Detroit on the problems of eminent domain; without amendment and with the recommendation that the resolution be adopted.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

Following is the resolution:

Whereas, In view of the intense interest of the residents of the Detroit metropolitan area in constitutional provisions affecting the power of eminent domain; and

Whereas, There is in the Detroit metropolitan area a large number of public officials and attorneys who have great expertise in the area of eminent domain; and

Whereas, There have been numerous requests from these officials and attorneys and the public expressing interest in this subject and a desire to be heard; now therefore be it

Resolved, That hearings be held preferably in the veterans' memorial building in Detroit or in the city-county building in Detroit or in some other place of adequate capacity in order to guarantee the possibility of the maximum participation of interested citizens in the Detroit area and that the public be given sufficient notice; and be it further

Resolved, That the convention authorize the holding of this meeting in Detroit and that the convention appropriate the necessary funds to defray necessary and incidental expenses of such hearing.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the report of the committee.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and fellow delegates, Mr. Erickson appeared before the committee on administration requesting this trip to Detroit on behalf of the subcommittee on eminent domain. They will conduct one afternoon hearing in the city. The cost of this trip will not exceed $100.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the report of the committee. Any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The resolution is adopted.

Any other reports of standing committees?

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 43, A resolution relative to transfer of the constitutional convention records to the Michigan historical commission; without amendment and with the recommendation that the resolution be adopted. Walter DeVries, chairman.

Following is the resolution:

Whereas, The records being created and received by this convention will be of value to governmental officials and researchers for years to come; and

Whereas, The statutes provide for the Michigan historical commission archives to preserve the records of the state and local governments which are of historical value; now therefore be it

Resolved, That all documentary materials, including reports, testimony, photographs, motion picture film, recordings, correspondence, and published items, which are or have been created or received by any committee, officer, or employee of this convention and which relate to its organization, functions, policies, decisions, or procedures, be sent to the Michigan historical commission archives and be transferred to its custody for preservation upon the adjournment of this convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the report of the committee.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, fellow delegates, this resolution will transfer, upon the adjournment of the convention, all of our official records to the Michigan historical commission. You are not requested or required to send your own personal correspondence. However, the commission would like to receive it if you have not already promised it to the University of Michigan, Michigan State or some other university for a personal collection.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the resolution. Any further discussion? All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The resolution is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Wanger offers

Resolution 44, A resolution to amend convention rule 33 to provide for the printing of substantive committee reports on committee proposals in the convention journal.

Following is the body of Resolution 44, as offered:

Whereas, The convention rules do not expressly provide for the printing of committee proposals and reports verbatim in the journal; and

Whereas, Such printing would greatly facilitate the work of the convention; now therefore be it

Resolved, That convention rule 33 be amended by changing the final period to a semicolon and adding thereafter the following language: "which proposal, together with the full substantive report and recommendations of the committee thereon, shall be printed verbatim in the journal on the day of its reference.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Wanger offers

Resolution 45, A resolution to provide a timetable for completing the work of the convention by April 1, 1962.

Following is the body of Resolution 45, as offered:

Whereas, The attorney general of Michigan has ruled that the convention must finally adjourn not later than April 1, 1962, in order that its work be submitted to the people at the November, 1962, general election; and

Whereas, It is in the best interest of the people of Michigan that it be submitted at said November, 1962, election; now therefore be it

Resolved, That:

1. All matters shall be finally cleared from the committee of the whole not later than Friday, March 16, 1962.

2. No committee proposals shall be received unless they are in the hands of the secretary on or before Wednesday, January 31, 1962.

3. No public hearings shall be held after Wednesday, January 17, 1962, without leave of the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the resolutions on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: Under the order of unfinished business, the president lays before the convention Resolution 37, A resolution to amend rule 36 of the standing rule of the constitutional convention; reported from the committee on rules and resolutions without amendment and with the recommendation that the resolution be adopted.

For Resolution 37 as offered, see above, page 296.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the resolution. Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, fellow delegates, the substantive committees will shortly begin to report their committee proposals for revision of the constitution to the floor. It has seemed desirable to give every delegate an opportunity and ample opportunity to review these committee proposals and the supporting reports before debate on these committee proposals takes place in the full convention.

For that reason, it seemed desirable to provide in the rules for an automatic time lag between the point at which the committee proposal was received by the convention and referred to the committee of the whole and the time of its consideration by the committee of the whole. This proposed amendment of the rules does just that. It provides that no committee proposal shall be considered by the committee of the whole until the third day following the day of its reference to the committee of the whole.

The committee on rules and resolutions unanimously recommends the adoption of the rule change. I move it at this time, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the resolution. Is there further discussion?

Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, I would like to speak in favor of this. I believe it will assure the delegates a more ample opportunity to review the reports before we finally act upon them.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Doty.

MR. DEAN DOTY: Mr. President, is this 3 calendar days or 3 convention days?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen?

MR. VAN DUSEN: Three calendar days, Mr. Doty.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any further discussion? The question is on the resolution. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no. The resolution is adopted.

Any other unfinished business?

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: I have the following announcements of committee meetings and public hearings:

The secretary wishes to make one other announcement of a meeting of the committee chairmen in room E tomorrow at 1:00 o'clock. The meeting is called by President Nisbet.

For the information of the delegates, all of Journals 1 through 6 have been mailed to the entire mailing list, including your mailing lists that have been submitted up to the present time.

Journals 7 through 17 we expect to receive by Wednesday and have them mailed on Wednesday. The rest of them will follow in short order.

With reference to the status report that we have available, which is intended for your aid and assistance, and which contains a complete list of all of the delegate proposals introduced to date, a short index of the proposals, the committees to which they have been referred and some other pertinent information in regard to resolutions, if you will please leave them on your desk at the end of the week, this will permit your secretary to put in the new leaves that will be prepared over the weekend to bring your status up to date, together with the up to date index which will, we hope, be of material assistance to you in your daily work.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, the subcommittee on civil service of the committee on executive branch will meet in committee room C immediately after the session.

SECRETARY CHASE: I have the following requests for leaves of absence: Judge Pugsley requests a leave of absence from the session of tomorrow, Tuesday; Dr. Hannah is to preside over a meeting of the governing board, Michigan council of state college presidents, tomorrow at Wayne State University in Detroit. It means that he may be late or may miss entirely the convention session. He says:

> I hope, however, to return in time to participate in the afternoon meeting of the committee on legislative organization, and will certainly be here for the public hearing scheduled for Tuesday evening.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be excused. Is there anything else?

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the items on the secretary's desk, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Bonisteel.

MR. BONISTEEL: Mr. President, some of my friends on this side of the aisle are worried because I am not using up any of my 17,000 words, so I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

We are adjourned until 2:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

[Whereupon, at 8:30 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Tuesday, November 28, 1961.]

THIRTY-FIRST DAY

Tuesday, November 28, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will come to order.

Our invocation today will be given by the Reverend Richard Beckett, of the First Methodist Church of Lansing.

REVEREND BECKETT: O God, our heavenly Father, we would acknowledge Thy sovereignty over all things, for there is nothing in this world that is not Thine or in Thy keeping. And so as this group deliberates in the task which lies before them of serving Thy people, their people, the people of this great state, wilt Thou give them wisdom and understanding, courage and consideration for all of their needs that the things which they do may be wise in Thy sight and good for this state and good for the peace of Thy world. We ask these things in Jesus' name. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. Those present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? If so, we will record the vote.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President, I wonder if the secretary would read the numbers of the proposals on our public hearing tomorrow morning. They are important proposals, and many of the delegates have indicated an interest. I wish that they could be advised as to the numbers of these proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: I am glad to, Mr. Hoxie. The committee on legislative powers at their public hearing tomorrow, will discuss Delegate Proposals 1072, 1131, 1171 and 1215.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: The committee on executive branch will meet with former Governor Harry Kelly at 8:00 o'clock on Wednesday evening, tomorrow evening, in committee room C.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Requests for leave.

SECRETARY CHASE: The following requests for a leave of absence from convention sessions:

Mr. Page requests that he be excused from the sessions of Thursday, November 30 and Friday, December 1.

Mr. McAllister wishes to be excused from the sessions of December 4 to 7 because he is required to be in court in Sandusky during that period.

Mrs. Judd requests to be excused from the sessions of Wednesday and Thursday, November 29 and 30, to attend a national conference on government of the national municipal league on the subject of the model state constitution and government in metropolitan areas; and Mr. Rood requests that he be excused from the sessions of Wednesday and Thursday, the twenty-ninth and the thirtieth, and all committee hearings due to the death of 2 very close friends as a result of a drowning accident at Higgins lake on November 25. He has been requested to act as pallbearer in both cases, and wishes to render whatever help he may to the families.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be excused.

On your desk this afternoon is a copy of Michigan History, placed there through the courtesy of the historical society of Michigan. You will notice from the Christmas card attached to the magazine that the historical society of Michigan is one of the oldest organizations of the state. Since its organization, it has had a distinguished leadership.

John Biddle of Detroit, president of the constitutional convention of 1835, was one of the earliest presidents of the society; Clarence M. Burton, president of the historical society of Michigan from 1901 to 1914, was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of 1908; Mr. Charles Follo, a delegate to this convention, was president of the society in 1952-1953; and another delegate to this constitutional convention, Mr. Roscoe O. Bonisteel, is now the president of the historical society of Michigan. It is entirely possible that in the next issue of the magazine there may be an article on this constitutional convention.

Just so you will be informed as early as possible, there will be a Friday morning session this week, and I think the delegates should count on Friday morning sessions from this time on.

The Chair recognizes Mr. Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. President, without giving a detailed reason for my arising at this time, I move we adjourn. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. All in favor say aye. Those opposed, no.

We are adjourned until tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, at 2:20 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Wednesday, November 29, 1961.]

THIRTY-SECOND DAY

Wednesday, November 29, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The convention will come to order.

The invocation today will be delivered by the Reverend William H. Range, Pastor of Bethel Lutheran Church, St. Clair Shores.

REVEREND RANGE: Lord God, heavenly Father, we would pray of Thee a full measure of a divine and holy spirit that we may ever be mindful of Thee as our God, our Creator, our Sustainer, the One to whom we and all men are now and ultimately responsible. We would pray Thee further, make us mindful of ourselves as Thy people, knowing that we are here by Thy grace, sustained by Thy strength and ever in need of Thy guidance. Help us to know that which lies before us, that we may plan and execute all things well, to the glory and honor of Thy name, to the benefit of these, our fellow men in the state of Michigan and to all with whom we come in contact. We would pray Thee, forgive us where we err, help us where we are weak, give us light where we are blind to the end that all things may be done well. We ask it in the name of Christ, our Lord. Amen.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present will vote aye. Have you all voted? If so, the secretary will record the vote.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Announcements and notices.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on judicial branch will meet tonight at 8:00 o'clock in conjunction with the committee on executive branch to hear the Honorable Harry F. Kelly, justice of the Michigan supreme court. The meeting will be held in rooms B, C and D. Mr. Danhof, chairman.

The committee on legislative powers will continue the public hearing on Delegate Proposals 1072, 1131, 1171 and 1215 in room H immediately after the session adjourns.

The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections will meet in room D Thursday at 10:30 a.m. James K. Pollock, chairman.

The committee on finance and taxation will meet in room E today immediately after the session. D. Hale Brake, chairman.

I think all of the delegates have the composite calendar of committee meetings. If you wish them read, I will be glad to do so.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, I don't wish to have them read, but I do wish to correct an error under the notice of public hearings. The public hearings that are scheduled for the committee on local government will be for the entire committee and not the subcommittee. These will be committee hearings of the entire committee.

SECRETARY CHASE: Thank you. The correction will be made in the list.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Any further announcements?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, I have the following announcement: Mr. Blaque Knirk called and talked to Mr. Apol. He will be out of traction 2 hours a day but will be in traction for a week or 10 days more. He is in the Coldwater hospital and has his own private telephone if the delegates wish to contact him.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, it was suggested that some announcement should be made regarding those witnesses who are scheduled to appear at the public hearings this afternoon and evening at Kellogg center before the committee on education.

For the information of the delegates, we have the following organizations whose representatives have been scheduled to make presentations: The superintendent of schools from the archdiocese of Detroit, the superintendent of Inkster public schools, state board for libraries, Michigan library association, league of women voters, superintendent of schools from Redford union schools, district 1, board of education, Michigan district, Wisconsin evangelical lutheran synod, national union of christian schools, AFL-CIO, Detroit federation of teachers, and the Godwin Heights public schools.

Any delegates who wish to come out either this afternoon or this evening to Kellogg center would be most welcome.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Any further announcements?

SECRETARY CHASE: The finance clerk announces that the mileage checks and salary checks may be picked up tomorrow morning after 8:00 o'clock in the office of the finance clerk in the secretary's office.

The following delegates request to be excused from sessions: Mr. Downs wishes to be excused from tomorrow's session for the purpose of attendance at a funeral. Messrs. Millard, Tweedie, Perras and Sablich wish to be excused from the session of Friday.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Is there objection to the requests of the several delegates? If not, the requests will be granted. They are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the items on the secretary's desk, Mr. President.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: Any further announcements? If not, the Chair recognizes the delegate from Wayne county, Mr. Bledsoe, for the purpose of a motion.

MR. BLEDSOE: Mr. President, I rise for the purpose at this time of moving that the convention be adjourned.

VICE PRESIDENT HUTCHINSON: The gentleman moves that the convention do now adjourn. All those in favor say aye. Opposed?

The convention stands adjourned until tomorrow at 2:00 p.m.

[Whereupon, at 2:20 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Thursday, November 30, 1961.]

THIRTY-THIRD DAY

Thursday, November 30, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation today will be given by the Reverend John Bullock of the Potter Park Methodist Church of Lansing. Will you please rise.

REVEREND BULLOCK: Let us pray a prayer today, the lines of which are familiar to many of us.

Almighty God, who in the former time didst lead our fathers forth into a wealthy place; give Thy grace, we humbly beseech Thee, to us, their children, that we may always prove ourselves a people mindful of Thy favor, and glad to do Thy will.

Bless our land with honorable industry, sound learning, and pure religion. Defend our liberties, preserve our unity. Save us from violence, discord and confusion, from pride and arrogance, and from every evil way. Fashion into one happy people the multitudes brought hither out of many kindreds and tongues. Endue with the spirit of wisdom those whom we entrust in Thy name with the authority of governance, to the end that there be peace at home, and that we keep a place among the nations of the earth. In the time of prosperity fill our hearts with thankfulness; and in the day of trouble suffer not our trust in Thee to fail.

Grant unto these honorable delegates gathered for this historic step in the life of our great state, the wisdom to seek Thy guidance, uniting the best government of the past with fearless and prophetic insight to meet the needs of our changing social order. May all that is done here be in harmony with the great prayer Thou hast put upon our lips. "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth."

In the name of our Lord and Master. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. Those present, please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? The voting machine is now locked. The vote will be recorded.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following request for leave:

Mr. Romney has previously filed an excuse requesting leave from the session of today and tomorrow, due to other convention business.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the request is granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Mrs. Judd, Messrs. Downs, Knirk, Page, Pollock, Romney and Rood.

Absent without leave: Messrs. Allen and Krolikowski.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the delegates are excused.

Reports of standing committees.

Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, fellow delegates, with the leave of the convention, I would like to make a report on behalf of the committee on administration with regard to the filing of daily journals and committee reports.

1. At the end of the session today, all delegates are requested to put on top of their desks all copies of the daily journal which they presently have. The pages will put them in notebooks, fill in the missing copies, and bring them up to date. We have purchased 2 notebooks for every delegate.

2. There will be a second notebook placed on the delegates' desks this evening, which is to be left empty. This notebook, and the other, is to be left on the desk at the end of every session, or in the second drawer of your desk, and in it we will have the pages file the committee proposals and reports.

3. The pages will file the daily journals, committee proposals and committee reports in these notebooks each morning. So we would like to urge you to make sure that the 2 notebooks are on your desk every evening when you leave the session, or in the second drawer of your desks.

Mr. President, I move the adoption of this report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the report. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The report is concurred in.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, that concludes the report of the committee on administration.

Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on that calendar, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Daisy Elliott and Mr. Young offer

Resolution 47, A resolution requesting authority and funds for the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections to hold hearings in the city of Detroit.

Following is the body of Resolution 47, as offered:

Whereas, In view of the intense interest of residents of the Detroit metropolitan area in constitutional provisions affecting the rights of minorities; and

Whereas, In consideration of the numerous requests from constituents expressing interest in this subject and a desire to be heard; now therefore be it

Resolved, That such hearings be held preferably in Cobo hall, or some other suitable place of adequate capacity in order to guarantee the possibility of the maximum participation of interested citizens in the Detroit area and that the public be given sufficient notice; and be it further

Resolved, That the convention appropriate the necessary funds to defray the costs of travel for the members of the committee and staff to and from Detroit and other expenses necessary and incidental to the holding of such hearings.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on administration.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Buback, Downs, Miss Hart, Messrs. Hodges, Kelsey and Liberato offer

Resolution 48, A resolution to commend the Michigan consolidated gas company for its showing of the Michigan Story visual education movie and to encourage it to make this movie available to the citizens of the state.

Following is the body of Resolution 48, as offered:

Whereas, The Michigan Story visual education movie has been shown the delegates of the constitutional convention; and

Whereas, This historical document is of value to the citizens of Michigan; and

Whereas, This was produced by the Michigan consolidated gas company; now therefore be it

Resolved, That this company be commended for this public service activity and be encouraged in its efforts to make this available to the citizens of our state for their information.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the resolutions on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General ordears.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are 2 items on general orders but they are not in order for consideration until Monday.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The following committee announcements:

The committee on judicial branch will meet this afternoon at 3:00 o'clock in room B.

The committee on local government will meet in room A at 3:00 o'clock.

The committee on executive branch will meet in room C at 3:00 o'clock.

The committee on education will be holding a public hearing in Marquette on Friday, December 1 and in Houghton on Saturday, December 2.

The committee on judicial branch will hold a public hearing in the city-county building in Detroit on Tuesday, December 5 at 9:30 a.m.

The committee on finance and taxation will hold a public hearing for taxpayers on both state and local levels on Wednesday, December 6, at 7:30 in rooms B, C and D.

PRESIDENT NISBET: I would like to announce that Miss Hart has informed me that 30 have been enrolled in the speed reading course. Classes will be held on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6:00 to 7:30. Consequently, would the chairmen of the committees make every effort to see that there is no conflict on those 2 days, Monday and Wednesday, from 6:00 to 7:30?

Mr. Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. President, I hope I am not out of line in making this request—and I don't really believe I am. But I would like the delegates of this convention to recognize that Mrs. Lila Masson of Redford township was, within the past few days, honored nationally by her selection as Mrs. America.

The fact that Mrs. Masson happens to be a constituent of mine and Mrs. Conklin is not of consequence here. I am sure that if a Michigan man had been chosen as the first United States astronaut to explore outer space, it would be noted in this convention.

By the same token, in the past 2 years Michigan has produced a Miss America and a Mrs. America. I believe it is noteworthy that the state that served as the arsenal of democracy in 2 world wars, the state that put the world on wheels, the state that is noted for agriculture and outstanding tourist attractions, has now come to the fore as a state recognized for its beautiful and talented women. (laughter)

Mr. President, it should not be difficult, therefore, to get applause from the delegates present in recognition of the lovely women of Michigan. (applause)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you, Mr. Yeager.

I hope your district produces many more beautiful women. (laughter)

SECRETARY CHASE: We have the following requests for leaves of absence:

Mr. Austin requests leave of absence from the session of tomorrow to attend a conference in Washington; Mr. Baginski and Mr. Stopczynski request leave from tomorrow's session; Mrs. Butler requests leave from the session of tomorrow in order that she may attend the public hearings in the upper peninsula; Mr. Danhof asks to be excused from Friday's session as he made a previous commitment to meet with the Muskegon county township officers' association; Mr. Dell wishes to be excused from tomorrow's session; Miss Donnelly asks to be excused from tomorrow's session because of the necessity to appear in court; Mr. Durst requests excuse from the session of tomorrow; Mr. Finch wishes to be excused from tomorrow's session due to a prior commitment; Mr. Habermehl requests to be excused from the session of tomorrow to appear in court; Mrs. Koeze asks to be excused from Friday's session. She has a speaking engagement in Muskegon; Messrs. Kelsey and Liberato request leave from Friday's session; Mr. Lesinski requests leave of absence from tomorrow's session; Mr. Leibrand asks to be excused because of a matter that was set a month ago; Mr. Radka requests permission to be excused from tomorrow's session; Mr. Seyferth requests permission to be excused from tomorrow's session; Mr. Tubbs requests permission to be excused from tomorrow's session due to a previous commitment; and Mr. Ink White requests to be excused from tomorrow's session; Mr. Bonisteel requests leave from the session of tomorrow and Friday, December 8, due to a prior engagement; Mr. Upton wishes to be excused from the sessions of tomorrow and Monday, December 1 and 4, because he has speaking engagements relative to the constitutional convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection they will be excused.

I hope all the rest of you will be present. (laughter)

Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. President, I demand equal time on behalf of my wife. If we're speaking about Mrs. America, I don't see why my wife should not get equal time.

Secondly, I request leave to attend tomorrow's session. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, leave will be granted. (laughter)

SECRETARY CHASE: I have the following request:

Mr. Danhof asks that the committee on judicial branch be excused from the sessions of Monday and Tuesday, December 4 and 5, as they will be in Detroit conducting hearings. The members of the committee are: Messrs. Danhof, Leibrand, Ford, Barthwell, Bledsoe, Cudlip, Miss Donnelly, Messrs. Everett, Garvin, Higgs, Iverson, Krolikowski, Lawrence, McAllister, Miss McGowan, Messrs. Mosier, Ostrow, Prettie, Pugsley, Tubbs and Woolfenden.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be excused.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the items on the secretary's desk, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The Chair recognizes Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment.

Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: What I would like to do is move that we adjourn until Monday. It doesn't seem that anybody else wants to work and I'm sure that those of us who didn't ask for leave would just as soon be away because we know there is nothing to do tomorrow. So why don't we just adjourn until Monday?

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Madar's motion. Is there any discussion?

Mr. Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. President, I thought one of the reasons for coming in tomorrow was that tomorrow was the last day for proposals and there was a great deal of discussion here at one time on late blooming ideas, and I think they should have a chance to get in tomorrow and be read.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Madar. All in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion does not prevail.

The question is on the motion for adjournment. All in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

We are adjourned until 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning.

[Whereupon, at 2:30 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until Friday, December 1, 1961 at 10:00 o'clock a.m.]

THIRTY-FOURTH DAY

Friday, December 1, 1961, 10:00 o'clock a.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation this morning will be given by Father Slowey of the Catholic Social Services, of Lansing. Father Slowey. Please rise.

FATHER SLOWEY: Almighty God, help us to recognize that the purpose of government is to protect the rights which Thou has given to the human person and also for the good of man. Assist our constitutional delegates to be dedicated to the highest moral principles and to the welfare of our state. May we ever be alert to the fact that public office is a public trust. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. Those present, will please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone present voted? If so, the machine is now locked and the vote will be recorded.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Shackleton.

MR. SHACKLETON: I had a phone call from Mr. Leppien last evening. He said he would not be able to come back today. He was performing duties in connection with his resignation as county clerk. He asked to be excused.

SECRETARY CHASE: Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

Messrs. G. E. Brown, Cudlip, Leppien, Marshall, Pollock, Rush and Norris, who also asks to be excused from the sessions of Monday, December 4, and Monday, December 11.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Miss Andrus, Messrs. Austin, Baginski, Barthwell, Bentley, Bonisteel, G. E. Brown, T. S. Brown, Mrs. Butler, Mrs. Conklin, Messrs. Cudlip, Danhof, Dell, Miss Donnelly, Messrs. Douglas, Durst, Faxon, Finch, Follo, Habermehl, Miss Hart, Messrs. Heideman, Kelsey, Knirk, Mrs. Koeze, Messrs. Kuhn, Leibrand, Leppien, Lesinski, Liberato, Marshall, Millard, Norris, Page, Perras, Pollock, Radka, L. W. Richards, Romney, Rush, Sablich, Seyferth, Stopczynski, Tubbs, Upton and White.

Absent without leave: Messrs. Allen, King, Nord, Rood and Mrs. Judd.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the delegates are excused.

I want to express my appreciation to you people who are here for being here today.

[During the proceedings Mr. Nord entered the chamber and took his seat.]

Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, recommends to the convention for consideration the following policy statement:

> Tapes recorded in committee are the property of the convention and are to be safeguarded as such. Their custody is with the chairmen of the respective committees to be kept secure in the committee room. Except by specific authority in each case, tapes are not to be removed from the committee rooms, nor are they to be duplicated, edited, abstracted or erased. Tapes shall not be duplicated without the consent of the committee chairman and vice chairman and the committee chairman shall at the earliest convenience identify and transfer the tapes to the library of the convention.
> Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, fellow delegates, this is an attempt to clarify the policy regarding the use and preservation of the tapes of this convention and also their unauthorized duplication.

I move the recommendation be concurred in.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation of the committee on administration.

Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Could I ask that this be carried over until Monday, when we have a fuller delegation here in the event they do wish any additional discussion? I ask the chairman if there is any objection to that.

MR. DeVRIES: I have no objection.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: I believe this covers my point, thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Lundgren.

MR. LUNDGREN: Mr. President, I would ask if any part of the tapes can be made available to delegates.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Delegate Lundgren, only if authorized by the committee chairman and vice chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: Mr. President, I move the previous question.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, consideration of the recommendation will be postponed until the Monday session. I hear none.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, recommends to the convention the following policy regarding the distribution of daily journals, proposals and other documents from the post office and document room:

> Persons other than delegates and staff members may receive no more than 2 copies of any proposal, journal or other material from the post office and document room.
> Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and fellow delegates, this is an attempt to cut down the distribution of the number of proposals and journals. Some people have been coming into the document room and asking for 15 copies of up to 25 different proposals. It is our feeling that in order to save paper and run a more economical operation, we could limit it to 2 for people other than delegates or staff members.

I move the recommendation be concurred in.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: Mr. President, I would like to ask that this be set over until the session of Monday so that it might be discussed by the full body.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion that consideration of the recommendation be postponed until Monday.

Mr. Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: I had moved the previous question on the other report, thinking it was merely a matter of taking care of this properly. We could just as well vote on it today, before some of these tapes disappear entirely.

I rise to a point of order.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Stevens, I am informed that the motion to postpone was made ahead of your moving the previous question. That is why it was acted on in that manner at that time. What is your wish in this connection?

MR. STEVENS: It seems to me the sooner we act on this thing, the better. It is just a matter of taking care of our property.

PRESIDENT NISBET: We are now discussing the present recommendation of the committee on the 2 copies to be handed out in the mailing room. Mr. Walker has moved that this be postponed until Monday night. That is the matter we are voting on now.

Mr. Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: Mr. President, since members of the judicial committee will not be here Monday or Tuesday, and since I won't be here, I would like to make an inquiry of Mr. DeVries. Does that mean that the delegates do not have the right to go into the committee room and listen to the tapes on any matter?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, are we discussing the report that was laid over?

PRESIDENT NISBET: I was going to say, Mr. Lawrence, we have at this point been discussing the matter of the 2 copies of the daily journals and proposals. Could we dispose of that? Then you ask Mr. DeVries the question.

MR. DeVRIES: I can answer that question now if you would like me to.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Go ahead and do it if you would like to.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. Lawrence, the delegates are free to listen to the tapes at any time. This is an effort to preserve them in order that we have them as permanent records of the convention and to make someone responsible for them so that people will not walk into committee rooms and walk off with their tapes.

MR. LAWRENCE: I assume also that the delegates would have a right to make a copy of any portion of the tapes?

MR. DeVRIES: Yes, sir, with the permission of the chairman and vice chairman of the committee, according to this policy statement.

MR. LAWRENCE: Why? I don't understand why. Any delegate has a right to make a copy of anything that is the property of the convention.

MR. DeVRIES: This is a matter of control, Mr. Lawrence, so that the tapes are not taken out of the room and we don't know where they go.

MR. LAWRENCE: Used right in the committee room in the presence, if necessary, of the secretary of the committee. But there is no attempt to restrict listening to them, I take it?

MR. DeVRIES: No, sir.

MR. LAWRENCE: You may have my vote on Monday for that. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: Mr. President, I am somewhat confused about these points of order. May I move to reconsider the earlier motion to postpone?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Stevens, would you mind if we dispose of this one first and then make a motion on the other? The question now is on Mr. Walker's motion that the matter be put over until Monday night. Any further discussion? All in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion to postpone does not prevail.

The question is on concurring in the report of the committee on administration.

May we have the report read so we are clear as to what we are discussing right now?

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, recommends to the convention the following policy regarding the distribution of daily journals, proposals and other documents from the post office and document room:

> Persons other than delegates and staff members may receive no more than 2 copies of any proposal, journal or other material from the post office and document room.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in that recommendation

Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: Mr. President, I would like to speak against the recommendation, or possibly in the future offer an amendment, in that it would restrict the ability of any delegate to carry home information concerning the proceedings of the convention to his constituents.

There are many times—yesterday, for example—when I took several copies of a couple of different proposals and distributed them at meetings that I attended last evening. Had I not been able to do that, my constituents would not have been well informed on the proceedings here.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Walker, may I ask the secretary to read the recommendation again because I think your point is covered there.

SECRETARY CHASE: The recommendation of the committee is this: "Persons other than delegates and staff members may receive no more than 2 copies of any proposal—"

MR. WALKER: I'm sorry.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President and fellow members, I am beginning to wonder perhaps on these matters that come up before us from the committee on administration if we shouldn't have ample time or a reasonable period of time to duly consider them before we take action on them.

In my legislative experience, a member who desired the laying over of a matter of this nature for the purpose of due consideration always was extended that courtesy. I don't think it is so imperative at this time that we have to act, and if we do act on this—I'll make that in the nature of a motion, Mr. President—that it be laid over until Monday evening, and if that is not the desire of the group, I request a record roll call.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Hoxie to postpone until Monday.

Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Mr. President, I think we just voted on that and it lost.

I, for one, am a member of a 21 man committee. Most of the members are here this morning. We are ready to vote. Apparently Mr. Walker has changed his mind, regardless of what Mr. Hoxie says about due deliberation. I think the motion is out of order. We just finished voting on it. Let's get on with the business and vote.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, I would like to concur with the principle of Delegate Hoxie's statement. I am not so concerned about this as I am in future matters, and I would be glad to join with Delegate Hoxie in proposing such a procedure.

It just happened when this was first read, I did not hear the part "other than delegates" and was confused, just as the delegate who raised the question. As soon as that was explained, I saw no objection to the recommendation from the committee.

I do feel that if we could, for the future, work out something where perhaps a report is reproduced or in the journal 24 hours ahead so people would have a chance to read it, that it would prevent much of the confusion we get on the floor, and would save the time of the delegates for the rest of the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Delegate Hoxie and Delegate Downs, I thought this was one of those simple noncontroversial type reports. (laughter) All we are trying to do is limit the distribution of proposals and journals to people other than delegates and staff members to 2 copies. Ordinarily we prepare our reports and multilith them and put them on your desk. This is, maybe, a mistake in judgment. This again is one of those recommendations that turns out to be quite controversial.

If I can restate it again: We are trying to cut down on the amount of paper that we are using in this convention. We are trying to cut down on promiscuous distribution of proposals. There are people who come into the document room and ask for 15 copies of 20 or 30 proposals, so we are having to run into a second printing of a lot of proposals. We wanted to cut down the distribution.

The thinking was this: that if an outside interest group or an agency wanted to reproduce the proposals, they could do it on their own, without the convention paying the cost. That is why this recommendation was adopted by the committee on administration.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Prettie.

MR. PRETTIE: May I ask Delegate DeVries what is to prevent a person under this recommendation, as worded, from walking into the document room every 5 minutes and getting 2 copies?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Delegate Prettie, to be candid, nothing.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: I would like a point of information. Does Mr. Hoxie's motion stand?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Yes.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Then I move the previous question.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Hoxie that the matter be postponed until Monday night. All in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion to postpone does not prevail.

The question is on the committee recommendation. Any other discussion?

Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: Point of information, Mr. President. I agree with Mr. Hoxie as a matter of principle.

If this recommendation were defeated at the present time and reinstated on Monday, would this serve the same purpose?

PRESIDENT NISBET: You can move to reconsider on Monday, Mr. Chase informs me.

MR. WALKER: Mr. President, I would like to ask for a record roll call vote at this time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the committee recommendation. All in favor, vote aye. Those opposed, vote nays.

I am informed I made a mistake. Will the secretary please read the report again so that everyone is clear on it.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, recommends to the convention the following policy regarding the distribution of daily journals, proposals and other documents from the post office and document room:

> Persons other than delegates and staff members may receive no more than 2 copies of any proposal, journal or other material from the post office and document room.

PRESIDENT NISBET: A roll call has been demanded.

Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. President, is this open for discussion?

PRESIDENT NISBET: No. The question has been asked for.

MR. HIGGS: The question has been moved?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Yes. All in favor of a roll call vote, please rise.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, there is a sufficient number.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Those in favor of the committee recommendation, please vote aye. Those opposed, vote nay.

Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President, I have been informed over in this quarter that there is some confusion relating to this vote. It is my understanding that if you are in favor of acting on this report at this time, you will vote green. If you are in favor of the motion to postpone to Monday evening consideration of this matter, you will vote the other way. Am I wrong?

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the recommendation of the committee on administration. Those in favor of the recommendation of the committee on administration will vote aye. Those opposed will vote nay.

SECRETARY CHASE: Have you all voted?

PRESIDENT NISBET: A roll call has been demanded.

The question is on concurring in the report from the committee on administration, which has been read. Have you all voted?

Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: What happened, Mr. President, to the motion to postpone, the record roll call demand?

PRESIDENT NISBET: The record roll call was made for the committee report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Have you all voted? The machine is now locked and the vote will be recorded.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—66

Anspach	Gadola	Powell
Balcer	Goebel	Prettie
Batchelor	Gover	Pugsley
Beaman	Greene	Rajkovich
Binkowski	Hanna, W. F.	Richards, J. B.

Downs	Hoxie	Snyder
Elliott, Mrs. Daisy	Lundgren	Staiger
Garvin	Madar	Walker
Hatcher, Mrs.	McCauley	Wood
Hodges	Murphy	Young
Hood

On concurring in the report from the committee on administration, the yeas are 66, the nays are 19.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The recommendation is concurred in.

I think I ought to say that those people who are not here today will be sorry they missed this pleasant affair. (laughter)

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Mr. President, I would like to make a parliamentary inquiry. Am I correct that on the previous report of the committee on administration regarding the tapes, the proper way to bring it before us on the merits is an appeal from the reference made by the Chair? Or can I move to reconsider that matter?

PRESIDENT NISBET: You may move to reconsider.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: I so move, that we reconsider at this time the first report this morning of the committee on administration with reference to the tapes.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: I think as a matter of legislative courtesy, Mr. Hoxie's point was well taken before. I think there was confusion when he requested the recorded roll call vote. Therefore, in considering Mr. Woolfenden's motion to reconsider, I request a recorded roll call vote, and request that it be voted down as a matter of legislative courtesy.

PRESIDENT NISBET: I might say, Mr. Hodges, in response to Mr. Hoxie's request, it is my understanding — at least, he indicated — that he did not care to pursue that matter. That was why it was left that way.

Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: May I speak on this motion to reconsider, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Yes.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: I would like to state that I am heartily in favor of Mr. Hoxie's thesis and Mr. Downs' thesis that these matters should receive due deliberation. I think the matter we have just voted on was, in essence, a noncontroversial matter and I feel that the matter we now have before us on the tapes is a matter of some urgency because I think it would be a tragedy if any of these tapes disappeared. As I understand it, this is for the preservation of them. They are accessible to all delegates.

I am heartily in favor of it and I, as one member of the 21 member judicial committee, which will not be here Monday night, would like an opportunity to vote on this matter.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on reconsidering the vote. The yeas and nays have been demanded.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, a point of order. The former speaker spoke on the motion to reconsider. I think if he was allowed to speak on the motion to reconsider, I would like equal time to speak on the motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: You may proceed.

MR. DOWNS: The problem here is that I for one am not sure just what is before us. I do not want to go into the merits because I am not sure what the merits are. I have heard from some of the delegates on the committee that there was difficulty in getting copies of the tape of somebody that spoke before the committee on legislative organization.

If this recommendation deals with that, I want to speak on the merits. If it is simply a matter of preserving tapes, I am for preserving tapes and letting them get to the library. But I do not want, under the guise of preserving a tape, to get into the issue of whether or not delegates who have requested copies of that are to be denied that request after it was made.

This is why I asked that it be carried over until Monday, so I could have had an opportunity to read the recommendation, discuss it with the chairman of the committee, and see what the intent is.

PRESIDENT NISBET: I might say the question is on the motion of Mr. Woolfenden to reconsider the action of the convention.

Mr. Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: Mr. President, I think in the absence of Dr. Pollock, I speak on behalf of the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections. We are not concerned with delegates copying the tape; we are concerned with the preservation of the tape — knowing where it is if it should be out of the room — and we think that the action is simply a matter of taking care of important property. I should like to see the matter taken care of today, and vote yes on that matter.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Richards.

MR. J. B. RICHARDS: Mr. President, I would like to ask Mr. DeVries this question: is it possible for the committee on public information to duplicate tapes for delegates that require them?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Delegate Richards, would I be in order, Mr. President, to speak on the recommendation of the committee in order to answer some of the questions?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, you may. Hearing none, you may proceed.

MR. DeVRIES: To summarize again what the statement is intended to do: it is to provide for the custody and preservation of the tapes. Furthermore, it provides that unless there is authority granted by the chairman and the vice chairman, these tapes are not to be removed from the committee rooms, nor are they to be duplicated, edited, abstracted or erased without the permission of the committee chairman and the vice chairman. They cannot be duplicated without the consent of the committee chairman and vice chairman. When committees have finished with the tapes, the committee on administration would like to have them transferred to the library so they become a permanent record of the constitutional convention.

I have no objection, Mr. President, to putting this report over until Monday, printing copies and having them on the members' desks by Monday.

PRESIDENT NISBET: It will be in the journal Monday.

Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, after the vote for reconsideration does take place, I would like an opportunity to amend that particular report — that is, the report of the committee on administration — so that we can have a copy in the library which will never go out, and this be the original copy; and that the only copy to go out of here or be given to anyone during the convention be a duplicate copy.

MR. DOWNS: May I make a parliamentary inquiry? I understood first from the chairman of the committee that we were simply discussing the preserving of tapes and from the statement that was just made I understand that this provides that the tapes cannot be used or duplicated unless the chairman approves it.

My parliamentary inquiry is: what is before us? The preservation of the tapes or who gets to use a copy of the tapes?

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question now before us, Mr. Downs, is the question of reconsidering. Otherwise, the matter will go over until Monday.

Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: May I ask a question of Dr. DeVries? Would it be contrary to the wishes of the chairman of the committee on administration to offer an amendment at the proper time to alter the wording of the thing so that copies could be made with due safeguards to the tape rather than due safeguards to people in political entities and parties?

PRESIDENT NISBET: I think you are discussing a matter, Mr. Walker, that is not pertinent to this particular motion. Would you keep that until the next question comes up?

The yeas and nays have been demanded. Is there a sufficient number? Those in favor, please rise.

SECRETARY CHASE: There is a sufficient number up, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Woolfenden to reconsider. The motion of Mr. Woolfenden is to reconsider the vote by which the first recommendation of the committee on administration was postponed until Monday. Those in favor of reconsidering, please vote aye. Those opposed, vote nay.

SECRETARY CHASE: Have you all voted?

MR. HIGGS: Mr. President, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

PRESIDENT NISBET: State your inquiry, Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Assuming that the motion to reconsider is passed, the next step will be to open the original recommendation for discussion?

PRESIDENT NISBET: It will be on the question of concurring in the recommendation of the committee on administration.

MR. HIGGS: Will that be open for discussion at that time?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Right.

SECRETARY CHASE: Have you all voted? The machine is now locked and the vote will be recorded.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

Yeas—37

Anspach	Gover	Perlich
Balcer	Greene	Plank
Batchelor	Hannah, J. A.	Powell
Blandford	Haskill	Richards, J. B.

Hanna, W. F.	Ostrow	Wood
Hatch	Prettie	Young
Hatcher, Mrs.	Pugsley	Youngblood

The vote on the motion to reconsider postponement is the yeas, 37; nays, 54.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The motion does not prevail.

Any further reports of standing committees?

Dr. Anspach.

MR. ANSPACH: May I have the privilege of making a comment on the procedure that just transpired? We all have nice badges with our names on them so we are identified.

The other day I heard of a boy who was going around with a big badge and on the badge it had "B-A-I-K."

A man said, "What does that mean?"

He said, "Boy, am I confused!"

The man said, "You don't spell confused with a K".

He said, "It just shows how confused I am." (laughter and applause)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the committee on administration has another recommendation. (laughter) with leave of the convention, I would like to present it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: You don't have to, you know. (laughter) You may proceed.

MR. DeVRIES: The committee on administration recommends that the convention approve the contract with Jenison and Stratton insurance agency for the following:

1. General public liability insurance policy at a cost of $1,479.40.

2. Employer's nonowned automobile liability insurance at a cost of $467.95.

for a total cost of $1,947.35.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

Mr. President, I urge concurrence in this recommendation.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. President, this is a matter that has been a little bit confusing to me ever since we first started adopting budgets in this convention.

Perhaps Mr. DeVries or a member of his committee could state, for my illumination and others who have wondered as I have, how we arrive at a particular insurance agent, at a particular policy and a particular quotation on the commission — I mean on the premium. (laughter) Apparently the thoughts in the back of my mind are pushing themselves forward more swiftly than I had intended. (laughter) But I would like some explanation of how we select these people we have been buying a rather substantial amount of insurance from, and how these decisions are made, and by whom.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I hesitate to speak for fear that I may make a Freudian slip. In the original budget adopted by the convention the second week we convened, we provided a cost of $4,455 for insurance for the convention. We took bids from several insurance agencies to take care of our insurance costs. Mr. Sterrett, of the committee on administration, worked with the insurance agents and the committee arrived at this decision on Monday.

I will ask Mr. Sterrett to make an explanation of what these 2 policies involved.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: The first is a general liability policy and it is to cover the activities and operations of the convention, including any particular contracts they might go into in the hearings away from the convention site.

The other policy is to cover what we call nonowned automobile liability insurance.

The convention would have a liability for any delegate driving his automobile around Lansing because he is a delegate on convention business in this area, also driving to and from home. If there was an automobile accident of some sort through the delegate's operation of his vehicle, this would reflect back to the convention and he would be liable under your, I believe it is, master-servant relationship.

The individual delegate does have his own automobile insurance, or possibly would have his own automobile insurance to protect himself, but this does not protect the convention. The nonowned automobile liability insurance is in excess of your own personal insurance. This does not protect the delegate. This protects the convention and the delegate as a member of the convention, but it has nothing to do with your own personal use.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any other questions? Mr. Hoxie, do you have a question?

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President and fellow delegates, I don't want any delegate to get the idea that I am opposed to any of these rules, or whatever we may call them, that have been reported before this convention this morning. My sincere concern is that I think every delegate has a right and an opportunity to hear more of the facts and have an opportunity to study these things and know something about them before we are asked to cast our ballot. I have felt for some time that these matters coming out of the committee on administration should take the same procedure as set up for resolutions coming out of the committee on rules and resolutions. I see no logical reason why this membership couldn't and shouldn't have the right to duly consider them before we adopt them.

At this time I am going to make a motion that the rules of this convention be amended so that these proposed recommendations follow the same procedure as resolutions before this convention. That is a motion which I think is germane at this time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hoxie, would you offer that in the form of a resolution for consideration on Monday?

MR. HOXIE: I would like to report to the membership that I did suggest to the chairman of the committee on rules and resolutions that a resolution that would cover this subject be prepared and introduced to the convention. I appreciate that I have that privilege and right. However, I haven't done it. I think that at this time I would like to make it in the nature of a motion, to be followed by a proper resolution of the convention at an early date. If the membership decides to adopt the motion I have just made, it will settle this matter at this particular time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hoxie, for use here, will you please put your motion in writing so we will have it up here to act on.

Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. President, I am in the "K" class now. I want to know if I correctly understood the gentleman who spoke in connection with this committee recommendation. If I am driving my own personal car, coming to this convention, and I run over somebody in such a way as to make myself liable, that this convention is liable for what I have done? Is that the meaning that the gentleman intended to give?

MR. STERRETT: Only if you are on convention business.

MR. BRAKE: When I am coming to the convention, am I on convention business?

MR. STERRETT: This is merely my opinion, but I would say that if you are here in Lansing, residing away from your permanent domicile, then you are here on convention business.

MR. BRAKE: Gentlemen, I am learning some law.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, if the motion of Mr. Hoxie is before the body, I would like, as I indicated before, to speak in favor of it. I believe this will do much to prevent the confusion we have had this morning and perhaps limit the members of the "K" club.

PRESIDENT NISBET: It will be if he presents it.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I would simply like to suggest that Mr. Hoxie's motion envisions a change in the rules of the convention, and therefor would have to be referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

I do not at this point make any comment in favor of it or against it.

Mr. Hoxie and I, as he has pointed out, have discussed it. I think that there may be some desirability, as a matter of ordinary routine, to let recommendations of more than ordinary interest lay over at least 1 day. But this prejudges the substance of Mr. Hoxie's motion, and it should, under the rules, be referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, do I understand Mr. Hoxie's motion is now before us?

PRESIDENT NISBET: It is not until he gets it here.

MR. DeVRIES: May I make a comment on it? As I understand it, this would mean that every decision made by the committee on administration has to take the course of a resolution, be submitted to this convention, and then go back to the committee on administration because it involves an appropriation.

Believe me, gentlemen, these decisions are not reached hastily. This matter of insurance has been studied for 6 weeks. We have looked at a series of bids and contracts which we have as a result of our best thinking. The convention originally appropriated $4,500 for this item. We manager to come up with a contract under $2,000. I am quite proud of our work.

I would suggest that Mr. Hoxie's motion is out of order. It would mean that every decision made by the committee on administration be required to take the course of a resolution, be presented to this convention and then reported back to the committee and reported out. It seems like a waste of time to me.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, I would like to read rule 68 of the convention as I have it before me, unless we have had some further alteration that I don't know about.

Rule 68 says:

> The rules of the convention may be amended by a majority vote of the delegates elected, but no rules shall be amended unless such amendment is in writing, has been considered by the committee on rules and resolutions and is in the possession of the convention 2 session days prior to its consideration.

Therefore, I don't think that it would be in order to consider Mr. Hoxie's motion as a motion at this time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hutchinson, if Mr. Hoxie's motion is made, it would be referred to the committee on rules and resolutions, just as you suggest from reading the rule.

Mr. Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. President, I would like to ask Dr. DeVries: on these liability situations that we have, do we now have temporary coverage to carry us until we can decide this thing?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Delegate Yeager, we are under a binder with this insurance company, which did cover us from the beginning of the convention and does cover us now.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Prettie.

MR. PRETTIE: A further question please, Mr. President, to Dr. DeVries: can you tell us the limits of this nonowned liability policy that we are paying some $1,500 for?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I will yield to Mr. Sterrett if he wants. I have the letter that he has, but I would rather have him make the explanation.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: The limits in this policy for bodily injury liability is $500,000 per person; $1 million each accident; and for property damage liability, it is $25,000. These are very adequate limits and the cost is very reasonable for the type of insurance.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. President, I would like to make an inquiry here with regard to the coverage of these policies. I wonder whether there has been legal research done as to the necessity for coverage as to the delegates. I can see where there may be a master-servant relationship as for the employees of the convention in this area of agency, but I wonder if there can be any question in this connection with regard to the elected delegates. I feel — like Mr. Brake's suggestion — there may be some new law involved here, but I wonder if due consideration has been given this. Very possibly it has.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: Mr. Apol had checked into the liability of the delegates, and there is a liability on the part of the delegates and the convention.

Now, back to this new law: I am not attempting to make a new law. The thing I am trying to point out is you don't know how a decision is going to go until you get into a court of law, and, being in the insurance business myself — and for Mr. Ford's benefit, I have absolutely no interest in the insurance that has been written here; we handled this through the administrative assistant to the president of the convention — I do believe, though, that it is necessary to have proper protection in the event that there is a judgment rendered against the delegates and the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. President, I gather that the answer to the question is: this question of liability has only been considered by Mr. Apol.

It is inconceivable to me that this group of delegates are the masters of an individual delegate, who would be considered a servant on convention business.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Lundgren.

MR. LUNDGREN: Mr. President, before we come to a vote — and I believe there is much mystery about this between the lawyers and also some of the insurance men here as to whether we need this and also in one of our early meetings of the rules committee, I believe this was discussed about liability of delegates, and we were told there was no need for it because we were a different type of body.

So I would move that we lay this matter over until Wednesday, I believe it's the sixth of December, for consideration.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President and delegates, I would like to speak to the point of the desirability of having insurance without regard as to whether we do have a liability or not. I think the fact that we have divisions of opinion between lawyers here would indicate that there is a question about it. I only point out this from the business angle of the thing. If there is doubt here, then there would also be doubt in the court, which would necessitate you defending a suit in the event of an accident. And as I see it, Mr. President, what we are trying to do here is to provide for the defense of a suit which very likely could cost us a great deal more than the premium that is involved.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question right now is on Mr. Lundgren's motion that this matter be postponed until Wednesday.

Mr. Lawrence.

MR. LAWRENCE: I would like to point out that I have not given this consideration but I believe there is a ruling somewhere that we are exempt from service process on our way to and from the convention and while we are here. So apparently there is a relationship of some kind between the delegate and the convention.

It would be tragic if it could be provided for us to have protection, and some accident, with the weather getting worse, should occur and the convention might be construed to be liable.

Now, I have a very inexpensive way of getting out of it. That would be that if by noon, or whatever time it is, we get in a proposal to make it unconstitutional to sue the constitutional convention. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. King.

MR. KING: Mr. President, with regard to one remark by the delegate, it is my considered opinion that the delegates are not immune from service of process, and I have a resolution now pending before the committee on rules and resolutions which would grant us that sort of immunity. I just mention that in passing. In the event anyone does think we have immunity, it is my opinion that we do not have immunity nor do we have immunity for anything we state here on the floor.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Mr. President, I think I would concur as an attorney, with Mr. Higgs' and Mr. Brake's opinion. I think it is not a question of attorneys disagreeing at this point but it is something that you would have to go to the books and look up. There is a considerable amount of money involved here.

Therefore, I would move to amend Mr. Lundgren's motion that we hold this over until Wednesday, and at that time hopefully have a legal opinion — maybe from our staff; we do have lawyers on it — on the question of whether there is liability towards delegates. Now, we are covered apparently under this binder and there is not going to be any question of us being liable on the matter until we decide this. Therefore, I would make that amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. President, I would like to concur with what Mr. Hodges just said. The point that I had been making earlier was that I didn't feel we should go ahead and buy this policy on the strength of an inquiry by Mr. Apol, recognizing the wonderful work he has done here, and not meaning to discredit him in any way, but I think the serious question involves the coverage of what it is we are trying to do.

I question the master-servant relationship but I recognize the possibility of the state being liable in view of the recent opinion of the supreme court, which has indicated that they will in the future deny immunity of governmental units. I think we should have a legal opinion before we proceed to buy this policy and I concur with Mr. Hodges.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hodges, was your amendment to the effect that the committee on administration get a legal opinion? And if so, from whom?

MR. HODGES: Well, either one of two. I don't think we should go out and hire lawyers for legal opinion. But we do have a staff which has attorneys on it. I presume one of them could do it, or we could request it from the attorney general's office.

This is merely an amendment to Mr. Lundgren's motion, just merely adding that we have some opinion when we do consider this thing on Wednesday.

PRESIDENT NISBET: If you have an amendment to make, Mr. Hodges, would you please present it in writing.

Mr. Richards.

MR. J. B. RICHARDS: Mr. President, I think it is about time that those of us who know a little bit about insurance speak up and tell you that the time for the binder to elapse has properly passed, and that we are going by the grace of God and the good word of the gentleman who has given us this binder.

This is not a matter of controversy when you get to thinking about it. If we are sued because of negligence and because we are here and because the state of Michigan has money, we will be sued and the constitutional convention will be sued and the state of Michigan will be sued. This has been discussed; this has been studied. There have been some men who know insurance on the committee. There are some lawyers on the committee. We have agreed that this is a good contract to have and a proper contract to have.

Now, if you would like to have 144 opinions, this is fine. But I think that probably we should all write them out. But if you want the opinion of some people who know what they are doing on insurance and some lawyers who have an understanding of this, then I think that it is time that we take the advice or recommendation of the committee on administration.

We have had this probably longer than we should and we are going by the grace of God and the word of an insurance man who has given us this binder. Now, I think it is time we got on without all of these motions to put it off. Let's do business like people should do business. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. President, I would like to speak in support of Mr. Lundgren's motion for this reason: it occurs to me that the problem we have is a legal problem. We are not certain whether someone might rule that the delegates are servants of the convention. If that is the case, it appears to me that there is another avenue of approach which will solve the problem for nothing, which would seem to be the best way to do it. That is the adoption of an ordinance by this convention — which I understand we have the power to do — which will state that no delegate is a servant of the convention or of the state; that he shall not be in the capacity of a servant. That is something we could consider at the same time as we are considering these other matters.

If we could do it that way, it would certainly be the cheapest way and it would be nice also to pass a constitutional ordinance anyway. For that reason, I believe we ought to give Mr. Lundgren's motion to table or postpone until Wednesday, a chance. And if anybody can come up with these answers by Wednesday, we will be just that much ahead.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Dehnke.

MR. DEHNKE: Mr. President and delegates, I think we are missing the real key of the problem here. I agree that under the rules as they have been laid down in the past — I want to remind you that curbstone opinions are usually worth what they cost, but for what it is worth, I agree that there would be no liability on the part of the convention or of the state. But there is some uncertainty in these days, as every lawyer knows, about the extent to which the rules recognized up to this date will be followed in the future. There is nothing to stop anybody who might be injured in such an accident from suing the convention and suing the state. And this premium that is presented to us here is less than it would cost the convention to defend that suit successfully.

For that reason I think the sooner we dispose of the matter and agree to buy that policy, the better it will be for everybody concerned.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. President, I would like to speak, as a practicing attorney, to this problem. When a client comes into the office and he says: should we pay this $100 as premium for this insurance? Do we need the insurance? And we tell him: well, in order to research this fully for you, it will cost you $200, you know, he usually buys the insurance and tells us to forget about the research. I think we are in that position here and that we should definitely support the recommendation of the committee.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Pugsley.

MR. PUGSLEY: I would like to sustain the reasoning of my former colleague, Judge Dehnke.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and fellow delegates, there are a lot of intimations in the debate, and one of them that I see is this: that the committee on administration did not research this thoroughly before bringing it to the floor. We asked for informal opinions from people in the attorney general's office; we asked for informal opinions from the people in the department of administration; and they told us that it would be foolhardy for the convention not to take on this insurance. So we got bids.

Let me remind you that the second week of the convention we adopted a budget in which we provided $4,500 for this item. We secured insurance at $2,500 less than the estimated cost. Now, I am willing to take the opinion of the people who talked to us in the attorney general's office, the department of administration and the insurance people we contacted, and to go along with their recommendations. I think it is foolhardy to postpone this matter any longer.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. Hodges' amendment.

Mr. Secretary, will you please read the amendment?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Hodges offers an amendment to the motion as follows:

1. Amend the motion by adding "and a legal opinion shall be secured from the attorney general prior to Wednesday, if possible, as to the liability of the convention delegates and of the state of Michigan.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment. Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: Mr. President, first of all, I would like to say to Mr. DeVries that as far as I am concerned I never intended to suggest that you were remiss in your duties. You have now indicated that you did speak with the attorney general's department. I had understood previously that the only thing that had been done was that it had only been turned over to Mr. Apol — not from you, but from another speaker. I am persuaded by the reasoning of a delegate, former Judge Dehnke and another delegate, former Judge Pugsley.

The only question that remains in my mind is: does the coverage include not only the convention, but the state of Michigan? Just what is the coverage of the proposed insurance? Assuming that it covers the convention and assuming that it covers the state of Michigan, which I think would be the primary liability, I would support the recommendation at this time without further delay.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment. Mr. Plank.

MR. PLANK: Mr. President, I am wondering if we are taking the proper action. It seems like we have already approved the expenditure of this money for this purpose in adopting the budget. Perhaps now the only action we should take is to commend the committee on saving us $2,000.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment of Mr. Hodges to Mr. Lundgren's motion. All in favor, please say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

The question is now on Mr. Lundgren's motion to postpone to Wednesday.

Mr. Woolfenden.

MR. WOOLFENDEN: Mr. President, I have already stated that I think these matters that require deliberation should have deliberation. But this is not one in my judgment. I think the committee on administration has done an excellent job.

The state of Michigan is paying in delegates' salaries alone — forgetting the other expense of this convention — $144,000 a month, or $7,200 a session. We have already spent half of our session today, which is about $3600 worth of time, trying to decide whether to spend $1,900.00. I think we should get on with it and decide this favorably and get on to the serious work of the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Lundgren to postpone. Those in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion does not prevail.

The question is now on the recommendation of the committee on administration.

Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. President, I would like to have the vote on the 2 policies divided. I raise no question about the first policy of general liability. But I wish to record a vote against the cost of liability that I don't think exists.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, that will be ordered.

Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: A question of Dr. DeVries: did we advertise for bids on these policies? If so, in what paper and on what dates? And what insurance company are we dealing with, as a matter of curiosity?

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Delegate Walker, this was discussed at the Monday evening meeting which you could not attend, in which Mr. Apol told us of the various companies that had been contacted and it was presented. It was not advertised in any paper. We have not done that. We relied on our administrative assistant to the president to get bids from various agencies.

We are dealing with the Stratton insurance agency on these 2 policies.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries, would you please read the first policy on which Mr. Brake has requested a vote, and what that involves, just so they will understand it.

MR. DeVRIES: I would ask Mr. Sterrett to do so.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: I would prefer, with Mr. Brake's permission, to summarize it rather than read the policy, which would require a number of hours. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: I think the question is: what does it entail and what does it involve?

MR. STERRETT: First, it is generally, in the insurance business, called a comprehensive general liability policy. It covers the operations of the convention, including blanket contractual liability. That is specifically stated. The premium on that policy is $1,479.40.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation of the committee that the general public liability contract be approved. All in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

Now the second policy of the report.

Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: Mr. President, the second policy is an automobile liability policy covering the liability of nonowned automobiles through the operation of the convention, which would be driven by the delegates, employees, et cetera.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. President, I ask for a roll call vote.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is the demand seconded for a roll call vote? Those in favor, please rise.

SECRETARY CHASE: Fifteen. Not a sufficient number up.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Boothby.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. President, I would like to ask Mr. Sterrett: who is covered by this insurance policy? Is it the state of Michigan or is it the constitutional convention, or both?

MR. STERRETT: We have this written as the Michigan constitutional convention.

MR. BOOTHBY: Mr. President, I raise the question as to whether the Michigan constitutional convention is a body which can be sued. It would seem to me that the proper body to be sued, if one is sued, is the state of Michigan, and I am wondering, if we do take this policy out, whether we should direct that the state of Michigan be added to this.

MR. STERRETT: I am sure, Mr. Boothby, it would be very easy to do that.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the recommendation of the committee on administration that the employer's nonowned automobile liability contract be approved. Those in favor, say aye. Those opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

Any further reports of standing committees?

Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, I will not detain the convention very much longer, but I just want to make this point: I believe that Mr. Hoxie's position was very sound and I think that it is wise to always give a group of this size an opportunity to deliberate over any item.

I am sure that the committee on rules and resolution will come up with a resolution which will perhaps incorporate in it the administration reports and recomendations being laid over for 1 day. If it is something that is not controversial or is of minor importance, it is easy enough to move that we waive the rules and go on and do that piece of business that day. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you very much.

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I regret to inform you that this does not conclude the reports of the committee on administration. (laughter) However, the next 2 reports are filed for information and not for action of the delegates, unless they so desire.

The committee on administration wishes to report to the convention that it has purchased a policeman's booth for the parking lot, to be constructed at a cost of not more than $200.

Secondly, the committee on administration has also recomended that the chains be removed from the parking lot and that the plates with the delegates' names be affixed to the iron posts in front of each parking space.

The reason for this is that we have had 3 accidents with people who have run across the parking lot and been cut on the chains and they have been severely injured.

This report is filed as information unless the convention wishes to take action on it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you very much, Mr. DeVries. Any other standing committee reports?

Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, again for information:

The committee on administration also reports that it has entered into an agreement with the voice of music company of Benton Harbor in which they have agreed to loan the constitutional convention 9 tape recorders at no cost to the convention. However, the convention has assumed the responsibility for loss of the recorders and for the servicing of them. The committee wants to publicly acknowledge the fine spirit of cooperation demonstrated by the voice of music company in this matter.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

Again, Mr. President, this report should be received as information.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you. It will be received and placed on file.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, it is with relief that I say that this concludes the reports of the committee on administration.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: A point of information. I was wondering about the printed copy of the rules. I was wondering how it was coming along and when it may be expected.

SECRETARY CHASE: The secretary has been striving diligently with the printer to get copies of the handbook. We had practical assurance that we would have some of them today but they would have to be bound in plain paper. This did not seem to be a logical thing to do, so they have assured us that by the first of the week we will have our handbooks, which include the rules as amended to date.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: I would like to add a brief comment on Mr. Woolfenden's remarks of some $7200 per day and that we spent half of our session. If we have to spend 4 hours to save the taxpayers of this state 5 cents, I would consider it time well spent. And we aren't spending any more or any less of the taxpayers' money by fully discussing the thing in their interest.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule.

Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on the calendar, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

Mr. Hutchinson.

MR. HUTCHINSON: Mr. President, on November 9 this convention determined that today, the first day of December, would be the last day for the introduction of delegate proposals. As it was originally written and as it was adopted, some confusion may arise out of it and I propose to make a motion, a procedural motion, which will clarify the situation.

I might point out that the resolution as it was adopted on November 9 said that after December 1, 1961, no delegate proposal shall be introduced, numbered, or printed except upon authorization of the convention. And then there was an amendment offered and adopted, which provided that by a subsequent action the convention could provide for the introduction of delegate proposals in preparation on the first of December.

I would like to report to you that according to research and drafting, as of 6:00 p.m. last Monday there were only 7 proposals which were still in process of preparation down there but that during this current week they received requests to draft 395 delegate proposals, and that there are still, as of 9:00 o'clock this morning, in various degrees of drafting, 255 delegate proposals.

I move, Mr. President, that the provisions of convention Resolution 21 be construed to mean that requests for delegate proposals logged in the office of research and drafting prior to 5:00 o'clock p.m. today, December 1, be eligible for introduction until further order of the convention.

I would say that Dr. Combs indicated that they anticipated that it would take about another week to process these items but you will note that the wording of the motion that I now offer does not specify an absolute closing date. In fairness to everyone, if you have a request logged down there by 5:00 o'clock today, it will be processed and there will be an opportunity for its timely introduction.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Hutchinson.

Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, in the spirit of bipartisanship, even though this lops off 7 hours from the date of December 1, I think it is a reasonable motion and would like to speak in support of it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the motion. All in favor, say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Just to be certain what this is, any delegate who has a proposal that he wants presented can still present it to the drafting office until 5:00 o'clock tonight and all proposals thus received until 5:00 o'clock tonight can then be introduced at a subsequent date.

Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, because of the discussion on Mr. DeVries' report and the recommendation that was made about the tapes and records, I would like to move at this time—and I'd certainly be in favor of a motion to delay this until Monday night—but I'd like to move at this time that the public information committee be instructed to have made, without alterations, a copy of all records and tapes, and that the originals be not removed from the convention until the convention is over and provisions have been made to turn them over to the historical society.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Madar.

Mr. Mahinske.

MR. MAHINSKE: Mr. President, in view of the fact that the main topic of discussion has been put over until Monday, I would suggest that this motion be put over until Monday and introduced at the general discussion of the topic.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar, is that satisfactory to you, to make your motion on Monday?

MR. MADAR: Yes.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any other motions or resolutions?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. J. A. Hannah offers Resolution 49, A resolution requesting authority and funds for the committee on legislative organization to hold hearings in the city of Detroit.

Following is the body of Resolution 49, as offered:

Whereas, In view of the intense interest of residents of the Detroit metropolitan area in constitutional provisions affecting the apportionment of the legislature; and

Whereas, In consideration of the numerous requests from constituents expressing interest in this subject and a desire to be heard; now therefore be it

Resolved, That such hearings be held on Tuesday, December 12, 1961, in order to guarantee the possibility of the maximum participation of interested citizens in the Detroit area and that the public be given sufficient notice; and be it further

Resolved, That the convention appropriate the necessary funds to defray the costs of travel for the members of the committee and staff to and from Detroit and other expenses necessary and incidental to the holding of such hearings.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on administration.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. J. A. Hannah offers Resolution 50, A resolution requesting authority and funds for the committee on legislative organization to hold hearings in the city of Berrien Springs.

Following is the body of Resolution 50, as offered:

Whereas, In view of the interest of residents of outstate areas in constitutional provisions affecting the apportionment of the legislature; and

Whereas, In consideration of the numerous requests from constituents expressing interest in this subject and a desire to be heard; now therefore be it

Resolved, That such hearings be held on Wednesday, December 20, 1961, in order to guarantee the possibility of maximum participation of interested citizens of the state of Michigan and that the public be given sufficient notice; and be it further

Resolved, That the convention appropriate the necessary funds to defray the costs of travel for the members of the committee and staff to and from Berrien Springs and other expenses necessary and incidental to the holding of such hearings.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on administration.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all of the resolutions on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I just forgot to say that Mr. Plank and I agreed on this motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you.

Special orders.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders.

SECRETARY CHASE: Items on the general orders calendar are not available for consideration until Monday.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: The following are committee meeting announcements:

The committee on legislative powers will meet in room H for a short meeting following the session today. T. Jefferson Hoxie, chairman. It will meet in room H on Tuesday, December 5, at 3:00 o'clock. Subcommittee 1 will meet with sponsors of Delegate Proposals 1109 and 1111 in room H on Tuesday, December 5 at 3:00 o'clock. Richard Kuhn, chairman of subcommittee 1. Subcommittees 2 and 3 will meet in room H on Tuesday, December 5 at 3:00 o'clock to consider respective committee assignments. Stanley M. Powell, chairman, subcommittee 2; Claude L. Wood, chairman, subcommittee 3. Subcommittee 4 will meet in room H on Tuesday, December 5 at 3:00 o'clock or immediately after the session. Frank G. Millard, chairman, subcommittee 4.

The committee on administration will meet on Monday, December 4, at 7:00 o'clock p.m. Walter DeVries, chairman.

The committee on rules and resolutions will meet Monday, December 4, immediately after the session in room I to consider Resolution 30 and other pending resolutions.

The committee on education will meet on Tuesday at 8:30 in the morning in Room J. Delegate Glenn Allen, Mr. Julius Barker and Mrs. Shields of the Michigan association of school boards, and Mr. R. P. Smith of the Michigan farm bureau will appear.

The committee on judicial branch will meet on Tuesday, December 5, holding a public hearing in Detroit in the city-county building. Representatives from the common pleas court and circuit court commissioners from 9:30 to 10:30; probate court, 10:30 to 11:30; recorders court, 11:30 to 12:30; circuit court, 1:30 to 4:00.

The committee on education will meet in room J on Wednesday, December 6, at 3:00 o'clock. Mr. Ralph A. Ulveling, director of the Detroit public library, will appear.

There was filed in the library earlier an unabridged dictionary with a request that the delegates sign this. There are 67 delegates who have not yet signed the flyleaf.

That is all of the announcements, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, the introducers of resolutions requesting authority for funds for trips to various parts of the state are invited to appear before the committee on administration on Monday evening at 7:00 o'clock.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, for the information of the delegates, I would like to amplify a little bit on Mr. Chase's announcement with respect to the matters to be considered by the committee on rules and resolutions at its meeting on Monday evening.

One of the resolutions currently pending is one establishing a work schedule designed to complete the work of the convention on March 31, 1962. That resolution will receive the consideration of the committee on rules and resolutions on Monday evening and any delegate who wishes to be heard with respect to matters relating to scheduling of the work in the convention is invited to be present at that time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Yeager.

MR. YEAGER: Mr. President, I would like to ask the secretary: do you still wish these status books on the desk this weekend?

SECRETARY CHASE: Thank you for the reminder, Mr.

Yeager. If you will leave your status of all of the delegate proposals and resolutions on top of your desk, your secretary will bring them up to date by Monday.

We have the following requests for excuse from session:

Mr. Batchelor, Mr. Farnsworth and Mr. Snyder request leave of absence from the sessions of next Monday evening.

Mr. Binkowski wishes to be excused from the sessions of Monday and Tuesday, December 4 and 5.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be excused.

Mr. Farnsworth.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Mr. President, I would like to direct a question to Dr. DeVries relative to the time of the meeting of the committee on administration. I'm sorry, Dr. DeVries, I was asked by several members of that committee who want to take the rapid reading course, if I wouldn't consult with you and see if we could get that thing changed. I neglected to do so.

Would it be possible, sir, to change the meeting date of the committee on administration in deference to the people who want to take the rapid reading course at the same hour?

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and Delegate Farnsworth, could we discuss that Monday evening at 7:00 o'clock? (laughter)

MR. FARNSWORTH: That is exactly the same date and hour that the reading course will be in session.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, it looks like we are conducting committee business before the convention. However, there are some resolutions, Mr. Farnsworth, that we must act on in order that these people can take the trips and report them out favorably. We can move the meeting to 7:30, but this will crowd us.

MR. FARNSWORTH: Could it be moved to 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon, for instance?

MR. DeVRIES: We have a problem there, Mr. Farnsworth, with the delegates who have been invited to appear. We have invited at least 8 delegates to appear.

The committee on administration will meet at 7:30 on Monday.

SECRETARY CHASE: We have one additional announcement for the attention of all the delegates. All titles for license plates must be in not later than Monday night after the session in order for you to obtain the constitutional convention license plates.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Buback.

MR. BUBACK: Mr. President, I move that we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. All in favor, say aye.

We are adjourned to Monday night at 8:00 o'clock.

[Whereupon, at 11:55 o'clock a.m., the convention adjourned until Monday, December 4, 1961, at 8:00 o'clock p.m.]

THIRTY-FIFTH DAY

Monday, December 4, 1961, 8:30 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

The invocation for this evening will be given by one of our own delegates, Mrs. Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: Let us pray. Dear Lord, help us tonight and throughout this convention in both the great things and the small.

Help us to appreciate the wonder of Thy creations, men and women, and to glory both in the basic beliefs we have in common and in the fact that we are free to differ with each other.

Help us understand what others say to us, and to listen not only with our ears but with our hearts.

Help us, in our discussions, to comprehend that spirit of liberty which, in the words of Thy servant, Learned Hand, is not too sure that it is right.

Help us appreciate the importance of every delegate to this convention, and the work of the many who assist us.

Give us the wisdom to know Thy will in writing this constitution, the courage to stand for our beliefs, and the strength to presevere in our work.

And finally, help us to find some joy in each day and to use wisely each hour that Thou has given us. In Thy name we ask. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. Those present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

Mr. Dehnke, from today's session; and Mr. Liberato requests to be excused from today's and tomorrow's sessions because of illness.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing there.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Downs, Hutchinson, Romney, Austin, McLogan and White offer

Resolution 51, A resolution to invite the recent presidents of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman, to make separate addresses to the convention.

Following is Resolution 51, as offered:

Whereas, The Michigan constitutional convention is charged with the responsibility of preparing the basic documents containing the principles and rules of government under which all the institutions and individuals of the state of Michigan must live; and

Whereas, There is urgent need to strengthen the underpinnings of American democracy, particularly at the state and local levels, in this period of world crisis; and

Whereas, By strengthening state and local governmental units so they are adequate to deal with the problems of our times, the Michigan constitutional convention can permit Michigan governmental units to perform the functions they are intended to discharge under the federal constitution, and thus handle their state and local problems in Michigan rather than shifting the responsibility for their solution to the federal government; and

Whereas, By releasing the chief branches of the federal government of the burden of having to face the solutions and revenues to deal with state and local problems, the president of the United States, the United States senate, the United States house of representatives, and the federal administrative agencies may concentrate their time and energies to a greater degree on problems of national and international character which are so urgently in need of attention; and

Whereas, The Michigan constitutional convention process thus is an effective instrument for contributing to public understanding of the processes of representative government; now therefore be it

Resolved:

1. That the recent past presidents of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman, be invited to address the Michigan constitutional convention on the extent to which national and international conditions have a relationship to our task and the role of a constitutional convention in coping with today's national, state and local problems.

2. That the president of the Michigan constitutional convention appoint a committee of 5 delegates to make arrangements for the time and place of their separate appearances.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Downs and Miss Hart offer Resolution 52, A resolution that no delegate shall have a conflict of interest in political ambitions.

Following is Resolution 52, as offered:

Whereas, The deliberative nature of this constitutional convention must be untarnished by individual political ambitions; and

Whereas, No delegate should have any conflict of interest that inevitably develops from such political ambitions; now therefore be it

Resolved, That any delegate who announces his candidacy for state office shall resign as a delegate to this convention upon such announcement.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: Under the order of unfinished business, presently before the convention is a report from the committee on administration in regard to tapes, the recording of them, their custody and care, and so forth.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, I move that the report of the committee on administration in regard to tapes be postponed until Wednesday, December 6.

PRESIDENT NISBET: You heard the motion of Mr. DeVries. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Any other unfinished business?

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only item under unfinished business.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders of the day.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders of the day.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I move that the convention resolve itself into committee of the whole.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Question is on the motion of Mr. Van Dusen. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Before we go into the committee of the whole, may I have the privilege of expressing a few thoughts?

As we approach the end of this phase of our convention, we have arrived at approximately the 1/3 mark of our work. The first phase, that of orientation, getting acquainted, study and research, committee meetings, learning the state's problems and allied questions, has gone, in my opinion, well. An editorial recently characterized our work thusly: "The work of the convention has proceeded with a high degree of efficiency to date."

This is good, and our delegates are to be congratulated for the degree of intelligence, integrity, industry and outlook they have given to their work.

I think we have built a solid foundation for the next phase of our operation. This phase will be the real test of our ability to think and act on a statesmanship level. During the second phase we must resolve our substantive problems. Make no mistake about it, these are going to be tough decisions to make. There will be arguments on both sides of these issues.

Here, as convention delegates, we will show our caliber of dedication to our work; for again, if we are to be true to our dedication, we must resolve our differences on a statesmanship level.

As the editorial further stated:

> The important goal is the creation of a constitutional draft that will permit Michigan to move forward in the years ahead, to meet its problems and obligations squarely and efficiently in the spirit of democracy and individual freedom.

We must realize that this convention is operating on the committee system. It is impossible for every delegate to be an authority or know in complete detail every subject that will come up for discussion. We must trust and depend on our committees, which, I am pleased to say, and I am certain that every delegate knows, have worked diligently and efficiently to bring out a report only after they have covered the entire field of ideas and suggestions, and only after thorough discussion and debate.

For highest efficiency, delegate suggestions can best be made to the committees themselves. Let us save our convention debating time for the real issues involved.

Tonight we start on the committee proposals. We will operate on the committee of the whole program. To many of us this is new and not a completely familiar system. Consequently, for the first few sessions of this nature, I am asking delegates who have been members of the legislature and are familiar with this procedure, to preside until we all become familiar with the system. This may happen several times in the next weeks. After that period I hope many of you will then be willing to preside when the committee of the whole operates. I would hope that every delegate would have the privilege of this before our convention is over.

Finally, I am sure that every delegate will dedicate herself and himself to a method of operation that will enable us to proceed surely and efficiently to our April 1 deadline.

I would like to ask Mr. Van Dusen to preside at the meeting tonight. (applause)

[Whereupon, Mr. Van Dusen assumed the Chair to preside as chairman of the committee of the whole.]

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: A brief statement, before I ask the secretary to read, about the work of the committee of the whole, for some of you may not be completely familiar with the way in which committee proposals are handled within the committee of the whole.

The function of the committee of the whole is to permit complete debate and discussion of proposals, to consider amendments to proposals, to consider referral of proposals otherwise than they might go in their ordinary course.

After a proposal has been fully debated, and after all amendments have been considered, then, if there is nothing further, and the committee does not otherwise indicate, I will simply announce that the proposal passes, and that means that it passes in the ordinary course back to the convention for referral to the committee on style and drafting, if the committee so recommends.

With that brief explanation, the committee will come to order, and the secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: From the committee on executive branch, by Mr. Martin, chairman, Committee Proposal 2, A proposal to provide the executive power be vested in the governor. Amends article VI, section 2.

Following is Committee Proposal 2 as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support therof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

The [chief] executive power is vested in the governor.

Mr. Martin, chairman of the committee on executive branch, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 2:

The committee on executive branch proposes deletion of the word "chief" in section 2 of article VI, so that the section will read as follows: "The executive power is vested in the governor." It is the view of the committee that the adjective, as it has been interpreted, serves as a limitation on the executive power of the governor although it was apparently originally intended to enhance the executive power. The committee believes that the proposed language properly reflects the major responsibility which the governor bears for the executive branch. The phrasing suggested is patterned after the language of the United States constitution and a number of new and recently revised state constitutions. This language was originally approved by the 1908 convention but the present language was substituted by the committee on style and drafting. The proposed language was also the language of the 1850 constitution.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Amendments to the proposal?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Brake offers the following amendment:

1. Amend page 1, line 6, after the first "The" by inserting the word "chief" as the second word, so that the language will read "The chief executive power is vested in the governor."

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, this sentence, which is taken from section 2 of the part of our constitution having to do with the executive branch of the government, is introductory in nature. It is followed by the various sections defining the governor's power.

The introductory sentence ought to be a forecast of what is to follow. Perhaps the committee has decided that the pattern is such that this is a forecast of what is to follow; for certainly the convention has not yet made that decision.

If it developes eventually that the convention is going to be willing to make all parts of the executive branch of government subservient completely to the governor, then the language the committee has reported is in order. If, on the other hand, the convention decides to keep some balance in the executive branch of government, to keep some safeguards against mediocrity and spoilsmanship, then this sentence is not appropriate. It is not descriptive of the government that we now have in Michigan.

The style and drafting committee of the 1907 convention was completely right when it put that word "chief" in the sentence.

We have chief executive power in the governor, not all executive power in the governor.

If we determine to keep any part of the divided executive responsibility, then we should have that word "chief" there, as this amendment proposes. At the present time all executive power is not in the governor. The state highway commissioner has a considerable chunk of it, so does the superintendent of public instruction, the regents of the University of Michigan, trustees of Michigan State, the governors of Wayne, the conservation commission, the welfare commission. The administrative board has a little, and the civil service commission is loaded with it.

We are not, of course, Mr. Chairman, at the time for a detailed discussion or debate of the subject of concentration of power in the governor's office. When we reach that time, and when we make at least a tentative determination of what the pattern is going to be, we will be in a position to write an introduction to that design.

I therefore move that when this committee rises it recommend that Committee Proposal 2 and the proposed amendment be laid on the table to stay there until such time as a pattern has been determined.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The question is on the motion of Mr. Brake.

Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, members of the committee—

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Just a minute, Mr. Martin. I have to check with my parliamentarian.

The question is on the motion of Mr. Brake, which is not a motion to table but a motion to recommend tabling, which is, therefore, debatable.

Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. Chairman, a matter of procedure, I assumed that the chairman of the committee would make his report before the matter is up for amendment, so the committee would know what they are discussing before we got to discussing it.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The Chair apologizes, Mr. Martin. I didn't realize there was an amendment on the secretary's desk before I made the routine question.

MR. MARTIN: Thank you Mr. Chairman. The committee on executive branch unanimously recommends that section 2 of article VI be amended to read: "The executive power is vested in the governor.", makes this recommendation after thoughtful consideration of earlier constitutional provisions.

In the 1835 constitution the words "supreme executive power" were used. In the 1850 constitution the wording which is now proposed by this committee was employed. The simple statement was "The executive power is vested in the governor.". That language stood for some 60 years.

In 1908 the words used were changed to read "The chief executive power", on the suggestion of the committee on arrangement and phraseology after the constitutional convention had adopted the 1850 wording to which your committee now proposes to return.

The language proposed is a recognition of the fact that the people regard the governor as having the ultimate responsibility for what happens in state government. This is emphasized by the provisions of section 3 of article VI, which immediately follows section 2, and requires the governor first, to ". . . take care that the laws be faithfully executed;" second, that he ". . . shall transact all necessary business with the officers of government;" and finally, that he ". . . may require information in writing from all executive and administrative state officers, elective and appointive, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices."

Clearly, this power to require reports in writing relative to the duties of other officers would be of little importance and of no use unless it were to enable the governor to carry out his prescribed responsibilities to see that the laws are faithfully executed.

This does not mean, of course, that no other officials exercise executive power. As Mr. Brake pointed out, there are many officials who exercise executive power, and they are not restricted to elected officials; they include many appointed officials who hold positions of responsibility quite as great as those of the elected officials. It does not mean that no other officials exercise executive power. They do, whether elected or appointed, but the final responsibility remains with the governor, and the failure to properly and judiciously use that power must finally be charged to him.

---

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

The language proposed recognizes this fact. This is the language which is used in the various recently revised constitutions in New Jersey and New York, Hawaii and Alaska, and also used in the United States constitution.

For these reasons the committee recommends the adoption of Committee Proposal 2.

Since a motion is on the floor to recommend tabling of the proposal, the committee on executive branch would, I am sure, unanimously agree in opposing the motion as made.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The question is on the motion of Mr. Brake.

Mr. Walker.

MR. WALKER: If I might address myself to the remarks of Mr. Brake, it seems to simmer down to a very, very simple question: are we here for a purpose or are we not here for a purpose? Are we here to make changes or are we here to preserve the status quo? Thank you.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: The question is on the motion of Mr. Brake that Committee Proposal 2 and amendment thereto be laid on the table. Is there any further discussion? If not, those in favor will say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion does not prevail.

The question now is on the amendment of Mr. Brake.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Brake has offered an amendment to insert, or reinsert, the word "chief" so the language would read "The chief executive power is vested in the governor."

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Any discussion on the amendment offered by Mr. Brake? If not, those in favor of the amendment will say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendment is not adopted.

Are there any further amendments to the proposal?

SECRETARY CHASE: There are none on file, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Any further discussion? If not, Committee Proposal 2 will pass without amendment.

It is passed.

The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: From the committee on executive branch, by Mr. Martin, chairman, Committee Proposal 3, A proposal to provide the governor shall be commander of the state armed forces. Amends article VI, section 4.

Following is Committee Proposal 3, as read by the secretary, and the reasons submitted in support thereof:

The committee recommends that the following be included in the constitution:

[He] THE GOVERNOR shall be commander in chief of the [military and naval] ARMED forces, and may call out such forces to execute the laws, to supress insurrection and to repel invasion.

Mr. Martin, chairman of the committee on executive branch, submits the following reasons in support of Committee Proposal 3:

The committee on executive branch recommends a change in the wording of section 4 of article VI, to substitute the phrase "armed forces" for the phrase "military and naval forces". The term "armed forces" is now commonly used to include all elements in the military services. The proposed language recognizes that the state now has an airforce as well as army and navy units in the national guard. This proposal does not affect article XV dealing with the militia.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: I would like to call on Mr. Millard, chairman of the subcommittee that worked on this proposal, to discuss it with the committee.

Explanation—Matter within [ ] is stricken, matter in capitals is new.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Mr. Millard.

MR. MILLARD: Mr. Chairman, this matter of having a commander in chief of the armed forces has always been before legislative bodies. If we go back over the history of our state, we find that in our first Constitution of 1835 the governor was designated as commander in chief of the army and naval forces. That provision was carried in the 1850 constitution, and then in the 1908 constitution that last sentence in the article and the section was added, that he may call out such forces to execute the laws, to suppress insurrection and to repel invasion.

Since that was adopted in the 1908 convention, and in the constitution, we have had quite a change in our armed forces in the United States. Since that time we have added an air force, and I know that some of my brethren are probably members of the air force, and they would not like to be left out of the new constitution.

If we had just said the same thing that was in the 1908 constitution, that would only mean the army and the navy. The words "armed forces" have been used extensively and exclusively by the federal government in recent years. Therefore, the only change we would recommend is that the army and naval forces be changed to armed forces, to include the air force and all other combat forces that might come under the control of the governor.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Any amendments to the proposal?

SECRETARY CHASE: None on file, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Any further discussion? If not, Committee Proposal 3 will pass without amendment.

It is passed.

The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: That completes the general orders calendar, Mr. Chairman.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Do I hear a motion to rise?

Mr. Powell.

MR. POWELL: I move that the committee rise.

CHAIRMAN VAN DUSEN: Those in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

[Whereupon, the committee of the whole having risen, President Nisbet resumed the Chair.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration 2 proposals on which the secretary will give a more detailed report.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. President, the committee of the whole has had under consideration Committee Proposal 2, A proposal to provide the executive power be vested in the governor; and Committee Proposal 3, A proposal to provide the governor shall be commander of the state armed forces. The committee reports these 2 proposals back to the convention without amendment, and with the recommendation that they do pass.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Committee Proposal 2 and Committee Proposal 3 are referred to the committee on style and drafting.

For Committee Proposal 2, as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above, page 336.

For Committee Proposal 3, as referred to the committee on style and drafting, see above.

SECREARY CHASE: That completes the report of the committee of the whole, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, I would like to move to return to the order of motions and resolutions.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, we will return to the order of motions and resolutions.

You may proceed.

MR. MADAR: At this time I would like to move that the public information committee be instructed to have made, without alterations, a copy of all the records and tapes, and that the originals be not removed from the convention until the convention is over and provisions have been made to turn them over to the historical commission.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Madar. Any discussion?

Mr. Stevens.

MR. STEVENS: Mr. President, I would like to support Mr. Madar's motion. I think it might go a long way to solve the question of the custody of the tapes.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, fellow delegates, I believe the committee on administration is working on an amendment which they intend to offer, which may clarify the matter, and I suggest that Mr. Madar's motion be tabled until Wednesday.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Would you move the motion be postponed until Wednesday?

MR. DeVRIES: I move that we postpone Mr. Madar's motion until Wednesday, December 6.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on Mr. DeVries' motion. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections will be holding a public hearing Wednesday, after the session, in room 333 of the Stevens T. Mason building, a public hearing of citizens and citizen groups regarding the declaration of rights.

The committee on finance and taxation will be holding a public hearing on Wednesday, rooms B, C, and D, at 7:30 in the evening, for taxpayers on both state and local levels who wish to be heard on anything that should or should not go into the constitution with reference to taxation.

The committee on legislative organization will be holding a public hearing on Wednesday at 7:30 in room 133 of the Mason building. Representatives of the county boards of supervisors will appear in a continuation of the hearing previously announced.

The secretary wishes to mention that of the handbooks which have been provided, only enough copies for the delegates were available this evening. Tomorrow morning the printer hopes to have the additional supply here for your use.

PRESIDENT NISBET: I would like to make one other announcement. A few weeks ago, when Dr. Pollock gave his very interesting and informative discussion on the constitution, it was suggested that some copies of Goals for Americans be ordered. There are 12 copies now available, and they will be in the library for your use.

SECRETARY CHASE: We have the following requests for leaves of absence:

Mrs. Koeze wishes to be excused from the sessions of December 5 and 6.

Mr. Gover asks to be excused from the session on Wednesday, December 6, to attend a senior government day.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be excused.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is all the requests for leave of absence.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any other announcements?

The Chair recognizes Mr. Brown.

MR. T. S. BROWN: Mr. President, I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails. We are adjourned until 2:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

[Whereupon, at 8:40 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Tuesday, December 5, 1961.]

THIRTY-SIXTH DAY

Tuesday, December 5, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Today we are very happy to have the invocation given by the pastor of one of our delegates, Mr. Sleder, of Traverse City, Reverend Howard Towne, pastor of the First Congregational Church of that city.

REVEREND TOWNE: Let us pray. Father in heaven, guardian and guide of our nation, we pause to give Thee our gratitude for life's many blessings; for the Thanksgiving season just past; for the splendor and beauty that accompany the coming of the yuletide season, and for all life's enrichments and privileges that are ours.

We come into Thy presence conscious that our supreme need is Thy approval in all our endeavors. Wilt Thou now breathe upon this momentous convention Thy gracious power and wisdom. We pray that Thy living spirit may direct the delegates as they carry the weighty responsibility afforded them by the people of our great commonwealth.

We are grateful to Thee, O God, for leading our fathers in establishing our great state, and for those whose wisdom and courage and sacrifice have preserved it and made it a power in our beloved land. Remind us, however, that we are not chosen to fill the places of those who have gone, but to fill our own places, to do the significant task Thou has laid before us, always striving to do the very best we can.

Grant that in the writing of this constitution these delegates may have the faith to believe that if they seek Thy will, Thou wilt give them the answers they cannot find in themselves. Help them, O God, at any point of uncertainty, for there is no uncertainty with Thee. May Thy gracious blessing give them strong minds and sturdy health until their tremendous task is performed for the good of our great commonwealth. We ask it in the Master's name, and for His sake. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. Those present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? The voting machine is now locked and the attendance will be recorded.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following request for leave:

Mr. Douglas phoned in and asked to be excused from today's session because of illness.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the request is granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Excused to conduct committee hearings in Detroit: Messrs. Barthwell, Bledsoe, Cudlip, Danhof, Miss Donnelly, Messrs. Everett, Ford, Garvin, Higgs, Iverson, Krolikowski, Lawrence, Leibrand, McAllister, Miss McGowan, Messrs. Mosier, Ostrow, Prettie, Pugsley, Tubbs and Woolfenden.

Absent with leave: Messrs. Binkowski, Bonisteel, Douglas, Mrs. Koeze and Mr. Liberato.

Absent without leave: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: I am sure we are all very happy to welcome back one of our delegates who has been in the hospital, Mr. Blaque Knirk. (applause)

Mr. Knirk.

MR. KNIRK: President Nisbet and delegates, I certainly am awfully glad to be back, and I would like to take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you for the kind letters and cards. Some of them were ones that I could laugh at for a long time. I sure appreciate them. (applause)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on rules and resolutions, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 30, A resolution for a select committee to deal with proposals not presently within the jurisdiction or consideration of any committee; with amendments, recommending that the amendments be agreed to and that the resolution, as thus amended, be adopted.

R. C. Van Dusen, chairman.

For Resolution 30 as offered, see above, page 263; for recommended amendments, see below, page 348.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, in view of the fact that the committee on rules and resolutions did recommend a number of amendments to this resolution, I would respectfully move that the resolution lie over 1 day so that the delegates will have the opportunity to read the amendments in the journal when the matter is considered tomorrow.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Van Dusen. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on rules and resolutions, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 45, A resolution to provide a timetable for completing the work of the convention by April 1, 1962; with 8 amendments, recommending that the amendments be agreed to and that the resolution, as thus amended, be adopted.

R. C. Van Dusen, chairman.

For Resolution 45 as offered, see above, page 309; for recommended amendments, see below, page 348.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Once again, Mr. President, because the committee on rules and resolutions has recommended a number of amendments, I would respectfully move that it lie over 1 day so the delegates will have an opportunity to read the amendments in the journal before tomorrow.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Van Dusen. All in favor say aye. Those opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on rules and resolutions, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, reports back to the convention, Resolution 51, A resolution to invite the recent presidents of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman, to make separate addresses to the convention; without amendment, and with the recommendation that the resolution be adopted.

R. C. Van Dusen, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, the resolution is, I believe, self explanatory. Because of the importance of the relationship of strong state and local government to the work of the federal government, and particularly to the work of the presidency, and because of the great experience of both of the 2 recent presidents, General Eisenhower and Mr. Truman, whose experience spans some 16 years of relationship between federal and state governments, it is the committee's unanimous recommendation that both of these gentlemen be invited to address the convention.

The second portion of the resolution deals simply with the establishment of a committee to be appointed by the president, to make arrangements for their separate addresses.

I move the adoption of the resolution.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The rules provide that the resolution be read. The secretary will read.

SECRETARY CHASE: Resolution 51, A resolution to invite the recent presidents of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman, to make separate addresses to the convention.

Whereas, The Michigan constitutional convention is charged with the responsibility of preparing the basic documents containing the principles and rules of government under which all the institutions and individuals of the state of Michigan must live; and

Whereas, There is urgent need to strengthen the underpinnings of American democracy, particularly at the state and local levels, in this period of world crisis; and

Whereas, By strengthening state and local governmental units so they are adequate to deal with the problems of our times, the Michigan constitutional convention can permit Michigan governmental units to perform the functions they are intended to discharge under the federal constitution, and thus handle their state and local problems in Michigan rather than shifting the responsibility for their solution to the federal government; and

Whereas, By releasing the chief branches of the federal government of the burden of having to face the solutions and revenues to deal with state and local problems, the president of the United States, the United States senate, the United States house of representatives, and the federal administrative agencies may concentrate their time and energies to a greater degree on problems of national and international character which are so urgently in need of attention; and

Whereas, The Michigan constitutional convention process thus is an effective instrument for contributing to public understanding of the processes of representative government; now therefore be it

Resolved:

1. That the recent past presidents of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman, be invited to address the Michigan constitutional convention on the extent to which national and international conditions have a relationship to our task and the role of a constitutional convention in coping with today's national, state and local problems.

2. That the president of the Michigan constitutional convention appoint a committee of 5 delegates to make arrangements for the time and place of their separate appearances.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President and fellow delegates, inasmuch as there are 3 living former presidents realizing, of course, that maybe distance and age might prevent President Hoover from attending, I would still like to suggest, and offer this as an amendment, that we extend the same invitation, as a matter of courtesy, to former President Hoover; inasmuch as there are only 3 former living presidents, and this would also continue the 2 to 1 ratio. (laughter)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I appreciate the words of Delegate Marshall. My thinking had reached the same objective, although not, perhaps, for the very same reason. I have prepared, if Delegate Marshall will accept them, amendments which would accomplish the suggestion he has made. It was not my intention to offer these amendments until we had reached the question, because I felt if, for any reason there was any particular objection or feeling to the inclusion of Mr. Hoover, I wouldn't care to offer the amendments.

I would like to say I think this is a wonderful thing. I think the action of the committee in proposing this resolution and acting on it expeditiously is fine. I might say one thing further, and that is, I would in no way wish to jeopardize any arrangements that have already been made or any plans that have been made by offering this amendment, but if the proposers of this resolution — and I have discussed this with some of them — are willing to accept them, I would like to offer these amendments, which have been prepared in written form.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President, fellow delegates, I made mine as a matter of suggestion, and I would withdraw the amendment and accept either the inclusion of the recommendation of the committee or accept Mr. Bentley's amendments. I thought since there are only 3 former living presidents, that they all should be invited.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I am sure if the sponsors of the resolution have no objections, the committee on rules and resolutions would happily accept the amendments offered by Messrs. Marshall and Bentley.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Bentley has offered the following amendments:

1. Amend the title, line 1, after "invite the" by striking out "recent" and inserting "past".

2. Amend the title, line 2, after "Eisenhower" by striking out "and Harry S. Truman" and inserting a comma and "Harry S. Truman and Herbert Hoover".

3. Amend the resolving clause, line 1, after "That the" by striking out "recent".

4. Amend the resolving clause, line 2, after "Eisenhower" by striking out "and Harry S. Truman" and inserting a comma and "Harry S. Truman and Herbert Hoover", so the language of the title will then read:

A resolution to invite the presidents of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Harry S. Truman and Herbert Hoover, to make separate addresses to the convention.

and the resolving clause will read:

Resolved:

1. That the past presidents of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Harry S. Truman and Herbert Hoover, be invited to address the Michigan constitutional convention on the extent to which national and international conditions have a relationship to our task and the role of a constitutional convention in coping with today's national, state and local problems.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendments. Mr. Sharpe.

MR. SHARPE: Mr. President, I am overwhelmed with the statement from my colleague, Mr. Marshall, on the 2 to 1 ratio. However, I would like to make the point of information that this was not the first time this was brought up.

In our committee meeting last night the name of Mr. Hoover was brought up, but at that time it wasn't seen fit to do anything special about it, and I am really happy that Bill, and also Mr. Bentley, brought this up, because I would like to second the motion and speak in favor of it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendments. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The amendments are adopted.

The question now is on the resolution, as amended. Any discussion?

Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: Mr. President, I would just like to say this whole idea started from a suggestion made by Delegate McLogan of Flint, and I thought the delegates should know that fact.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Thank you. Any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The resolution, as amended, is adopted.

Following is Resolution 51 as amended and adopted:

A resolution to invite the past presidents of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Harry S. Truman and Herbert Hoover, to make separate addresses to the convention.

Whereas, The Michigan constitutional convention is charged with the responsibility of preparing the basic documents containing the principles and rules of government under which all the institutions and individuals of the state of Michigan must live; and

Whereas, There is urgent need to strengthen the underpinnings of American democracy, particularly at the state and local levels, in this period of world crisis; and

Whereas, By strengthening state and local governmental units so they are adequate to deal with the problems of our times, the Michigan constitutional convention can permit Michigan governmental units to perform the functions they are intended to discharge under the federal constitution, and thus handle their state and local problems in Michigan rather than shifting the responsibility for their solution to the federal government; and

Whereas, By releasing the chief branches of the federal government of the burden of having to face the solutions and revenues to deal with state and local problems, the president of the United States, the United States senate, the United States house of representatives, and the federal administrative agencies may concentrate their time and energies to a greater degree on problems of national and international character which are so urgently in need of attention; and

Whereas, The Michigan constitutional convention process thus is an effective instrument for contributing to public understanding of the processes of representative government; now therefore be it

Resolved:

1. That the past presidents of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Harry S. Truman and Herbert Hoover, be invited to address the Michigan constitutional convention on the extent to which national and international conditions have a relationship to our task and the role of a constitutional convention in coping with today's national, state and local problems.

2. That the president of the Michigan constitutional convention appoint a committee of 5 delegates to make arrangements for the time and place of their separate appearances.

Further reports of standing committees?

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 49, A resolution requesting authority and funds for the committee on legislative organization to hold hearings in the city of Detroit; without amendment, and with the recommendation that the resolution be adopted.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

Following is Resolution 49, offered by Mr. J. A. Hannah:

A resolution requesting authority and funds for the committee on legislative organization to hold hearings in the city of Detroit.

Whereas, In view of the intense interest of residents of the Detroit metropolitan area in constitutional provisions affecting the apportionment of the legislature; and

Whereas, In consideration of the numerous requests from constituents expressing interest in this subject and a desire to be heard; now therefore be it

Resolved, That such hearings be held on Tuesday, December 12, 1961, in order to guarantee the possibility of the maximum participation of interested citizens in the Detroit area and that the public be given sufficient notice; and be it further

Resolved, That the convention appropriate the necessary funds to defray the costs of travel for the members of the committee and staff to and from Detroit and other expenses necessary and incidental to the holding of such hearings.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President, fellow delegates, the committee on administration reports this resolution unanimously. The committee on legislative organization will hold hearings in the city-county building, Detroit, and return the same day. Mr. Hannah has secured the university bus at a nominal cost. The total cost is not to exceed $150. I move the adoption of this resolution.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the resolution. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The resolution is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 50, A resolution requesting authority and funds for the committee on legislative organization to hold hearings in the city of Berrien Springs; without amendment, and with the recommendation that the resolution be adopted.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

Following is Resolution 50, offered by Mr. J. A. Hannah:

A resolution requesting authority and funds for the committee on legislative organization to hold hearings in the city of Berrien Springs.

Whereas, In view of the interest of residents of outstate areas in constitutional provisions affecting the apportionment of the legislature; and

Whereas, In consideration of the numerous requests from constituents expressing interest in this subject and a desire to be heard; now therefore be it

Resolved, That such hearings be held on Wednesday, December 20, 1961, in order to guarantee the possibility of maximum participation of interested citizens of the state of Michigan and that the public be given sufficient notice; and be it further

Resolved, That the convention appropriate the necessary funds to defray the costs of travel for the members of the committee and staff to and from Berrien Springs and other expenses necessary and incidental to the holding of such hearings.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: Mr. President and fellow delegates, this resolution has the unanimous recommendation of the committee on administration for the holding of the hearing in Berrien Springs. It will be a one day trip with the use of the university bus, and the cost will not exceed $175. I move the adoption of this resolution.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the resolution. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The resolution is adopted.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, reports and recommends to the president for consideration for staff appointment, Mrs. Inge Kyler as stenographer to the constitutional convention.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the recommendation of the committee. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The president appoints, pursuant to authorization by the convention, and with the approval of the committee on administration, the aforenamed person to the position indicated.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the appointment is approved.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. DeVries, chairman, submits the following report as a matter of information:

The committee on administration reports that in a committee meeting of November 30, the committee on administration agreed to accept the offer of the secretary of state to place the 3 original constitutions on display in the delegates' lounge.

Walter DeVries, chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. DeVries.

MR. DeVRIES: The committee wishes to thank the secretary of state for making these valuable documents available to the constitutional convention. The documents will be placed in the delegates' lounge at no expense to the convention.

On Wednesday, December 6, at 7:30 p.m., in room 133, Stevens T. Mason building, the committee on legislative organization will continue the public hearing.

The other notices of committee meetings for subsequent days and public hearings are on the composite calendar which has been provided all the delegates.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Hannah.

MR. J. A. HANNAH: Mr. President and delegates, as the committee on legislative organization nears the end of its formative period, I would like to state that we have had suggestions from many delegates that they would like to be heard. As far as we know they have all been heard.

Those who have proposals that have not been introduced have been given the opportunity to appear this afternoon, and no one has indicated a desire to be heard. If there are delegates that have proposals and would like to appear before our committee, we would like them to appear after this afternoon's session.

Telegrams were sent to all the boards of supervisors of the counties of the state except Wayne and Berrien, who will be heard when we hold hearings in their counties. The representatives of those boards of supervisors are appearing tomorrow afternoon. Only 6 or 8 have indicated they will be in attendance.

On Thursday at our meeting of the committee Dr. A. C. Breckenridge of the University of Nebraska will speak on the unicameral legislature. He will be accompanied by a state senator of Nebraska.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: I would like to announce that our lieutenant governor, T. J. Lesinski, will appear in room H to testify.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Any other announcements?

SECRETARY CHASE: In answer to some inquiries as to whether or not a mailing list is functioning: some individuals have indicated that Journals 1 through 6, which were mailed a week ago Friday, have not been received. We found that from personal knowledge some of that mail addressed to individuals here in Lansing was received on yesterday, even though it had been mailed a week ago last Friday. Remember, this is fourth class mail matter. We hope to get this straightened out with the post office before long. Meantime, Journals 7 through 25 have been mailed today.

That is all of the announcements I have.

We have some requests for leave:

Mr. Romney requests leave from tomorrow's session because of a meeting of the automobile manufacturers' association board of directors which he is scheduled to attend.

Mr. Anspach requests leave from Thursday's session, December 7, to keep a speaking appointment in Grayling.

Mr. Shanahan wishes to be excused from the session on Friday, December 8, as he has a board meeting on December 7 and two speaking engagements December 8, and also wishes to be excused on December 14 for the senior government day in Charlevoix county.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be excused.

Acting upon the resolution adopted by the convention this afternoon authorizing an invitation to Presidents Hoover, Truman and Eisenhower, the president appoints the following committee: Mr. Romney, Mr. Downs, Mr. Hutchinson, Miss Hart and Mrs. Koeze.

Without objection, they are approved.

The Chair recognizes Mr. Brown.

MR. G. E. BROWN: Mr. President, it being my turn to be spontaneous, I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. All in favor say aye. Those opposed, no.

We are adjourned until 2:00 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

[Whereupon, at 2:40 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Wednesday, December 6, 1961.]

THIRTY-SEVENTH DAY

Wednesday, December 6, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation this afternoon will be given by the Reverend John Hofman, Pastor of the First Christian Reformed Church of Lansing.

Please rise.

REVEREND HOFMAN: Let us pray. Our gracious God, we thank Thee that we can pause for this moment to invoke Thy blessing upon us, for we know that if we should strive to carry on the activity of this day without Thee, we would be foolish.

O God, we thank Thee for our constitutional convention and for all its delegates; for those who are willing to give of their time, of their talent, and of their effort in order that we might have good government. We thank Thee for laws, because we know that only when we have laws do we have real freedom, and we thank Thee for the freedom that we enjoy in this great land of ours, and also in this great state.

We pray that we may cherish it with all our hearts, and that we may give Thee the praise that we can still live in this land of freedom and of plenty.

But we want to thank Thee, O God, too, for the real freedom that we have, and for the freedom that is available to all of us, the freedom that comes from knowing that Jesus is our eternal Savior, for Jesus Christ, Himself, said, "And ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

May we seek after truth with all our hearts; also, as we, in this assembly, seek to perform the work that is entrusted unto us to do, bless all our leaders in government. Grant that they may dispatch their office in such a way that it is pleasing unto Thee, that we may have the opportunity to give Thee the praise and the adoration. In Jesus' name we pray. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present, please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? The machine is now locked and the attendance will be recorded.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

Mr. Woolfenden called from Detroit. He has been unavoidably detained and wishes to be excused from today's session; and Mr. Hoxie expects to be a little bit late and wishes to be excused from the session.

Mr. DeVries wished to be excused from the sessions of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, because of illness.

Mr. T. S. Brown requests leave of absence from the session of today, Thursday, Friday and Monday, because of urgent business in Detroit.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Bonisteel, T. S. Brown, DeVries, Gover, Hoxie, Mrs. Koeze, Messrs. Romney and Woolfenden.

Absent without leave: None.

[During the proceedings, Mr. Hoxie entered the chamber and took his seat.]

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. Gust, vice chairman, submits the following report to the constitutional convention and recommends its approval:

That the convention authorize the purchase of a model 1000 multilith offset duplicator and the maintenance contract covering the same, $2,027.15.

Rockwell T. Gust, vice chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: Mr. President, for the delegates' information, this machine has been in our possession and has been in use for approximately 3 weeks. We originally were not sure whether we would need this on a full time basis, but we are informed now, in light of the work schedule, the backlog thereof, and our projected activities in the future, that we will need this machine for the remainder of the convention.

The breakdown on this is: the machine costs actually $1,871.75, and your committee on administration unanimously recommends the purchase of this machine, together with a service contract in the amount of $155.40, making the total $2,027.15.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the recommendation of the committee. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye; opposed no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing there.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mrs. Conklin offers

Resolution 53, A resolution of gratitude to the citizens of the upper peninsula.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on referring the resolution to the committee on rules and resolutions.

Mrs. Conklin.

MRS. CONKLIN: Mr. President, I move that the rules be suspended and this resolution be considered at this time.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the suspension of the rules. Is there objection? Hearing none, the question is on the resolution. Is there any discussion? The secretary will read the resolution.

SECRETARY CHASE: Resolution 53, by Mrs. Conklin, A resolution of gratitude to the citizens of the upper peninsula.

Whereas, Certain members of the committee on education of this convention have lately staged hearings at several cities in the upper peninsula of this state; and

Whereas, The citizenry of the upper peninsula demonstrated at these hearings an extraordinary and highly enlightened interest in the proceedings of this convention, the problems confronting the committee on education, and numerous matters concerning the welfare of the state of Michigan; and

Whereas, The members of the committee on education who staged the said hearings, including Mr. Bentley, chairman, and Miss Andrus, Mr. Barthwell, Mrs. Conklin, Mr. Douglas, Mr. Faxon, Mr. Follo, Miss Hart, Mr. Heideman, Mr. Kuhn and Mr. L. W. Richards, were the recipients of a gracious and warm hospitality which has inspired in the foregoing committee members a sense of friendship and personal gratitude; now therefore be it

Resolved, That this convention, at the request of the foregoing delegates, does herewith express its thanks to the good people of the upper peninsula for their hospitality and their fine interest in the problems of this convention and of the great state of Michigan.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the resolution. Mr. Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. President, I wonder if I might offer an amendment to the resolution, to change the word "staged" to the word "held"?

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Norris offers the following amendments:

1. Amend the first whereas clause of the resolution, line 2, after "lately" by striking out the word "staged" and inserting "held".

2. Amend the third whereas clause, line 2, by striking out "staged" and inserting "held", so that the language will then read:

Whereas, Certain members of the committee on education of this convention have lately held hearings at several cities in the upper peninsula . . . .

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendments of Mr. Norris. All in favor say aye; opposed, no.

The amendments are adopted.

The question is on the resolution, as amended. Any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye; opposed, no.

The resolution, as amended, is adopted.

Following is Resolution 53 as amended and adopted:

A resolution of gratitude to the citizens of the upper peninsula.

Whereas, Certain members of the committee on education of this convention have lately held hearings at several cities in the upper peninsula of this state; and

Whereas, The citizenry of the upper peninsula demonstrated at these hearings an extraordinary and highly enlightened interest in the proceedings of this convention, the problems confronting the committee on education, and numerous matters concerning the welfare of the state of Michigan; and

Whereas, The members of the committee on education who held the said hearings, including Mr. Bentley, chairman, and Miss Andrus, Mr. Barthwell, Mrs. Conklin, Mr. Douglas, Mr. Faxon, Mr. Follo, Miss Hart, Mr. Heideman, Mr. Kuhn and Mr. L. W. Richards, were the recipients of a gracious and warm hospitality which has inspired in the foregoing committee members a sense of friendship and personal gratitude; now therefore be it

Resolved, That this convention, at the request of the foregoing delegates, does herewith express its thanks to the good people of the upper peninsula for their hospitality and their fine interest in the problems of this convention and of the great state of Michigan.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only resolution on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: Under the order of unfinished business, the president lays before the convention the report from the committee on administration in reference to tapes recorded by committees, the custody and so forth, of same.

For the report as submitted, see above, page 322.

The question being on concurring in the recommendation of the committee,

Mr. Gust, on behalf of the committee on administration, moves to amend the report as follows:

1. Amend the report of the committee regarding the custody of tapes by striking out all of the language in the report and substituting the following:

"Constitutional convention policy on tape recordings. Original tapes recorded by the convention, both in plenary session and committee sessions, are the property of the convention and are to be safeguarded as such. Their custody at the time of recording is with the president and the chairman of the respective committees. Original tapes are not to be removed from the office of the president or the committee rooms, nor are they to be duplicated, edited, abstracted, or erased. Original tapes of the plenary sessions of the convention are to be transferred immediately after recording to the office of the president. Original tapes made in committee shall be identified and transferred by the committee chairman, as soon as practicable, to the office of the president, and shall be placed under the direct custody of the administrative assistant to the president. All original tapes recorded in plenary sessions and committee meetings shall be duplicated by the office of the president, and duplicate tapes shall then be identified and transferred to the convention library for the use of the delegates. Such use shall not extend beyond the convention hall. Any delegate may have duplicated by the office of the president, at his own expense, any duplicate tape recording or any portion thereof.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: Mr. President, we have endeavored in the committee on administration, to answer all of the various objections that have been raised in the past to the other forms which this regulation took. The final policy was hammered out after lengthy discussions by all members of the committee on administration. I would be happy to answer any questions if there are any, but I certainly hope that once and for all this will end the matter of tapes.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment. Is there any discussion?

Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, I want to say that this amendment handles the question I raised Friday. My understanding is it does provide for the adequate safeguarding and also the duplication, and answers the question that Delegate Madar brought up. I think in the present form it is in very good shape. I would like to express my appreciation to the committee and to the convention for carrying it over from last Friday.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment to the report. Any further discussion?

If not, all in favor say aye; opposed, no.

The amendment is adopted.

Now the question is on concurring in the report, as amended. Any further discussion? If not, all in favor please say aye; opposed, no.

The report, as amended, is concurred in.

The question now is on the motion of Mr. Madar relative to committee records and tapes, which motion was postponed until today.

For the motion offered by Mr. Madar, see above, page 337.

Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, inasmuch as the committee on administration has added what we had asked for in our motion in preserving the tapes, I would at this time withdraw my motion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, it will be withdrawn.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 3 on the calendar under unfinished business, by Mr. Pollock, Resolution 30, A resolution for a select committee to deal with proposals not presently within the jurisdiction or consideration of any committee.

Following is Resolution 30, as offered:

Whereas, Many of the emerging problems of state and local government may not be dealt with by the present standing committees; and

Whereas, Several of these new and emerging problems should be given careful consideration; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the president appoint a select committee consisting of the president, the vice presidents, and 5 other delegates to deal: (1) with proposals not presently within the jurisdiction of any of the substantive committees, or (2) which are not being considered by present committees because they refer to new or emerging problems; and be it further

Resolved, That this committee be also charged with arranging for the joint consideration by 2 or more committees or subcommittees thereof of any matters which require such joint consideration.

The committee on rules and resolutions reports the resolution with the following 3 amendments:

1. Amend the first resolving clause, line 1, after "committee" by striking out "consisting of the president, the vice presidents, and 5 other delegates".

2. Amend the first resolving clause, line 3, by striking out "deal" and inserting "consider" and by striking out the word "with" after "(1)".

3. Amend the first resolving clause, line 5, after "problems" by changing the semicolon to a period and striking out the balance of the resolution; so that the resolution will then read:

A resolution for a select committee to deal with proposals not presently within the jurisdiction or consideration of any committee.

Whereas, Many of the emerging problems of the state and local government may not be dealt with by the present standing committees; and

Whereas, Several of these new and emerging problems should be given careful consideration; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the president appoint a select committee to consider: (1) proposals not presently within the jurisdiction of any of the substantive committees, or (2) which are not being considered by present committees because they refer to new or emerging problems.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, fellow delegates, speaking briefly on the committee amendments, I think the resolution speaks for itself. The resolution, as originally offered, dealt with 2 problems: first, the question of emerging problems envisioned by the language which the secretary just read; and secondly, the problem of possible conflicts of jurisdiction between the presently existing substantive committees.

Before the resolution was considered by the committee on rules and resolutions the second of these problems, the problem of conflict of jurisdiction, had been otherwise dealt with to the satisfaction of Dr. Pollock, the sponsor of the resolution, and that, therefore, has resulted in the third proposed amendment, which simply strikes from the resolution language referring to problems of jurisdiction.

The first 2 amendments are addressed to the question of a select committee to deal with emerging problems, those being ones not now being considered by any of the substantive committees, and which people may not have yet thought of.

The resolution, as originally proposed, suggested the appointment of a select committee consisting of the president, the vice presidents, and 5 other delegates. Now the committee on rules and resolutions felt that the president and the vice presidents were otherwise occupied to an extent which might preclude their effective participation in the work of such a select committee, and we therefore struck any reference to the size or composition of the committee, leaving that to the discretion of the president.

In response to an inquiry propounded by Mr. Downs immediately prior to the meeting today, I would say that the president is not bound to do so, but I would anticipate that he would follow the 2 to 1 ratio in appointing this committee.

The second amendment strikes the words "deal with proposals" and inserts, instead, "consider proposals." The committee on rules and resolutions was not entirely clear as to what course the select committee might pursue once it discovered an emerging problem which it felt should be considered by the convention, and believes that the term "to consider" such problems gave it a little bit more discretion in recommending to the convention what should be done with an emerging problem once it had emerged.

Mr. President, I move the adoption of the committee amendments.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendments. Any discussion?

Mr. Hodges.

MR. HODGES: Just a point of information, Mr. President, would it be the intention of the president to follow the usual outline of committee assignments that we made before on the appointments to this committee?

PRESIDENT NISBET: That is correct. Any further discussion? The question is on the committee amendments. All in favor say aye; opposed, no.

The amendments are adopted.

The question is now on the resolution, as amended. Any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye; opposed, no.

The resolution as amended is adopted.

Following is Resolution 30 as amended and adopted:

A resolution for a select committee to deal with proposals not presently within the jurisdiction or consideration of any committee.

Whereas, Many of the emerging problems of state and local government may not be dealt with by the present standing committees; and

Whereas, Several of these new and emerging problems should be given careful consideration; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the president appoint a select committee to consider: (1) proposals not presently within the jurisdiction of any of the substantive committees, or (2) which are not being considered by present committees because they refer to new or emerging problems.

SECRETARY CHASE: Item 4 on the calendar, by Mr. Wanger, Resolution 45, A resolution to provide a timetable for completing the work of the convention by April 1, 1962.

Following is Resolution 45 as offered:

Whereas, The attorney general of Michigan has ruled that the convention must finally adjourn not later than April 1, 1962, in order that its work be submitted to the people at the November, 1962, general election; and

Whereas, It is in the best interest of the people of Michigan that it be submitted at said November, 1962, election; now therefore be it

Resolved, That:

1. All matters shall be finally cleared from the committee of the whole not later than Friday, March 16, 1962.

2. No committee proposals shall be received unless they are in the hands of the secretary on or before Wednesday, January 31, 1962.

3. No public hearings shall be held after Wednesday, January 17, 1962, without leave of the convention.

The committee on rules and resolutions reports the resolution with amendments, recommending the amendments be agreed to and that the resolution, as thus amended, be adopted.

Following are the amendments proposed by the committee on rules and resolutions:

1. Amend the title, line 1, after "provide a" by striking out "timetable" and inserting "schedule".

2. Amend the title after "by" by striking out "April 1, 1962" and inserting "March 31, 1962".

3. Amend the resolution by striking out the two whereas clauses.

4. Amend the resolving clause, line 1, after "That:", by striking out the balance of the resolution and inserting:

"1. All public hearings by substantive committees shall be completed on or before December 21, 1961, unless otherwise authorized by the convention. This shall not preclude a committee from hearing witnesses invited by the committee.

2. All substantive committee hearings on delegate proposals shall be completed on or before January 5, 1962.

3. All substantive committee proposals and supporting reports shall be submitted to the convention and placed on general orders in accordance with rule 57, paragraph 2, on or before January 31, 1962.

4. The committee of the whole shall complete its consideration of all committee proposals and make its reports in accordance with rule 57, paragraph 4, on or before February 21, 1962.

5. The committee on style and drafting shall complete its consideration of all committee proposals and make its reports in accordance with rule 57, paragraph 5, on or before March 2, 1962.

6. Second reading of all committee proposals shall be completed on or before March 9, 1962.

7. The final report of the committee on style and drafting shall be made in accordance with rule 57, paragraph 8, on or before March 23, 1962.

8. The convention shall finally adjourn on or before March 31, 1962.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, as you could tell from the secretary's reading of the committee amendments, the amendments are, in effect, a substantially complete substitute for the initial resolution offered by Mr. Wanger. The amendments are similar in that they propose the same or substantially the same adjournment date for the conclusion of the work of the convention.

Mr. Wanger's resolution had proposed April 1. That being a Sunday, the committee recommended changing it to March 31. The interim steps on the way to completion of the work by that date suggested in the original resolution have been somewhat elaborated and revised in the committee's recommended amendments.

I think it is quite apparent that for some time the convention has been informally heading for the completion of its work by approximately March 31. Suggestions to that effect have been made from time to time by various of the officers, and I believe the matter came up when we, back in early November, were considering the matter of a deadline for delegate proposals.

I think it is important for a number of reasons that the convention at this point act to schedule the completion of its work and take steps to accomplish that completion in an orderly fashion. The time allotted by the proposed amendments is, in the judgment of the committee on rules and resolutions ample time.

Michigan's previous constitutional conventions have all been completed in much less time than the 6 months offered by this resolution. The constitutional conventions recently held in other states, those of Alaska, Hawaii, New Jersey and New York, all were completed in much less than the 6 months which are contemplated by this resolution. I think their experiences clearly indicate that we can, in an orderly and appropriate manner, complete our work within that time, and that that is ample time for the job.

Secondly, it should be quite obvious that if we complete our work within the scheduled 6 months, there will be a substantial saving to the taxpayers in terms of expense which might otherwise be incurred. I don't think this is an overriding consideration because, surely, it is of greater importance that we do our work well than that we do it cheaply; but if by allotting ample time, we can, nevertheless, do it at a relatively modest expense, I think that is desirable.

A further point which cannot be overlooked is that an adjournment by March 31 would remove any doubt that the proposed new constitution would be presented to the voters at the earliest opportunity contemplated by the present constitution; i.e., November, 1962. That would be an election at which the maximum turnout of the voters of the state of Michigan could be expected and, therefore, maximum consideration could be given to our work product. Furthermore, the new constitution would be presented to the voters at a time when it was fresh in their minds. Adjournment, as I say, by March 31, would clearly remove any doubt but that the new constitution could be voted upon in the November election.

Finally, I think without any question it is necessary for any deliberative body of the size of this one to have a work schedule, to carefully program its work, to permit itself ample time for the orderly consideration of the business before it. I think the schedule proposed by the committee amendments is designed purely to accomplish this purpose.

I therefore move, Mr. President, the adoption of the committee amendments.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendments.

Mr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. President, I have sent Mr. Chase, the secretary, an amendment, which I will ask him to read. Then I would like to comment on it.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Nord offers the following amendment to the committee amendments:

1. Amend committee amendment 4, at the end of the amendment, by inserting the following: "9. None of the aforesaid dates shall be absolutely binding on the convention or its committees, but rather it is intended that they shall stand as guidelines and as goals for the prompt dispatch of our business and that we as delegates resolve that we shall make every effort to meet them, consistent with our obligation to prepare a sound document.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. President, I would like to point out that I agree with nearly every remark that has been made by Mr. Van Dusen. I agree that we ought to make every effort to get through by April 1, and I agree that the motive for doing so is the correct motive; that we should make every effort to make sure that the document we put on the ballot is put on a ballot where there will be a large vote turnout. We certainly want the voters, and the maximum number, to determine whether this is the constitution that we want to live under.

I also agree with Mr. Van Dusen that the various deadlines he has submitted on the way toward the April 1 deadline are as good as we can estimate at the present time, and I don't take any issue with them, either.

The only issue I take with Mr. Van Dusen is, basically, a matter of wording on the rigidity or lack of rigidity of these deadlines, not as to what the deadlines should be but whether they are to be absolutely binding. My feeling on this is expressed by the language of the amendment that I have offered. That is that we should guarantee that every delegate make the best effort that he is capable of making — physically, mentally, and so on — and sincerely try to get this constitution on the ballot, no matter how difficult it may be to get it done by April 1.

As far as I know, I don't know that anybody is opposed to that at all. The various deadlines, as far as we can predict at this time, are presumably needed in order to accomplish that; but I feel that to put these deadlines in the form of rigid, strait jacket type deadlines is a mistake.

I feel, for example, that experience may teach us in the course of the next 4 months that some committees can work much faster than this and ought to be pressed much harder, and others cannot work as fast and should not be pressed as hard. I feel it is not a good idea to make our predictions in a rigid form this far in advance.

I do believe that before we can make them on the basis of more and more experience, we ought to have some goals and that these are the best we can do at the present time. I would prefer that these goals be revised from time to time and, possibly, even be spread out to be different for different committees.

In any event, if we could not revise the deadlines, I think we should if necessary, take the deadlines as they are but not require that they be rigid. My feeling is this: we should take first things first. The first thing is to write a good constitution and the second thing is to adjourn. We should not be too nervous about getting ready to adjourn until we are absolutely certain that the constitution we have written is one that we wish the people to adopt and that 20, 30 years later we still wish that they had adopted and will be glad that they did adopt it.

I will point out, for example, what happens even when we think that we have covered every situation. We know that we can make mistakes. It is human for one person to err. It is 144 times as human for 144 people to err. We have the constitutional amendment which is causing us difficulty right now. That is the one which we believed would require only 90 days before the November ballot, and now we have all kinds of suspicions and so on that 90 days is the wrong amount of time and that 7 months is the right amount of time. That is quite a blunder. If it is true that we need 7 months before we can submit our constitution to the people, that certainly, I believe, is not what was intended. Now, if that is a mistake, I hope we are not going to be parties to making other mistakes like that and putting them in the constitution on a grand scale.

I would also like to point out the experience we have had with a deadline so far. We have had one deadline, and, depending on how you look at it, we either accomplished what we set out to accomplish or we accomplished the reverse. We did cut off the flow of delegate proposals, but, in doing so, I do not know that we did what we ought to do. We did not exactly cut them off; it seems we multiplied them in number and reduced them in intensity. As far as we can judge, many proposals were put in in an unleavened condition — "unleavened" is another way of saying they were halfbaked. (laughter)

I put in a few myself and I know I could have done better, and probably reduced the number, if I had had more time.

I don't think we should do the same thing with the constitution itself. We should not cheapen it, so to speak, by doing a lot of work in a hurry.

I feel, and I can see that when a certain deadline arrives when a committee is required to report out or the committee of the whole is required to report out, what we will be asked to do is stay up all night, perhaps, to meet the deadline. I am willing to stay up all night but I am not positive I am able to. I have been through that already in this convention in the rules committee, and we adopted rules which had to be revised later on, on the theory that we were asleep at the time, which was perfectly true. I hope that we do not need to do that.

Therefore, the amendment I offered, I believe, is an extremely moderate, reasonable idea, and I would ask your support.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, I must respectfully oppose the amendment offered by Dr. Nord for 2 reasons. First, in my judgment, it is unnecessary, because the convention can always, if one of these deadlines proves too binding, by a simple majority vote, adjust the deadline to suit the need of the moment. Therefore, as I say, the amendment is unnecessary; secondly, the amendment, in my judgment, would create an exception which would swallow up and nullify the rule. I think if you are going to have deadlines, you impose them because you mean them and because you have every intention of meeting them. For that reason I would urge you to vote no on Dr. Nord's amendment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Nord.

MR. NORD: Mr. President, I would like to go on record on behalf of my amendment, and I would ask, when we are ready to vote, that we do it by recorded roll call vote.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The demand is for yeas and nays. Those supporting, please rise.

There are not a sufficient number up.

Any further questions? Mr. Wanger.

MR. WANGER: Mr. President, I must also respectfully oppose the amendment to the resolution before the convention. I do so for 3 reasons: first of all, I think it is entirely redundant to point out to this convention our solemn duty to prepare a sound document. That is needless. We are well aware of that obligation; secondly, as Mr. Van Dusen pointed out, the time schedule can, in any case, always be extended by a simple vote of this convention. This is not a rule; this is a resolution which we are adopting. It is in no sense of the word — I repeat that — in no sense of the word, whatsoever, a strait jacket upon this convention; and finally, I oppose Dr. Nord's amendment because I frankly think it will encourage some foot dragging by some people, who, perhaps, have their just share of that natural temptation, which I have and I am sure everyone else has, to put off until tomorrow what we can do today, in trying to get some of this job done.

I think the reasons which have been given for adjournment at the time which the resolution provides, are evident and clear to everyone in this convention, and I believe that it is clearly in the best interests of the people of the state of Michigan to adjourn so that there will be no doubt but that they will be able to vote on it at the November, 1962, election, while our work is still fresh in the minds of the people of Michigan, and they can make their best, just decision on the matter.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Higgs.

MR. HIGGS: In voting against Dr. Nord's amendment, I would like to recognize the sincerity with which he proposed it and the serious considerations that he has given us to think about.

I do believe we should support the committee's recommendations. However, should any committee feel that the deadline is too rigid for their individual purposes, that is, should a committee come on the floor of the convention and ask to extend a deadline, I would vote in favor of it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: Mr. President, I merely wish to point out this is a resolution and not a rule and that this convention, with its 144 delegates, has all the flexibility of change that it would need at any one time. Therefore, I do not feel that the resolution, as presented, is a rigid resolution but one which we have in our own province the right to amend or change at our desire.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: I would like to ask, perhaps, Mr. Van Dusen or anybody else who could give me the information, to go through this with me and see if we understand it. At least, I would like to understand it before we vote.

As I look at item 4, "The committee of the whole shall complete its consideration of all committee proposals and make its reports in accordance with rule 57, paragraph 4, on or before February 21, 1962.", it follows a previous deadline target date of January 31, 1962, which is the time of all the committee proposals, as such, would be on general orders and available to us to start debate.

Now it is my understanding of the procedure that this is the stage where the debate before this entire body would take place for the first time on the various proposals coming out of committees and, by a quick look at the calendar, I would compute there would be 15 working days if we had 5 day sessions within that time; and, in comparing this with previous constitutional conventions, I think we should bear in mind that the 1908 convention made very few changes from the previous constitution and, even there, they used considerably more time than this for the debate stage.

Now, should we discover at that stage that this is not adequate for the debates and that we don't always agree with what the committees recommend, it is now suggested that we could extend these times. But then, when you go into item 5, you find that the committee is already limited to only 7 days in which to rewrite, examine, and redraft the entire document after we get through with the debates in the committee of the whole. So, if we extend it and try and take any of that 7 days away, I wonder what happens.

Then, as I understand it, when we get through on March 2, the final drafting is ready. They have until the ninth to get this back before us. Then, of course, I assume that we would all want to examine all of the proposals in their finalized form as they come from the committee on style and drafting.

The next period involved is 10 working days, and this leaves, after the final action by the committee on style and drafting, after their last chance at it, only 5 working days between that date and the March 31 deadline.

So we look at these dates and start to consider, in voting on this, the question of changing them. I wonder how we could and still finish by the thirty-first, without seriously impairing one of those functions. Perhaps Mr. Van Dusen can straighten me out.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Ford, I would simply point out that the debate stage of our work has already begun. It began — were you here Monday night, Mr. Walker? Mr. Walker asked the question "When?" — the debate stage of our work has already begun. The work of the committee of the whole, therefore, will proceed through December, through all of January, and until February 21. That, it seems to me, is ample time to complete the work of the committee of the whole. Thereafter, the steps are pretty much as you outlined them, Mr. Ford, and I think the committee amendments speak for themselves on that point. If there are specific questions, I would be glad to try to deal with them.

I think at the moment the question is on Mr. Nord's amendment, which I oppose and wish to vote on now.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, speaking in favor of Mr. Nord's amendment, I just cannot understand why Mr. Van Dusen and any of the others stand up and insist that we can change this in the future if we need more time.

Actually, I don't see any sense in setting a time, because I feel everybody here is being honest in saying that they want to get this finished on time, that they are going to do their best.

I don't want to see any rushing. I am on the local government committee. It is the only substantive committee that I am on, and in this particular committee I think we have wasted a good deal of time giving a couple of hours to a theorist and then we are going to have to listen — and we should listen — to the public. We should listen to people who have worked in government, who have had experience, and if we are going to start rushing now, we are going to have to cut these witnesses down to about 10 minutes. I can assure you that it is going to be better for us to give them an hour and a half or two hours rather than have given that time to the theorists.

I do not mind, either, working 3, 4, 5 or 6 hours in the evening extra. That is all right with me. So far I haven't missed a day, and the only time I have been out of this committee was this morning for a short time, and that was on convention business.

Now, I would say this: let's stop trying to introduce deadlines. Let's be honest and serious about doing the work here. Let's stop taking time off — and I am not doing it — but let's stop taking time off, being absent to take care of business and clients and every other possible means to get away from here for awhile, when we should spend the time right here. We can do a good job if we do this. Let's not establish deadlines.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: Mr. President, I rise to speak in favor of the amendment. I am of the opinion that this convention has some of the most capable committee chairmen and the most capable officers of any legislative body that I have witnessed. There is no doubt in my mind that we can get through by March 31 without any rigid schedule. I see absolutely no need for it. Personally, it insults my intelligence to think that our leadership cannot get it done by that date if they desire to do so.

I would like to say that I wish that someone would try to explain to me what the difference is between a rule and a resolution. They keep saying, "Remember, it is not a rule; it is a resolution.". It only takes a majority vote to amend a rule, and it is going to take a majority vote to change this resolution.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Faxon.

MR. FAXON: I rise to support Dr. Nord's amendment. It is not a question here of any partisanship. It is simply a question of being fair about it. Mr. Van Dusen stated that we are informally heading towards this completion date. He furthermore admits that the amendment that Mr. Nord proposes is unnecessary. If it is unnecessary and it does not change the intent of the rule or the proposal or whatever you call it, then why should it bother him that this would be included?

It seems to me that what we are trying to do is give flexibility to these dates, and if a group of people here feel that the dates are not flexible, why are you trying to incur their displeasure and the displeasure of people that might look upon this as trying to push in some sort of rigidity into these work dates?

I know that the committee chairmen are doing a wonderful job, a very conscientious job of trying to get the work through. There is no foot dragging. I have heard this stated other times by several people. We are working our full days and our evenings, too, and I think it is fair to the people that we give ample time for all considerations here. The inclusion of the amendment does not, in any way, alter the schedule. It simply gives it that degree of flexibility which it ought to have.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, we all are agreed, I think, that we would like to see this new constitution presented to the people in the fall of '62.

This procedure that has been suggested is not just an arbitrary matter, but it is based upon a lot of experience which I am sure Mr. Van Dusen has had in the legislature, and some others. That is that unless you set deadlines and make them as strict as you can, you end up in complete chaos. You end up at the end of the time working around the clock on a 24 hour basis.

If we really mean to finish in time to submit this to the people next fall, then the only orderly way to do it is to impose our own deadlines on ourselves in this way. This will avoid the very thing that a lot of you are afraid of, and that is trying to wind them up on an around the clock basis where everyone gets so tired that they cannot think clearly and accurately.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Sterrett.

MR. STERRETT: Mr. President, in my opinion this amendment looks like a dodge to avoid doing an adequate job. Therefore, I would like to vote now and move the previous question.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The previous question has been demanded. Is there support? The previous question has been seconded. The question now is: "Shall the main question now be put?" Those in favor say aye; opposed, no.

The previous question is ordered.

The question is now on Mr. Nord's amendment.

Mr. Chase, read the amendment.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Nord has offered the following amendment:

1. Amend committee amendment 4 at the end of the amendment, by inserting the following: "9. None of the aforesaid dates shall be absolutely binding on the convention or its committees, but rather it is intended that they shall stand as guidelines and goals for the prompt dispatch of our business and that we as delegates resolve that we shall make every effort to meet them, consistent with our obligation to prepare a sound document.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment of Mr. Nord. Those in favor of Mr. Nord's amendment, please vote aye. Those opposed will vote no. Have you all voted?

SECRETARY CHASE: The machine is now locked and the vote will be recorded.

The roll was called and the delegates voted as follows:

On the adoption of the amendment proposed by Dr. Nord, the yeas are 45; the nays are 89.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendment is not adopted.

The question is now on the committee amendments. Any further discussion? Mr. Kuhn.

MR. KUHN: I wish to amend committee amendment 4 to strike out items 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7. In this way, Mr. President, I will once again reaffirm complete faith in the leadership of this convention; in you, in all of my committee chairmen, that this job can be done, should be done, and will be done by March 31, 1962.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the amendment offered by Mr. Kuhn.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Kuhn has offered the following amendment:

1. Amend committee amendment 4 by striking out all of items 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7, and renumbering item 8 to stand as item 1, so that the language will then read: "The convention shall finally adjourn on or before March 31, 1962.".

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, for the reasons previously stated, I would oppose the amendment and move the previous question on it.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The previous question has been asked. Those in favor of having the previous question, please rise. Sufficient number up. The previous question is supported. The question now is "Shall the main question now be put?" Those in favor please vote aye; opposed, vote no.

The previous question is ordered.

The question is on the adoption of Mr. Kuhn's amendment. Those in favor, please vote aye; those opposed, vote no.

The amendment is not adopted.

The question is now on the amendments recommended by the committee.

MR. KUHN: I ask for the yeas and nays, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The yeas and nays have been demanded. Is there support? The previous question has been ordered.

Mr. Baginski.

MR. BAGINSKI: In the event, Mr. Van Dusen, that we put any of these dates back, are the subsequent or later dates adjusted accordingly, or are we going to squeeze the work in?

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. Baginski, they may be adjusted separately or in tandem.

MR: BAGINSKI: For example, if we adjust the date of December 21, assuming we would not be in recess, to December 25, adding 6 days, would the date of January 5 be changed to January 11, or would we squeeze everything in between?

MR. VAN DUSEN: Only if the convention so determined.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The previous question has been ordered. Those in favor of the amendments offered by the committee on rules and resolutions, please vote aye, and opposed, vote no.

Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: I just want to announce my intention to abstain from voting under rule 67. Half of my friends seem to be in favor of a rigid deadline, and half of them do not, and I do not want to be accused of not sticking with my friends.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Those in favor, vote aye; those opposed, vote no.

SECRETARY CHASE: Have you all voted? The machine is now locked and the vote will be recorded.

On the adoption of the committee amendments to Resolution 45, as offered by the committee on rules and resolutions, the yeas are 94; the nays are 31.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The amendments are adopted.

The question is now on the resolution, as amended.

Miss Hart.

MISS HART: Mr. President, is a motion in order?

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the adoption of the resolution, as amended, Miss Hart. All in favor, say aye; opposed, no.

The resolution, as amended, is adopted.

Following is Resolution 45 as amended and adopted:

A resolution to provide a schedule for completing the work of the convention by March 31, 1962.

Resolved, That:

1. All public hearings by substantive committees shall be completed on or before December 21, 1961, unless otherwise authorized by the convention. This shall not preclude a committee from hearing witnesses invited by the committee.

2. All substantive committee hearings on delegate proposals shall be completed on or before January 5, 1962.

3. All substantive committee proposals and supporting reports shall be submitted to the convention and placed on general orders in accordance with rule 57, paragraph 2, on or before January 31, 1962.

4. The committee of the whole shall complete its consideration of all committee proposals and make its reports in accordance with rule 57, paragraph 4, on or before February 21, 1962.

5. The committee on style and drafting shall complete its consideration of all committee proposals and make its reports in accordance with rule 57, paragraph 5, on or before March 2, 1962.

6. Second reading of all committee proposals shall be completed on or before March 9, 1962.

7. The final report of the committee on style and drafting shall be made in accordance with rule 57, paragraph 8, on or before March 23, 1962.

8. The convention shall finally adjourn on or before March 31, 1962.

[By unanimous consent the committee returned to the order of motions and resolutions.]

Miss Hart.

MISS HART: Mr. President, in teaching school, I learned long ago that cram courses are not productive. I think all of us need time for deliberation. I think we need that time during the daytime. I do not think that we are in any condition to work day and night and come up with objective decisions. I think we are going to be counting our bones instead of considering the merits of each issue, and so I should like to move that as of next Monday we start 5 day sessions, with committee meetings beginning in the morning on Monday and lasting through Friday in the afternoon.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Miss Hart. Miss Hart, would you write that out, please, so we will have it? While she is writing it out, we can have discussion.

Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: I move that Miss Hart's motion be referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of referral. Is there discussion? Those in favor, say aye; opposed, no.

The motion prevails, and it is referred to the committee on rules and resolutions.

Following is the motion offered by Miss Hart as referred to the committee on rules and resolutions:

Miss Hart moved that the convention begin Monday, December 11, 1961, to schedule committee meetings from Monday at 8:30 a.m. through Friday afternoon.

Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: Mr. President, seeing as how we want to get this over with, and seeing as we want to do it properly so that no one will be able to say that we have not done everything we could, at this time I would like to move that the press be asked to carry a box score on absenteeism for the duration of the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Madar. Any discussion? All in favor, say aye; opposed, no.

The motion does not prevail.

Mr. Madar.

MR. MADAR: I just wondered how many would be honest with their constituents.

SECRETARY CHASE: That completes the calendar of unfinished business, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Marshall.

MR. MARSHALL: Mr. President, I rise to a point of personal privilege. I don't think it is being honest or dishonest with the constituents. I would like to take exception to the statements made by the previous speaker. I don't think anybody should be absent from this convention unless it is an absolute necessity.

I have been one of the ones that have been guilty of having to absent myself. For example, I have a commitment on Friday which was made previous to the commencement of the Friday deadlines, and I don't think that that statement was in order. I think we know when people are being absent consistently and repeatedly, and I think the delegates themselves and the constituents they represent will keep an eye on that. I just want to set my position clear on that one.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: I have the following announcements:

Dr. Hannah asked that the following announcement be made: several delegates have asked whether delegates would be welcome at the fall term commencement at Michigan State University tomorrow evening, December 7. The speaker will be Delegate Romney. All delegates are welcome. Tickets are not necessary. The program will begin promptly at 8:00 o'clock p.m. in the auditorium on the campus. Dr John Hannah.

I have the following announcement in regard to the convention handbooks: most of the delegates, I believe, have received them. Those of you who have not, if you will see the sergeant at arms immediately after the session today, he will see that you get your 25 copies. Manila envelopes will be provided your secretary, so that she may address them to the list which you prefer to send them to. You need not send them to the present members of the legislature. That is being attended to in the secretary's office.

There is one additional announcement that is requested: there were 2 looseleaf notebooks provided for your use on your desks. One was for the journals and the other for committee proposals. No more of these are available. If you will please see that your looseleaf notebooks are on your desks, the pages will file your journals and your committee proposals as they are introduced.

We have the following announcements of committee meetings:

The subcommittee on executive reorganization of the committee on executive branch will meet in room C, Tuesday next, December 12, immediately after the convention session. Mr. Bentley, chairman.

The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections will meet in room 337. Please note the change of the room.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Pollock.

MR. POLLOCK: I have just been notified by Mr. Apol that the room to be used is 133 Mason hall, because of the necessity to have larger quarters.

SECRETARY CHASE: Room 133 in the Mason building. Please note the change. The committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections, after the session, room 133. There will be a public hearing of the citizens groups regarding the declaration of rights.

The committee on finance and taxation will meet this evening at 7:30, rooms B, C and D. A public hearing for taxpayers on both state and local levels who wish to be heard on anything that should or should not go into the constitution with reference to taxation.

This evening at 7:30, the committee on legislative organization, room 133 in the Mason building. Representatives of county boards of supervisors will be heard in a public hearing.

Thursday, tomorrow, at 10:30, the committee on finance and taxation will meet in rooms B, C and D. Mr. I. L. Colburn of the Michigan beverage retailers' association will appear.

The following public hearings:

The committee on legislative organization has already been announced.

The committee on education will hold a public hearing in room J at 3:00 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Ralph Ulveling, the director of the Detroit public library, will appear.

At 6:00 o'clock this evening, the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections will hold a committee dinner party followed by a special meeting of the committtee at constitution hall. The dinner meeting is at the Jack Tar hotel.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Brake.

MR. BRAKE: Mr. President, the finance and taxation committee meeting tomorrow morning at 10:30 is not a public hearing. We crossed you up some way, and I am sorry. It will be held in our regular committee room. Mr. Colburn will be one of the witnesses. He will not be allowed to pass out any samples during the committee meeting. The other witness at that meeting in the morning will be Congressman Robert Griffin of Traverse City. I understand his topic will be the state debt limitations. At the public hearing tonight, if any delegates wish to gripe about their taxes, they will be heard.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Dr. Hannah.

MR. J. A. HANNAH: The committee on legislative organization understands there is a probability that the public hearing today may be completed this afternoon. It is possible that we may complete these hearings this afternoon and in that event there will be no further hearing.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: Mr. President, there seems to be some confusion in the minds of the delegates as to whether we have gotten 1 or 2 notebooks, because they only see 1 on their desks. You do have notebooks. You have only 1 on your desk. The reason that the other is not there, so you will be unable to leave it there when you go, is that it is for committee proposals, but they have not been coming up with enough rapidity to make it worthwhile to put them on; but I am informed by the sergeant at arms, as soon as we have them in sufficient quantities, they will be inserted in a book with your name on it and placed on your desk. Once it is on your desk, we would appreciate it if you would leave it there.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Ford.

MR. FORD: Mr. President, I would like to state that the members of the judiciary committee, because we were away on convention business, apparently missed the beginning of the debates. I wonder if, for the information of those delegates who have not been able to keep track of it, the secretary could tell us approximately how many committee proposals we now have before this body which are ready for the committee of the whole?

PRESIDENT NISBET: There are none.

Mr. Martin.

MR. MARTIN: Mr. President, the committee on executive branch will meet tomorrow immediately after the session instead of at 2:00 o'clock, and there will be a very brief meeting immediately after this session in committee room C.

SECRETARY CHASE: We have the following requests for leave from the convention:

Mr. McCauley wishes to be excused from Thursday and Friday sessions.

Mr. Pellow would like to be excused from the sessions of Thursday and Friday of this week.

Delegate Marshall desires to be excused from the session of Friday, for a commitment which was made prior to the commencement of the Friday sessions.

Mr. Youngblood wishes to be excused from the session of Friday.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be excused.

I might say, the apples that were on your desks yesterday were from the farm of Delegate J. Burton Richards. (applause).

Before we adjourn — and in a lighter vein — may I read a letter that I received this morning?

There will be extra apples next week.

Yesterday, December 5, at 2:05 p.m., our daughter delivered our first grandchild. The baby, a boy, John Burton Engel, weighed 10 pounds, 5 ounces. The mother is well, happy and tired. The father, Lawrence McKean Engel of 9815 Schiller Boulevard, Franklin Park, Illinois, is exhausted.

Both grandfathers, John Engel of Rochester, Minnesota, and Delegate Burton Richards, are "busting their buttons" at having a namesake. Both grandmothers knew how it would be long ago.

Excitedly, Grandfather Burton Richards.

Mrs. Butler.

MRS. BUTLER: Mr. President, before I make my motion, I would like to ask the secretary if these handbooks are going to be sent to the libraries as the journals are, the libraries in schools?

SECRETARY CHASE: That has not been contemplated, Mrs. Butler. We print 6,000 copies of the journal and only 5,000 copies of the handbook.

MRS. BUTLER: I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The motion is on adjournment. All in favor, say aye; opposed, no.

The convention is adjourned until tomorrow afternoon at 2:00 o'clock p.m.

[Whereupon, at 3:20 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 2:00 o'clock p.m., Thursday, December 7, 1961.]

THIRTY-EIGHTH DAY

Thursday, December 7, 1961, 2:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation today is to be given by the Reverend Henry Levi Parker, Vicar of the Episcopal Church of the Resurrection, of Ecorse.

Brother Parker.

REVEREND PARKER: Let us pray. We yield Thee hearty thanks, almighty God, for the vision that has brought us together for these appointed days and hours so that we might concern ourselves with the desire for continued progress, development and betterment of the citizens and constitution of this great and sovereign state of Michigan.

Give to the elected delegates and all concerned determination, devotion, and a sense of their awesome responsibility to the task committed to them and knowledge of the fact that this task is divine in origin.

We beseech Thee to continue the awareness in each one that the future progress, happiness and stability for all the people in this commonwealth are dependent upon the courage and unflinching decision for right that is made in this historic hall. May all of the deliberations and dispatch of business be done in decency and order.

Come, labor on.
Away with gloomy doubts and faithless fear!
No arm so weak that may do service here;
By feeblest agents may our God fulfill
Through you, His righteous will.

Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? The voting machine is now locked, and the attendance will be recorded.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Absent with leave: Messrs. Anspach, Bonisteel, T. S. Brown, DeVries, McCauley and Pellow.

Absent without leave: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Baginski.

MR. BAGINSKI: Mr. President, at this time I ask the unanimous consent of the convention to present a resolution out of order.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the request will be granted. Hearing none, the secretary will read it.

[Whereupon, the convention proceeded to the order of motions and resolutions.]

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Baginski, Everett, Balcer, Millard, Madar, Lesinski, Dean Doty, Bentley and Blandford offer

Resolution 54, A resolution to commemorate Pearl Harbor day.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, I move that the rules be suspended for the immediate consideration of this resolution.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Bentley. Any remarks? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

SECRETARY CHASE: Following is the resolution:

A resolution to commemorate Pearl Harbor day.

Whereas, Today is the twentieth anniversary of the infamous Japanese attack upon Pearl Harbor; and

Whereas, Several thousand Americans lost their lives on this day; and

Whereas, World conflict and universal disaster resulted from the attack on Pearl Harbor; and

Whereas, This country is now faced with even greater dangers than it then knew; now therefore be it

Resolved, That in the hope that this nation and this state shall hereafter always be prepared to meet the disasters of attack or war to defend the cause of freedom and free people in America or abroad, the delegates of the constitutional convention rise in silent prayer to honor the men of Pearl Harbor and the name of their country.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the resolution. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The resolution is adopted.

Will the delegates please rise.

[Whereupon, the assembled delegates rose for a moment of silent prayer.]

Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Martin, for the committee on executive branch, introduces Committee Proposal 4, A proposal to provide communication by the governor to the legislature on the condition of the state. Amends article VI, section 5;

John B. Martin, chairman.

For Committee Proposal 4 and the reasons submitted in support thereof, see below, page 369.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The proposal will be referred to the committee of the whole and placed on general orders.

SECRETARY CHASE: Messrs. Hoxie and Erickson, for the committee on legislative powers and the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule, introduce Committee Proposal 5, A proposal pertaining to the inclusion in the constitution of all of section 9 of article XII except the portion relating to bank notes or paper credit; with the recommendation that it pass.

T. Jefferson Hoxie, chairman, committee on legislative powers;
Claud R. Erickson, chairman,
committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule.

For Committee Proposal 5 and the reasons submitted in support thereof, see below, page 370.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The proposal will be referred to the committee of the whole and placed on general orders.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Brake, for the committee on finance and taxation, introduces Committee Proposal 6, A proposal to preserve the state's responsibility under sections 20a, 23a, 24, 25 and 26 of article X of the 1908 constitution; with the recommendation that it pass.

D. Hale Brake, chairman.

For Committee Proposal 6 and the reasons submitted in support thereof, see below, page 372.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The proposal will be referred to the committee of the whole and placed on general orders.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Martin, for the committee on executive branch, introduces Committee Proposal 7, A proposal to provide that the governor shall issue writs of election to fill vacancies in the legislature. Amends article VI, section 6; with the recommendation that it pass.

John B. Martin, chairman.

For Committee Proposal 7, and the reasons submitted in support thereof, see below, page 375.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The proposal will be referred to the committee of the whole and placed on general orders.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Martin, for the committee on executive branch, introduces Committee Proposal 8, A proposal to provide that the governor may convene the legislature on extraordinary occasions. Amends article VI, section 7; with the recommendation that it pass.

John B. Martin, chairman.

For Committee Proposal 8 and the reasons submitted in support thereof, see below, page 375.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The proposal will be referred to the committee of the whole and placed on general orders.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Martin, for the committee on executive branch, introduces Committee Proposal 9, A proposal to provide that the governor may convene the legislature at other places when the seat of government becomes dangerous. Amends article VI, section 8; with the recommendation that it pass.

John B. Martin, chairman.

For Committee Proposal 9 and the reasons submitted in support thereof, see below, page 377.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The proposal will be referred to the committee of the whole and placed on general orders.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. Gust, first vice chairman, submits the following report to the constitutional convention and recommends its approval:

That the convention authorize the appropriation of $300.00 to cover additional and necessary expenses in connection with the visit of General Eisenhower.

Rockwell T. Gust, Jr., first vice chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: Mr. President, fellow delegates, just by way of explanation, I would like to say that Delegate Romney and his committee have made arrangements to fly General Eisenhower to and from his visit to the convention at no cost to the convention.

In addition, he and his committee have made arrangements for the General's assistant to come here from New York and return, again at no expense to the convention.

This $300 will be used to hire for that particular session special and additional stenographic help, so that the remarks of the General and the question and answer period may be transcribed and transmitted almost as soon as the session closes to the members of the press, radio and television corps who will be covering this particular session.

In addition thereto, a small amount of money is needed for additional police protection for convention hall itself. The additional police force needed on the outside of the convention hall, it is my understanding, will be supplied by the municipal police of Lansing and the Michigan state police.

In addition thereto, a token sum from this $300 will be set aside to present Generol Eisenhower with a suitable memento of this occasion.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: That's all of the standing committee reports, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of select committees.

Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: Mr. President, inasmuch as our committee meetings are open, including the meeting of the special committee, it would seem appropriate to give all delegates as much information as we have from our meeting this morning on the assignment we received as a result of the resolution yesterday.

Now, our committee is to meet again at the end of this session to review what I'm going to say to you, but again, it has already been released, and it has already been made available to the press, so let's keep everyone as current as we can.

President Eisenhower is scheduled to fly into Lansing on the morning of December 13, leaving York, Pennsylvania, at 8:00 a.m. His scheduled arrival at capital city airport is at approximately 9:40 a.m.

Now, the committee has worked out the following as a suggested timetable:

That the official reception party assemble at the building here and proceed to the airport to meet General Eisenhower. They will be there at the time that he arrives.

He will leave with a police escort over an established route which will be publicized so that those caring to be on the route may do so.

On the basis of our schedule he will arrive at the building here at the Washtenaw entrance at 10:00 o'clock.

It is recommended that all delegates and all guests be seated in this convention hall not later than 10:00 o'clock, and that the doors to this hall be closed at 10:00 o'clock.

The session will be convened at 10:10 by the president, and following the opening ceremonies it is proposed that the president appoint a special committe to escort General Eisenhower to the rostrum.

It is proposed that his presentation will cover whatever period he desires, but we have indicated, as a result of information we have, approximately an hour.

It was his thought that instead of coming to make a formal address in a large auditorium such as our public auditorium here, that he could best serve the purposes of this convention if he spoke more informally and presented in his opening remarks statements that he thought would be pertinent, and then permit questions to be asked so that he could express himself on points that would be of particular meaning to the delegates.

In other words, he views this as an opportunity to be helpful to the delegates of this convention and the spirit of this convention, and he has rearranged his schedule to do this.

He was approached only last Friday. His aides had indicated that there was no possibility of his coming. When he heard of the nature of this convention's work, he immediately began to rearrange a completely full schedule in order to be here. That is the reason why he has found it necessary to come for this purpose and then leave immediately after meeting with us.

So at the conclusion of his remarks and the answering of questions, he would then leave the convention, and it is proposed that everyone in the hall remain seated until he has left the building, and that the convention recess then until 2:00 p.m. in the afternoon.

Now, assignments have been made, and there's no point in going over those, with possibly one exception. I have covered that. That is the route. There will be an established route of travel.

Now, the reception group at the airport is proposed to include the following, and I list this as well as the other things because if any of you have suggestions that would improve this program, I'm sure that all members of the special committee would appreciate your suggestions.

It is proposed that the reception group at the airport include the governor; the president; the mayor; the vice presidents; the U. S. Senators McNamara and Hart, if they can be here; the representatives from this congressional district; the members of the special committee, the members other than the vice presidents; Senator Perry Greene, senate president pro tem; Senator Frank Beadle, senate majority leader; Senator Harold Ryan, senate minority leader; Representative Don Pears, house speaker; Representative Allison Green, house majority leader; Representative Joseph J. Kowalski, house minority leader; National Committeewomen Mrs. Ella Koeze and Mrs. Mildred Jeffries; National Committeemen Mr. John Martin and Mr. Neil Staebler; the Democratic state chairman, Mr. John Collins; the Democratic state vice chairman, Mrs. Harriet Phillips; Mr. George VanPeursem, Republican state chairman; and Mrs. Elly Peterson, Republican state vice chairman.

Now, it is proposed that access to convention hall on the morning of December 13 be permitted as follows:

That the delegates wear badges. If you do not have your badge, then you should see Bernie Apol and make provision for entrance to convention hall, because there will be officers stationed at the entrances to the hall.

Each delegate will be given one ticket to use as he pleases for the visitors' gallery.

In addition, there will be space in the visitors' gallery and on the floor for all members of the staff of the convention, either standing room or sitting room.

The press, radio and TV, of course, will be arranged for by the public information committee and the press room committee.

Those who will be honored guests on this occasion, in addition to the members of the reception committee, are: members of the Michigan supreme court; members of the state administrative board; and former governors of Michigan. Their admission will be by ticket to the convention floor.

It is suggested that in order to have an orderly meeting following the General's opening remarks and to make as meaningful use of that time as possible, the delegates file with the public information committee not later than the end of the Monday session questions that they would like to ask the General, so that the public information committee can use some discretion and select the questions that would have the greatest meaning in terms of the work of the convention.

They will handle notifying the delegates so the delegates may take advantage of the opportunity to ask these questions to the extent that time permits. So be sure to file your questions with the public information committee no later than the end of the Monday session.

Now, the committee gave careful consideration to space limitations and security problems. Because of those reasons, and because the session will be broadcast, both by television and radio, and because it will be broadcast not only at the time that it is occurring, but also later in the day, it was felt better to restrict the building to those who will actually attend the meeting.

Furthermore, television and other equipment will be up in the halls here, so it will be a rather difficult problem to set up a closed circuit broadcast for that occasion.

Now, in addition to making these arrangements in connection with General Eisenhower's visit, plans were discussed for former President Truman's visit before the convention in January, and members of the committee were assigned the responsibility of following up on this; and the same is true with respect to the invitation to former President Hoover.

Mr. President, the only other thing I have is a motion; namely, I would like to move that the committee appointed to handle the arrangements for the visits of the former presidents, created pursuant to Resolution 51, be increased to 8 members, so that all of those who sponsored the original resolution may be appointed on this committee. The additiinal members would be Messrs. McLogan, Austin and White.

I submit that report, and motion, and I would be happy to answer questions if anyone has questions after the motion is acted on.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Romney.

Mr. Norris.

MR. NORRIS: Mr. President, I note with interest in Mr. Romney's report the fact that the only way by which delegates may ask a question of General Eisenhower is through a sort of screen test of questions.

It seems to me that if the General's purpose was to encourage certain spontaneity and sharing of ideas and experiences with reference to the idea of a constitution and our job in drawing up the constitution, we ought to be able to have confidence in the delegates' ability to ask questions directly of the General, and not have the questions channeled through those who may exercise their own judgment as to what is appropriate. Is there any particular reason why we should have that screening operation, sir?

MR. ROMNEY: I don't think there is any necessity of limiting the questions submitted to the public information committee, but it does seem necessary that we be certain that we have meaningful questions asked following the remarks, with such additional time as may be available for supplemental questions from the floor.

MR. NORRIS: I feel, sir, that the delegates themselves can make judgment as to what are meaningful questions. We have been elected by the people of the state to draw up a meaningful constitution, and I think we ought to be able to ask meaningful questions of the General.

MR. ROMNEY: I think that's what I said, Mr. Norris, if you heard what I said. Namely, that it would be the privilege of the delegates to ask questions following the questions that have been submitted to the public information committee.

The principal reason for having questions submitted to the public information committee is to make certain that there will be an opportunity for the questions of a meaningful character filed ahead of time to start a meaningful question and answer period immediately following the presentation.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Romney. Is there any further discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails and the president appoints to the committee, Mr. McLogan, Mr. Austin and Mr. White.

Without objection, they are approved.

Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Introduction, first reading—

Mr. Downs.

MR. DOWNS: Mr. President, I would like to move that the rules be suspended, and the introduction, first reading and reference of proposals be considered read and placed in the journal.

The purpose of this is to save time. I understand there are quite a few, and I do think it might help facilitate meeting our deadline.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Downs that the rules be suspended and that the introduction, first reading and reference of proposals be considered read. Is there any discussion? If not, all in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

The motion prevails.

Following are the delegate proposals, by title, as introduced and referred to committee:

Mr. Romney introduced

Delegate Proposal 1582, A proposal to provide for county charter government by majority vote of county electors, to authorize the legislature to establish charter commissions and to confer certain powers on charter counties and to provide for changes of local governmental boundaries with local consent. Amends article VIII.

Referred to the committee on local government.

Messrs. Buback, Madar, Baginski, Mrs. Butler and Mr. Stevens introduced

Referred to the committee on local government.

Mr. Danhof introduced

Delegate Proposal 1585, A proposal that the state and its agencies shall be immune from tort liability except as may be provided for by the legislature. Amends article XVI by adding a new section.

Referred to the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule.

Mr. Danhof introduced

Delegate Proposal 1586, A proposal to provide that there shall be no "earmarking" of funds. Amends article X.

Referred to the committee on finance and taxation.

Mrs. Daisy Elliott, Messrs. Young, Greene and Barthwell introduced

Delegate Proposal 1587, A proposal to provide that the governor and other executive heads of government shall take office 30 days prior to the legislature. Amends article VI.

Referred to the committee on executive branch.

Mrs. Daisy Elliott, Messrs. Young, Greene and Barthwell introduced

Delegate Proposal 1588, A proposal to provide that all state expenditures, including payment of salaries, be made a matter of public record. Amends article VI by adding a section.

Referred to the committee on executive branch.

Mrs. Daisy Elliott, Messrs. Young, Greene and Barthwell introduced

Delegate Proposal 1589, A proposal to provide that the legislature shall pass no special acts when a general act is applicable. Retains article V, section 30.

Referred to the committe on legislative powers.

Mrs. Daisy Elliott and Mr. Young introduced

Delegate Proposal 1590, A proposal to delete article V, section 11.

Referred to the committee on legislative powers.

Mrs. Daisy Elliott and Mr. Young introduced

Delegate Proposal 1591, A proposal to provide for amendments to the constitution by a majority vote of the members of the legislature. Amends article XVII, section 1.

Referred to the committee on miscellaneous provisions and schedule.

Mrs. Daisy Elliott, Messrs. Young and Barthwell introduced

Delegate Proposal 1592, A proposal to retain provisions against self incrimination. Amends article II, section 16.

Referred to the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections.

Second reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing on the calendar, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Third reading of proposals.

SECRETARY CHASE: Nothing.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Motions and resolutions.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Pollock, on behalf of the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections, offers Resolution 55, A resolution requesting authority and funds for the committe on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections to hold hearings in the cities of Detroit, Saginaw and Flint.

Following is Resolution 55, as offered:

Whereas, The subject matter of the declaration of rights, suffrage and elections has evoked very considerable statewide interest and concern; and

Whereas, Recent public hearings held by the committee clearly demonstrate that many organizations, groups and individuals in at least Detroit, Saginaw and Flint wish to be heard and present their views to our committee; and

Whereas, Affording such citizens an opportunity to be heard in these areas would substantially assist the committee in its deliberations on civil rights, suffrage and elections, and materially enhance the prospect of a ratifiable constitution for Michigan; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the committee on declaration of rights, suffrage and elections be authorized to conduct public hearings, on all matters within its province, in Detroit, on Monday, December 18; in Saginaw, on the morning of December 19; and in Flint on the afternoon of December 19; and be it further

Resolved, That the expenses and arrangements for members of the committee and staff to and from such public hearings be authorized by the convention.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Referred to the committee on administration.

SECRETARY CHASE: That is the only resolution on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Unfinished business.

SECRETARY CHASE: Mr. Buback submits the following explanation of his vote:

In accordance with rule 65, I wish to explain that due to inadvertence beyond my control, I am recorded as voting "no" on amendment to Resolution 45, whereas I intended to vote "yes."

PRESIDENT NISBET: Special orders.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: General orders.

SECRETARY CRASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Announcements.

SECRETARY CHASE: I have the following announcements of committee meetings and hearings:

The rest of the public hearing and committee announcements appear in the schedule that you have on your calendar.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, there will be a special meeting of the committee on rules and resolutions immediately following the session in room I. I recognize that many of the members may have conflicts with other committee meetings, but I will advise you this will be a very short meeting, and ask you to be very prompt in your attendance.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Bentley.

MR. BENTLEY: Mr. President, the committee on education will meet on Monday afternoon, December 11, at 4:00 o'clock, in committee room J on the third floor, to hear Mr. Roy Stevens of the Detroit board of education; and a representative of the national council of Catholic women, archdiocese of Detroit.

SECRETARY CHASE: One other announcement.

The sergeant at arms wishes the announcement to be made that the delegates will have copies of Committee Proposals 1 through 9 in their files this afternoon.

I have the following requests for leaves of absence:

From the session of Friday, tomorrow: Mr. Everett, Mr. Tweedie, Mr. Baginski, Mr. Bentley, Mr. Garry Brown, Mr. Figy, Mr. Goebel, Mr. Higgs, Mr. J. A. Hannah (who is expecting to participate in a conference out of the state, where consideration will be given to some of the problems of defense), Mr. Heideman, Mr. Knirk (who has an appointment with his doctor and a specialist tomorrow at 1:30), and Mr. Plank wishes to be excused from the session of tomorrow, as he has a meeting to attend which was scheduled prior to his knowing of Friday's meeting.

Mr. Shackleton requests to be excused from the sessions of next Monday and Tuesday to attend prescheduled meetings out of town.

Mr. J. A. Hannah, as chairman, requests the committee on legislative organization to be excused from the session of next Tuesday, December 12, for the purpose of conducting committee hearings in Detroit.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the leaves will be granted.

Just for your information, Dr. Joiner has said that at the present time there have been 50 delegate proposals delivered to the mailroom which will be ready for presentation tomorrow; 25 that are in the process now of being typed; 85 that are drafted but not typed; and 6 yet to be drafted. He informs me that these will all be in fairly early next week.

SECRETARY CHASE: There are no other announcements, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Is there any further business? If not, the Chair recognizes Mrs. Conklin.

MRS. CONKLIN: Mr. President, in the interest of becoming the most popular delegate here, I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. All in favor say aye. Opposed, no.

We are adjourned until 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning.

[Whereupon, at 2:35 o'clock p.m., the convention adjourned until 10:00 o'clock a.m., Friday, December 8, 1961.]

THIRTY-NINTH DAY

Friday, December 8, 1961, 10:00 o'clock a.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation this morning will be given by the Reverend Father John Slowey of the Catholic Social Service, Lansing. Will you please rise.

FATHER SLOWEY: During our deliberations to draft a new constitution for our state, almighty God, grant us the grace to be perceptive listeners, the skill to benefit from the experience of the past, the foresight to be persons of vision, and the wisdom to keep in focus the common good of every citizen. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present, please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? The machine will now be locked and the attendance will be recorded.

Mr. President, a quorum of the convention is present.

Prior to today's session, the secretary received the following requests for leave:

From today's session; Messrs. McAllister, Romney and Rush.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, the requests are granted.

SECRETARY CHASE: Absent with leave: Messrs. Baginski, Bentley, Bonisteel, G. E. Brown, T. S. Brown, DeVries, Everett, Figy, Goebel, J. A. Hannah, Heideman, Higgs, Knirk, Marshall, McAllister, McCauley, Pellow, Plank, Romney, Rush, Shanahan, Tweedie and Youngblood.

Absent without leave: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports of standing committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on rules and resolutions, by Mr. Van Dusen, chairman, reports back to the convention Resolution 41, A resolution concerning referral to committees and reporting by committees; with a substitute therefor, recommending that the substitute be agreed to and that the resolution, as thus substituted, be adopted.

R. C. Van Dusen, chairman.

For Resolution 41 as offered, see above, page 299; for proposed substitute, see below, page 365.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President, because the committee has reported a substitute resolution, I move that the report lay over for one day.

Before doing so, I would like to invite the attention of the committee chairmen in particular and their various subcommittee chairmen to the schedule attached to the substitute resolution, which assigns primary jurisdiction over sections of the present constitution to each of the 9 substantive committees.

This schedule of assignments has previously been furnished to all of the committee chairmen as a part of the memorandum prepared by myself dealing with concurrent jurisdiction and later resubmitted to each of the committee chairmen by the president.

Since the committee reported this substitute resolution, it has come to the attention of the committee that certain of the assignments shown on this schedule may not be entirely as understood by the committee chairmen themselves and some of their subcommittee chairmen.

I would, therefore, respectfully urge each of the committee chairmen to carefully review that schedule of assignment of primary jurisdiction over sections of the present constitution and if there are any items which you believe should be changed please bring them to my attention prior to the session on Monday evening, and we can then offer an appropriate amendment to the schedule to make sure that the schedule is correct as all of the committee chairmen understand it.

The resolution generally deals with the method of reporting by committees. I think it will merit your careful attention, and I urge you to study it in advance of the session Monday evening.

Now, Mr. President, I will move that this committee report lay over until Monday.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the motion of Mr. Van Dusen that this committee report lay over until Monday evening. Any discussion?

Without objection, it will lay over until the Monday, December 11, session.

Mr. Hoxie.

MR. HOXIE: Mr. President, I wonder if I may ask a question in connection with this resolution?

It indicates that attached to this resolution is a proposed assignment of responsibility. I do not find any such attachment to the resolution.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Van Dusen.

MR. VAN DUSEN: Mr. President and Mr. Hoxie, you will note a postscript on the matter that you have just read, a note that the schedule which is attached to the resolution, a copy of which has been furnished to all the committee chairmen, is the same schedule which you were furnished 2 weeks ago with the memo on concurrent jurisdiction and the same schedule that you were furnished once again a week ago, before the present convention, dealing again with the question of concurrent jurisdiction; so that you have at least 2 copies of it in your possession. I will be glad to see that you have a third, if you would like it.

MR. HOXIE: I am only referring to the resolution, which states that there is a schedule attached and it is not attached. Is that correct?

MR. VAN DUSEN: That is not correct. It is attached — with a copy in the hands of the secretary.

PRESIDENT NISBET: I might say, Mr. Hoxie, that that schedule will also be printed in the journal.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. Gust, first vice chairman, recommends to the convention that the following policy be adopted regarding holiday vacation for the staff:

That the staff work through December 21, that they be given December 22 and 26 off, that the staff be reduced to ½ force on December 27, 28, and 29 and return to work at noon on January 2.

Rockwell T. Gust, first vice chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: Mr. President, I was informed shortly before the session began by our committee clerk, who had been in touch with Chairman DeVries, who was home ill, that this particular report should have come out as information only, since this was something that concerned a policy to be determined by the administration committee. However, following that great Calvin Coolidge doctrine that the best delegation and the most pliable one is that which has the most information, I humbly ask that you adopt our recommendation officially.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation. Any remarks? All in favor, say aye; opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. Gust, first vice chairman, submits the following report to the convention and recommends its adoption:

That the convention authorize the purchase of 3 service contracts to cover service and maintenance of the addressograph machine, the model 2550 multilith machine, and the varitype machine, $549.12.

Rockwell T. Gust, first vice chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: Mr. President, our committee was informed several days ago that we had not purchased the service contracts on several of our pieces of equipment. These were our earliest purchases at the convention and in the early days we were not certain whether it would be the most economical thing to purchase these service contracts. On our subsequent equipment that we have, our experience has shown us that we will save money in the long run if we will purchase the service contracts for the remainder of these pieces of equipment.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on the recommendation of the committee. Any discussion? Those in favor, please say aye; those opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. Gust, first vice chairman, submits the following report to the convention and recommends its adoption:

That the convention authorize the purchase of a collating machine, $5,806.05.

Rockwell T. Gust, first vice chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: Mr. President, Mr. Apol did considerable investigation for our committee before we brought out this recommendation. He has made contact both with the legislative service bureau and the motor vehicle bureau and both of these bureaus have indicated an interest in purchasing this collator from us at the termination of the convention.

At the present time, we are using approximately 35 or 40 man hours per day in handling this collating. Estimating 35 hours a day for, say, 80 days at $2 per hour, which is roughly what we figured it is costing us to put our personnel on this project, from now until the first of April there would be a total of $5,600, which is just about the cost of this machine. Since it does have resale value and since it will speed up our work considerably, at long last we are able to recommend to you that we should probably have purchased this before, but our experience shows now that it is imperative and we ask you to approve our report.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation of the committee.

Mr. Elliott.

MR. A. G. ELLIOTT: A question, please. I am sure that there has been consideration given to renting that machine, or isn't that possible?

MR. GUST: Yes, there was consideration given to rental. We had the figures in our committee discussions. However, it would cost us somewhere, I believe, in excess of — it was either $3,500 or $4,000 to rent this for the remainder of the convention and, of course, with no resale value. On the basis of the cost of this machine and the depreciation, we are going to come out ahead.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation of the committee. Those in favor, say aye; opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. Gust, first vice chairman, submits the following report to the convention and recommends its adoption:

That the convention authorize the purchase of one gross of tapes for use with the tape recording machines, $302.10.

Rockwell T. Gust, first vice chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: These are du Pont mylar tapes at $2.10 apiece, long playing, for our recording machines. Mr. Apol, and Mr. J. Burton Richards of our committee, did considerable investigating on the prices and kinds of tape which would best suit the needs of the delegates, and this was their unanimous recommendation.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on concurring in the recommendation of the committee. Those in favor, say aye; opposed, no.

The recommendation is concurred in.

SECRETARY CHASE: The committee on administration, by Mr. Gust, first vice chairman, submits the following report:

The committee on administration has authorized the payment of $4,543.32 to the department of administration for blueprint, architectual and engineering fees. As there is still money in the budget appropriated for contractual services, this item will not require an appropriation and is offered as information only.

Rockwell T. Gust, first vice chairman.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The report will be printed in the journal.

SECRETARY CHASE: That completes the standing committee reports on file, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Reports from select committees.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Communications from state officers.

SECRETARY CHASE: None.

A public hearing will be held by the committee on judicial branch on Wednesday evening at 7:30 in rooms B, C, and D on all matters pending before the committee.

The balance of the public hearings are listed in the composite schedule.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. Gust.

MR. GUST: Mr. President, I would like to announce that there will be a meeting of the committee on administration at 7:30 Monday night preceding the session.

There is one other announcement that I would like to make: we have discussed in our committee meetings the possibility of building a shelf or shelves underneath your desks in the footspace there to try and alleviate the problem of your having so much on top of your desks. If any of you engineers, carpenters, or ingenious people have any suggestions that you would like to give us, we would welcome them. (applause)

SECRETARY CHASE: We have the following requests for leaves of absence from the sessions of next week:

Mrs. Conklin wishes to be excused from the session of Monday evening, she is scheduled to make a speech in Detroit; Mr. Dehnke is requesting a leave of absence from the session of Monday; Mr. Liberato is requesting leave from the session of Monday; Mr. Snyder from the session of Monday; and Mr. Suzore from the session of Monday.

Mr. Kelsey is requesting a leave of absence from the sessions of Monday and Tuesday.

PRESIDENT NISBET: Without objection, they will be excused.

Mr. Prettie.

MR. PRETTIE: Responding, Mr. President, to the request of Mr. Gust, I invite his attention to the "do it yourself" project in the kneespace under my desk. (applause)

PRESIDENT NISBET: Mr. White.

MR. WHITE: Mr. President, a major and unintentional error appears in the list of accredited press representatives to which, in the past, delegates have been directed. This will be corrected by a revised list which will be in your boxes Monday. Thank you.

PRESIDENT NISBET: That completes the business of this convention today.

The Chair recognizes Mrs. Cushman.

MRS. CUSHMAN: Mr. President, I move that we adjourn.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The question is on adjournment. Those in favor, please say aye; opposed, no.

The convention is adjourned until Monday night at 8:00 p.m.

[Whereupon, at 10:35 o'clock a.m., the convention adjourned until 8:00 o'clock p.m., Monday, December 11, 1961.]

FORTIETH DAY

Monday, December 11, 1961, 8:00 o'clock p.m.

PROCEEDINGS

PRESIDENT NISBET: The convention will please come to order.

Our invocation this evening will be given by one of our own delegates, Mr. Romney.

MR. ROMNEY: Our Father in heaven, we acknowledge Thy sovereignty in all things, and we express gratitude for the bounteous blessings that we have.

We are grateful for our knowledge of Thee and for our knowledge of our relationship to Thee as Thy children.

We are grateful for this great country and for the constitution on which it is based.

We are grateful for its inspired character and for the men who were raised up to give us a document that is capable of freeing men everywhere from all forms of bondage.

We are grateful for this state. We are grateful for the opportunity to serve as delegates to this constitutional convention.

We pray that Thou wilt bless us that we may ever be able to devote ourselves to this task and that we may have Thy guidance to the extent that we may be able to devise a document that will better serve the people of this state and enable us and all citizens of this state to better serve the nation and Thy purpose.

All these blessings we ask in the name of Thy Son, Jesus Christ. Amen.

PRESIDENT NISBET: The roll call will be taken by the secretary. All present, please vote aye.

SECRETARY CHASE: Has everyone voted? The machine is now locked and the attendance will be recorded.
